Pleas For Peace Feature Europe's May Day Rallies

Communists and Socialists Stage Separate Parades

LONDON (AP) — Europe celebrated May Day today in a holiday mood, with pleas for peace coming from both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The biggest demonstration was in Moscow's Red Square, where the Soviet defence minister, Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, told the crowd:

"In foreign policy it is the glorious task of our government not to permit a new war, and to keep abnormal relations between all countries.

In Western Europe, Communists and Socialists held separate rallies to observe the traditional international workers' holiday.

The Communist demonstration had a military tinge. With the Soviet armed forces on parade, Moscow radio's description of the show included the remark that "an enormous fly-past of jet planes never before seen flew overhead."

MAO TZE-TUNG APPEARS

In the Far East, Communist China followed the pattern of her Soviet neighbor with a "peaceful" review. Mao Tze-tung, the country's ailing dictator, appeared in the reviewing stand in Peiping, making one of his rare public appearances in recent months.

Shouts of "long live Mao" and "may Mao have a healthy life" rang out in Peiping, where obviously was a reference to his recent illness.

The radio said thousands watched the parades, which started at eleven. The military made up the major portion but one mass of marchers carried giant pictures of world Communist leaders, including Ho Chi Minh, chief of the Vietminh rebels in Indo-China.

In Tokyo, about 400,000 Japanese on May Day demonstrations streamed through the streets under a sea of red banners shouting their opposition to rearmament and clashing briefly with steel-helmeted police.

There was none of the violence that marked the Communist-and-anti-American May Day melee two years ago.

Divided Berlin had two May Day observances. West Berliners gathered at the front of the wrecked Reichstag building on the side of the Soviet sector, to hear address by Ernst Reuter, Walter Schreiber, and Jacob Kaiser, minister for all-German affairs. Communist rallies were made by broadcast recordings of last May Day's address by the late Soviet mayor Ernst Reuter.

In the Soviet sector of the city, there was a great procession through Marx-Engels Square.

In Paris, the day was chilly, overcast and unusually quiet. The only parades were those of the Communist rally in the Bois de Vincennes.

Italian workers attended hundreds of labor union meetings throughout the country to hear Premier and noisiest was in Rome where the Communist-dominated Rome Chamber of Labor sponsored a gathering in the Piazza del Popolo to protest the arrival of Christian Workers' Association men in St. Peter's Square.

Yugoslavia's May Day observance was a great military spectacle. President Tito reviewed a troops from a stand at the National Assembly building in Belgrade. Tank units and a number of 155 millimeter howitzers moved along in the light-pilk procession.

Quebec Colleges, Hospitals Benefit From Income Tax

QUEBEC (CP) — Education and hospitals in Quebec province soon will receive the first fruits of the new provincial income tax in the form of $16,000,000 in grants.

Premier Duplessis announced Friday hospitals will benefit from $10,000,000 in increased grants to public institutions, universities, classical colleges and other educational institutions will share $6,000,000.

Laval University here will get half of all the newly-announced grants for education. It will receive $1,500,000, through two $500,000 grants for the 1952-53 and 1953-54 school years, and a straight $2,000,000 for its new school of medicine, to be built on the site of a university centre now under construction.

DETAILS LATER

Details of division of the other $3,000,000 among the universities and others throughout the province will be announced at a later date, Mr. Duplessis said.

Mr. Duplessis said the government contributions are being financed out of anticipated revenues from the 11-per-cent tax on personal income. The income tax act provides that province may be recipient of ordinary revenue for such purposes expected to net about $32,000,000, are completed next April.

The grants to hospitals for nursing sanatoriums, convalescent homes and orphanages — will be in the form of increased daily payments toward hospital costs of poor patients. The increases will range from $54 to $60 monthly per patient.

Mr. Duplessis said the grants would bring the total of contributions to about $30,000,000 annually; compared with $8,770,000 in 1953.

Army Shows Its Fire-Power

By DAVE STOCKAND

Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAMP SHILO, Man. (CP)—A target area just a patch in Camp Shilo's 208 square miles was shelled and mortared, strafed and scorched Friday as the army and air force opened fire in "Exercise Prairie Blue Grass."

As the shells burst, a running commentary went out to the military men watching the fire-power demonstration from a hillside perched on a rise of the prairies.

The 1,200 staff college visitors and officers from various Prairie command units were bundled in parkas for protection from wind and snow.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis — A disturbance west of the Great Lakes, moving eastward, will bring Lake Superior Saturday morning. Its presence has held back the cold air, which will reach western Canada and the central States, in its advance southward and eastward Prairie. As this low pressure centre retreats toward Hudson Bay, cool air will move eastward into the Great Lakes area on Sunday. However there will be considerable sunshine in southern Ontario, and afternoon temperatures will be in the 60s. Monday there will be cloudy time cooler and cool today and Sunday with scattered showers, and some snow around the northwest of Lake Superior.

DULLES AGAIN MEETS MOLOTOV ON ATOMIC POOL

Russia Ready to Reply To Eisenhower's Plan

By MAX HARRELSON

GENEVA (AP) — Secretary Dulles of the United States held another private meeting today with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov to discuss President Eisenhower's world atomic proposals.

This was the second meeting the two major East-West diplomats had held since the Geneva conference opened Monday. Molotov is expected to give the West in his request for today's meeting that he was ready to deliver a reply to the super-secret "concrete" proposals made by the U.S. March 19.

Talks between the United States and Russians have been going on behind a heavy cloak of secrecy since Eisenhower proposed an international pool of atomic energy for peaceful materials and for peaceful uses in his address to the United Nations General Assembly Dec. 8.

There was nothing to prevent Dulles and Molotov from going over other problems, including the Korean question and Korea's and the projected talks on Indo-China here at the Far East conference.

FULL SCHEDULE

The U.S. chief diplomat has a full schedule of meetings before he leaves Monday to return to Washington. This includes a meeting with his undersecretary, Walter Bedell Smith, who will head the U.S. mission to Geneva after Dulles departs.

On the way to Washington, Dulles first will stop off in Milan, Italy, to confer briefly with prime Minister Mario Scelba on U. S. Italian problems.

Although the formal meetings on Far Eastern questions here have been scheduled for the week-end, the usual amount of behind-the-scenes diplomatic activity went on.

Among other meetings scheduled was a conference of the 16 countries which fought in Korea under the UN banner. This group is working out its strategy for the conference's Korean discussions here.

The allied group has appointed a sub-committee of nine to draft a resolution setting out plans for free elections in Korea designed to unify the war-torn peninsula.

There is no definite indication when the talks will get started on the seven-point war in Indo-China between the French Union and the Communist-led Vietminh.

Informed conference on the exact position of the Indo-China conference were in progress all this week and still are not closed.

Unions Combine To Seek Federal Aid for Jobless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heads of unions in the coal, steel and trucking industries have formed a loose alliance to push for federal spending to combat unemployment. They say they will join forces in seeking other legislation they favor.

That was the announced result of a White House conference with presidents John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers (Ind.), Dave Beck of the AFL Teamsters and David J. McDonald of the CIO Steelworkers.

'Wait and See' Undertone Is Heard In St. Lawrence Boom Times Talk

By BART BARDOSKI

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—The people of the St. Lawrence valley are about to realize a 50-year dream of tapping the power of the mighty river but there's a "wait and see" undertone to the chorus of talk about boom times.

Folk in Massena — who will feel the impact most heavily on their city of 15,000 when the hopes bloom and fade too often hear whispers that the digging is about to begin.

The New York state power authority has been licensed by the federal power commission to undertake the $600,000,000 project in partnership with the province of Ontario. The authority expects to start construction next May or June. The job, which probably will take three years, is figured that will bring a peak army of 7,000 workers into the area between gers.

In Ithaca last week, an authority-sized organization meeting now include a huge park and recreation area on Barnhart island, the Long Sault rapids, and a resort business that would "outstrip" the entire industrial growth of northern New York.

Meanwhile, village and town planners are busy.

Civic leaders admit that the area can't accommodate all the planning had begun five or 10 years ago.

Robert Ferguson, an engineer who heads the village planning board, notes that the ordinary citizen of Massena can hope for little immediate gain. The 8,000 workers at the Aluminum Company of America plant, are the backbone of the village, and despite higher taxes, higher living costs and the myriad discomforts that attend a sudden influx of strangers

Smallwood Says Thousands Of Moose and Caribou Slain By Airplanes' Machine-Guns

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood said Friday in the Newfoundland legislature that "literally thousands" of Newfoundland moose and caribou have been mowed down by machine guns from airplanes.

He did not elaborate on the statement which came while an amendment to the Wild Life Act was going through second reading. Government members fought against a section of the amendment which requires American servicemen to live in the province 12 months before getting a resident game fishing licence. That now they had to be here only six months.

W. J. Browne, Progressive Conservative member for St. John's West, said American servicemen were here "protecting us and the whole North American continent . . . and I think we owe them a great deal."

Royal Family Is Reunited, Sails from Tobruk for Home

TOBRUK, Libya (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh hugged and kissed Prince Charles and Princess Anne today for the first time for five months.

Then the reunited Royal Family sailed out of Tobruk harbor in the bruk harbor for home on the final stretches of their world tour.

The reunion came after the Queen and duke had spent hours in Libyan Mediterranean waters after their arrival from the East Africa protectorate of Uganda early this morning.

Prince Charles, five-year-old heir to the throne, and his four-year-old sister came to this newly created Mediterranean naval air kingdom by sea from Malta Friday.

But they had to wait until almost noon today before they could be reunited with their parents.

FLOWN FROM TOBRUK

A British Overseas Airways airliner brought the royal parents in to El Adem, RAF station 18 miles from Tobruk, after the flight from Entebbe, Uganda, where they spent three days.

Charles and Anne reached this storm-ravaged city famed in the desert battles of the Second World War aboard the royal yacht Britannia, which will carry the reunited Royal Family home via Malta and Gibraltar.

The children have not been allowed ashore from the yacht. During the daylight hours of waiting they played on deck, and were entertained after some of the time by two killed bagpipers.

Governor Harding were hosts to the royal couple at breakfast at the El Adem base before they left on the 18-mile car ride to the palace of King Idris.

Along the way were grim reminders of warfare between the Allies and Rommel's Afrika Korps.

King Idris received them in white robes, red skull cap and burnouse. The monarch, ruler of Cyrenaica, Libya's highest honor, the gold collar of the order of King Idris. It had been awarded only once before, to Prince Abdul Moneim, former regent of Egypt.

The duke received a hand-crafted gift cigaret case. For Prince Charles, Idris had a Libyan riding saddle, richly ornamented with silver studs and a purple Arab robe; and for Princess Anne, a solid gold "hand of Fatima," traditional sign to ward off evil.

The duke wore the uniform with the insignia of Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

Tornadoes Lash Six States, Killing Woman, Injuring 56

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Tornadoes and vicious winds lashing six states in the southwest and mid-west left one person dead, at least 56 injured and caused damages estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars Friday.

Texas suffered the most damage, 28 homes in 23 towns and communities. Other states hit were Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Iowa.

Mrs. Doot Sowell, 73, of Many, La., was the only fatality reported. Her body was found draped around a fence post. Six persons in the Sowell home were injured.

Eleven separate tornadoes struck Texas in 24 hours.

One twister injured five members of a family near Cedar Rapids when it tossed them about 100 feet into a field. Their farm home was demolished.

The same tornado swept through Lafayette, La., knocking cars, uprooting trees and stripping houses of their roofs.

Nine were hurt in Arkansas, three at Versailles, Mo., and one in Oklahoma.

Eleven children were hurt in an east Texas twister that struck a schoolhouse.

TORONTO (CP)—John E. Motz, president and publisher of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, was elected president of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association at the 35th annual meeting Friday.

E. Castonguay, general manager of l'Action Catholique, Quebec, was elected first vice-president, and John Bassett, vice-president and publisher of the Toronto Telegram, second vice-president. W. J. J. Butler of the Toronto Globe and Mail were re-elected treasurer. I. H. Macdonald is general manager.

Railways Plan Excursion Rates

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Passenger Association announced Friday that effective June 1-Sept. 30, week-end, family-plan round trip excursion fares will be offered by Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, as American railroads.

For purpose of the family fares there will be east and west zones. Sudbury and Windsor, Ont., are on the dividing line for the CPR and Armstrong and Sarnia, Ont., for the CNR.

The new fares will apply on trips from one zone to a destination in the other; not between points in same zone.

GARDINER THINKS WHEAT WILL SELL FOR GOOD PRICE

No Cause for Worry About Butter Surplus

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner predicts Canadian wheat, now piled up in a record surplus, will bring a good price to producers when it eventually moves to market.

He also told the Commons Friday that he does not consider Canada's butter surplus is anything to worry about.

Of wheat, Mr. Gardiner said Canada probably has a record amount in storage ever. But he added it will be marketed "from time to time, and we expect it will bring a price which will be favorable to the farmers where that wheat is grown."

Canadian wheat stores in Canada and the United States March 31 totalled 741,200,000 bushels compared with 666,300,000 year ago.

Dealing with the 33,000,000-pound butter surplus, the largest the agriculture price support board has ever had on hand, Mr. Gardiner said he has not regard this as "any considerable surplus."

SURPLUS MAY DISAPPEAR

This surplus could end in a few months. The board could accumulate with the town of Sofadhes, Farsala, Karditsa and Domokos hardest hit.

Thousands of persons slept in open fields Friday night, some because they had no home to return to and others because they were afraid to go back to the towns they had fled.

RUSH SUPPLIES

The government sped supplies and medicine to the earthquake victims and dispatched troops to repair communications lines. A Greek religious holiday which had closed down communication and government offices hindered the relief measures.

Many telephone and telegraph lines were down, delaying details on the extent of the disaster.

Here is the situation according to available reports:

Farsala, a town of 4,000, is almost entirely destroyed. One person was killed and several injured.

Farsala, about the same size, has 80 per cent of its houses down, leaving 5,500 persons without shelter.

Karditsa, population about 28,000, has 75 per cent of its houses down.

Domokos is 10 per cent destroyed. Five persons were injured.

Heir to 3,000,000 Is Arrested As Accomplice in $41 Armed Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—John Leonard Smallman, 20-year-old heir to a $3,000,000 fortune left by a great uncle, was arrested Friday as an alleged accomplice in a $41 robbery.

Smallman, charged with robbery with violence in connection with the Dec. 17, 1953, holdup of Clarence T. Nash, reported to a suburban police station after police issued a call for him. He was held after questioning, on $1,000 bail.

Nash, a middle-aged retired costume jewelry importer with a $1,000 allowance monthly from his estate, told police he met Nash in a downtown tavern and later sold him some jewelry. He said he knew nothing of a robbery or of the informer Nash ordered at the time of three men who robbed him of $41 after taking him for an automobile ride.

Smallman said after his arrest that Nash told him he wanted to buy some jewelry as Christmas gifts. They went to a hotel for a drink and, later, Nash said he journed to Smallman's apartment where he sold him sets of cuff links for $20.

After that, he said, Nash drove him to a lonely spot where the car was stalled. He started the car and drove away, leaving him where he told police, must have taken place after he left.

Smallman said Nash told police a man claiming to be a jewelry salesman took him to the apartment where he sold Nash some jewelry. Afterwards, they joined two other men. He said the three men took him for a ride, then beat him and robbed him of the money.

Smallman was named heir to the $3,000,000 fortune of his great aunt, Mrs. Eleanor Morgan of London. Ont., when he was a 14-year-old student at Ridley College, St. Catharines.

New Quakes Rock Central Greece After 150 Killed

Entire Towns Flattened, 25,000 Persons Homeless

By A. S. CHARALES

ATHENS (AP)—Earth tremors rocked central Greece Friday night, hours after violent shocks flattened entire towns and crushed scores of persons to death.

The early death toll was estimated officially at 150. Interior Minister Ioannis Nicolitsas said at least 25,000 persons were homeless.

The minister compared the disaster area to the widespread earthquakes in the Greek Ionian island last August, which killed up to 1,000 persons and destroyed the homes of 120,000.

Friday's stricken area stretches from the east coast into the Pindus mountains, where shattered villages can be reached only over donkey trails. The destruction appeared to centre around Granitsa, 135 miles northwest of Athens with the towns of Sofadhes, Farsala, Karditsa and Domokos hardest hit.

Thousands of persons slept in open fields Friday night, some because they had no home to return to and others because they were afraid to go back to the towns they had fled.

Hearing Device Detects Noise As Termites Eat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A listening device so sensitive that it detects a termite's footfall, the crunch of food in its jaws and the tom-tom-like sounds it uses to communicate, promises to make the pest exterminator's job easier.

The instrument consists of a tiny microphone, a pocket power unit and earphones — compact enough so termite detectives can work in the smallest nooks and crannies. It is hoped the microphone, developed by the University of California department of entomology, will render obsolete the present "bore and chisel" method of termite detection.

Scientists are still working at classifying termite sounds and their causes. They believe the tom-tom is a danger signal made by a termite knocking its head on wood.

Canada, USA Defence Complete Says Claxton

VICTORIA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said Friday Canada and the United States have had the closest defence co-operation since 1936 and "we need nothing more than we have now."

He was commenting on a speech by Congressman W. Sterling Cole that Canada and the U.S. should have a defence pact.

Mr. Claxton said in an interview that he can't think of any way of adding the existing machinery for defence co-operation to improve it.

He said that Canada and the U.S. have the best defence arrangement of any two countries in the world.

Mr. Claxton will accompany Governor-General Vincent Massey to Washington May 3 and will confer with U.S. Defence Secretary Wilson.

Recreation Centre's Cost Not Six Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The air force agrees its new Cold Lake weapons range is northern Canada's biggest and costliest recreation centre, but says it will cost nothing like $6,000,000.

An RCAF spokesman said Friday the reason for the figure is almost complete. It had cost $733,000 to date and the maximum cost probably will be $1,000,000.

The spokesman was commenting on Canadian Press report which said the Cold Lake base, 130 miles northeast of Edmonton, describing it as a "playground for the services."

He said the discrepancy probably arose because the figure was contractor building the centre had put $6,000,000 on it, which also included several other buildings.

Judges Will Get Higher Salaries

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is expected to introduce legislation at the current session of Parliament to give judges' salaries another boost in pay.

Justice Minister St. Laurent said Friday in the Commons that the government plans to amend the judges act for a "reasonable" increase.

However, it is understood that legislation will provide for pay increases. They are expected to run as high as 25 per cent.

Europeans Ask More Information For Immigrants

QUEBEC (CP)—Three European tradesmen, who sailed for home Friday, said they found a fruitless hunt for suitable jobs in their respective lines, think prospective immigrants should be better informed of Canada.

Jon Cronkeu of Germany, an electrician; Sipke Venema of Holland, a plumber, and a non-identified tailor from The Netherlands said their stay in Canada consisted of fruitless searching for employment and immigration offices.

Cronkeu said he thought of returning because there are many Canadians in his line unemployed. In Europe more than two years, he said he held jobs in Montreal and Windsor for short periods until he found work.

SEARCHED MONTHS

Venema said he searched for 11 months in Toronto before Cold Lumbia for an opening as a gardener and finally worked loading lumber in Vancouver.

All agreed that because of Canada's immigration regulations, interested in farming would do well to come here.

The latter view was backed up by a Dutch couple who successfully ran their own dairy farms near Prescott, Ont., for two years before selling out and returning to Holland to help a relative in business.

Mrs. and Mrs. Peter van Gerwen said they hope to return to eastern Ontario some day.

School Guard Harry R. Davis Struck by Car

TRENTON (Special) — On his way back across the road after leading eight school children to the other side of Front Street in north Trenton yesterday, school guard Harry R. Davis, 66, of 107 Canal Street, was knocked down by a car driven by John Tompkins, 77, of Sunny Street, Frankford. The guard, serving at the station across from the North Trenton school for the last three years, suffered a possible fractured right hand, lacerations over the right eye, needing four stitches to close, and cuts over the left ear. His lower ribs were bruised and he may have received internal injuries. He was allowed to leave the Trenton Memorial Hospital last night after X-ray examinations.

No charge has been laid against the driver but police have detained the car, a 1935 model, for brake tests.

According to the report at the police station, up-on car, proceeding north on Front Street was approaching the junction of the Wooler Road and Front Street. School guard Davis, crossing east to west across the street after guiding children to the east side, was struck in the middle of the street. The car hit the guard on the left side, knocking him to the pavement.

Owner Watches As Car Window Slowly Shatters

For the second time in two days a shattered rear car window, broken under mysterious circumstances is causing a local motorist to wonder how it all happened.

Hugh McKay, local roadman owner of the C.N.R. had his 1950 model car parked at the depot station. He went downtown to get a haircut and on his return to the station found his daughter standing around his car examining a broken rear window.

A hole an inch and a half in diameter was broken out of the window and the entire surface of the glass was checked, giving the appearance of cobbed ice. Check lines in the glass continued to expand as the viewers watched.

Circumstances under which the auto glass broke were similar to those existing when the rear glass of Harry Hitchon's auto exploded on Thursday afternoon. Both cars were sitting in the bright sun with the windows closed.

Stress built up by expansion of a tight fitting window is given as the most likely cause of the window breakage.

Butler Recital To Be Aired

Auto Crashes Into House For Second Time

"They'll just have to do something with the highway," was the comment today of Frank Markle, Cannifton Road, after his house had been damaged for the second time in little more than a year by an auto crashing into the side of the wall.

Last year a car ended up almost in the Markle living room when it went through the guard rail on the highway and into the house. Into the side of the house, Mr. Markle and his son were asleep in an adjoining bedroom when the unwelcome visitor arrived.

Shortly after midnight last night another car went through the guard rails on the same highway curve and slammed into the side of the Markle house doing about $1,000 damage.

"I had just stepped out of the bedroom to get some pills when it happened," Mr. Markle said. "The whole inside of the bedroom wall was pushed in."

Provincial police arrested Harold Marshall of Harlowe, Ont., on a careless driving charge. He was also charged with having liquor at a place other than his residence.

Reports indicated that Marshall had attempted to pass another southbound car when his car went through the guard rail and crashed into the side of the Markle house.

Predicts Early Disintegration Coming for U.N.

OTTAWA (CP) — John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) Friday forecast the early disintegration of the United Nations.

He made the prediction in the Commons as he urged Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States to work together to increase production of goods and services.

Mr. Blackmore said that unless enemy bombers would have no trouble blowing up stored grain at the lakehead and in the Prairies.

He urged that all non-perishable foods be stored in farms as a security measure.

There was much danger in the world to have grain stored at places such as Fort William. A lucky bomb could destroy a season's supplies.

The grain elevators at the Lakehead were while and could be located easily by hostile aircraft and it was just as easy to detect grain elevators on the Prairies.

Ickes' Diary Says Roosevelt Feared Revolt

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The late Harold L. Ickes wrote in 1938 that President Franklin D. Roosevelt feared a possible revolution in the United States if he followed the lukewarm advice in his Democratic party to halt relief spending and turn aid to an effort to balance the budget.

Ickes, secretary of the interior for 13 years in the cabinets of Roosevelt and President Truman, told of this in the first volume of his diary, covering the period from Roosevelt's second inauguration in 1936, to Hitler's invasion of Poland in September, 1939.

The 335,000-word volume, "The Inside Struggle," is being published May 4 by Simon and Schuster.

"The Inside Struggle" traces the happenings of Roosevelt's second term and that of the "New Deal" president's unsuccessful battle to add six justices to the Supreme Court, of Russia's and Hitler's attempt to purge anti-New Deal Democrats in 1938, and of behind-the-scenes White House social doings.

Ickes, the self-styled "old curmudgeon," registered strong civil islam at his fellow cabinet officers and of Democratic congressional leaders in this portion of his daily which ultimately will run to 6,000,000 words.

Fears U.S. Mart For Farm Produce Not Reliable

OTTAWA (CP)—The Opposition's agriculture expert said Friday he doubts that the United States will continue to be a lucrative market for Canadian farm products.

John A. Charlton (PC—Brant-Haldimand) made the statement as he criticized the government for ignoring the United Kingdom and favoring the United States in its trade policies.

"If it is true that the market in the United States has given us a little better price," he said, "But while the price is better, I contend that the United States market has been so unstable that the average position is poorer than it would have been if we had taken a little less money and sold in the market we were sure of."

Would it not have been better to face the price factor involved in trading with the United Kingdom than to be subject to the unpredictable quotas of the U.S.?" he asked.

Mr. Mills moved to Belleville from Big Island when he was 17 and learned to be a tinsmith. Later he opened a general store at Shannonville which he operated for 66 years.

He retired in 1950 at the age of 98 and moved to Barrie to live with his son, Reginald, who is 55. Mr. Mills' wife died in 1952 at the age of 84.

Special Services
Entertains 6 Nations' Airmen

FONTAINEBLEAU, France (CP)—RCAF Flight Lt. Lester E. Steadman is a merchandiser of morale at popular prices.

A veritable squirrel cage of activities is carried on under the lieutenant's direction, ranging from luring Paris night club talent to do floor shows for airmen to managing weekly bingo games which gross an average of $500.

Flt. Lt. Steadman has to be good at entertainment likes and dislikes not only of his own countrymen, but of the other five nations served with him—the British, French, the British, the Dutch, the Belgians and Americans.

"Our job," he said, "is not only to provide sports facilities and entertainment but to integrate the notionals of half a dozen countries into a smooth group activities and by finding common interests to take their minds off their nationalities.

There is nothing new in this type of work for Lt. Steadman. He is a specialist in physical training and is a hockey player when he gets the time, the competition and the ice. He spent some time in the Wireless School in Calgary, a three-year tour as a Station Warrant Officer in Goose Bay, and he's been on a steady entertaining spree in the Army and Air Force.

Steadman took over his duties here in July and began with his small staff to concentrate on interservice sports. With the 100 facilities and a limited budget he has organized volleyball and tennis classes, planned a 400 metre track with a combined soccer and lacrosse field in the centre and has plotted tennis courts. There is no prospect of a gymnasium on the base, but special arrangements have been made to take over an old hangar for administration building for badminton courts and other indoor sports.

"We now get participation from everyone in these activities," he said, "even though we have been handicapped with the language problem."

Bingo problem is being ironed out by two other Canadians, one of them on detached immediate staff. Sgt. Rene Chaput, another RCAF member, speaks English and French and gets kicks out of all the explanations. Chaput's arrival brought Steadman's staff to two Canadians, two Americans, two Frenchmen, and two British-ers.

The biggest drawing card and bill-footer is bingo, which, according to Steadman, is really an international game. Some of the complications of getting the game underway are illustrated when the bingo cards are sold for seven shillings, 350 French francs, 50 Belgian francs, 3.50 Dutch guilders or $1.00 in Canadian or U.S. money.

"We select the prizes carefully to appeal to the airman's family tie as well as to him," Steadman said, "and it's tough for him to stay home on bingo night when the wife has her eye on a prize which would go well in the house Anything which gets them out en masse helps with our program."

Bingo is the most successful activity of all, drawing round 500 men per party. Flt. Lt. Jules Fontaine of the RCAF has been enlisted to help Steadman with the control microphone and he calls the bingo numbers in French and English, adding the winner in the appropriate tongue as well.

That the special services office is able to function at all is a tribute to Steadman and his staff. As an international activity, there is no fund provided. The only available cash comes from five to 10 per cent lifted from various concessions on the base and from bingo.

"So far," Steadman said, "we've been getting along on bingo and our wits."

Twice a month the special services puts on a dance and a paid floor show, hiring a five-piece dance band and a variety show from Paris. "If a man ever complains, Patrick, garage, I get his name," $500; Robbin Dairy, garage and stores, $3,000; R. A. Hubbard, residence, Cannifton Road, $7,000; W. C. Police Blotter

An east hill woman riding on a local bus escaped with a bump on the forehead yesterday when she was struck by a stone thrown through an open window by a small five-year-old boy.

The stone narrowly missed the woman's glasses and cut and bruise the size of a half dollar on her forehead.

Constable Stonefield, stationed at the Picton army camp, was taken to Belleville General Hospital after he had fallen on the side-walk, injuring himself.

Three minor accidents were reported by police during the week-end but no one exceed $100 in any of the mishaps.

IN MEMORIAM

GAY. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Gay, who passed away May 1st, 1953.

Two years have passed away and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
To dwell in heaven above.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But the love of her who sleeps
Will never fade away.
Shall never fade away.
Sadly remembered by daughter Nina and grandchildren.

GAY. — In loving memory of Mrs. Elizabeth Gay, who passed away May 1st, 1953.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear Mother,
Long and dreamless be thy sleep
From sorrow and anxiety,
In death we do the same.
Ever remembered by Elmer, Ethel and Lois. M1

A Lift for Living

Safety First Poor Life Slogan

Many of us want to play everything safe. And yet we would not be happy in peace and plenty if the Pilgrim Fathers and George Washington had "played safe".

The late historian James Truslow Adams explained that in 19 years we have changed from a land of opportunity to a land of safety-first. And a recent writer observed that "when a young fellow comes looking for a job, his first interest is likely not to be what the chances of promotion are, but what kind of pension he will get forty years hence."

My contacts on many college campuses each year convince me that such comments are a bit overcolored. I do not believe American youth has lost the spirit of adventure. The trouble is that we are becoming security-conscious in the wrong places.

The irony of our search for security is that when we arrange our life and livelihood so that we no longer venture for great things, we gamble on small things. That is one reason why gambling on horse races and dog races, on numbers and sports has so greatly increased in our time.

INCREASE RISKS

Also, while we are trying to play safe in our careers, we increase our risks by recklessness in motor cars and stock thrills in false excitement. You see, our natures crave some elements of chance. If every outcome were dead sure, life would be deadly. There would be no place for faith and hope and love. But let's take the chances in the right places.

Surely we need safety campaigns to prevent accidents in our homes, factories, and on our roads. "Safety First" is a good slogan in handling our tools and our cars, but not in handling our talents and our life.

While brave men lose their lives in pioneering new paths and in struggles on the field of battle, others here at home let their spirits die inch by inch in play at little games. Our generation is in the grip of the gambling mania, but all too much it is a taking of chances on small things rather than big issues. Thus we lose our real lives.

Some who would save their lives lose them by trying too hard to conserve their energy. We cannot board life as we can money. When a person tries to be a miser of his health, he usually makes himself miserable. People, who are constantly watching for symptoms and coddling their complaints become slaves to the thermometer and fugitives from germs, living below par and often dying before their time.

In the mental realm, this principle of losing by trying to save is even more apparent. The intelligent student does not say to himself, "Since I shall need all my mental strength in my career at her college I shall conserve it during these four years." Some students, it must be admitted, do seem to act on this principle but it does not work. Mental talents, if used and not used, tend to deteriorate. Whoever would save his mind intact does not say to himself.

Our emotional nature reveals still more clearly the fallacy of trying to save by conservation. In a recent book of fiction one of the characters, a sheltered woman, asks that she may be kept from other people's hardships any more often than necessary because sympathy puts such a strain on her emotions.

FEELINGS HARASSED

Some people avoid funerals for the reason that they do not want their feelings harassed. They do not want the pulpit to deal with unpleasant things like war and poverty. They prefer to hear only of pleasant things which will not trouble them. But remember, the field that is never plowed by any furrows or harrowed by any discs becomes harder and unproductive. So with life.

When we keep ourselves shut off from things which would stir our sympathies, when we hold ourselves back from others lest we be taken in by them, we find the soil of our minds becoming hard and the boundaries of our affection becoming narrower. Even our sympathy are dissipated not by use but by disuse. Thus, in order to save ourselves from being spent, we lose ourselves.

One whom millions call the Master of Life laid down a principle that is worth pondering. Here it is: "Whoever would save his life shall lose it." Life has to be spent. The question is, was you or I to give in exchange for his soul?

What to do...

TO PREVENT BED SORES

Ever have to stay in bed for any length of time?

Chances are that if you did you found certain parts of your body getting vitiated—the end of your spine, your hips, knees, or shoulder blades.

Continuous pressure on the skin, which cuts off circulation, causes the skin to break down and form "bed sores" or pressure sores. St. John Ambulance says this is one of the most important things to prevent when you have some one ill in bed because bed sores are often very difficult to cure.

What causes bed sores?

Watch for these things, says St. John:

Leaving a patient too long in one position.

Leaving a patient too long on a bed-pan.

Allowing the weight of one part of the body to rest on another.

Cracks, splints, artificial limbs, bandages.

Creases in bed clothes and crumbs in the bed.

OCCUR OVER BONES

Bed sores are particularly apt to occur over bones where there is little fat or muscle between the skin and bones. The very thin, the very old and individuals with poor circulation need special attention, as do patients wearing casts or splints.

To prevent bed sores the following steps should be taken:

The skin should be bathed regularly and dried carefully. Bony prominences should be massaged with rubbing lotion at least three times a day.

Because bed sores sometimes occur between the fingers and toes of arthritic patients, their fingers and toes should be separated with a strip of bandage of soft muslin.

Change the patient's position frequently.

Use clean, soft bed linen (bleached linen sheets should be avoided and soap well rinsed from the linen). Keep the bottom bed clothes free from wrinkles, crumbs and moisture.

Any signs of bed sores such as persistent redness, tenderness, bruises, blisters or a fine rash should be reported to the doctor who will prescribe treatment.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

MAJESTIC MIGRANTS

Among our most majestic migrants are Whistling Swans: white-plumaged birds 4½ feet long, with black legs, feet, and bills. Considerably larger are their fast-disappearing relatives, the Trumpeters.

How the name "Whistling" came to be applied to Swans is not only a matter of conjecture. One theory is that the rustling of their wings resembles whistles. As a large, wedge-shaped flock flies overhead, the babble sounds more like the voices of Canada Geese, though higher-pitched, rather musical, and quavering.

Heard closer, an individual's three-note call is similar to the tones of a clarinet or a horn. The voices of old males especially make us think of bass horns.

Most Whistling Swans seen in Ontario each spring have wintered in the Chesapeake Bay area, though scattering a few stay on the coast of Texas during our cold season. Swans are little given to stopping over on the way to their breeding grounds north of the Arctic Circle, for the one reason they have taken a fancy to our Lake Erie section.

SWANS REST

By mid-March they begin to arrive in Canada, take a rest of several weeks near Point Pelee, Lake St. Clair, and Kingsville where is the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary, and land home in late May or early June. The dangerous district is the Niagara River, where every spring many birds drift over the falls to their death.

Swans are vegetarians, rooting up plants that grow under water. This loosening of the soil seems to improve conditions for the water plants just as a farmer tills his field for future production.

The nest of a Whistling Swan is a bulky mass of grass, roots, and moss placed on an island or the bank of a small pond. Four or five creamy-white eggs are laid. Each time the mother leaves she is careful to cover them with moss. This is necessary to ensure warmth in their Arctic surroundings and to hide them from predators.

About the end of June the eggs hatch, and the little cygnets are led to water. The midnight sun provides light for feeding at all hours, and the young Swans grow rapidly.

Before long the parents moult their flight feathers. This is a bad period, because the whole family is unable to fly. However, by late September, or at least by October, all are properly equipped for their southern journey.

MOTHER RESCUES SON

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A mother rushed into a blazing tar-paper shack Thursday, snatched up her three-year-old son and ran to safety. Mrs. John Sutherland noticed the fire from the window of a neighbor's house. Neither she nor her son was injured.

For Parents Only

Our Wild Flowers

"I will be the gladdest thing under the sun!

I will touch a hundred flowers and not pick one."

Edna St. Vincent Millay wrote these lines in her poem "Afternoon to a Hill." They are good words to memorize!

Is there any more joyous experience for a boy or girl than walking over hill and dale in the sunshine in the Springtime? The little breeze carries wonderful scents of growing things. The birds are calling to each other in the trees, and the ground is soft and springy under foot. There is a tang to the air and the sky is deep blue. The clouds are moving swiftly with strange forms and shades blending into their whiteness.

If the hiker is not too near a town or city the woods are likely gay with wild flowers. Fortunate the child whose parent teaches him at an early age to enjoy the wild flower friends without picking them! It is tragic that some of our loveliest wild flowers such as the trailing arbutus, the white trillium, and the lady slipper are now becoming very rare in some areas. They have vanished completely from others because they have been thoughtlessly and ruthlessly picked.

CANADA'S SYMBOL

Although the Maple Leaf is recognized in the four corners of the globe as Canada's symbol, it is interesting to know that each of our ten provinces chose a flower as its emblem. You will see by the following list that the majority of these are wild flowers.

Newfoundland, Pitcher Plant; Prince Edward Island, Lady Slipper; Ontario, White Trillium; Nova Scotia, May Flower (trailing arbutus); New Brunswick, Blue Violet; Quebec, Iris; Manitoba, Anemone; Saskatchewan, Prairie Lily; Alberta, Rose; British Columbia, Flowering Dogwood.

The youngsters who has a talent for sketching may want to attempt some wild flower studies. Snapshots are not too easy to take in the woods. But a clump of wild flowers, or even a single plant presents a real challenge to a photo enthusiast.

Boys and girls like to make a log of their expeditions and on an outdoor hike it is fun to keep a record of the wild flowers, the birds and the trees or any interesting nature lore observations. Eyes which are eager to see make all kinds of discoveries.

What determines what kind of wild flower will grow in any area? The prairie, the woods, swamp, cliffs and dunes each have their own special plants. Many of the delicate woodland flowers become very rare in sections where the trees have all been cut down because they grow best in a partial or shaded habitat. Scientists tell us that it is the amount of moisture and the type of soil which determine to a great degree which flowers will grow.

In the pine woods the soil is quite acid from decaying needles and sparse warmth. Wild flowers such as Trillium and Dutchman's Breeches grow readily in this soil. Thus it is difficult to transplant these flowers successfully into ordinary garden earth. It is best not to disturb the wild flowers by picking or attempts to move them.

Getting acquainted with wild flowers is a fascinating hobby. There are a number of good, inexpensive wild flower guides in color and one of these should be in every home. The Canadian Nature Magazine has published a most attractive booklet on "Wild Flowers". In it are fifteen reproductions in full colour by Harrie Rennie, which are suitable for framing.

ISRAEL REMEMBERS

JERUSALEM (AP)—A tree "in memory of the unknown Jewish martyr" was planted Thursday by Israeli State President Itzhak Ben-Zvi at the annual Judean hill ceremony commemorating 6,000,000 Jews killed during the Hitler regime. Representatives of 21 Jewish communities destroyed by the Nazis were among 2,000 attending the service.

A FINE COMMUNITY SERVICE

One of the finest examples of selfless community service in this city is the minor sports program being carried out, this winter and summer, by sports-minded volunteers in co-operation with the Belleville Recreation Commission.

A reminder of their good work was the annual year-end hot dog and soft drink evening of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association held in Memorial Arena last week. According to a rough estimate, almost 600 young hockey players attended the social evening. It is apparent that 600 hockey players is a lot of hockey players at any age.

There were 24 junior hockey teams in five classifications operating in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association during the past winter. Each team had a volunteer coach. In addition there was an executive organization to coordinate and direct the activities of all the leagues, prepare schedules, assign referees, and arrange for OMHA playoffs that included, among other items, the transporting of three teams on one evening to Kingston for a triple-header with that city's playoff entries. By actual count, 578 boys participated in the winter long hockey program of this organization.

In addition there were referees, in some cases juvenile hockey players, who donated their time from 6.00 a.m. onwards on Saturday mornings to patrol the games of the squirt, pee wee, and bantam leagues. Six Belleville service clubs sponsored the bantam league, while merchants and fraternal societies sponsored midget and juvenile-jun for teams. In all there were 16 sponsors.

Last summer there were 20 minor baseball teams, in five age classifications, operating under the Belleville Minor Baseball Association. A volunteer organization, working through coaches who donated their services to the teams in the interests of baseball and good recreation for the players, did the job for baseball that the hockey association did for hockey.

There were 332 boys taking part in this organized program.

The minor softball league, in which 70 boys participated on five teams, was conducted with the whole-hearted support of the Belleville Fire Department. Again the actual job of administering the league, coaching and so forth was carried on by volunteers.

Minor hockey, baseball and softball provided organized, supervised, healthful recreation for 980 boys in this city last year. All 980 took an active part in the sports programs. Spectators only when they themselves were not actually playing. The entire program was organized and supervised by volunteers. The money necessary to operate the teams was provided by sponsors and the minor sports associations.

The boys who were fortunate enough to enjoy this recreation owe the citizens of Belleville in general owe a sincere debt of gratitude to the men responsible for this outstanding, constructive community effort.

"VIDEO'S DELIGHT"

The CBC has stated that privately-owned television stations will be licensed in cities in which there is a CBC television station.

Certain seasoned television cynics will undoubtedly cheer this decision as the greatest government contribution to civic peace and serenity since repeal of the OTA. However, citizens in the seat of government are likely to look upon it as a kick in the pants.

CBOT-TV is a single bilingual television station serving the Ottawa-Hull area. The station's programs are roughly divided in a 75-25 ratio of English-speaking and French-speaking programs. The English-language radio relay link CBOT-TV to the "greater artistic talent pools of Montreal and Toronto," as the CBC so aptly described them when the station was made to move Film Board headquarters from Ottawa to Montreal.

However, this misalliance of English-speaking and French-speaking programming seems to be in accord with the wishes of practically no one in the Ottawa-Hull area with the exception of the CBC governors. Friends in Ottawa tell us that when the wind is right they can seek relief by tuning in Syracuse television but the unusual geography of the Ottawa valley permits these pleasant intervals with a whimsical logic matched only by the CBC's attitude towards providing each language group with a station of its own.

The CBC however, states there shall be one CBC TV station per city and that is that. We cannot help but express our sympathy for the culturally starved television viewers of Ottawa as we on the beautiful Quinte shore wrestle with the problem of whether or not we should tune to Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo and, in some cases, even Toronto.

Should not Ottawa-Hull viewers have a choice of stations in their own area even if (and heaven forgive us for ever employing such nasty words in the same sentence with the CBC) it is necessary for the CBC to license a Private Station in Hull? However, the one station limitation of the CBC is a lovely plaything for that august body's enjoyment and perhaps it might not be too indelicate to suggest that it is a "video's delight."

THE DANDELION

Poor, little, common yellow flower,
Missed by the morning dew,
Living and blooming with all your power,
Does nobody care for you?

Gardeners think you not worth
Bright little head of gold.
There are so many of you here
Your worth is sold.

Were you a delicate flower and tender,
Were you a blossom rare,
People would stop to admire your splendor;
Many for you would care.

Still from your courage new faith I've taken,
Blossom of golden hue,
Each to our tasks assigned must
I am a commoner, too, .

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GRACE IN OUR HEARTS

St. Paul shortly before his death declared, "I know whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that he is able to guard that which I have entrusted unto Him against that day."

Most of us say today "I know what I have believed," but not St. Paul. What St. Paul knew about Jesus Christ was not primarily a set of teachings but the living heart of a Father. St. Paul had grasped the thing most essential in the Christian teaching, namely, that this thing which is called Christianity is the experience of human personality with a Divine Personality. Furthermore, this communication is, under the providence of God, channeled to us through the personality of a Man who lived on the earth 2000 years ago and who, because He overcame the obstacle of death, is an eternal and ever-living reality in the hearts of millions of believers.

Is this lofty theology, theological erudition, incentive to piety? Surely we do not know and cannot possibly know! Nothing can be plainer than the teaching of the New Testament. God Almighty has the loving heart of a Father. In his love for mankind, He allowed the Being closest to Him (the only begotten Son) to come to the earth and enter the stream of history. What that Personality taught and He did, constitute a set of circumstances by which the heart of man can appeal for forgiveness of sins and for relief from life's burdens.

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation, under the heading of "Conservation Briefs" will occupy this space weekly. These briefs are being written by Moira River Conservation Authority to let you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority stands for.

DID YOU KNOW that quality growth on trees grown for lumber doesn't start 'till the trees have attained at least 16 inches of diameter growth. Quantity growth, as a rule, increases with a larger diameter. It is not sound business to cut trees when they are putting on their best growth. Your Zone Forester from the Department of Lands and Forests can tell you when to cut your trees in order to give you the greatest returns. Trees grown for lumber are just starting to make money when they have reached 16 inches in diameter.

Discrimination Shocking

Following is a letter written by Farley Faulkner, well known former Belleville resident, to the editor of The Toronto Daily Star:

Sir: Reports of discrimination against Negroes and Jews in a Toronto golf course are shocking. If freedom is to survive in this world we must be worthy of it. It is neither fair nor just that its rewards be few and far be-tween when men of all races, colors and creeds have paid the supreme price on our battlefields wherever and wherever tyranny has threatened us. The brotherhood of man should not restrict itself to the narrow limitations of ignorance and prejudice. This is a direct violation of the precepts of Christianity. Not only should we clasp the hand of our fellow man, but we should be glad to. Justice will grant us that trust and privilege—on a golf course, at a ball game, at work, worship or anywhere the opportunity presents itself. The 24-hour day was made for all seasons. Some should have told us long ago; let us learn to live together.

FARLEY FAULKNER.

Vocabulary Needs Slimming

(Galt Reporter)

According to a Detroit writer quoted in Ryan Read of the Detroit department of public welfare, has a system. Whenever any member of his staff uses the word "bum" in the department, Ryan asks him why he is leaving.

Herewith the answer Ryan had from a young male social worker:

"Utilization of personnel time for independent study and research involving the encouragement of relationship of the various aspects of psychological theory of relationship and rapport to practical application and also a study of the original psychological and physical nutritional deficiency of carbohydrate metabolism as it is associated with psychosis and abnormal behavior."

Trying a bit farther one learns that this young man is going back to college to get his doctorate.

Maybe it might be smart of him to include, in his postgraduate curriculum, a course in fresh man English.

Sometimes we bump up against something that sounds like long winded wordage, says the writer, but when we look at the figures of Frank X. Tuohey, back before he, Commissioner, was a golden goose.

In 1941, Frank applied for a charge account in a store. The young woman behind the desk asked him his name, then his address. Then, over a space labeled "Employment."

Frank, poker-faced, told the young woman the exact truth:

"I'm assistant to the public relations director in charge of press section, press and publications division, tank automotive center, chief of the chief of assistance, Detroit."

The young woman slid Frank a sly glance and wrote "Clerk."

Rat Army Hits Mindanao

(New York Times)

We live in the 20th century, and because we do some things seem almost like the middle Ages. On the big island of Mindanao, in the Philippines, a mammoth population of jungle rats has suddenly swarmed over 100,000 acres of farm land, taking more than 80 per cent. of the harvest, leaving more than 40,000 farm families face starvation. The United Nations has made a special appeal for aid in the form of food shipment to take care of these unfortunate people who have nothing to eat. This sort of thing doesn't happen in our day, except in nightmares. And yet it has happened.

The Philippine government has declared a state of emergency in Mindanao. The army and the Philippine Constabulary, the chemical warfare section is active in the poisoning and the Red Cross is on the ground for relief. The United Nations happily, has been able to give help. Finally it is most needed.

This is a disaster that can be attributed to no known human agency. Mindanao, Cotabato province, the balance of Nature has been sharply upset. A fresh menace has arisen and welfare has appeared. There has been nothing of exactly this sort in our time, so far as memory and record can determine.

Fortunately, there are available the means and the will to help. Mindanao will be saved. The prompt action was imperative. There must still be more and wider action. There will be the need for more, and more generous gifts. Then somewhile we will puzzle over the problem of such ab infestation. There will be plenty of that, our time? There must be the means to see that it does not happen again. Finally will such things be employed.

How to Reduce Red Tape

(Times of London)

That old Chinese custom, death by the thousand slices, has, according to starmites, become so well acclimatized in Britain that the shape of free John Bull, once so sturdy, plump, and jolly, is in danger of being starved away to skeleton-like nothingness. One by one the time cherished freedoms vanish. The Englishman's home is no longer his castle. Drawbridge has been let down and portcullis up, so that a miscellany of officials, in and out of uniform, may come and go as they please. Forms that must be filled in multiply and grow longer and more embedded in jargon. Horrible new words obtrude, such as "conurbation" and now (believe it or not, gentle reader) "conversationalists."

Reaction to protests, whether it comes from the Right or from the hall and Westminster or from the humbler slopes of local government, is invariably vague and always without reason—pained.

It only the protesting laymen knew the difficulties besetting the most well-meaning minister or bureaucrat, how comfortable they would be less inclined to snipe. Only the other day departments makes for confusion in practice; tolerance in the face of apparently trivial abuses; and the strict letter of the law crreates nightmares" (Conservative).

Red tape is as hateful to officialdom as to its victims. The only difference between the two parties is that the former knows the topes.

This wedge, driven between our new masters and ourselves, could be broken by the timely withdrawal of the mental processes gone through by those who take it, or take disagreeable official decisions.

A vicar, writing this newspaper, gave a good example of the effect of this. He had planned for every day and that could be avoided by such a change of approach. He told how a notice, ordered to take members of his congregation to a forthcoming exhibition, had to be cancelled because details of the outing were considered to be "contrary to public sense. The police, who, from time to time, have had similar experiences in this sinister class, to which the vicar confessedly belongs, will be able to supply many more on high that, if they do not inhere in the nature of red tape at law, a gale will be thrown wide open through which a coach and four may be driven. The restrictions would disappear, reason reign, forces shrink to what is left of them perhaps turn into English, if only they were exposed to the solvent of common sense.

Lie Detector Latest Toy

(Windsor Star).

Science has been doing remarkable things for children's toys, in this postwar period, in spaceman gadgets, cowboy outfits, doctor kits and accessories, and so on through a long list the range and quality of playthings has been improved. But the latest is one of wonders if this technical progress has not reached the point of folly and gameness.

For example, one of the newer and more expensive toys to be found in stores across the border, is a lie detector for children. Whether the manufacturers have come-on can get great enjoyment out of this device for grown-ups, we can only wonder how.

Instead of sitting down to more serious pursuits, parents will child-ren of the future get themselves strapped into one of these contraptions and try to trick it with well chosen lies? And if the machine isn't effective at this early time, will this lead it inevitably to the more elaborate models in the home?

Will a lie detector test become a means of determining who swiped the cookies, or who scraped the fronting of the new Cadillac? Worst of all, will the head of the house be using the gifter it late party to find himself in the Thing's clutch, while his misusu stands over him and demands, "We will now have a lie detector test. Where were you last night? Who were you with—" and so on.

Should Stop This

(Calgary Herald).

We wish that every people would spend about one-tenth as much energy striving to make free enterprise and free competition a success as they do in talking pleasantly about it. Too many of them seem to operate on the principle that all-out competition is a wonderful, wonderful thing — in any other business but theirs.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

THE PERIODIC HEALTH EXAMINATION

Once when I was a d. f.—an absent nearly two hours examining a patient and advising him about health habits. I assured him that absolutely nothing ailed him, and as he prepared to leave I said: "Well, doctor, please" or more likely "A dollar" for as that time and place a dollar was money.

Dr. Brady

"What for?" the fellow replied indignantly. "You didn't give me any medicine!"

Fifteen years later a metropolitan society undertook a plan to educate the public concerning the value of periodic health examinations. The doctors themselves were to undergo such examinations as an example.

The scheme finished. Only a few members of the medical society saw fit to undergo examination even though it would cost nothing but the doctor's time. I guess the real doctors had good sense.

I wish I could remember whether I collected that letter from the Pena Yan customer, but I suspect I probably did, and for the chances are I didn't have the nerve to get tough about it If any different-minded reader will with much influence in the community.

Recently some physicians have been urging that all women of 35 forget what age means, undergo examinations every six months to detect at the earliest possible time never mind that.

I think that would be a silly thing for a woman to do—but remember, please, I'm no specialist nor am I a medical authority.

Although I'm in bad with the big shots of the profession and not exactly popular with ranks, I believe I could still get a complete physical or medical examination gratis or at most of whatever laboratory tests I might be persuaded to have. But I wouldn't take time out for it.

"No man in his senses wants to undergo a complete examination . . . spinal fluid tapped . . . stomach or bladder hooked into with lighted tube. Such tests should be made only when there is reason to suspect a brain tumor or a cancer of the stomach or an ulcer of the bladder," orcaciates an eminent medical authority. He adds, as though determined to make all fictional:

"In some clinics a routine check-up (fiddle) examination may be a more appropriate word) "consists of a physical examination which should include examination of the rectum with a sigmoidoscope . . . .

A sigmoidoscope, you must understand, children, is more than a lighted tube, 10 inches more. But then, a man in his senses has no more business with "routine" tests or when something ails him he goes to a doctor who practises under his own name.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

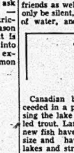
FRIENDS

There isn't a human being in all this world who cannot have at least one friend, and that friend may become as a heaven to him if by both day and night, and a guide through life. The human heart is, perhaps the choicest, but there are two others—the dog friend and the book friend.

A friend is our other self, and this applies to the three friends I mention. We can turn to each and all according to our selection. We begin to know a friend when he tells us of a friend of his. Consolation is the friend that we get from each and all of these friends. Circumstances forbid many of us from having a faithful dog as our friend, but a human friend may always be near, and we can attend the book, or books, that will remain our friend, or friends, to the end of life.

In the world of nature there are friends as well. Indeed they may be only be silent, such as trees, bodies of water, and the flowers that grow wild and inviting. At my summer island retreat, during my vacation days, I have affection for the sprouting trees on the rocky shores of the lake. I lie in the sun by summer, and in the cloud formations, and listen to the joyous calls and songs of native birds. Nature is the Host against loneliness, and feed the spirit.

Napoleon pondered the last, his expectant friend, the boxes of books which came to him, and from which he gained his greatest comfort. He had over 8,000 in his library. He read them and read each book that came to him rapidly, looking for what he could get as he read. Andrew Lang once said that "a book is a friend whose face is unknown." Open the door and let the friend. Ever new is a great book.



Silently, and with great appreciation, every night when I leave friends as well, I shall go to my bed. I habitually say within my heart: "Good night, my friends."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Canadian biologists have succeeded in a practical way in crossing the lake trout with the speckled trout. Large numbers of the new fish have been planted in suitable lakes and have been planted in other streams for the benefit of the sportsmen. Whether the new fish will be capable of reproducing its self or will be a sterile mule, sterile, can not be known for many years. Both the lake trout and the speckled trout inhabit the same water in countless lakes and streams of Canada, and may have cross-bred in nature. But the new fish offers sportsmen the advantage of the lake trout's size and the speckled trout's beauty and gameness.

When the biologists had created their new fish, they needed a name for it. And with true biological precision they christened it Splake. This was a cross between the words speckled and lake. It suited the purpose fine. The reason it contained the two elements of which the fish is compounded. Very scientific. But the name horrified the sportsmen. It it.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK
FORE AND AFT.

By R. J. SCOTT

sounded to them like hake, a rathbone fish which is not a fish at all, a rake, jake and words of other sordid association. So the outdoor writers and the men in the United States got to work on the new fish. They chose for it the Indian name Wendigo.

Wendigo means a spirit. When you see, in the winter wilds, a sudden little curl of snow, a small whirlwind picking up a cloud of snow and carrying it mysteriously across your path, that is the Wendigo. Many other things are Wendigos, and they are not necessarily spirits. Wendigo is a name that manifestations of that unknown world which the Indian was always conscious.

For a fish that was spirited out of the natural world by biologists, a new creation born out-of two parents and established species, Wendigo is the perfect name. It is a most spiritless fish, one possessing little fighting ability. It is a pretty name for a species of trout, pretty as Canadian pretties go, and Canuck, which was also suggested for the name.

All questions submitted are answered anonymously by members of the medical advisory board or special technical sections of the HEALTH LEAGUE.

The "Health League Question Box" grew out of questions submitted over the years to the Health League of Canada—a unique voluntary lay organization which enlists the advisory support of leading specialists in every field of medicine to combat preventable sickness by means of public education. All questions submitted to the "Question Box" are answered by medical or scientific experts and checked for accuracy by members of the specialized technical sections of the Health League.

The Health League, in presenting this weekly newspaper feature, hopes, by making good medical advice available, to counteract the bad advice on health matters freely offered by the commercial peasants and old wives. Readers are invited to submit questions to the above address. Of course, the "Question Box" cannot undertake to diagnose specific ailments by mail. However, all questions will be given courteous attention and answered as fully as possible.

SLIPPING MEMORY

Geriatrics (problems of the aged) is almost a pioneer field of medical research. The research and health education of the recent past was focussed on saving people from untimely deaths brought about by preventable sickness. As a result more and more people survived to their seventies and eighties, until in 1951 the Canadian census showed that one fourth of the population was over 50, and one 20th over 70.

The social, physical and economic problems of a group that has grown to such proportions in so short a time is suddenly a major public health concern. There is much exploration yet to be done, much public interest yet to be aroused; but public interest is growing and will continue to grow —naturally enough, when one considers the large part of the public that is directly involved in the problem.

Here is a typical question received by the Health League technical section on geriatrics:

Question: "I have just passed my 80th birthday. I have always been known for having a good memory, but it seems I am getting absent-minded lately. I find myself telling stories I have already told and forgetting ones I should remember. What can I do to straighten myself out?"

Answer: Practically every person becomes a little absent-minded with increasing age. Those who have had better than average memories seem to mind more than those who have had average memories. You don't need "straightening out," but you would be less distressed if you could accept the fact that you can't trust your memory as you could at the age of sixty or fifty. Don't tell any stories without asking, "Have I told this before?" This will free you from worry and remove one of the blocks to memory.

SMOKED MEATS

A nutritionist must walk on thin ice. If asked whether salami has more nutritive value than calves' liver he has no choice but to say "no", which subjects him to the ire of all good salami packers. This is unfair, a salami on rye (a good, garlicky salami) is delectable, and there are undoubtedly many nutritionists who prefer it to liver. Nevertheless nutritional facts are nutritional facts and it is the business of the nutritionist to present them as they are and let the chips fall where they may. Besides, exaggerated delusions about the nutritive values in a salami sandwich will not enhance it nearly as much as a dab or two of mustard.

Question: "Smoked meats and fish keep longer than fresh meats and fish, and in general they cost less. My husband thinks it would be an economical move to stock up our cellar with these and stop spending money on fresh meats. How do smoked or salted meats and fishes compare nutritionally with the same meats and fishes bought fresh?"

Answer: It is not safe to eat smoked fish or meat unless it has been carefully washed first in running water. Some bacteria live on the outside surface of smoked fish and meat and frequently make their way some distance under the surface. The smoking process hardens the bacteria so a superficial washing will not do. The hardening of the tissues also makes smoked meat difficult to digest than properly cooked fresh meat.

Next week's Question Box will deal with one of the common misunderstandings of expectant mothers in regard to pre-natal obstetrical discipline.

Seamen Having Worst Season In Many Years

MONTREAL (CP)—Great Lakes seamen are having their worst season in years, with few jobs either available or in prospect.

Fifty per cent of Montreal's lake seamen are unemployed and those on ships are wondering whether they'll see the season through, a survey showed.

Normally, about one-quarter of the total lake seamen force of 6,000 comes from here. At present, some 700 men are waiting for jobs.

Reason for the situation is slow movement of grain from the Lakehead. Harbor-opening at Montreal found some 13,000,000 bushels of unsold grain stored here, with no large export sales in immediate prospect.

This resulted in lake shipping operators putting only about half their fleets into service.

Sixteen Year-Old Campaign By Ducks Unlimited to Restore Balance of Nature Paying Off

EDMONTON (CP) — A 16-year campaign by Ducks Unlimited to restore the balance of nature at Minitsik lake sanctuary, 33 miles east of Edmonton is starting to pay off.

Warden Francis Williams reports that recent warm weather has seen masses of ducks land at the 27,000-acre sanctuary on their flight north to summer feeding grounds.

Time was when there weren't many ducks in the area and there was a danger they would grow fewer each year.

BEAVER SLAUGHTER

The story goes back to the 1870s when trappers moved into the district in search of beaver. It proved a rich hunting-ground and soon there were no beaver left.

Old beaver dams crumbled. Ponds and sloughs, where the dams had held back the water, dried up. Lake levels dropped as much as 19 feet.

Waterfowl continued to use the district en route north but their numbers reduced in ratio to the drying-up of the area.

In 1935 the federal government declared the Minitsik lake district a federal sanctuary. In 1938, Ducks Unlimited, furthering its cause of wildlife conservation, decided to do something about the situation. A full-time warden was appointed and conditions began to improve.

Four years ago, Ducks Unlimited constructed 11 dams at strategic points, eight of them where, many years before, the original beaver-built dams were located. The dams created a pond and stream system favorable to the re-establishment of the animals.

Rennie Harley, western manager of Ducks Unlimited, requested beaver from the Alberta game branch. Eight adult beaver were released in the creeks and streams.

BUSY WORKERS

Today, at least three pairs of beaver are known to be fully established. One pair has raised the water level by 18 inches in one of the ponds created by a dam. Another pair has created a private pond on the same creek by damming further upstream.

Mr. Harley says the latter pond has proved attractive to ducks. This year, several dozen teal, shovellers and gadwall have been seen in the fine pool.

Ducks Unlimited will rely on natural propagation to gradually re-stock the area.

Warden Williams says there are many other suitable locations for dams on the two creeks connected to the Ducks Unlimited dams. The beaver could, if not distributed, double the amount of impounded water in the area in comparatively short time.

The rising water table, he adds, could affect the whole project and considerably improve it as a duck-breeding area.

Garden Notes

Summer Bulbs

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

A fine succession of blooms may be had from summer bulbs planted in groups in the border. They are particularly helpful in filling in a splash of color when the early perennials have faded. There is a place for them in every garden.

One of the first to flower of these tender bulbs is the Peruvian daffodil, Ismene. The dark green leaves push their way through the soil and are followed by the flowers on stems about six inches. Large, green-veined white blooms have peculiar, spider-like petal tips. They require a sunny spot that is well drained. It is somewhat like the amaryllis since its flower spikes appear before the leaves.

Montbretias will flower from mid-summer to frost. They look like a small gladiolus with yellow blooms shading to orange and red on the same stem. The foliage is grass-like. Planted in groups of a dozen or more in a well drained sunny position they too, will supply a satisfactory source of color for many weeks. They must be dug each year, but multiply fairly rapidly.

DESIRABLE COLLECTION

A dozen bulbs this year will soon grow into a sizable collection. Store the bulbs in damp sand, peat, or vermiculite in a cool basement. The hybridists have been at work on this plant, too, and have perfected the Earlham hybrid, Montbretia, which produces flower sprays three to four inches across. They make a long-lasting cut flowers for the table.

Achimenes, or Cupid's Bower, is somewhat like the African violet in habit. It grows from a small tuber, or scaly bulb, and like the Tuberous Begonia prefers some shade.

The flowers are trumpet-shaped and multicolored. The blooming period is long. You will want to plant some bulbs for winter blooms, since they make attractive houseplants supplying additional color to your collection of African violets and gloxinias. They require the same care, and produce a fine succession of blooms.

Mexican shell flower, or tigridia, has mottled blooms of tulip shape. They bloom in August and go on blooming until frost. The plants are two feet high and the flower spikes produce numerous blooms in scarlet, rose or yellow with centre markings of carmine, purple, or pink. They should be planted in clumps.

LARGE DOUBLE BLOOMS

Ranunculus have large very double blooms in a riot of shades from dark wine red to palest pastels. They like a cool, damp position where other flowers fail, like them in partial shade with the claws down.

It is best to soak the bulblets in tepid water overnight to plump the bulbs and hasten growth. They make good pot plants also. The garden soil be kept cool and moist with a mulch of peat, or sphagnum moss.

Any good garden soil will suit most of the summer flowering bulbs except the ranunculus. Keep the soil loose by breaking up the surface with a hand trowel or cultivator. Work into the soil two cups of good, balanced fertilizer like the bulbs are set out. Supply extra water if the season is dry.

Bulbs should be dug after the first killing frost. Store in damp peat, or moss. Shake off the bulbs will wither and die. Kill off thrips by dusting bulbs with endust or some insecticide which contains chlordane.

Two Killed, Nine Injured In Plane Crash

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — An Indian cargo-passenger plane burst into flames and crashed just after taking off here Friday, killing the co-pilot and one passenger. Nine others were seriously injured.

The plane nose-dived and caught fire as it was starting a flight to the East Pakistan border.

The crew and passengers were rescued from the burning wreckage by airport staff.

He is serving a three-year term for heading a forgery ring that deprived the UIC of several thousand dollars.

BATEMAN'S COR. CHURCH & FOUNDRY STS.

Lennox-Addington District Y.P.U. Holds Fellowship Sunday

On Sunday the Lennox and Addington district Y.P.U. annual Fellowship Sunday was held in the United Church, Newburgh. The theme, "Our Purpose," was carried out throughout the afternoon and evening sessions. District Y.P.U. president, Don Fingland, Demorestville, presided. Much credit is due for the splendid arrangement of so fine a service, Secretary Miss Judy Kinnaird was in charge of the registration. An inspiring worship service was conducted by Napanee Y.P.U.

LIFE PURPOSE

The theme speaker, Miss Doris Twiddy, of Ivanhoe, was introduced by the president. Doris is publication convener for the Lennox and Addington district and for the Belleville Presbytery Y.P.U.

The afternoon address given was based on the theme, "Our Purpose," and was helpful, inspiring for deep searching within were given, that the purpose of life and the knowledge of what God would have, was sought.

Commission groups were formed with the following instructors in charge: Margaret Wills, Rosemary Hunter, Miss Cameron, Burton Norton, Georgs Wilson and Gaynor Bendell.

A quiet period of recreation was enjoyed by all. Fred Tomlinson was in charge of a fine book display. A fellowship banquet was greatly enjoyed, being served by Newburgh United Church Women's Association.

During the speaker hour Mac Cameron spoke about the Y.P.U. rally held at Addington, while Margaret Hillis spoke on camp at Quin-Mo-Lac during the summer months. A duet and a delightful sing-song was held.

EVENING WORSHIP

The evening worship was conducted by Rev. A. Murray, minister of Newburgh United Church, assisted by Don Fingland, reading the Scripture lesson, and Miss Doris Twiddy, who delivered the evening message.

Miss Twiddy's second address was given on the work of "Five Oaks," the Christian Workers' centre of the United Church in Paris, One world picture of Five Oaks was given, explaining fully what this centre is like and what is received by attending the courses. A deep urge for someone to go was given and an appeal for recruits, full time or part time, Christian workers for the ministry.

Fine music was rendered by the Newburgh choir.

An appropriate vesper closing was conducted by Gaynor Bendell. Thus another helpful day of service was brought to a close.

Teen-Agers Same World Over

TORONTO (CP)—After a flying seven-weeks' visit to West Africa, Miss. Michael Vuchnich is convinced teen-agers are the same the world over—they create problems.

As a representative of the Canadian YWCA at the first conference of West African girls, in Ibadan, Nigeria, she found the most frequent query from Africans was, "What can we do for our teen-agers?"

A special problem is how to keep young rural girls who go to the city out of trouble. More residences and recreation facilities were recommended.

Ruth Hilmer of Galt, Ont., and Toronto is in charge of the five Y's in the Gold Coast and Adelle Amaron of Montreal guides the busy young organization in Sierra Leone. Main job of the Canadian organizing secretaries is to train natives to take over and extend their work.

Women's Activities

ST. PAUL'S W.A.

MARMORA — The April meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. G. Winters. In the absence of the secretary, the duties of her office were taken by Mrs. J. M. Brownlie.

The meeting was opened with the members' prayer, followed by Scripture reading by the lay reader, W. J. Cornell.

Mrs. T. L. Nickle was appointed delegate to the Diocesan Annual which is being held in Kingston May 6-7. Mrs. R. G. Winters will be attending her presidential capacity on May 6, accompanied by Mrs. P. Gray Sinclair and Mrs. E. Hewitt. The latter, giving the treasurer's report, showed a good balance.

Mrs. R. Frost gave the Dorcas report and exhibited garments brought in for the bale. A motion was passed that the president notify such members not in attendance at church on the Sunday preceding a meeting of such meeting being forthcoming.

Mrs. T. L. Nickle continued with the study book, "Africa Steps Out." Mrs. Winters closed the meeting.

Refreshments were served.

Growth of Stratford Festival Told to Women's Canadian Club

What was said in the days of Nehemiah, when the walls of Jerusalem were rebuilt, could be said with equal truth in these later days of the building of the Stratford Shakespearian festival—"For the people had a mind to work." The realization of this prodigious task, the fulfillment of a dream, that of Mr. H. T. Patterson, general manager of the festival, was unfolded in a delightful conversational manner last evening in Bridge Street United Church S.S. assembly room to a capacity audience of the Women's Canadian Club's last meeting of the season, which was also its 40th annual meeting.

Mr. Patterson, who was introduced by the president of the club, Mrs. W. L. Langlois, stated that he was most happy to be in Belleville and, to be present for the year's report—especially to hear that part which spoke of the receptibility of this particular audience to its speakers.

BREAD AND BUTTERS DIET.

Continuing, Mr. Patterson remarked that Canadians had been living on "bread and butter" with no time for the finer parts of the meal. After the war years, they realized that there was more than sufficient "bread", and that some dessert would be in keeping. Now, after one year, Canada has had the greatest theatrical season of all times. Outstanding notices, by the finest critics of the day read like this: "Theatrical coup of the season: "A roaring theatrical success that can make Broadway rub its commercial eyes". Not only American critics, but those from England, the home of Shakespearian Festival, hailed the results of this, the dream of one man.

In analyzing the signal success of the Festival, Mr. Patterson referred to the actor and the audience, stating that, in previous times, the actor was more or less a parasite, but that now he has been given a sense of pride in himself; he is paid as a professional, and in consequence, has had to maintain a professional standard, which is both beneficial to himself and to his audience.

GROWING INTEREST.

Mr. Patterson traced the growing interest of the audience from the beginning of the four bridge club members, who, tired of the usual non-entities, decided to study Richard III as a diversion. Becoming so engrossed with this, one of their number made an intensive research into Shakespearian dramas, with the result that four, it grew to 15 and then to 30, and later into five groups in Stratford.

Shop girls became interested and asked to take the course in Shakespeare and the school children also were absorbed with Shakespeare, and even attended Shakespearian plays as much as eight and ten times, coming from London and other neighboring centres. This makes for a mixed audience, all of whom enjoyed Shakespeare.

DONE MUCH FOR CANADA.

The festival has done much for Canada: it has cemented Anglo-Canadian relationships, as those in England showed great interest in the Canadian Festival, many of whom did the "extra mile" in assisting in advance, and personal help, as well as working on the spot, requesting only living expenses while here. Another outcome of the festival's influence was that it advertised Canada, giving more news space to the Stratford Festival than to both oils and uranium together.

The success of the Festival was due in no small part to Dr. Jerome Godfrey, whose help and advice were always ready and forthcoming and responded so even to the end. Another person whose help did much, was that of Alec Guinnis, who asked but living expenses for himself and his family during his stay here.

IMPETUS ON INDUSTRY.

The Festival has had a great impetus on industry, as the costumes and shoes worn in that are made for a new industry in leather for authentic shoes, culminating in the search for a shoemaker, who was found after the leading shoe manufacturing firms turned down the project, which ultimately resulted in the establishment of the "Snug-fit Shoe Company.

The introduction of a new type of stage, designed by Tannys Moiseevitch, with a seven acting level, having four entrances at the rear, with others underneath the auditorium and sides. This type of stage demanded that the actor must act at all times, as he was not far from the audience, which made for a better relation between actor and audience.

Financially the Festival is doing well; last year its costs totalled $160,000, all of which were paid off. The production bests were $212,000. $10,000 was raised in Stratford, and this year $37,000. The Festival is going to raise $125,000 for a working fund. A grant of $40,000 has been obtained from Rothschild Foundation, the rest to be raised in Canada.

MORE CANADIAN ACTORS

The Festival is placing more and more Canadian actors, replacing the English actors; last year there were four English actors taking part, now there are but two, the rest of the players being Canadian, which are trained in their art. Canada has much talent, and as co-actors are the best balanced. The Festival's new playa, "Measure For Measure", "Taming of the Shrew", and one other for this year.

In-summing up Mr. Patterson read a letter from Mr. Jerome Godfrey, whose commendations of the Stratford Shakespearian Festival were heartening and lifting, coming as they did from one whose standing in theatrical knowledge is unequalled.

Mr. Patterson was thanked for his excellent and most interesting address by Mrs. R. H. Tanner, 3rd vice president of the club.

Following the address, a period of questions and answers was quite enlightening.

Refreshments and coffee provided by the Trenton and Stirling ladies were served at the close of the meeting.

Woman at 100 Outlives All Her Family

KITCHENER (CP)—One hundred year-old Mrs. Louis Schuert's fondest wish was to outlive all her brothers and sisters but she has succeeded in outlasting the whole family. She has only a few distant relatives in the district and the United States.

Celebrating her 100th birthday Thursday at the Elmira Private Hospital, Mrs. Schuert recalled that she used to be noted for her hats when she was a seamstress in Kitchener.

As the former Louisa Haack she ran a dress shop employing several girls 50 years ago.

A party was held for her Thursday at the hospital and a large cake was presented by visiting friends and relatives.

Are No More Old Ladies, American Woman Smaller

By DOROTHY ROE
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"There are no old ladies any more," says Howard Bloomfield of Cleveland.

This lanky midwesterner heads a firm which has been turning out ladies' ready-to-wear for the last 50 years—longer, he claims, than any other dress firm continuously in business.

Back in 1940 the ideal of womanly beauty was the "perfect 36," and women were not ashamed to be queen-size, says Bloomfield, but now the average American woman wear size 14 to 16 dresses, and are rapidly reducing to junior sizes 11 or 12.

"I don't know just what has caused all this change," remarks the philosophic dressmaker. "I guess there are a number of causes, from the changing character of immigration to the influence of movies and television.

NEW FEATURES ADDED

"Back in the '90s our population was mostly nordic, and the women were big-boned, tall and well-padded in the Gibson girl tradition. Later the tide of immigration came from central and southern Europe, where the women are smaller, though stocky. A second generation has developed with the best features of their mothers and some new ones of their own.

"Today there are more perfect figures among American women than ever before in history. Women are getting smarter, too. Instead of buying a size 40 dress, big women trim down until they can wear an 18. And the woman who used to be proud of being a 'perfect 36' now probably buys her dresses in the junior department and wears a size 13."

"We don't make any 'old lady' dresses any more. There just aren't any old ladies. Look at some of our modern grandmothers, such as Gloria Swanson and Marlene Dietrich. Can you imagine trying to dress them in shapeless kind of dresses that used to be considered right for women? Their figures are as good as any 16-year-old could boast."

B.P.W. Club Enjoys Tour Through Bell Telephone Bldg.

The monthly dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club was held Monday evening at the Hotel Quinte. President Isabel Wallbridge conducted the meeting and various reports were submitted by executive members and chairmen of committees.

The business meeting was necessarily short as a conducted tour of the Bell Telephone Building had been arranged by Mildred Moorman, a member of the Bell Telephone staff.

The arrival of great interest to the club and the amazing network of wires and cables impressed one and all with the magnitude of Bell Telephone work.

Many expressions of thanks were given the personal of the company who so kindly gave their time for the club's benefit.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

GOOD MANNERS

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES CAN MAKE ENGAGEMENTS NECESSARY

Miss Fairfax: a

17, I have been going for year with a boy two years older than myself. We are very much in love, and since we are believed to be mature for our ages, we have objected to our plan to be come engaged very soon.

My problem concerns the fact that my best friend is leaving here soon to go to college for two years.
At the end this time, he wants to work for least six months before we marry. I don't want to start college, I would be in my first year at at high school and after graduation I plan to go on to nursing.

While I feel that two, or maybe lengthy three years is too long to wait before engaged, if so, when do you think I would be old enough and time for us to get married? And another thing, how much time do you think I should spend with my boy friend's family while he is away?

A.M.S.M.

Dear A.M.S.M.:

As a general rule, I am not in favor of long engagements, and I think they are very difficult in many ways for young people. On the other hand, special circumstances often make such delays necessary, and your case seems to be one of these cases.

It seems to me you have made a very sensible plan to spend the period of your engagement, and if you both are quite sure of your feelings, and sure that these feelings are not going to change through the period of waiting then I advise you to proceed along the lines you have planned.

I think, covers your second point as well. Only you and only for how much time you should spend with your young man's family will depend upon that, I would say, should depend on how close you feel you are to them. In any case, you would certainly want to visit them at least once a week, so that you could tell your boy friend about it, and give him the home news from your point of view when you write him.
And if you are very close to the family, you would probably want to drop in two or three times during the week just to say hello.

In other words, what you do in this regard will be automatically adjust itself in accordance with natural courtesy toward your fian-ce's people, plus the degree of affection you have for them yourself.

REVAMPING A BAD REPUTA- CAN'T BE DONE OVER-NIGHT

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl who has had affairs with boys, and I want to start all over again and lead a different kind of life. The trouble is, though, that practically every boy I go out with gets fresh, sooner or later.

I would like to find a boy and girl friends who are decent. Please tell me how I can do this.

FRANCES

Dear Frances:

I'm afraid the reason why you have difficulty finding friends who are, as you say, "decent," is because the life you have lived to-date has given you a reputation that makes these young people reluctant to associate with you. Your unfortunate reputation, also, is of course the reason why boys feel they can "get fresh" with you.

You will have to realize that living up a new and better reputation will be done neither quickly nor easily. If you are really sincere in your desire to do it, you will have to bring to the effort enough will power so that you keep on living the right way, even though you may be very lonely for a time, until other people realize that you seriously intend to be a different sort of person and feel they can trust you.

ANNOUNCING THE ENGAGE- MENT OF AN ADOPTED DAUGHTER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Many years ago my husband and I legally adopted a lovely little baby girl. After the birth of our own two fine children of our own, a girl and a boy. Our adopted daughter knows of course, that we are her adoptive parents, and everyone we know does, too.
Recently our adopted daughter became engaged, and her engagement is to be announced after her returns from college the first of June. In the engagement announcement, and later, in the marriage announcement, is it necessary that we mention this "adoptive" relationship?

Mary A.

No. . .not necessary to mention the adoptive relationship, and it should not be done.

YOU RECEIVE "AN INVITATION"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"A" says that it is proper to use
"an invite," meaning "an invitation." "B" insists that this is not correct, that "invite" is the verb, noun "invite" the verb, Who is right? and B

"B" is right! You say, "I received an invitation" . . .you never should say, "I received an invite." Correct: "I hope she will invite me to her wedding."

THE SPOON FOR THE GRAPEFRUIT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When half a grapefruit is to be the first course at a luncheon party, where should the spoon for the grapefruit be placed on the table?

Gloria W.

Place the spoon for the grapefruit at the right of the place, farthest from the plate.

AN UNEVEN NUMBER OF USHERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At our large, formal church wedding in June, we are going to have, in addition to the bridesmaids
a best man, and seven ushers, (One of the ushers is unusually tall.) Please tell me the order for the Processional.

POLLY S.

Processional: (1) the ushers, first three pairs, (behind pair leading), followed by the unusually tall usher, (2) the bridesmaids, in pairs; (3) maid of honor, alone; and last, you and your father, or whoever is to escort you.

Since there is an uneven number of ushers, an usher taller than the others may walk last in the group of ushers; or the tallest usher in the group may walk first in the group.

THIS BRIDE-TO-BE NEEDS HER SISTER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please help my sister and me,
Mrs. Beeckman! My only sister is to be married in June. She wants me to be her matron of honor, her only attendant. She is 25 years of age. I am 20 years of age, have white hair, have a son who is older than my sister, and am a grandmother. I think I am too old to be her attendant, and most of our relatives also think I'm too old, agreeing with me that she should ask someone younger, one of her nieces perhaps, nice, pretty girls. But she seems to want me, and says I can wear whatever color dress I would like to, says she thinks I look very nice in either pink or blue. (She is going to wear white, gown, no train, and a bridal veil.) The bridegroom's brother is to be the best man.

The wedding is to take place in the evening in a church, with the bridegroom's other brother, who is a minister, performing the ceremony. We are of a different faith, but my sister has changed her religion. Our mother is broken-hearted to think that my sister will be married out of her original church.
I want to show your reply, with your advice, to my sister. And you see, Mrs. Beeckman, we do need your help. —H.

And I see too that your sister needs your help, your loving help and your devoted understanding to be with her and to comfort her in this situation which obviously isn't being made too easy for her by some members of her family. So, heartily urge you to accept her sweet and appealing invitation to be her attendant, her only attendant. It is your and your sister's love and understanding of each other that is important. . .not the superficial advice of relatives, not your age or the color of your hair, nor the fact that you are a grandmother. Fortunately there is little to no other bridal attendant, this makes your decision easier to make. Your role is not an easy one, but it can be a wonderful one. . .to devotedly try to guide your mother's point of view to understanding and accepting your sister's decision with loving tolerance, and by lovingly standing by your sister in her choice and in all that it stands for. Make it a happy and memorable her Wedding Day!
God bless you!

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

FROM GREENLAND'S ICY MOUNTAINS

From Greeland's icy mountains,
From India's coral strand;
Where Afric's sunny fountains
Roll down their golden sand;
From many an ancient river,
From many a palmy plain,
They call us to deliver
Their lands from error's chain.

Shall we whose souls are lighted
With wisdom from on high
Shall we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny?
Salvation! Oh, salvation!
The joyful sound proclaim,
Till earth's remotest nation
Has learned Messiah's name .

Waft, waft, ye winds, His story
And you, ye waters, roll,
Till like a sea of glory
It spreads from pole to pole;
Till o'er our ransomed nature
The Lamb for sinners slain,
Redeemer, King, Creator,
In bliss returns to reign.

The greatest hymns of the church are God-made, rather than man-made. When Reginald Heber was inspired to write "From Greenland's icy Mountains", in 1819, it took him just 20 minutes to finish the first three stanzas, and the fourth—a fitting climax to the hymn—was added soon afterward.

No finer missionary hymn has ever been written. And here is the story. In every church in England, a certain Sunday has been set aside by royal decree for a missionary offering to further religious work in the far east. Reginald Heber, at the time, was visiting his father-in-law, the dean of St. Asaph. Both churchmen were writing sermons for the missionary day. When the dean asked for an appropriate hymn to be sung at the service, Heber withdrew to a quiet corner and dashed off the verses as they are sung today.

The composer of the hymn tune,
Lowell Mason, was a bank clerk in Savannah, Georgia, when the words were written. But already he was revealing the talents which later made him a composer for world renown, and a lady who had heard some of his tunes took Heber's verses to him. Within half an hour, it is said, Mason turned out a tune which is familiar to all of Christendom and which started him on a rapid rise to fame as a writer of hymn tunes.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

HOME SUBSTITUTES FOR COSMETICS

No matter how efficient a woman may be, she may now and then run out of something or other of which she has sudden need. She will pick up her favorite lotion, find not a drop is left and when the cold cream jar carries but a light film just when her complexion is chapped and weather beaten. Well, there are substitutes at hand.

We won't say that home beauty remedies are as good as the commercial products. But they do serve in an emergency.

The rich cream that the milkman brings readily takes the place of a cleansing cosmetic and will also be found soothing to the sensitive skin. Or take the string out of a sunburned surface. It can be used after the washing to put the flesh feels starched and drawn.
Smooth it on with flattened fingers, using an upward, outward stroke as you do when applying your favorite, fragrant emollient.
Follow with a light tapping movement.

If your hand lotion has gone dry and your hands are rough and red because of doing heavy work about the house, add some cornmeal to the suds when washing them. The starchy content is healing. After drying and a careful drying, massage a little olive oil into the flesh.
After a short period, remove it with tissues. Do that at bedtime so that a good night's rest follows.

Lemons have great cosmetic value. Rub the pulp on skin discolorations and it has mild bleaching qualities. Plunge your finger tips in a cut lemon and see how quickly it whitens the nails, performing as efficiently as the nail bleach pencils.

Lemon juice, applied to the face with a cotton. ball will help do away with excessive oiliness. A lemon rinse after the shampoo will give life and lustre to the hair. The strained juice of two lemons in a pint of water poured over the hair is the same used in beauty shops.

Should you be afflicted with a dry skin all over the body, add corn starch to the bath water.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Attention Mrs. H. N.: (who, on my request, mailed me a sample of "the loaf" which she buys at the bakery, and which she would like to have a recipe for.)

Answer: I have to allhi a little (and blush too) for I think the recipe I am giving you is better than tfe one the sample you sent me was made from. Of course the sample was stale by the time it reached me so I may not be fair.

SUNDRY SQUARES.

One-half cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar (or ½ cup each brown sugar and white), 2 well-beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups sifted cake flour, ½ teaspoon each salt and cinnamon, 1 teaspoon baking powder. Cream the shortening until light and fluffy then gradually cream the sugar into it until light. Beat in eggs, then the vanilla. Measure the sifted flour then sift it with the salt, baking powder and cin-namon and stir in. Spread in greased shallow pan about 12 x 8 x 2 inches. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes. Cool. Spread with plain butter icing or do what I do—spread before putting cake in to bake with this mixture: beat 1 egg white until stiff, then add 1 cup packed brown sugar gradually while continuing to beat until stiff, then fold in 1 cup chopped nuts. Spread on un-baked batter and bake as above. Cut into 2-inch squares when cool.

Question: When I threaten to cut your recipes out of the paper first you should hear the howl it hap-pen to cut through for Hoopie or the hockey scores! . . . I am in-terested in your recipes and menus for church suppers . . . you gave some time ago and I would like some intended for a crowd . . . we will be catering for around 30 men . . . and we have to do it for around 75c. We thought casserole dishes with desserts . . . one of the members can do these at home. I don't know about salads for this price but rolls would be nice also. We are looking for wedding re-ception ideas . . . I like your idea of heating your milk for cocoa in a double boiler. I am forever boiling milk over . . . need a pop-up toaster . . . but my family claims it still burns the toast . . . I have 3 boys, 22, 20 (Airforce) and 17 . . . have a cat and a Labrador pup . . . every happiness to your daughter . . . Phyllis E. C.

Answer: Phew! and I say I'm busy! And I need one is a Lab-rador pup in my lap to complet-ely jam the works! Thanks for a big grand letter. I have mailed to you the releases from Feb. 22, 23 and Apr. 2, all of which contain large quantity recipes.

Our W.A. served a good supper that I think you would do well to consider. It would not cost more than 75c per plate even if you paid for the ingredients for the plate.

Spaghetti in Cheese Sauce with Weiners on Top
Cole Slaw with Parsley Whole Wheat Rolls
Tea
Pumpkin Pies

For the Spaghetti dish for thirty-five 3 lbs. very fine spaghetti is enough. Make 3½ to 4 quarts thin rich cheese sauce. After boiling the spaghetti 15 minutes, drain, then rinse in cold water. Add it to the hot sauce. Appor-tion into shallow baking pans. Cover with halved weiners (9 lbs. bought at wholesale), sprinkle with fine grated cheese and bake until bubbling and golden.

Letter: Have you ever had mighty yen for a plain pie, only to find there are no lemons in the house? . . . you can use 2 tablespoons jello lemon pie filling as thickening in place of corn-starch, and it also gives the lemon tang . . . I was amazed to find I could use same substitute in Lemon Pudding: Mix 2 table-spoons soft butter, ½ cups sugar, and 1½ cup flour and salt to taste. Add ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 tea-spoon grated lemon peel, 1 egg yolks, 1¼ cups milk. Fold in beaten egg whites. Bake 45 minutes. (Use 2 tablespoons lemon pie filling in place of the flour, juice and peel). I use less sugar than this recipe calls for and it suits the family's health. Our country sisters who can't phone the grocer for lemons would appreciate the tip . . . my son (studying for exams too) landed in hospital for appendicitis oper-ation . . . only 3 hours elapsed between time they phoned to ask permission to operate and phone call to say it was over . . . E. N.

Answer: Your letter is adorable. Thanks for your good wishes for Marianne. I sure hope that boy of yours is well enough by now to study and pass his exams. Everybody in our house is bleary-eyed from studying — I have to go out to find anybody to talk to.

When you look at your fur coat you see a soft shimmering gar-ment. You don't see it the way the enlarged picture above shows it. But maybe you should!

Because this is a view of how your fur would look if you were to cut a pelt in the middle. (Heaven forbid!) You'd see short silky hairs and longer guard hairs growing out of the leather.

You'd see them this way if your fur had been Hollanderized. But if it had been cleaned by an or-dinary method, it would look like the picture below.

Install Own Door Mirror, It's Easy

Full-length Venetian door mirrors have achieved a definite place and function, both utilitarian and decorative, which has created greater demand for them than ever before in the average home.

In the few minutes it takes to install a door mirror, economy-minded homeowners can realize a savings in their budget. Also, the dividends a good full-length mirror pays in good grooming for the family, as well as in home decor, far exceed the modest original cost.

For best service a full-length door mirror should be at least five and one-half feet tall from 58 to 24 inches wide. Five standard size Venetian door mirrors, which are designed to fit approximately 90 percent of all interior millwork doors, have been developed by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company.

First measure the distance from edge to edge of the door itself. The overall width determines which of the standard door mirror sizes will cover the recessed door panel. You can simplify installation by removing the door from its hinges and placing it in a horizontal position over hooks placed at each corner.

After centering the mirror carefully on the door so that it completely covers the recessed panel, attach plastic clips to the door with a screw driver. A small hand drill will make the application of the screws much easier.

All venetian door mirrors are individually packaged complete with six plastic clips, screws and an instruction sheet for easy installation by the home handyman.

Give Entrance Hall Brand New Look

A new look for the home can well start with the entrance hallway floor—which visitors get their first step into your house. And it's easy and economical, now that such a great variety of floor tiles, which almost any one can lay, is available from your favorite building supply store.

Plan the design and the color combination you want in advance, to a scale drawing of the floor to be covered. Take your pattern to the dealer where the tiles are to be selected and where instructions will be available for putting the tiles into position yourself.

GIFT FOR A MAN

Gift of a tool set to the man who hasn't one now is the quickest way for a wife to convert him into a handyman who will become a confirmed "do it yourself" addict, with all the means to making a house a home.

HOME TALK

HOME CONDENSATION CAN BE LICKED — JUST GET RID OF THE MOISTURE!

By HERMAN BANDY

If you had condensation trouble last winter, resolve now to do something about it. Condensation can be licked!

And unlike termites and other marauders which often plague the homeowner, condensation doesn't keep itself a secret. If you've got it, you know it. And if you do something about it, you'll see immediate results from your work.

That's one reason this is a good time of year to get after it. There are still enough brisk days to check your results.

WHY HOUSE SWEATS

Condensation in a house is something like perspiration on the body, and both go by the same nickname: sweat. Why does a house sweat? It's like this.

In the modern house, huge quantities of water are used in cooking, cleaning, bathing, dishwashing, drying clothes, even in breathing. This is absorbed into the air, and tends to flow in the direction of drier atmosphere—which means outdoors.

If, in attempting to pass to the drier air outside, the warm moist air is chilled and its vapor blocked, the water vapor in the air condenses into drops of water.

DANGEROUS IN WALLS

These water drops are the villains. Where you can see them, such as on windows, they are not really dangerous, although it is a nuisance wiping them all the time. But if this condensation occurs inside the walls—and it is likely to—then you are in trouble. There it rots studs, laths, and causes interior paint to crack and blister. It causes a house to grow old long before its time.

This was never a problem in your grandpa's time, and probably not in your father's. It results from two things: more use of water inside the home; and tight home construction, insulated and weatherstripped, that prevents moist air from passing outdoors.

So don't blame the windows for your condensation troubles. They are just symptoms. Cold casing. Glass constitutes a vapor barrier and the moisture collecting on it in cool weather is a good barometer of the humidity within the house.

DANGER POINT NEAR

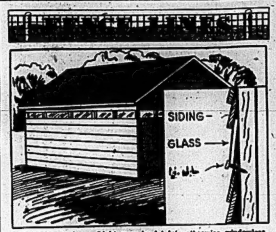
Slight misting on single-glazed windows is no cause for alarm. But if it gets so bad that water runs down the inside of the windows in streams, humidity has reached the danger point.

The first steps in dealing with the problem are simple, and may be sufficient. Open the windows after a bath or shower. Open the kitchen window half an inch from the top when you are cooking or washing dishes.

Check your laundry habits next, to see if they are to blame. If you own a clothes dryer, make certain it is vented to the outdoors. If you dry clothes in the basement, try leaving a window open there. If the room can't handle the moisture, and it may not if your laundry is a large one, you may want to construct a basement room with two windows which can be left open or an exhaust fan vented outdoors. This can easily be done by partitioning off a section of the basement with 2x4 studs and ¼-inch fir plywood sheets.

VENT FANS HELP

Then, if excessive humidity persists, you can install a vent fan in kitchen or bathroom, and an attic fan will also help keep you cool in summer.



Or if you like, buy one of the variety of dehumidifying devices on the market. Some of these can take gallons of water out of the house air daily.

FOR MANY PURPOSES

Plywood, that wonderful building material available in an almost limitless variety of surfaces for an endless variety of purposes, has become one of the standbys of the man who wants to build things for the home.

LANDMARK DESTROYED

DEWINTON, Alta. (CP) — The former St. Joseph's Indian industrial school in this Calgary district, a historic landmark was destroyed by fire. Built in 1893 by the late Rev. Father Lacombe, it once housed boys and girls from area Alberta Indian reservations.

GLASS STRIP . . . Light may be let into otherwise windowless garage by replacing one strip on the sides and back with panes cut to the same width. Panes, caulked together at ends, are held in place by nails driven in lower edges as shown.

New Counter Top Assembly Helps Modernization

Installation of a new kitchen sink counter top that provides work surface and backsplash in a single water tight unit, is now made easy for the "do it yourself" craftsman who is bent on doing something nice for mother.

Only a minimum of tools and effort are required to assemble and set the unit into place. The result can be not only a work saver, but a big lift for the appearance of the kitchen sink area.

Construction is of 1-16th inch Micarta, a stain resisting plastic, bonded to a ¾ inch Weldwood plywood core.

Work surface and backsplash are joined in a sweeping curve to eliminate any dirt catching seam. The assembly, called a unitop, has a deck width of 26 inches and comes in three different lengths.

There also are three different patterns to choose from.

TOOLS FOR RENT

Lack the equipment to do the things about the house you want to do? Check your favorite hardware or building supply dealers. You can frequently rent the tools you need—and that you'll probably want to buy for yourself later.

FARM BUILDING TIPS AND NEWS

Building Standards

By "Home Builder"

Standards in building construction are devised for many reasons. Accepted building standards result in reduced costs, increased safety and more healthful living accomodation in the building itself as well as garantees to the customer of an honest, substantial, economical job from the contractor while protecting the contractor against dissatisfaction with unsatisfactory work.

Standards apply to building materials as well as to methods of construction. All are familiar with standard lumber sizing which permits the dealer to keep a restricted range of sizes on hand and permits the buyer the certainty of knowing that such sizes can be obtained. Economy to the buyer lies in the elimination of waste in cuttings on the job and the use of wrong-sized materials that might require replacement.

In times past a builder would be instructed to build a home during the following year. With such, a commission the builder would spend all winter making window frames, doors, basebcards and trim, Such operations were all done by hand. One only needs to consider the present cost of skilled hand work to appreciate the savings available in mass-produced mill work.

PRINCIPLE OF ECONOMY

The same principle of economy holds true for most present day building materials, including cement. Variations in materials are now exceedingly rare and the prospective home owner benefits from the economy of mass-produced material.

Building standards also offer the assurance of safety. About 75 years ago exhaustive research was commenced to determine the structional qualities of many building materials. This work progressed to include actual loading tests on all parts of buildings.

Results of this research found their way into city building bylaw, Central Mortage and Housing Corporation requirements and the National Building Code.

Such restrictions have been made after floor joists and beams have been loaded to the breaking point and such findings have been made the basis of safe structural design.

SAFEGUARD HEALTH

Other building standards have been set up to safeguard the health of the occupants of the building. Such standards specify minimum room and window sizes. These standards are not subject to physical tests as are structural materials but are based on what is considered to be good practice.

Plumbing installations are regulated according to the Provincial Plumbing Code which has much to eliminate faulty installations in the name of economy. Adherence to the plumbing code avoids costly repairs for inadequate primary installations as well as replacement of installations that fail to do their job adequately once the building is occupied.

Building standards also safeguard the customer by making sure he gets an honest, substantial and economical job. Few customers are well enough aware of building practices to instruct the builder how to build a house step-by step. Dishonest contractors could take advantage of trusting customers. When the house is completed it is too late for the customer to do anything about the poor job which he has purchased. Even with building standards it is wise for the customer to be sure of the ingegrity of his contractor.

HELPS BUILDERS

Standardization of building practices has helped the builder in many ways too, It is true that too many rules and regulations tend to annoy him but the majority of standard regulations are endorsed by the building trades.

The builder is protected to quite an extent against incorrect decisions on his part, he has ready access to structural research information that has taken years of study and testing to accumulate, and he can talk to his customer on the same basis as his competitor, who, if he is a reliable contractor builds according to the same building standards.

There are still a number of items to be standardized. For instance, western lumber sizes vary with eastern lumber sizes to some extent. However, the building material dealer is able to offer the public better quality products and a better selection of materials at more economical prices because of standardization.

PROFUSION OF MATERIALS

Skilled designs, new products and new styles are coming on the market in a profusion that to the general public would hardly seem possible.

Canada's huge house-building program of recent years would have been out of the question without standardization. Whole factories in Canada are devoted to making only standard sash and roofing materials. Their production is tremendous, but is still not greater than the needs of the markets permit.

Standardization in the building industry has kept pace with standardization in other progressive industries. It is a protective measure to insure a quality and economical job.

Standardization, the result of years of study and research, is the prospective home builder's friend as well as being a guide to builders in their efforts to produce construction of satisfactory dwellings. Standardization is a progressive measure in the building trades that promises even greater benefits in the future.

ATTIC INTO ROOM

Converting the average attic into an attractive, extra, usable room, can be done by the home craftsman for approximately $100 in necessary materials, with enough trim waste to other jobs around the house. Estimate was made by producers of all-purpose wood panels.

BIGGEST DAY OF THE YEAR FOR TROUT FISHERMEN

Thousands of Canadians have waited months for this day, the opening of the trout season in most sections of Canada. And the big moment is when the first fish of the season is hooked, netted and landed.

Wellington on the Lake

WELLINGTON ON THE LAKE SPRING CLEANING

I have cleaned out the cupboards and closets upstairs,
And have laid aside garments in need of repairs;
And dresser-drawers filled from bottom to brim
Now present an appearance unusually trim;
Last year's magazines have been given away
They will make pleasant reading on a dull, rainy day;
Old letters I've burned, excepting a few,
That breathe of a friendship, steadfast and true;
Much useless litter I've gladly thrown out
It is a relief not to see it about;
But while cupboards and shelves are refreshingly neat
I must rid my heart's chambers of hate and deceit.

For spring-cleaning the home Is but a small part,
If cobwebs and rubbish remain in the heart.

—Helen B. Anderson.

Although the weather continues cool, there are many evidences that Spring is on the way. Busy housewives are spring-cleaning, lawns are being raked and smoke wreaths fill the air. Birds are returning to their former building sites, among them are the robins, the flickers, and the wrens. And quoting the poet:

"In the spring a fuller crimson comes upon the robin's breast;
In the spring the wanton lapwing gets himself another crest;
In the spring a lurid iris changes on the burnished dove;
In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

The morning service on Sunday in the United Church was in charge of the W.M.S. and conducted by the president, Mrs. Gerald Stoneburg with Rev. J. F. Lane of Madoc, a former pastor, as guest speaker. An inspiring sermon on Easter and Missions and contributions by the choir combined to make an impressive service. The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. Lane were delighted to welcome them.

At close Mrs. (Dr.) Thompson showed tokens from Bermuda, collected on a recent holiday there. A social hour with refreshments was enjoyed.

BULLETS HALT REFUGEES

LEUBECK, Germany (Reuters) East German police machine-gun fire pinned down two persons who tried to sneak across the closely guarded East-West German border near here Thursday. Lake Ontario Town Feels Effect of St. Lawrence Seaway Project

Port Credit, a quiet town between Hamilton and Toronto on Lake Ontario, lost its small-town atmosphere overnight when the federal government announced that its harbor, shown here, will be deepened to accommodate ocean liners that will pass through the St. Lawrence after the seaway project is completed. Real estate values jumped immediately in the town in anticipation of a building and industrial boom unprecedented in its history. (Central Press Canadian.)

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reeding the society page in the paper, saying to pop, Well, imagine, rite here in the fashionable swim in the social notes.

Good, is it anybody that owes us money? pop said, and ma said, It's somebody that we know very well, at least you used to play tennis with her husband.

Yee gods, I haven't played tennis in 15 years pop said, and ma said, That's when I meen. You remember the Fred Red Smiths. My it seems she's quite a figure on the social ladder now. It mite be nice to look them up, William, she said.

What for, pop said, and ma said, Why, for your sake.

How come? pop said, and ma said, Wouldn't you enjoy bringing back old tennis memories with him, in a conversational way?

By golliee, come to think of it, those were the days of pure sport, pop said, and ma said, That's what I meen.

He used always beet me, but I never held it agenst him, he was such a good sportsman, pop said. He used to come smiling over the net to shake hands after a match, shouting, You deserved to win, but I had all the breaks. And I'd say, Not at all, old chap, you were unbeetable. And I'd think, I'll say you had all the breaks, you robber, I put 20 balls on the line and you called every one of them out. And then we'd go and have a frendly drink, and I always hoped he would choke on his, but he never did, unfortunately, pop said.

Oh well, maybe the wife is the snooty kind that wont renew acquaintances, ma said, and pop said, She has nothing on me, my dear.

Meening he wouldn't either.

Moscow Diplomats, Especially Westerners, Lead Lonely Lives in Various Embassies

Editor's Note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press Staff Writer just back from five months in the Soviet Union, speaks Russian. During his assignment it was an advantage that most diplomats in Moscow look. This story, last of a series, describes the narrow life the diplomatic corps—especially Westerners—must lead there.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Diplomats in Moscow live in a fishbowl. They have nobody else to talk to, so they see too much of one another, and pick too much from one another's brains.

What goes into the brains is only what the Soviet government thinks they and 210,000,000 Soviet citizens should know about what goes on. And that's not much.

Diplomatic activity in Moscow is like solving "whodunits." First, second and third secretaries, mysterious people with diplomatic status called attachés, and various varieties of attaches try to read between the lines of translations from the Soviet press—because most of them neither read nor speak Russian.

CANADIANS KNOW LANGUAGE

Canadian embassy heads, however, have had a language advantage over most of their diplomatic colleagues. L. Dana Wilgress, first ambassador, John H. Watkins, the present one; and Robert Ford, charge d'affaires until March, all speak fluent Russian.

Wilgress picked up Russian during First World War service in Siberia and subsequently married a Russian wife. The other two mastered it through study.

Because diplomats can't drop in on an official who can give them the hard facts as they do in other countries, most speculate among themselves.

A typical conversation:

"Pravda says Popov, the party's second secretary in Omsk, has been relieved."

"Yes, interesting, isn't it? And third secretary Sherbokov has replaced him. Doesn't say where Popov's going to be or for how long."

"Don't know. Is Sherbokov in Ukraine, do you know? Seems to me Kustvhev's been pulling a fast one on the party lately, getting a lot of old pals from the Ukraine into party positions."

BIG JIGSAW PUZZLE

Fitting minor personalities into the big jigsaw is fascinating parlor piffle, but it doesn't help the diplomats convey the big picture to their governments. It's not their fault. The Russians don't make it easy.

The real job no Moscow is done by a few senior officials at the embassies. One important Western ambassador told me frankly he hadn't found the return justified the expense or running the embassy.

Socially the glamour of the ballet, the splendor of the opera and ballet, are poor compensation for the inhumanity of living in a small colony of people, with not much in common, in the unfriendly atmosphere of Moscow.

Diplomatic parties are frequent because they are almost the only distraction possible where foreigners are isolated from the people.

PARTIES ARE FACTOR

The Canadian embassy does not often entertain lavishly. Most invitations are prized. A three-piece orchestra (pianist, violin and 2,000 rubles ($500 at the official exchange rate) for one evening. In return it's excellent food, dancing, dance music. Most frequent hosts are the embassies of satellite countries three and four times a week.

Much prestige is acquired among the corps by the number and rank of Soviet officials who attend embassy functions on their own national holidays. Leaders when I left were the Indians, who drew a large group of Russian Communist leaders and cultural figures. They out-drew even the satellite Hungarians whose party earlier this month was the last I attended.

World politics are reflected even in these gatherings.

Pro-Western diplomats hover around U.S. Ambassador Bohlen as attentively as Communist country's ambassador flutter around Foreign Minister Molotov or Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko. Those who mix with everybody are known as "neutral" power, such as India, Mexico, Iran and the like. Often they have much going with representatives of the "people's democracies," but they try.

Diplomatic conversations are difficult to pin down. Soviet officials frown on the point of half-a-dozen people talking together. Conversations usually are limited to two persons. Soviet officials rarely attend embassy receptions. Even when they do, they usually leave early.

Most diplomatic business is transacted by telephone. It was ticked off in friendly fashion by Soviet officials to the Canadian embassy when I telephoned for information that wouldn't have added a nickel's worth to Soviet intelligence.

Mating Pigeons Evict Roomer, City Gets Bill

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A retired telegraph clerk has asked Mayor Norris Poulson to help finance his love life sage of The Egg and I.

Harry Reade, 65, wrote the mayor that a pigeon couple has set up housekeeping in his room and produced one egg.

"Since I am not inclined to disturb or frustrate the act of God," he wrote, "I was therefore compelled to relinquish my room and pay again rent for still another room.

With novel legal logic, Reade contends that since the city protects the birds against shooting, the city actually owns them. Thus since city property has forced him to rent another room, he claims the city should accept the financial responsibility, until after the egg has hatched.

Accompanying Reade's letter was a rent receipt for $15.

RCMP Probing Discrepancies In Army Accounts

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP is investigating discrepancies in accounts at the army's Camp Ipperwash in Ontario's Lambton county, Associate Defence Minister Campney said Friday.

Mr. Campney indicated in the commons there have been some thefts but he said investigations to date indicate losses are "substantially less" than $15,000 mentioned in some press reports.

Mr. Campney said the defence department does not intend to institute an independent investigation apart from that being conducted by the RCMP.

U.S. Business Outlook Good

By WALTER BREEDE, Jr.
NEW YORK (AP) — Business sentiment this week was cautiously optimistic.

The latest batch of first-quarter earnings reports showed an impressive array of plus signs and a sprinkling of records. The stock market raced ahead to new 24-year highs. Steel makers said business is picking up; auto men predicted an early upswing in freight traffic.

Even those were warnings that the business turndown has not yet run its course, Occasional instances of production-cutting in consumer goods pointed up the fact that business men are in a buyer's market.

Denies Lifting Auto While Wheels Stolen

MONTREAL (CP)—A 406-pound strong man denied Friday that he helped steal the wheels from an automobile and then lift the car off the ground while an accomplice pulled off the rims and tires.

Jean Paul Leblanc, 26-year-old giant from nearby Ile Bizard who is too big to fit in a single jail cell, pleaded not guilty to the theft charge when arraigned in court. He did plead guilty, however, to charges of speeding and having no car registration and was fined $100.

Martial Belanger, 22, of suburban Ville St. Laurent, is charged as complice in the theft, pleaded guilty and was remanded to May 7 for sentence.

Difficult to Meet People

These people, walking down broad Navoi Street in Tashkent, Soviet Central Asia, are typical of the common people in that part of the Soviet Union. Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, just home after five months in the Soviet Union, says he had almost no opportunity to meet the people. And he says Western diplomats in Moscow suffer from the same problem — that their contacts with citizens of the Soviet Union are extremely restricted.—(CP Photo.)

Sidelights on Russian Life That Did Not Pass Censors Are Now Revealed by Boss

Editor's Note: When Bill Boss of The Canadian Press left Moscow after five months in the Soviet Union, his notebooks were full of sidelights on life behind the Iron Curtain. Here are some of them—including items the Moscow censor wouldn't pass for cable or mail transmission to Canada.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russians are not race conscious. It is not a Communist accomplishment but the result—of hundreds of years of geographic conditioning, through being spread over one-sixth of the land area of the world.

But it is a characteristic which has important political significance when associated with the Soviet Union's tie-up with Communist China and its affiliated programs for both Koreas and the Communists in Indo-China.

Soviet universities and other institutions of higher learning, not only in Moscow but throughout the union, have many Oriental and Asiatic students. There are an estimated 5,000 Koreans in the U.S.S.R. and the other "people's" democracies, being trained as doctors, scientists, engineers, and even musicians and ballerinas.

TOP GRADUATE CHINESE

Top graduate of the first Moscow medical institute last year was Chinese. A top graduate of the Moscow ballet school this year is a Korean girl.

In Moscow's Metropole hotel, where I lived, a large banquet room had been converted into a dormitory and study hall for 35 North Koreans.

It is common to see Chinese, Koreans and Russians dancing together in Moscow night spots.

CHINESE LARGEST

The Chinese Communist embassy in Moscow is one of the largest in the Soviet Union. Unlike the British and American embassies whose large staffs must since the Soviet press for small facts that add up to a partial understanding of the Soviet system, the Chinese seem to receive full cooperation from the Russian government.

But I got the impression that the embassies of Russian satellite governments in Europe receive orders or "suggestions," rather than the assistance China gets.

TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS

A Westerner may travel through considerable parts of the Soviet Union without escort after going through the formality of obtaining permission. But this does not apply to frontier zones and certain large "security" areas.

Train and plane tickets can not be bought until the permission is incribed on your documents.

The travel authority usually means you may go anywhere in the city you are visiting. In Baku, however, I received strict orders I could not turn right on leaving the hotel. I would have taken me a height where I would have was I to walk more than three blocks uphill behind the hotel for the same reason. In fact, I walked 10 without trouble.

FORBIDDEN GROUND

In Tashkent, capital of the Soviet central Asia republic of Uzbekistan, I found a taxi-driver more co-operative than most and decided to try to pass the city barrier. "

In that part of the Soviet Union, only the capitals and certain large cities are accessible to visitors. Rural areas are forbidden ground. Apparently that goes for Soviet citizens, too, unless they have special permission, for the barriers or main roads out of the cities are manned by militia men who scrutinize all documents.

The driver knew I was a Canadian reporter but at the gate he said nothing.

An armed militia man asked: "Who is this man, comrade?"

"I don't know."

"You don't? Let me see your papers."

The driver handed them over, saying: "As far as I know he is a foreigner who wanted to see the collective farms."

We were turned back.

STIFF DRIVING TESTS

Russian driving tests are stiff—but it's not too important, few Russians have cars anyway.

I know two foreigners who drive in the Soviet Union. Neither has attended Soviet President Clementi Voroshilov when he presented his credentials by revealing that he had been to plays the old marshal himself had not yet seen. He thinks it is an accomplished pianist, and embassy callers know the instrument by ear.

Moscow traffic regulations alone are enough to stump the foreigner who can't read Russian. The broad thoroughfares and boulevards are laid out for traffic volume not likely to be seen for 20 years.

One-way streets, right-turn-only intersections and other complications peculiar to Moscow are such no other hurdle a driving test. The examiner may want an explanation of the mechanism of the engine, the function of the carburetor, or the operation of turn indicators.

Two-Gun Cohen in Geneva To See Some Old China Hands

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENEVA (CP)—A small, broad-shouldered man in an expensive grey suit turned up in Geneva Friday, seeking to renew acquaintance with some old China hands.

He is Morris Abraham Cohen—better known as "Two-Gun" Cohen—the fabulous Canadian who was once right-hand man to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese Nationalist leader.

Cohen still is an elder of the Kuomintang, Chinese Nationalist party, and says he has paid his dues up to date. He was in South-ern Rhodesia recently visiting a sister, but when he eyed there he was 290 delegates from Communist China attending the Geneva conference he couldn't resist coming here.

Cohen, born in Stepney, East London, 66 years ago, was early in China. In 1902 by his father, farmed in Alberta for a time and then ran a smattering of Chinese dialect among the Chinese colony around Edmonton and Calgary.

Later he went to China on the request of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Kuomintang, and became a close friend of many famous Chinese personalities.

Gen. Cohen's wife, Judith, lives in Montreal. One of the general's recent activities is believed to have involved intervention some three years ago in the case of six Canadian nuns charged with maltreating babies in a convent in China. Gen. Cohen's plea on behalf of the nuns is thought to have resulted in lenient treatment for them.

The Soviet Union has under way a large-scale program to train professional people and technicians for China, North Korea, the Indo-Chinese Communists and the European satellite countries. This class of students, Soviet Koreans, is typical. The picture is from the official Soviet photograph shows post-graduate students at Moscow's First Medical Institute. Besides Russians, the group has representatives from China, Indo-China, and Czechoslovakia. — (CP Photo.)

Moscow's Diplomatic Colony Has Highest Regard For New Canadian Ambassador

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Moscow diplomats count Canada's John Watkins among their outstanding colleagues.

For a man who doesn't drip protocol and has never been an ambassador in the Soviet capital for less than three months, that's an accomplishment. He is recognized as a man who knows much about his assignment, speaks Russian and knows the country well, and faces facts and tries to interpret them fairly.

Watkins says he is impressed by the material progress of Soviet progress since he left in 1951, after three years as charge d'affaires in Moscow, to become Canadian minister to Norway and Iceland.

CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM

"When I left, the post-war construction program was just getting under way," he said during a meeting midway before my own departure from Moscow.

"The university building had just been started and the foreign office building was taking shape. Since then both have been completed, and the amount of apartment building that has gone on is tremendous."

Russian building standards are good. Structures like the foreign office are almost first-rate but run-of-the-mill building is generally poor workmanship and materials.

"It's not that they're getting people into better accommodation," Watkins said. "They'll probably have to rebuild sooner than we would. By that time, perhaps, higher standards of craftsmanship will be set."

SURPRISED PRESIDENT

One recent night in Moscow he went to see a play and since has been to the theatre frequently. He astonished Soviet President Clementi Voroshilov when he presented his credentials by revealing that he had been to plays the old marshal himself had not yet seen. He thinks it is an accomplished pianist, and embassy callers know the instrument by ear.

Moscow traffic regulations alone are enough to stump the foreigner who can't read Russian. The broad thoroughfares and boulevards are laid out for traffic volume not likely to be seen for 20 years.

One-way streets, right-turn-only intersections and other complications peculiar to Moscow are such no other hurdle a driving test. The examiner may want an explanation of the mechanism of the engine, the function of the carburetor, or the operation of turn indicators.

Civil Service, Forces to Get New Insurance

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is setting up a new insurance system for civil servants and the armed forces.

The new plan will replace individual insurance contracts made under the Civil Service Insurance Act and will extend it to all on a compulsory basis.

Such insurance up to now was voluntary and covered only the 120,000 civil service employees classified as permanent. The insurances will be extended to an other 50,000 temporary government workers and to armed services personnel totalling around 70,000.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and Finance Minister Abbott made general announcements of the plan Friday.

The basic premium, it was understood, will be 40 cents a month per $1,000 deducted from pay cheques. Insurance up to $5,000 will be purchasable, without physical examination.

No Tax Exemption For Gasoline Used To Fly Airplanes

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario High ways Minister Doucett has reformed the Canadian Owners and Pilots Association that there is no provision in the province's gasoline tax act for tax exemption on aviation gasoline, it was reported Friday.

The COPA, which claims to represent a large proportion of the country's 7,000 private-aircraft pilots, has been campaigning for more than a year to have the highway tax removed on aviation gasoline.

Mr. Doucett said in a letter to the COPA that "it would not be fair to permit tax exemptions to the airplane industry and not give the same consideration to all other industries."

Only two provinces, Ontario and Quebec, levy such a tax.

To Visit Niagara

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Daily Newspapers Association members will tour the Ontario Hydro electric power commission's huge new Sir Adam Beck-Niagara generating station No. 2 today.

The association, now holding its annual meeting here, will lunch in one of the Niagara construction camp cafeterias before starting the plant.

The plant will be opened officially Aug. 30 by the Duchess of Kent.

Mundt Declares Move to Shorten Probe Is Likely

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.) said today that an attempt may soon be made to shorten the public inquiry into the dispute between Senator McCarthy and high military officials.

Mundt, chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee during the televised inquiry, said the hearings may shortly be at hand for efforts to narrow the issues that have been pitted before the senators in seven days of under-oath hearings without signs of let-up.

Army Secretary Stevens, who first took the witness stand opening day, April 22, was still there when the group recessed Friday for the week-end, although several others have testified for briefer interludes. Stevens is listed for another appearance Monday.

As the hearings closed Friday, Ray H. Jenkins, special sub-committee counsel, drew from Stevens an acknowledgment that when the army secretary was thinking of relieving Maj.-Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker from command at Fort Monmouth, N.J., he so informed the Wisconsin Republican senator "to find out how Senator McCarthy felt about it."

INVESTIGATION TARGET

Fort Monmouth, a radar research centre, was then a target in McCarthy's hunt for alleged espionage.

Stevens, under stiff questioning, said that McCarthy wanted Lawton continued in command because the general was "co-operating fully" with McCarthy's investigations and his (Lawton's) case was left in command at Fort Monmouth until it left.

But the secretary said he was not "afraid" of a McCarthy reprisal if Lawton were removed, that he gave McCarthy the information on Lawton as part of his own policy of co-operating with the Senate probe, and that he decided Lawton was "entirely "on the merits" of his case.

In Milwaukee, Wis., Friday night where he flew after the hearings recessed, McCarthy said Lawton will be called to testify as a witness for his side in the hearings.

'Gone Fishing' Signs Appear In 3 Provinces

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The "gone fishin'" sign makes its first 1954 appearance today in Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia as the trout season opens. Thousands of fishermen are expected to head for the running streams and the open lakes to try their luck with rod and reel after last year.

A Canadian Press survey today shows that in five other provinces fishermen started earlier to wet their lines.

New Brunswick got trout anglers off to a flying start April 15 as Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Manitoba followed April 15 and Quebec April 21.

Newfoundland and Saskatchewan are the only provinces barred from pools and streams until May 15.

Only feathered lures may be used on Newfoundland's salmon rivers. Alberta prohibits spear fishing, as does British Columbia in tidal waters. Fishermen are busy with diving helmets and spear guns. Use of spearguns is also unlawful in Quebec waters in which speckled, grey or Quebec trout are found, except when such minnows were taken in the same waters.

Opening with the speckled trout season in Ontario today are the province's 1,000 square miles of trout. Black bass season in most areas runs from July 1 to Oct. 15.

Deny Television Truck Admitted to Fire Scene

VANCOUVER (CP) — A CBC spokesman denied Friday that a television truck had been admitted to the scene of a $2,000,000 RCAF hangar fire here while other newsmen and photographers were.

The spokesman said the only vehicle connected with the CBC at the fire Thursday night was a private car owned by a CBC announcer. A motion picture camera man assigned by the corporation to cover the fire

It was not stopped, he said, but added that no motor equipment had been made for its admission.

The spokesman said the auto mobile was inscribed "CBC-NBC" on the back.

The statement came as Wing Cmdr. Donald MacDonald, officer commanding the Sea Island base, opened a personal investigation into alleged mishandling of newspaper men by service police.

Propaganda at Circus

A barrage of Communist propaganda colors the views about Western countries held by citizens of the Soviet Union. At this circus in Samarkand, Soviet Central Asia, the barker pulled in the crowd shouting "The show's going to start in three minutes, comrades." But the three minutes dragged out to half an hour. A middle-aged blonde lectured: "Our party provides entertainment like the circus, as well as giving men and women equal rights to work, education, medical care and culture." — (CP Photo.)

Russians Believe Canadians Exploited by Government, 'Monopolists,' Slanted Picture

Editor's Note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, has just returned to Canada after five months in the Soviet Union. In this story, one of a series, he tells what Russians think of Canada. All they know about this country is the slanted picture published in the controlled press.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russians are sorry for Canadians.

They say we are exploited by our government and "the monopolists." They say their system is superior because it has abolished man's ability to get rich by the fruits of someone else's labor.

A few concede our system enables working men to live fuller lives than Russians.

CONVINCED OF FUTURE

"But 20 years from now," said one woman with whom I used to have long conversations, "our Soviet system will have left yours behind.

"We are content to get on with a little less while building for the future."

Russians I met in railway stations, on trains, in restaurants, were far more interested in the comforts of our life than in our politics.

What the Russian regime thinks, as stated by its officials and the controlled Communist press, is less clear-cut. On one hand are repeated professions of friendship for the Canadian people. On the other are expressions of astonishment, verging on annoyance, that our government should participate "contrary to the will of the Canadian people"—in American "aggressive preparations aimed at the Soviet Union."

"We always draw a distinction between the people and the ruling circles," one official said.

OFFICIAL LINE

Soviet newspapers carry only occasional articles about Canada. The line at present is that Canada is being sold down the river to the United States and is really an economic vassal of America. The Canadian Tribune, Toronto Communist newspaper, is often quoted.

As I left Moscow, Izvestia, the Red army newspaper, printed a long story by Simeon Shcherbatykh, former Tass (Russian news agency) correspondent in Ottawa who since his return to Moscow has specialized in misrepresenting Canada to his Soviet readers. He said the U.S. is "transforming Canada into a springboard for aggression against the Soviet Union and the countries of people's democracy at an increased tempo."

Soviet newspapers insist the "low standard of living" of many Canadians is due to high taxes needed for the arms race.

The working class in Canada is pictured as living in poverty while a few rich men who exploit the workers live in luxury. This, for instance, is part of a long description of life in Montreal published in Trud, the Russian trade-union paper:

"On the slopes of the mountain are aristocratic quarters. Luxurious private residences are buried in the dense verdure of gardens. Comfortable cars of the latest type are at the gates. The owners enjoy all the benefits of life.

"Closer to the port and in the suburbs the picture is completely different. Squalid little houses huddle close against one another. In the dark and narrow streets there are puddles which never dry.

"A new brick building stands there, but how strong the vivid color of the bricks looks! To conceal cracks in the walls, the landlord pastes them over with roofing paper with tiles drawn on it. Inside the building this disguise alters nothing. . . .

"If a person does not know, or speaks bad English, he is doomed to low-paid physical labor."

DISTORTED VIEW

Most students I met know where Canada is, but their idea of its status is conditioned by the party line.

"The Dominion of Canada—that means you are a British colony," they say.

Or:

"Canada is a country being exploited by America and exposed to American culture."

"Canada is a NATO country and joining with America in building bases around the Soviet Union for aggression at a new war."

They sound entertained that a free people without aggressive intentions would be in NATO or the European Defence Community. Any suggestion the USSR might have been even in part responsible for their development is stupefying to them.

EFFECT OF PROPAGANDA

On a train trip in Soviet central Asia, I met a lieutenant in the Red army, a university graduate. We talked about Canada and Russia. He said life in Canada sounded good.

"We would have by now all that you describe if there had been no war. And now you want to have another one. Or do the people of Canada and the United States want war?"

"Of course not," I said.

"Then it's just your leaders?"

"They don't either."

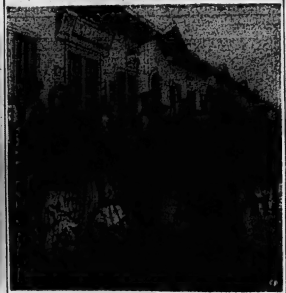
"Then why are you building bases around the Soviet Union? And what about Korea? Why did the Americans attack there?"

"LEADERS KNOW BEST"

Later he said:

"Another war would be terrible. There is no need for another war. Nobody wants it. Would Canada use the atom bomb? Our newspapers tell us Canada is an important country in atomic research."

I said Canada is not making atomic weapons; that Canadian research is entirely peaceful.



"Why don't our newspapers tell us that?" he mused. Finally he ended our conversation.

"There must be an answer somewhere," he said. "But our leaders must know best. We Russians are just little people after all. Only the Kremlin knows."

POWDERED MILK

Skim milk powder packaged for retail sale in Canada in 1953 totalled 3,936,000 pounds, double the 1951 output.

Sorry for Canadians

Bill Boss of The Canadian Press, who spent five months in the Soviet Union, says Russians are sorry for Canadians. They say we are exploited by our government and by monopolists. Some concede that working men have fuller lives in Canada, as this photo Boss took on a station platform in Soviet Central Asia seems to prove. One reason for the Russians' belief in their own system of government is that their knowledge of other countries comes through controlled press and radio which carry only what the Communist regime wants the people to know. — (CP Photo.)

Athletics' Negro Mound Star Bids Fair To Become 'Rookie of The Year'

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BATAS PRACTICE!

Coach Vern Goyer, of the new Belleville Batas (not Bats, Sunny), has blown the fail-in and the squad will go on their first big parade, it is hoped, tomorrow afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds. There are no restrictions and anyone who plays ball, thinks he can, or hopes he will, is cordially invited to attend the workouts.

There is not much time before the opening dates, which, we are given to understand, fall on May 24 as far as Belleville and Peterborough clubs are concerned. There was talk that the league moguls plan to use the Batas and Peter as Toronto attractions before that date, but Manager Carson of the Batas, trumped on that idea but firmly.

"We do not intend starting this league with a team that is not in some kind of shape," he said. "It will be tough enough to whip the boys into some kind of playing condition by May 24, let alone any dates prior to that."

Coach Goyer is playing no favorites. The players with the "go-git-em" spirit and showing the better ability will get the spots. The quality of the foemen in other teams of the loop is not known, but you can bet they will come up with strong opposition.

Hockey playing baseballers should not be in too bad a shape, but some of the veterans of former senior clubs who idled all winter and last summer may be a little wind-blown. Dick Fitzpatrick said he is working on a "spare tire" that has cropped up about his midriff. Huck Reeves says he is in good condition from some heavy slugging at his work. Pat Gilmour, Billy Strahan and other puck-chasers should be in good fettle, but be that as it may, there is a lot of work to be done before the Batas go into action.

When the Batas step on the diamond for their first action they will be nattily attired in new uniforms of cream with a dark blue trimming, blue sox, caps, etc., the same as the colors selected by the sponsoring Bata Shoe Company.

Those season tickets are now available, club secretary Drury Denyes informs us. They cost ten bucks each and are good for twenty home games, and a saving of three dollars. They can be obtained at Symons', Cook's and Thomas' tobacco stores, the secretary, any member of the executive and from this department. Be a booster and buy one of the packages.

The team will practice tonight at 6.30 at the Fair Grounds.

SOUTH HASTINGS!

One of the oldest baseball leagues in this part of Ontario plans another good season. The South Hastings loop executive has called the annual meeting for Monday, May 3, at the Canniffon hall. All teams represented last year are invited to attend as well as all those interested in the loop.

President Frank Grandsame of the Belleville District Baseball League, has issued invitations to the teams forming last year's loop to attend the annual meeting slated for the city hall council chambers next Wednesday evening. He has also forwarded an invite to Napanee baseball authorities and there is a strong possibility an entry from that town will be forthcoming.

A despatch from Kingston yesterday said the Napanee team has withdrawn its entry from the Kingston City League because of the fantastic travelling expenses demanded by Limestone city squads. Kingston city league moguls must have picked up the travelling expense bug when going through Oshawa. It apparently is contagious.

However, the Napanee entry would be a welcome one. If the Belleville Regents, Picton Combines, Wellington-Bloomfield Combines, and a team from the RCAF file entries, it would round out aadidy, compact loop.

"MR. BOWLING"

Speaking of tournaments, the big bowling event of the year for Belleville and district, the third annual "Mr. Bowling" tournament, will be held on Saturday, May 8th, this year. Entries must be in by May 3rd. This year, the tourney will be a ten game event... Two five game blocks will be rolled, afternoon and evening, and the champ will be declared on total pinfall for the ten games. A guaranteed minimum of $50.00 will go to "Mr. Bowling." This prize will be increased and second and third prizes added if the number of entries warrant it. It is expected, now that we have gone big time with a one-day tournament, that entries will be received from many out of town points, including Trenton, Kingston and Oshawa.

"WHO DOES?"

Rule 3.16, which prohibits players leaving their gloves on the field between innings, has been cussed and discussed ad infinitum. But the best crack about this new bit of the playing code came from Peter Bavasi, 11-year-old son of Buzzie, vice-president of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Buzzie took Peter to one of exhibition games at Yankee Stadium between the Brooks and the world champions and about the second inning Peter noticed the Dodgers bringing in their gloves. Turning to his father, Peter piped,

"What's the matter, daddy? Don't they trust the Yankees?"

Buzzie might have replied that, after what the Yankees have done to the Brooks in five World's Series, they certainly shouldn't trust 'em—but he couldn't talk for laughing.

"Out of the mouth of babes . . ."

Bob Trice, Formerly of Ottawa Starts, Finishes, Wins Three; Yanks Lose; Brooks Lead Loop

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

If big Bob Trice can keep up his fast start he may make the jump from International League rookie-of-the-year to the same title in the American League in one season.

The Georgia-born Negro, first of his race to play baseball for Philadelphia Athletics, has started, finished and won three games. And each time he's pitched he's been better.

Trice joined the A's last September and posted a 2-1 record after winning 11 for Ottawa in the International League.

Against Baltimore Orioles Friday night he hurled a one-hit shutout going for eight innings, and wound up with a 5-1 three-hitter.

PLAYED IN QUEBEC

Trice, 25, won 16 and lost three for St. Hyacinthe in the Quebec Provincial League in 1951.

Trice's fine pitching pushed the Athletics into third place in the American League, a game and a half behind the fast-moving Chicago White Sox, who whipped Boston 5-0 for their ninth victory in 11 starts.

Detroit outlasted Washington 2-1 in 11 innings and Cleveland Indians bumped New York Yankees 9-5 with a five-run explosion in the 10th inning for New York.

In the National League, Brooklyn took over first place from Cincinnati by beating the Redlegs 6-3. New York Giants shaded Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 14 innings on Willie Mays' home run and Philadelphia Phillies defeated Milwaukee 4-3. Pittsburgh was rained out at St. Louis.

Bob Keegan scattered nine hits for his third straight success for the White Sox. He's won eight in a row over two seasons.

FOUND RANGE

The Indians found the range in the 10th against Whitey Ford, batstering the Yankee relief pitcher for a triple, three singles and a walk good for five runs.

Sal Maglie, written off as a has-been in the last days of the 1953 campaign, became the first pitcher in either league to win four games. To do it he had to pitch the longest game of his career.

Brooklyn and Cincinnati sprayed 24 hits over Cincinnati's Crosley Field, but the Dodgers used theirs to better advantage. Two of the 13 Brooklyn batsmen were home runs by Duke Snider and Pee Wee Reese.

Correlation Tops Field of 18 In Famous 'Run of the Roses'

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Derby, premier American horse race, will be run for the 80th time at sprawling Churchill Downs late this week with the outstanding contenders for the richest winner's purse in history and 15 other three-year-olds apparently just out for the ride.

The 18 colts, whose names were dropped into the entry box Friday are survivors of an original field of 137 nominated for this $100,000-added glamor race starting at 5:30 p.m. EDT.

The others, including two of the future-book choices, dropped by the wayside either through injuries or failure to show the speed and endurance necessary to be a serious contender in the mile-and-a-quarter Derby distance.

THE FIELD

Heading the field are Correlation, owned by Lee Angeles oil man R. S. Lytle; Goyamo, representing the Woodvale Farm of Royce G. Martin at Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. W. Alton Jones, wife of an oil company executive; Misty Road, pride of A. E. Reuben's Misty House Farm of Toledo; Determine, from the stable of automobile dealer A. J. Crevolin of Alhambra, Calif.; and C. V. Whitney's scrappy little Fishermen from New York.

The owner of the winning horse will bank a net of $102,800 as compared to the previous high of $98,050 won in 1947 by Count Fleet. The race will gross $124,850, only a little over $1,000 short of the high mark three years ago.

Even if there are as many as two scratches—and the track conditions will decide that—the winner still will take down in excess of $100,000.

PREDICTS SHOWERS

The weather man forecast showers for today, as have been falling at intervals most of the week. But it will take much more than a few showers to mar the carefully groomed racing strip.

Some 100,000 people plan to be on hand for the big event which will be televised nationally by the Columbia Broadcasting System from 5 to 5:45 p.m. EDT, and broadcast by the same company from 5:15 to 5:45.

Correlation, already winner of two $100,000 races this season—the Florida Derby and the Wood Memorial last Saturday—rules the 5 to 2 favorite.

Tony Galento Would Have Kept Rocky Busy

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Although still title defence against Rocky Marciano is nearly two months away, Rocky Marciano has been working with his sparring partners since April 14 at Grossinger, N.Y., and already has put in more than 60 rounds.

The thought suddenly occurs, by the way, that a fight between the rugged champion and tough Tony Galento in the barroom brawling would have been something to see. Rocky probably would have flattened Tony, but the rough-and — tumble fighter who ruined Lou Nova might have given Marciano some lurid moments. There's nothing quite like him around today, and that's no real complaint.

Coach Jim Turner of the Yankees wants to know what became of the right hair rule which the majors decided they were going to enforce a few seasons back? That was the one where the umpires made pitchers come to a haughty halt between their windups and their actual deliveries. Apparently it's been safely interred again.

"That was absolutely the silliest thing ever done in baseball," Turner declares. "All it did was throw a lot of good pitchers off their stride. I'm convinced it caused Johnny Sain to have a poor season with the Yankees and let us get him out of the National League. I guess it shouldn't complain about that, though."

The Cincinnati Redlegs have renamed their bleachers the "sun deck" and are encouraging fans to rent lounging chairs at 50 cents a copy and soak themselves in the beneficial rays this summer. They have, however, laid down some ground rules as follows:

"Fans coming into the sun deck must wear a bathing suit over any other clothing. While taking the sun on the sun deck, women must have straps on their bathing suits."

Ander Defeats Wall Press In 'Heavy' Upset

TORONTO (CP)—Max Ander of Toronto upset Canadian heavyweight champion Wall Press of St. Catharines at the Ontario amateur wrestling championships and the British Empire Games trials here Friday night.

Ander won a unanimous decision over Press in one of the 18 bouts. The trials and championships will conclude today.

Other results:

Heavyweight—George Momberg of St. Catharines won a decision over Ken Wickens of London; Jay Fray of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, drew a bye.

Light heavyweight—Bob Steckle of Kitchener won a decision over George Kuzy of St. Catharines.

160½ pounds—Bruno Cohenan of Sault Ste. Marie pinned Alex Eason of Toronto; Kurt Boese of Clifton won a decision over Ed Wild of St. Catharines; Bob Campbell of OAC, Guelph, won a decision over Paul Richard of St. Catharines.

125½ pounds—Len Weeden of OAC, Guelph, pinned Henry Wiebe of St. Catharines.

Teeps, Fronts Bury Hatchet At Banquet

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Quebec Frontenacs and St. Catharines Tee-Pees observed an armistice in their ice warfare for the eastern Canada junior hockey championship with a communal dinner here Friday night.

Senator Gerald Martineau, honorary president of the Frontenacs who was one of the speakers at the dinner, suggested that the two might be wagging the dog when it comes to arranging playoffs.

"We are the players and not salaries," he said. "The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, which hasn't invested a cent, tells us when and where to play."

Phil Watson, coach of the Frontenacs, predicted that the team that wins the third game of the series in Toronto Sunday will win the Memorial Cup.

Tee-Pees lead the best-of-seven eastern final 3-1.

MAJOR BALLY

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Bill Veeck said Friday he has nearly completed a new plan to bring major league baseball to Los Angeles.

Veeck, representative here of Chicago industrialist P. K. Wrigley, hints to expedite the establishment of big-time baseball in Los Angeles as soon as possible, within three weeks "the framework under which Los Angeles' entrance into the major could be made in as orderly and intelligent way."

The Threat To National Parks

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Saltaire Talent)

It seems to me that those gentlemen in our governments, both State and Federal, whose responsibility it is to see to the best interests of public-owned lands, notably our National Parks, are doing a haphazard job of it.

Placing in charge of a private business who should see such depletion of duty on the part of a department head, certainly would take steps immediately. That department head would soon find himself reading the "Help Wanted" columns in the newspapers. The boys who handle the destinies of our National Parks go merrily their way, and nothing is done about them.

This condition is not concerned with politics. We know little about political affairs and are content to leave such matters to wiser heads than ours.

But we do know about National Parks.

LESSER KNOWN PARK

Consider, for example, Dinosaur National Monument. Admittedly, Dinosaur is one of the lesser-known parks. It is located, as you probably know, in the northeastern corner of Utah and the northwestern corner of Colorado. Through it flows the Green River and the Yampa River, important tributaries of the Colorado River.

Well, the big-dam boys got together and decided that these two streams had a lot of hydro-electric power going to waste. Backed by a powerful lobby in Washington, they planned two big dams, to be erected in the park area. The Bureau of Reclamation is in favor of the idea. They like to build big dams—big, expensive ones.

The congressman or, I should say, congresswoman, who introduced the bill authorizing these dams, must have had a bill of goods. She talked of irrigation; of the impoundment of fresh water supply of crystal, immeasurably valuable water, to be stored for the use of the thirsty citizens to the south. Little, if anything, was said of hydro-electric power.

IRRIGATION IMPOSSIBLE

She overlooked the fact that irrigation from these dams not only would be impractical; it would be almost impossible. From what I can learn, there is little likelihood of any water from these two sources ever being used in irrigation. But the dams, as planned, will turn out an jim-dandy package of electric power.

Another thing she forgot to mention is the fact that we will take more than one billion dollars of your money and mine, all paid for as taxes, to start the ball rolling on this ambitious project. The report is that Interior Secretary Mc-Kay not only is in favor of the two dams but is urging speedy authorization. They won't, he says, hurt the scenery much.

It is somewhat disturbing to admit that there is strong likelihood of the project being authorized, the money allocated, and work started. No doubt about it, those words "irrigation" and "flood control" surely do pack a powerful wallop; regardless of the fact that they may be improperly applied.

The latest raid on our park system is down in Florida where the oil drillers have their sights trained on the newest member of our park system, the Everglades National Park. Their leading sponsor is Acting Governor Charles E. Johns. He has declared himself quite openly to be on the side of the oil speculators.

THIRSTY FLAMES URGING

The Everglades National Park was created of 1,866,000 acres of Everglades swamp land and was dedicated by ex-president Harry Truman in 1947. It was on the result of about thirty years of urging by conservationists who wished to have the area set aside as a wildlife refuge and a natural wonderland.

Now the oil speculators want permission to drill for oil all over the Everglades National Park. In other words, they want lease rights through which they can, according to the Miami Herald, "as blue chips in a big gamble." And they have secured exploration rights until October, 1955, to some 75 per cent of the park area. But that's not enough—they want all of it.

Acting Governor Johns, and four state officials—State Treasurer, Attorney General, State Comptroller, and Commissioner of Agriculture—comprise the personnel of the trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund. That's another Page of typing that these men are elected custodians of public property in Florida.

Governor Johns admits owning stock in one of the oil drilling companies. What financial interest the other four may have, I've no idea. I don't know. As I say, this department does not concern itself with politics.

POLITICAL RAIDS

But we do concern ourselves with these periodical raids on our National Parks by lumbermen, stockmen, dam builders and oil drillers. Should they have their way, they would take over the public lands—which belong to you and me—for their own private and highly remunerative interests and for which they pay us ridiculously low fees or nothing at all.

Unless these areas are under the control of the various financial groups their usefulness to the public is lost, not to be regained. Never will we be able to undo the damage which is now being planned.

What can you do about it? That's easy to answer. Write your Congressman or your Senator, or both, in Washington and let him know you know what is going on. Tell him that you are not in favor of raids on our National Parks.

And while you are about it, remind him that an increased appropriation for the proper maintenance of our National Parks is very much in order. After all, you voted these men into their jobs. Remind them that it is up to them to serve your interests the way you want them served. After all, it is our collective responsibility to see to it that our National Parks are passed on to future generations at least in as good condition as they were when we received them.

Ottawa Snaps Buffalo String; Leafs Edge Kings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The International League is following the modern baseball trend and now putting the tape measure to home runs.

Hens-Goose blows figured prominently in tightening the young race Friday, and their power was duly recorded in the matter of distance.

Second-baseman Tom Giordano of Ottawa put the wood to two homers and helped snap the Buffalo Bisons' five-game winning streak, 9-5, and the Athletics' losing streak of the same duration.

BIG BLOWS

Giordano's home runs came in the second and fourth innings and were measured at 370 and 350 feet respectively. Joe Taylor added a 415-foot homer for Ottawa in the ninth and Buffalo's John Buzba knocked one 350 feet over the same fence in the second.

In the only other two games played, Toronto Maple Leafs turned back Havana 4-3 and Montreal edged Syracuse 2-1.

In the Toronto game, Clint Hartung of Havana, the former New York Giant, hit the day's biggest whopper, although it didn't do his mates much good. He poked an eighth-inning homer that sailed 450 feet.

At Montreal, righthander Ed Roebuck won a pitching duel with Syracuse's southpaw ace, Jack Spring, although each gave up only six hits.

Aussie Cyclists May Withdraw

MELBOURNE (AP) — Members of the cycling team chosen to represent Australia at the Vancouver Empire Games, may have to withdraw from the team, they announced today Friday they will have to find £120 each towards their expenses. "If we have to withdraw from the team," said Dick Flong, "I earn only £6 a week and cannot possibly find the money."

All amateur sporting bodies have been told by the British Empire Games Association can guarantee only £400 of the £520 needed to send each "fully paid" member of the national team to Vancouver.

West Indian Sprinter Returns Home From Land of 'Con venient Memories'

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Emmanuel McDonald Bailey, an outspoken sprinter, has returned to the West Indies after a 10-year stay in Britain during which he collected a flock of records and the conviction that "people soon forget when you've finished—they have convenient memories."

Bailey, who hailed from the spice-named Trinidad village of Hard Bargain appeared for Britain in two Olympics and the most money out of writing, rum, running togs and rugby before he took a job in Georgetown, British Guiana.

"McBailey," a popular figure as well as a controversial one, quit amateur ranks last year when he was still winning. "Now my plan is to make as much money as possible," he said matter-of-factly when he announced that he was retiring the play-for-pay English Rugby League.

Bailey, at the end of my amateur days someone would have given me a job, but that's only maybe. People soon forget when you've finished—they have convenient memories."

FINE ATHLETE

But the 25-year-old Negro speedster will have a lot of forgetting here. Bailey came to Britain in 1946 to run in Amateur Athletic Association (AAA) events. He won 14 titles between 1946 and 1951, including seven sprint doubles—100 and 220 yards.

He also holds three European sprint records and equalled the world record of 20.2 for the 200 metres. Greatest disappointment was his failure to capture a gold medal in either Olympic competition. His best was third place in the 100 metres in 1948.

Bailey's decision to turn pro with the Lancashire League Rugby club was a real surprise. Most observers doubted his ability to adapt track-trained muscles to the severe knocks of the rugger field and they were right.

After one game—which developed a recurring groin injury—his pro career contract with the club was ended by mutual consent.

Now he has landed a job in the political hot-box of British Guiana as sport organizer for 28,000 employees of an English sugar company in Georgetown. He plans to settle there with his English wife, Doris, and their three children.

Bailey, who can shook hands with the Queen three times in one afternoon, was piled with various honors before leaving, but is reticent his opinion about the color bar in sport.

Of the latter he said: "Of course there is a color bar in Britain and in some parts of England but only by people with big heads and little minds, deriving their own inferiority complex. Most of it has its roots in silly little incidents. Nothing more serious. I've had invites at a cricket match in Georgetown between England-West Indies test series—but I have also known others to have been run at a football match in Glasgow. That does not make either Glasgow, Guiana or Scotland a bad place."

'No Excuse' for Eastern Canada Delay In Naming Memorial Cup Contender

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—J. Harper Parry says "there's no excuse for the delay" in declaring an eastern Memorial Cup contender.

Parry, secretary-manager of the Western Junior Hockey League, said Friday night it was all very well for CAHA president W. G. George of Kemptville, Ont., to say the delay was "regrettable" but little can be done about it.

"There's no excuse for the delay," said Parry. He protested to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The reply he got back from George said: "We are scheduling the games as soon as we can get them scheduled, but rinks in which the games must be played have previous commitments."

St. Catharines leads Quebec 2-1 in the best-of-seven series final with the fourth game slated for Toronto Sunday. Meanwhile, the western champion Edmonton Oil Kings have been idle for 10 days since whitewashing Fort William Canadiens.

BEAT DEADLINE

According to the CAHA constitution, the eastern and western finalists were to have been declared by April 28 or 27. Oil Kings won the western title April 22, well in advance of the deadline.

"The East knew the dates for a winner to be declared," said

Simcoe Loses Star Player

SIMCOE (CP)—Simcoe Gunners, now in the midst of an Ontario Hockey Association senior B championship series with Ohawa Truckmen, learned Friday that defenceman Cord Sattler will be out of play for the rest of the season.

He suffered a recurrence of an old shoulder separation in a game with Ohawa Thursday night. Coach Hec Kilrea is expected to move right winger George Etanuto into Sattler spot.

Ohawa leads the best-of-seven series 2-1 with one game.

Wool production in Canada in 1953 reached 8,421,000 pounds, or 12 per cent more than 1952.

Stamps Within One Game Of Western Title

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders moved to within one game of the Western Football League championship Friday night when they edged Vancouver Camucks 3-1 in a tense fixture before 8,030 fans.

The victory gave Calgary a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven final. Sixth game will be played tonight and seventh, if necessary, back in Vancouver Monday night.

Lucien Declben, New Westminster defender substituting for Lorne Worsley, sidelined with an injured back, performed brilliantly in the Vancouver net.

Jimmy McFadden fired the winning marker for Stampeders at the 7:25 mark of the final period.

Previously, Fred Lindy had given Stampeders a 1-0 lead in the first period and defenceman Harry Dick had tied it up with a screen shot at 10:57 of the second period.

Pat Lundrigan aggravated a heel injury in the second period and did not see any action in the final session.

In a desperate effort to tie the count coach Art Chapman pulled Dechene with a minute and 38 seconds remaining. The tactical back checks McFadden broke loose from Camucks' ganging attack and fired the insurance marker with 33 seconds remaining.

Chicago Cubs Buy Bilko

Bilko played in 154 games for the Cards last year, batting .251 and driving in 84 runs.

AT THE BELLE—Fernando Lamas, as a Northwest trapper, urges Ann Blyth to run away with him in a scene from "Rose Marie", M-G-M's first CinemaScope musical, based on a celebrated operetta. Howard Keel, Bert Lahr and Marjorie Main also star in the lavish color picture, filmed against eye-filling backgrounds of Canada's National Park, and California's High Sierras. The film is showing today at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE McCARTHY THEATRE

Fortunately for Hollywood, screen badmen are, as a rule, the most mild-mannered citizens of the community when they're outside the studio. Dan Duryea, costarred with Audie Murphy, Susan Cabot and Abbe Lane in Universal-International's Technicolor production of "Ride Clear of Diablo," closing tonight at the McCarthy Theatre is no exception to the rule.

Along with such screen villains as Boris Karloff and Richard Widmark, Duryea is recognized as one of Hollywood's most affable off-screen personalities. In private life he spends much of his time entertaining neighborhood kids along with his own two sons so they won't get into trouble. Or he's suggesting a hiking party for the youngsters or plowing up the back yard for his Hollywood Hills estate or raising flowers in the hothouse.

Thus it can be seen that Duryea as a heel is strictly a business proposition for the movie cameras. But he makes it a real business. As one of the screen's most consistently cads, he carefully studies the art of villainy. And one of the characteristics to which he most attributes his success in such roles, as he puts it, is his ability to howl with mirth while "kicking a leading man in the stomach."

As the laughing killer in "Ride Clear of Diablo," Duryea draws upon this skill at mixing humor with homicide by using what he calls "a versatile pair of tonsils."

Featured in the supporting cast are Duryea's associate killers, Russell Johnson and Jack Elam. Jesse Hibbs directed the John W. Rogers production.

"CRAZYLEGS, ALL-AMERICAN"

Halfback Elroy Hirsch distinguishes himself at a Wisconsin high school where he is coached by Lloyd Nolan, but his devotion to football causes Hirsch to neglect his sweetheart, Joan Vohs. He is persuaded to enroll at the University of Wisconsin and becomes an all-American during his first year. Transferring to the University of Michigan, he again wins all-American honors, then is called into active service in the U.S. marines. He and Joan are married when he is discharged, and he enters the professional football ranks, suffering a fractured skull as a result of which doctors say he will never play again. However, Jack Pfeiffer, him along the comeback trail and, as star end of the Los Angeles Rams, sets new league records, while the Rams go on to become world champions.

Second feature, "Fair Wind to Java."

AT THE CAPITAL

WALTER WANGER'S BOLD FILM OF PRISON IS BOOKED HERE

A picture that has received national attention from the moment it went into production will be the next hit attraction at the Capitol Theatre, opening on Monday.

It is the Walter Wanger production for Allied Artists, "Riot in Cell Block 11," which was filmed almost in entirety within the walls and cell blocks of one of the largest penal institutions in the West, Folsom State Prison, near Sacramento, California.

The picture has given the screen two new stars with that suddenness that occasionally happens. They are Neville Brand, who has had increasingly better parts in 14 pictures since he went to Hollywood from the New York stage two years ago, and Leo Gordon, with almost an identical history.

"Riot in Cell Block 11" shows in dramatic detail the life of inmates in the United States penal institution of today, where over-crowding has imposed a problem affecting every citizen.

The picture, directed by Don Segeal, a brilliant young director, was written from Producer Wanger's basic idea by Richard Collins, one of Hollywood's top writers, and was photographed magnificently by Russell Harlan, internationally known for his camera work.

ON THE SAME PROGRAM

Handsome Craig Stevens is starred as a tenacious detective working with the homicide division of the Los Angeles police department in "Murder Without Tears," the exciting screen melodrama is the added feature.

Joyce Holden is co-starred in the William F. Broidy production for Allied Artists, which was directed by William Beaudine.

Both hits are first Belleville showings.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, MAY 2, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mixed vibrations; use diplomacy. Personal conduct; graciousness. Ayes aids; New and unusual matters, activities, religious interests, confidential issues in the fore.

April 2 to May 20 (Taurus) — Be mindful of health; don't overtax yourself or overeat. Keep your naturally smooth, kindly disposition uppermost. Of first concern: spiritual and other essential matters.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Mercury's aspect urges more care with details, in mental and physical work. Every one should take occasional rest and health-building relaxation. Refresh the soul with prayer, quiet reflection.

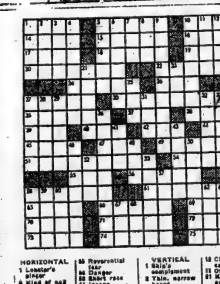
June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Mild influences in your sector. Wholesome diversions and church activities favored. Home, family duties can be carried out without strain. Avoid activities that merely deplete your day.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Prosper to Career now. Be guided by obligations and just demands upon you. Review the state of your health. Make necessary changes. Make time for prayer, a kindly deed. Be your cheery self.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Overtaxing mental powers or health generally is not wise. Do you take regular periods for rest and relaxation? Today get better acquainted with God, your family, good friends, truths.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Good indications but don't indulge in unnecessary talk or action which takes time from-today's real "music." Turn gratefully to God for blessings. Do what you have to do well.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—An ideal period to use creative showmanship, your ability to aid worthy causes, charities, socials, church affairs. Vigorous action in good measure will gain more than adequate returns.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Mars' aspect favors a militant interest in and action for God's laws and for the individual's liberties, man's dignity. Monetary, selfish desires are taboo. Work and pray for world peace.

December 3 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A smoother outlook for you who maintain your usual sensible course of action. Give yourself the great uplift and strengthening benefits of religious services; then diversion.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You can make this an interesting, even intriguing day by employing your talents and other attributes for the benefit of others. Don't forget the ill and lonely. Church and healthy exercise.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Now, far - reaching results can be gained even though planetary rays are mixed. Go ahead confidently with tasks and do not worry about that which may never happen. Have faith, pray.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately dignified and gracious, yet vibrant and determined. You have a world of general capability and talent; look and absorb knowledge quickly; probably are a fast reader. You can also apply knowledge pointedly to useful purposes. Many Taurans are famous for oratory, singing, acting, science, religious life, work on construction, invention, architecture. You can improve others' ideas and inventins, or create. Worry, keeping anxieties too much to self, and obstinacy are harmful.

Union Spokesman Says Board Report Not Proper One

Next Move May Be for Rail Unions to Call Strike Vote

New Canadian Ship Could Best U.S. Atomic Sub

MONTREAL (CP) — A veteran naval expert said Sunday Canada's new submarine chaser would be capable of destroying the United States atomic submarine Nautilus, "before she could become effective."

Capt. Frank Freeborn, chief naval overseer at Canadian Vickers plant here, said he would back HMCS St. Laurent, prototype of 14 Canadian built sub-chasers, "to take care of the latest type submarine."

"The St. Laurent will be the fastest, most powerful sub-chaser in the world," he said in an interview.

"In a theoretical battle the St. Laurent could pick up the Nautilus before she became effective."

Royal Couple And Children Arrive at Malta

VALLETTA, Malta (CP)—Queen Elizabeth sailed into the harbor of this British Mediterranean naval base today with the Duke of Edinburgh and their children under an air escort by British, Australian and New Zealand pilots.

The planes flew out to greet the royal yacht Britannia, which brought the royal family the last down from Tobruk after Saturday's reunion with Prince Charles and Princess Anne, whom they had not seen since late in November when they started their round-the-world Commonwealth tour.

Three artillery salutes fired 21-gun salutes as the Britannia, escorted also by aircraft landing craft and naval helicopters, entered Valletta harbor.

CHILDREN JOYOUS

Prince Charles and Princess Anne jumped up and down with excitement as fireworks crackled, crowds cheered, ships' sirens screamed and the new high to welcome the royal yacht.

Standing on a special platform on the dockside's bridge, the two children also saw 19 ships of the Mediterranean fleet, 4 of 6 sub headed for Admiral Earl Mountbatten's flagship, the cruiser Glasgow.

The duke, returning to the naval base where he served as a naval officer, waved and pointed out places of interest to the Queen.

The Queen's birthday will be a day visit on the island which her father, King George VI, decorated in 1942 with Britain's highest award for civilian courage, the George Cross. Malta's civilians won the medal for their bravery under German bombing.

Early today people began to line the streets and elevated stands as crowds cheered, ships' sirens screamed and the new high to welcome the royal yacht.

Early today people began to line the streets and elevated stands as the royal route from the customs house steps to the governor's palace.

At the governor's palace, Prime Minister G. Bord Oliver will read an address of welcome to the Queen. Later the Queen will present an air force memorial to some of Malta's wartime defenders in a suburb of Valletta, and hold an investiture in the governor's palace.

The royal couple will leave Friday to call at the neighboring island of Gozo, part of Malta's colony, where the Queen will unveil a war memorial. Their ship Britannia will sail for Gibraltar, last stop of the tour before the royal couple's homecoming.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: While southern Ontario enjoyed a pleasant, if cool, weekend, a cold air mass had swept southward from the Arctic, across the Canadian Prairies and into the western United States, well into Texas. Sunday night, this cold air began to push eastward across the Great Lakes, and by this morning made its entrance into southern Ontario.

Showers are occurring this morning in southern regions in advance of the cold air. By tonight temperatures are expected to drop into the 30s and a risk of frost is forecast.

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for unions representing nonoperating employees of Canada's major railroads said today a conciliation board appointed to study a current dispute had failed to make a proper report. He indicated the next move may be for the unions to call a strike vote.

Frank J. Hall, chairman of a union committee representing 145,000 railway workers, said the union would not accept the opinion of conciliation board members as representing a proper report under the law.

Findings of the three-member board of conciliation, he said, were made public in Ottawa Thursday. The union committee has been studying the three separate reports by the board members since Thursday.

WILL TAKE ANY TIME

Asked if the unions would resume negotiations with the railways if requested to do so by the federal government, Mr. Hall said:

"We'll discuss anything with anyone at any time."

He said the union's negotiating committee is remaining in session here.

The board largely turned down proposals by the unions for changes in variety of fringe benefits but bo general wage increases. The railways have also opposed the fringe benefits would cost them approximately $60,000,000 a year.

TWO AGREE IN PART

The nominee of the companies on the board recommended all union proposals be turned down outright. The chairman—Mr. Justice R. A. Kellock—and the other representative went together some of the way—but in different degrees on two union demands.

In relaying the board's findings to the unions, Minister Gregg said the recommendations of Mr. Justice Kellock were largely with those of A. J. Wickens—the railways representative—constituted the board's report to the extent that their recommendations coincide.

In a letter to M. M. MacLean, director of industrial relations in the labor department, Mr. Hall said the opinions of the two members of the board could not be accepted as constituting a report as contemplated by law.

RAPS LONG DELAY

In releasing the letter, Mr. Hall in effect made no comment on the board's findings except to express opinions.

He said proceedings now have been six months.

"They have, he said, "accomplished nothing." The unions could not tolerate further delay.

"That the conciliation board failed to carry out its responsibilities," he said, "is most regrettable, and has given rise to profound dissatisfaction among the employees."

Asked if a strike vote would be the next move, Mr. Hall said the matter has been considered.

Advice concerning any such possibility must first go to the railways, he said.

WEST WARMS UP, EASING FROST, FLOOD THREATS

Loss to B.C. Fruit Crop About 75 P.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Clouds and light rain moved in from the Pacific ocean and temperatures rose several degrees Sunday and today to end frost conditions which struck hard at Okanagan valley orchards Friday and Saturday.

Estimates place loss to peach, pear, apricot, plum, prune and cherry crops at 75 per cent. These crops brought growers $17,150,000 last year.

The heavy B.C. snow pack, melting under the higher temperatures, so far has failed to push rivers over their banks, but a provincial civil defence officials have 100,000 sand bags ready just in case. Diking commissioner J. L. MacDonald said 30 to 300 men are ready to patrol Fraser River banks for 75 miles from Aggassiz to the delta.

The federal government spent $8,000,000 rebuilding these dikes after the 1948 flood which caused damage placed at $20,000,000.

PRAIRIES WARMER

Most of the normal spring weather conditions were returning to the western Prairies after new temperatures of 80 degrees which set almost daily during the last half of April.

The eastern Prairies are still worried by flood possibilities. Lake Manitoba is at a "peril" level and water has covered some farm land near Delta, Man. All settlements so far are safe.

Churchill Talks With Army Heads

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill called British and United States military chiefs to his official residence today to combine talks on favorable pursuits—eating a good lunch and chatting informally on world affairs.

Aides at 10 Downing street said the meeting was a "social occasion" and gave no details of any talking points. It was guessed, however, that Churchill heard of the worsening French position in Indochina.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins and Admiral Jerauld Wright were the chief U.S. visitors. Also on the guest list were Defence Minister Harold Macmillan and Sir Rhoderick McGrigor, first lord of the admiralty.

Collins is in Britain on a tour of inspection with NATO's standing group.

Wright has been in Britain and France for a series of conferences during the past few weeks. He commands NATO's Atlantic forces.

Russian Vessel Fired on Fishers

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — A small Russian naval vessel opened fire against a Danish fishing boat and Danish vessels off the Polish coast last week, a Danish fisherman told underlisted today.

The fisherman, Holger Petersen, came from Bornholm island. The vessel Alice this morning. He said about 20 Danish and Swedish boats were fired on last Thursday and Friday when a small Russian warship approached and opened fire without warning.

The cutters left the area immediately.

The Russian ship did not fire again and made no attempt to detain any of the boats, he said.

The incident took place four sailing time within the 12-mile limit, as they had done the previous day without Russian or Polish fishery protection vessels objecting.

Ball Game Halted As 'Fans' Depart While Alabama Prison Teams Play

ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — A ball game between two prison teams was halted by a disturbance in the fourth inning Sunday when 19 of the spectators salipped their way through a broken wire fence under a sleeping tower guard.

Seventeen escapees from Atmore state prison were rounded up. The search for the two convicts still unaccounted for continued today.

Henry Sawyer, the tower guard who admitted falling asleep, was relieved immediately. Three other guards were suspended pending an investigation.

J. M. McCullough, state prison warden, said the escapees' men told him they had noticed Sawyer asleep in his tower, and cut their way through the fence while he was directly below him.

"The three guards were suspended because "they could have stopped the break if they had been on the alert," McCullough said. They reparently were so interested in the game that they failed to watch the prison. A Montgomery was leading Atmore 3-2 in the fourth when the escape ended the game.

Emphasis on World Affairs Moves East at Conference

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENEVA (CP)—The first week of the Geneva conference may be remembered as the time the Bamboo Curtain finally clamped down beside the door to the West.

In the view of many delegates, this is the most significant issue emerging from discussions to date. With Communist China making its first appearance in the council of nations, it has become apparent that the emphasis in world affairs has moved east.

Asia, instead of Europe, now appears to be the West's weak spot.

Leading a nightmare urgency to the talks here is the deteriorating military situation in Indo-China.

The theme in Geneva, as developed in the first week of meetings, is Asia-by-the-Asians—China's Chou En-lai, participating in his first international conference, has made this his chief talking point—and Soviet Russia has backed him up.

LADEN WITH TRAPS

The situation is laden with traps for the West.

Lester Pearson, Canada's minister of external affairs, has repeatedly warned that the withdrawal of an Allied split in Asia. Geneva shows why. Chou and the Communists are trying to develop.

Some observers here say the one.

split has already occurred.

The conflict of opinion over Indo-China has left a sense of malaise and misgiving, and there is talk among some Australian and New Zealand delegates that the British-American differences constitute a crisis of the first order in the history of the Anglo-American alliance.

Although Australian external affairs minister Richard Casey denies the quarrel is just a ripple, the phrase "another Munich" is often heard in the conference corridors.

SUPPORTED BRITAIN

Canada has been in the thick of discussions from the start, and strongly supported Britain's decision not to send bombers against the Communist rebels besieging Dien Bien Phu.

The sense of crisis which has been noticeable among the other Commonwealth delegations appears less marked in the case of Canada, perhaps for geographical reasons.

Alarmed by Red military gains in the East, the Australians and New Zealanders are easily moved to visions of first Indo-China, then the sense of Indonesia falling under Communist sway. At the same time, they feel Britain's decision was certainly the only acceptable one.

Defection of Agent of MVD Brings Big Spy Round-Up

By BRACK CURRY

BONN (AP)—Western sources reported today that the defection of Soviet Capt. Nikolai Khokhlov set the stage for a widespread roundup of Red agents that touched into one of the major counterintelligence coups since the war.

These sources said the crackdown on unsuspecting Russian agents is in West Germany, Berlin and other West European areas has dealt a hard blow to the Kremlin's far-flung espionage and kidnapping machine.

Western intelligence authorities won time for the operation by keeping secret the defection history of interior secret police in the days over Khokhlov's disappearance almost two months after he deserted to the West, it was said.

In his press conference Khokhlov disclosures on MVD spying activities in the West and behind the Iron Curtain. The trap was set and the arrests followed.

Official sources declined to say how many Kremlin agents were seized, but said that "a considerable slice did very well with the number they arrested."

NEWS FLASH REPORTS

After Khokhlov surrendered to U. S. agents in Frankfurt Feb. 29, he continued his regular—and unsuspected—work as a counter-spy in the MVD in Austria. He stopped only five days before April 13 when he held a press conference and flew with the MVD leader, the sources said.

Khokhlov had been sent to West Germany by the MVD with two East German Communists to kill Georgi Okolovich, leader of an anti-Soviet refugee organization.

In his report to the MVD from Frankfurt, Khokhlov detailed his plans and difficulties in carrying out the assassination, the sources said, teeming with U.-S. soldiers. The assassination failed, the Bonn sources said the MVD was completely taken in by these reports.

MYSTERIOUS

In Vienna, the reports were forwarded to the advanced operations base of the MVD in Baden, near the Austrian capital.

The Russians maintain a radio station at Baden to relay carefully intelligence information from Khokhlov's reports, the sources said. Moscow, the sources said. All of Khokhlov's phony reports on his plans for the murder mission in Frankfurt were radioed to Moscow, indicating the assassination was attached to the Frankfurt assassination plan.

The sources said the Russians apparently have purged the Austrian MVD following Khokhlov's defection. A large number of MVD agents at Baden have disappeared.

Demand for Steel Showing Up After Decline

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — Demand for steel is beginning to turn up after a sharp decline, but an upturn in demand is beginning to appear, and users have a substantial backlog of unfilled orders amounting to more than 5,000,000 tons.

Agree on Setup Of Conference On Indo-China

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA (AP) — East and West reached virtual agreement today on the setting up of a peace conference to end the bloody fighting in Indo-China.

The Soviet Union agreed, French sources said, to a Western proposal that Communist and Vietminh representatives be invited to the conference by the Soviet Union instead of Red China.

The Western Big Three and Foreign Minister Nguyen Quoc Dinh of Vietnam personally agreed to admit Vietminh representatives with the understanding that this would not imply recognition of the Vietminh regime as a state.

The Russians and the West already had agreed that nine participants should attend the meeting, the Big Four, the Chinese Reds, the Vietminh and the three associated states of Indo-China, Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

The Soviet Union foreign ministry formally stated his government's readiness to invite representatives of the Vietminh regime, now waging bitter war against French forces, to attend in Viet Nam.

The Big Three representatives and Dinh agreed to consult each other during the course of the conference.

Astonishing out of the issue of Vietminh status came as the Korean peace talks were on the brink of a break at the Far East conference and some of the Western foreign ministers began heading for home.

VIETMINH ATTACK ON FORTRESS SUDDENLY HALTS

Heavy Rebel Losses Reason Drive Stopped

HANOI (CP)—The French high command said tonight "extremely heavy losses" suffered by the Vietminh forced the Communist - led rebels to break off their massive infantry assault on Dien Bien Phu.

The Vietminh made their third major attack on the surrounded fortress Saturday night and early Sunday.

The action in breaking off the assault came as something of a surprise because previous reports had indicated the Vietminh could probably overrun the fortress' defences at any moment, whenever they threw their much greater numbers into the charge.

The French high command said the explanation was the "extremely heavy losses" inflicted by the defenders.

In comparative lull, broken only by sporadic artillery and mortar fire, today centered on the grim fighting that had ranged around the fortress.

SUPPLIES DELIVERED

The French took advantage of the respite to parachute tons of ammunition and supplies to the defenders also moved forward at several points, pushing gaps in their lines left after Saturday's assault.

The Vietminh had launched their third massive infantry assault on the fortress Saturday night.

Before they broke off their wild charges there was one wave of hand-to-hand French perimeter, the rebels had choked off three more of the strongpoints guarding the bunkered command headquarters of Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries and also overrun "Isabelle," an isolated outpost three miles south of the main defences.

SAY OUTPOST REGAINED

A later French announcement said the defenders in a violent counter-attack had recaptured Isabelle.

The battle raged at close range for hours Saturday night and Sunday before the Vietminh forces, outnumbered about six to one and supported by tanks and heavy artillie across, fought for their lives with bayonets, knives and hand grenades.

The French high command said its losses were heavy, but claimed the enemy toll was "extremely" high.

The fortress, France's last stronghold in northwest Indo-China, has been under siege, of counter-clamouring by the Vietminh, in-for about two previous attempts to overwhelm it by sheer force of numbers.

French counter-attacks drove the Vietminh from positions held briefly on the perimeter early Sunday, but the other captured bunkers and strongpoints in the northeast and west, gave the attackers new protected firing positions.

Says Britain Has Invented Cheap H-Bomb'

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express says today Britain has developed a new type of hydrogen bomb "far simpler and cheaper to produce" than the one devised by U. S. scientists.

The report, which does not cite the source of his information, says the new bomb was successfully tested in the Western weapons range in Australia Oct. 26.

Steel Industry Feeling Pinch Of Business Lag

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The CIO United Steelworkers' 170-member wage policy committee comes here Thursday and Friday to get the talking touches on the union's contract demands before starting negotiations with the American basic steel industry.

The industry, which had granted seven rounds of wage hikes since the end of World War II, is feeling the pinch of a business lag for the first time in several years, and this is expected to weaken union bargaining power.

Any wage increase will likely be considerably less than the 9½-cent hourly raise granted last year to hoogr average hourly pay to between $2.14 and $2.34.

The plane made four flights during the day, with newspaper men, radio commentators and others as passengers.

The Super Constellation goes into TCA service June 15 on flights 13 and 14 with a flight to Britain. It has a cruising speed of 325 miles per hour, and accommodation for 63 passengers and a crew of seven.

UN Experts See Population Growth Depressing Standards of Living

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) — The world's population will rise by 1,500,000,000 in the next 30 years—with dubious prospect of world peace in relation to support of the increase —United Nations experts say.

This gloomy forecast is provided in published Sunday, the UN forecasts that raising both wages and economic development rates may increase the present figure of 2,500,000,000 people to only 3,000,000,000 people, while the potentially exists to support 6,000,000,000 people. It confinds, "ignorance, greed, strife, superstition and blind adherence to tradition" will prevent mankind from accomplishing works that are to his great benefit.

Production of the necessities of life will not keep pace with the population increase unless living standards will be depressed, says the report, which was in preparation several years. It was pre-most.

21 Persons Narrowly Escape Being Burned to Death

HAMILTON (CP)—Police and fire department officials said today that two separate fires which broke out in the basement of a private boarding house on Douglas street Saturday caused the loss of one life of an arsonist.

Twenty-one persons, including 17 children ranging in age from three weeks to 11 years, narrowly escaped being burned to death as flames crept up through the frame building.

Following a thorough investigation by city detectives, the fire marshal's office was notified and their representative will conduct a further inquiry today.

Deputy chief Gerald McAlister said this morning that his men were first called to the boarding house at 3:05 a. m. Sunday.

"We found smoke pouring from the basement," the chief said. "The flames were starting to eat their way up the stairs and burst out a cupboard at the foot of the stairway leading to the first floor."

"When my men reached the foot of the stairway they found rags in the cupboard, some substance piled up at the bottom," Deputy Chief McAlister stated.

GOT CHILDREN OUT

By the time the firefighters arrived, Mrs. Grace Mitchell, owner of the boarding house, and her father, Alvin Badder, had managed to get all the children outside.

"There were children sleeping on each of the three floors," Mrs. Mitchell said. "My first thought was to get them out."

She also awakened Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell's husband and their son Michael, who rent rooms in the home, and they assisted in getting the children out.

Deputy Chief McAlister said that if the fire had had a little more time to get started, it would have spread through the whole building in a few minutes.

SECOND FIRE BREAKS OUT

The chief said that when he was satisfied that the fire was out, he sent his men back to their stations.

Then, at 4:32 a. m., a second call was received from the Kitchell residence.

This fire was also in the basement, but at the opposite end of the building from the first one, the deputy chief declared. "We nipped this one in the bud before it got going."

He commented that the fire appeared to be rags stacked between the beams at the spot in the basement where the second fire broke out.

Three Safety Zone Signs Taken from Spots

At least three Coca Cola school safety zone signs have disappeared from locations where they were spotted as traffic control measures to protect school children crossing streets.

Pranksters went into action over the week-end and the school safety zone signs were picked up and later thrown away. One of the signs was spotted in the Moira River at the end of Church Street, and two others were found abandoned in a ditch on the End concession of Thurlow township at the north end of Herchimer Ave.

City firemen fished the sign from the river and the other two were brought to the city police station.

So far three signs have been recovered, but how many have actually disappeared has not been determined.

Six-Pound, 10-Ounce Speckle Tops North Hastings Hauls; L'Amable Yields Big Laker

Ole Sol lured them out by the dozens with sunshine bait when the trout season opened on Saturday but they refused from their speckle and laker haunts with varied tales, and creels:

The anglers who "dare" were a darn sight more fishermen than fish."

However,in comparison to reports from other parts of the province the ribboned streams and silvery lakes of North Hastings yielded catches as good as the best and a lot better than the most.

The daddy of all speckles that fell to the lure of the anglers was the beauty hooked by Vivian Varrin of Griffith, which weighed six pounds, ten ounces. The big fellow will be mounted and placed among the Varrin trophies of the chase. It was caught in White Lake and fell victim to a "red dare devil".

The biggest laker caught to this reporter's knowledge was that hooked by Bob McGibbon of Port Arthur, who landed a ten-pounder from Lake L'Amable.

BIGGEST HAUL.

The biggest haul of speckles went to Don McNevin and party of nine who wrested 69 trouts from the waters of Green Lake. Four weighed between two and one half pounds. Grocery McNevin accounted for 29 of the beauties previously while eleven-year-old Peter McNevin got himself a nice one. Included in the fishy were besides McNevin and Peter, Gord McNevin, Napanee, Bill Brown, Trenton, John Marvin, Dr. Bill Beattie, Jim Anton, Walter Johnson and George Meeds.

The prize for the party went to Bill McCormick and Bruce Johnson who landed eight beauties. Topping this fine catch was a five-pound-ten ounce. The rest weighed between two and two and one-half pounds.

Other catches were larger numerically, but none was reported as being bigger specimens.

Some parties came home with nothing but an appetite and a fine empty anecdote. Others exclaimed the fish were not biting and hadn't the satisfied with from two to four.

It was a different story with Jack Fleming and Russ Soules and party. Their bag consisted of 36 speckled beauties, the smallest three lake trout, "ditto. The origin was not disclosed.

"LIKE A REGATTA"

That grizzled veteran of many fishing expeditions, "Sandy" Lemmias, who trekked to his favorite haunt, with Jack Delong, Ernie Hubbard and "Fats" Legate, did not fare so badly. The party had was 25 speckles.

Said "Sandy": "The speckles were of average size, but the current was very alive with boats. There were more than fourteen boatloads whipping the water. It reminded me of an old-fashioned regatta."

Yours Beliefully was out in force, too. Several youngsters, armed with bamboo fishing poles and a can of worms were out on the bay bridge and along the Moira river.

A lively member of the editorial staff of this newspaper, not to be outdone by the males of the species, got out with a flashy pole, some hooks and bait and helped herself to 14 rock bass from the waters of the Bay of Quinte.

A lake near Maynooth yielded twelve five speckles to Ernie Hunter and Lloyd Barr, while a Trenton angler named Brooks, with his party hauled in two dozen of good size.

Don McKinnon, president of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Association, admitted defeat after whipping the waters of lakes in Algonquin Park. "I was skunked;" said the president, "but my wife saved the day. She caught two nice speckles with a streamer fly and a tandem spinner. And that was it!"

Many Attracted to Waterfront To Enjoy Summer-Like Week-End

The first summer-like week-end of '54 drew fishermen, boating enthusiasts, and land-bound sailors to the Belleville waterfront in record numbers on Sunday.

Those owning, renting, or wishing for boats, were out in force. The growing Gleaners fleet of the city was getting a thorough scrubbing preparatory to spring launchings, while two enterprising owners already had their sail boats in the water although not sailing.

Power boat owners were represented by one cabin cruiser, while outboard devotees had a representative churning up waves in the inner harbour as well as on the Bay proper.

Boat houses were open as the annual spring cleanup commenced inside.

A small flotilla of canoes and rowboats saw action Sunday afternoon with captains and crews invariably soaking up the summer's first layer of tan.

The greatest activity was centred at the Sea Cadet base, RCSCC Quinte, where dozens of the 86 male and 54 female cadets wied for brief sailing trips in the cadets' squadron of five sailing dinghies. Under the direction of sea cadet officers the cadets were accommodated with true navy efficiency.

MANY IN SWIMMING.

Sunbathers and early swimmers enjoyed the facilities at the sea cadet ship as well with about 30 swimming at a peak period during the afternoon.

Fishermen were trying their luck off the new government pier on Victoria Park as well as off the government dock but most reported, only "nibbles" or at best small perch and sunfish.

The cooling breeze blowing across the Bay Bridge Road and the government dock attracted many motorists who just sat in their cars soaking up sunshine and occasionally taking deep breaths of water-cooled air.

And outnumbering all different groups were spectators who just like to watch all the boat-scraping, fishing, swimming and lazing.

It was a great day down on the water.

Education Trends Discussed At 'Y' Men's Club

Mr. W. J. Morrison retired superintendent of Ontario School for the Deaf, gave Y's Men club members an interesting address on education. With his part experience in the field of education he was able to compare educational methods at the turn of the century with present day trends. Years ago there was much illiteracy and many children never attended any school.

Mr. Morrison stated "For those who went through public school the stress was on memory work. A student with a good memory could acquire and retain sufficient to pass his examinations in the three R's (memory, 14.50; good to memorize history dates, his spelling words, etc., he might well stand at the head of his class. What happened to the child who was really clever in certain fields yet whose memory was not too good?

"In higher education the student was not considered to be well-educated unless he had a good knowledge of classics, even though his life work would not require this field of education.

"In later years educationists have been steadily changing trends in education. At present there is less illiteracy, even the child of low mentality can be taught to some extent. More schools are being built to accommodate the children and there is an effort to give all children some education. Rather than competition among pupils, as with spelling tests of old, the stress now is setting up objectives for each child so that he can progress at his own rate of advancement.

"School courses of study are flexible so as to provide a wider choice of subjects, so that children with differing tastes may find more of interest to them individually.

"Education now attempts to prepare the child for making a living, to better adjust himself to his environment and to help make him become a better citizen of tomorrow."

The speaker was introduced by Bryson Leslie and thanked by Don Williams.

SATISFIED HORSE

17 Violent Deaths Reported

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nine different kinds of accidents accounted for the 17 violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the week-end. Traffic mishaps took the highest toll as usual.

A Canadian Press survey showed that seven persons lost their lives in highways accidents. Three were drowned, one was shot and one died in a fire. One died after being hit by a falling board, another after a fall. Another person was strangled. Exposure took one life and a plane crash another.

Ontario was the scene of most of the deaths—10.

L.-Cpl. N. W. Gardiner of Eastview was killed near Kingston when a car, carrying two other servicemen, went out of control and rolled over in a ditch. Eugene Ackermon, 23, was fatally injured near Lindsay when a car in which he was riding collided with another vehicle. Seven-year-old Janice Hess was crushed when her father's truck ran over her at Williamsburg and Joseph Volpe was killed in a head-on collision near Agincourt.

2 DROWNINGS, PLANE CRASH

The two drowning victims in Ontario were Eugene St. Jacques, 28, of Sudbury, drowned while fishing near North Bay and Arnold Boughner, 8, who fell into the Mississippi river near Carleton Place.

Other Ontario deaths were: FO. James A. Purvis of Toronto, killed when his RCAF Vampire jet fighter crashed on a swamp near Beaverton; Edward J. Gazley, 63, of Belleville who fell 35 feet to his death while repairing a chimney which collapsed; Leonard Rose, 32, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., who died of shock and exposure after he shoved his overturned canoe to shore and crawled about 100 yards up a steep bank; and Clare Frankin Wilkinson, 34, believed to have been strangled at Watford.

NON-ROAD DEATHS IN EAST

George Richardson Jr., 36, died at South Nelson, N. B. after being struck by a falling board in a planing mill.

Alex Bergevin, about 20, was found shot at St. Urbain, Que. Police believe the death was a suicide.

Near Halifax, Arthur William Deal, 22, was drowned while fishing.

Chimney Buckles, Edward Gazley Fatally Injured

Thrown from his painter's chair when the chimney he was painting buckled, Edward J. Gazley, 63, of 268 Dundas Street, suffered fatal injuries late Saturday afternoon when he fell 35 feet to the roof of the Swift Canadian plant on Station Street.

The injured man was taken from the plant roof by firemen and was moved to Belleville hospital by Bush's ambulance. He died in hospital three hours later from internal injuries. Saturday was Mr. Gazley's birthday.

A steeplejack for the past 23 years, Mr. Gazley had worked on many chimneys and steeples in the Central Ontario district. He was known as an exceptionally careful workman and even declined to trust other men handling ropes when he was doing steeple work.

The job at Swift's was the first chimney work Mr. Gazley had done this district. He had looked his paraphernalia across the top of the metal stack and had commenced work. Suddenly the chimney buckled about four feet from the top, throwing him to the roof 35 feet below.

An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. R. W. Tennent.

Mr. Gazley had lived in the Belleville district practically all his life. He was born in England, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Gazley. He was a member of the United Church and a life members of Alexandra No. 1 A.F. and A.M., No. 11.

He is survived by his wife, the former Cora Mabel MacDonald; one daughter, Jean Gazley, Reg. N, at home; and one son, Ernest, of Napanee. There are two brothers, George, of Marmora, and William, of Belleville.

207 Confirmed In Two Churches By Archbishop

His Grace, Most Reverend J. A. O'Sullivan, Archbishop of Kingston, conferred the sacrament of Confirmation at St. Michael's Church, Sunday afternoon, and at Holy Rosary Church, Sunday evening.

A total of 207 persons were confirmed in the two churches. At St. Michael's, 144 children and 33 adults were confirmed, while 21 children and 10 adults received the sacrament at Holy Rosary Church.

St. Michael's Church, filled to overflowing Sunday afternoon with candidates for Confirmation, their sponsors, parents and friends was decorated with Union Jacks, papal flags and the Archbishop's flag, while the altar was adorned with spring flowers.

His Grace Archbishop O'Sullivan was met officially by the pastor of St. Michael's, Very Rev. Dean J. B. Garvin, at the rear of the church and walked in procession to the sanctuary.

COMMUNISM — THE ALLY OF REACTION

"The Communist issue in the United States, if not Communism itself, is becoming more and more the ally of reaction."

That statement is made by the Christian Science Monitor, generally recognised as one of the world's greatest newspapers. The Monitor proves its point, too. Moreover, to a large degree what is true of the United States is true, also, of Canada and many other non-Communist countries.

The Monitor refers to an editorial in a small city newspaper which asserts that "progressive education" was introduced from Soviet Russia and that "it should therefore be stamped out as a viper of subversion." The Monitor then proceeds to argue that, although "some very foolish things have been done, admittedly, in the name of progressive education by teachers more zealous than prudent," progressive education with its insistence that the local school should be the child and not the subject, "is the very antithesis of Communist or other totalitarian indoctrination."

If this attack on progressive education as Communist inspired was an isolated instance of error, rather than a typical example, we do not suppose that the Monitor would have devoted so much space to a refutation. Unfortunately, however, there are dozens of similar efforts to stick the Communist label on whatever movement or theory the label-sticker would like to destroy.

Not so long ago every strife of opinion, every spiritual morality in the realm of any value was dubbed a Communist. These tactics are no longer applicable, since the Kremlin has frowned on free love, legalized-abortions and easy divorces. But had Dr. Kinsey produced his purely fact-finding reports in the twenties, instead of in mid-century, he would almost certainly have been smothered beneath a deluge of Red tags.

Some strikes are led by Communists, but if every labor leader who had been dubbed a Red was actually one there would be real cause for deep concern.

Because the Communist creed endorses racial equality every reformer who raises his voice against Jim Crow regulations in the South is certain to find somebody willing and eager to call him a Communist.

It is evidently because of this situation that the Monitor regards the Communist issue in the United States as "the ally of reaction."

How did this situation arise? It is caused, says the Monitor, because many people "continue to think of Communism as, at the very least, a form of ultraliberalism. Before the emergence of the Soviet Union as an aggressive world power that is what Communism doubtless meant to the impatient humanitarians who in the United States constituted the bulk, though not the hard core, of its followers."

"Now it has been largely stripped of its believers in a rationale of social reform, leaving the movement essentially a matter of professional, supported by an authoritarian ideology as tyrannical as anything practised by the Nazis.

"But the myth of ultraliberalism still persists among many people, and it is being used both honestly and cynically to frighten them away from some things which ought to be judged on their merits, not by some shibboleth."

It might, perhaps, be added that there is also a reaction to this action. When the believer of racial equality finds himself damned as a Communist by the bigot, the liberal is applauded for his ideals by a Communist, he may, if he lacks mental maturity, embrace the whole Communist creed.

The Monitor who pastes a Red label on every advocate of reform therefore not only frightens good people away from many worthy movements but also turns some other good people into bad people.

This is an extremely dangerous situation but it ought to be recognized that it is not a unique problem. It has faced the world, though probably in a less acute form, on other occasions in the past, notably after the French revolution.

The Bolsheviks in Russia were rebels against the existing economic order. It was natural that their rebellion should attract other rebels against things as they were. Because things were not then, are not now, and are never likely to be, ideal in this world, it was inevitable that some of these rebellious thinkers should have been right—such as those who advocated racial equality, or opposed old-fashioned colonialism. Nowadays to recognize this fact and to distinguish between Communism and some of those causes which were associated with Communism in its earliest years is an error which cuts like a two-edged sword, delaying needed reforms on the one hand and enabling the Communists to continue to pose as the foremost advocates of social justice on the other.

JUST FOLKS

ABOUT SAFETY

It's natural for children to go scurrying in the street,
A nine-year-old is pleased to chase
a ball on flying feet.
Let old folks grate their wisdom,
they'll not heed a word,
Will still run helter-skelter when they're playing with their herd.

I'd hate to see a youngster, shy of sight or nine or ten,
All cluttered up and burdened with the fears of older men.
It would rob him of his childhood, which is not the kind I'd design.
He'll get his share of wisdom when he comes to forty-nine.
So, let elder folks be careful—time has brought to them the task,
And not too much from children should their parents' seek or ask.
There are dangers in the city, but when brakes in frenzy squeal
You will usually discover there's a powwow at the wheel.
Tell the youngsters to be careful, but they'll all be children still;
And a child will chase a baseball through the street, and always will.
Every grownup ought to know it's where the children romp about.
He's the one to move with caution; he's the one who must look out!

Bertelin will be a member ex-office of the board of directors when he retires as president on July 1st. The new president and secretary-treasurer will be appointed by the directors in the near future.

The Rev. Gerald Graham, who has been in charge of St. John's Anglican Mission, Herchimer Avenue, and other outlying parishes in the district, has been appointed rector of the parish of Leeds Rear in the eastern part of the diocese by the Rt. Rev. John Lyons. The Rev. Rural Dean T. H. H. Hall, rector of the parish of Belleville and Thurlo Burritt's Rapids, will succeed Archdeacon Ward as rector of St. John's Mission and he will also act as Anglican Chaplain at the Canadian Air Force Station on the Trent Road. The Rev. Gerald Graham will be moving from here and many friends regret his departure from the city.

Building permits issued at the city engineer's office for the month of April amounted to an estimated value of $2,050. They covered minor repairs and alterations.

Mr. Elmer B. LaBarr left this afternoon by train for Louisville, Kentucky, to witness the Kentucky Derby which will take place at Churchill Downs. This is Mr. LaBarr's first time to see the famous race.

The city has at last got around to the building of the Carty bridge on Victoria Park. The sum of $3,000 which was left by the late Senator H. Carty for this purpose, has accrued interest to the amount of $1,500 so the city will now have $6,500 to expend. The cheque for this amount is now in the hands of Mr. Stewart Mason, the solicitor for the estate. City engineer Charles Campbell has the plans prepared for the baths.

The Ontario Carriage Limited of this city, owing to increased business, has made a large addition to their buildings. The installation of an electric furnace has attracted considerable new business.

Saturday evening, April 25th, was ladies' night at a meeting of the Belleville Club in Wingfield. Fully one hundred persons were present and the event was most enjoyable. Mr. William (Bill) Squires was the principal speaker. He left Belleville in the early seventies and in his address he vividly recalled to the memories of the old timers present the days before the railway penetrated the north country and Belleville was the shipping point for that territory. Those were the days when Belleville was some town and wagons laden with grain from the countryside lined Front St. from the upper bridge to the wharf where the grain was sold to buyers. Mr. Squires was personally acquainted with Scott who was shot by Louis Riel, they having prospected together in the gold fields of Edmonton in the early sixties.

Mr. Frank Robinson of the Belleville Kitchen Cabinet is home on a short visit.

Mr. W. J. Logue will leave tomorrow for Los Angeles, California, to attend the convention of the Grand Lodge of Locomotive Engineers as delegate representing Belleville and Brockville.

Messrs. Thomas and Robert Palos will leave tomorrow for Huntingdon, Ind., where they have accepted positions.

Mr. E. F. Milburn, M.A., principal of the high school, is spending a few days in Guelph with his son, Mr. E. (Ted) Milburn, who is a member of the Bank of Montreal staff in that city.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IDOLS OF THE INSTANT

Ambition is a natural quality, and one to be seriously exercised. This would be a dull and uninspiring world with people in it with no ambitions, no energy to be satisfied about or to court a passing fame, such as being an idol for the instant, sacrificing one's potential best for but temporary acclaim.

In early life we are given a choice of values, and it is upon our selection of these that our genuine success and happiness depend. The only thing of permanence is that which we put into the structure of our character, through effort, and the glow of critical praise soon die out and the way is made for other gods to come.

Why should any of us desire popularity for popularity's sake? It so quickly disappears. There are no roots to it. Make one mistake, disappoint but one, and the hordes are upon you. There are always other idols to enthrone, and, if you haven't the price, someone else steps up promptly to take your place!

The joy and glory of life simmer down to the simple things of life, simple possessions, simple endeavors, simple objectives, those which give hope and personal satisfaction, and do not place upon us the wish to "keep up with the Joneses." Thoreau didn't need a big house to accommodate his big thoughts. The one he built himself, at Walden Pond, for less than fifty dollars, amply served the purpose.

If you wish only fame and acclaim you will have to care for popularity, which is a small item, and which in itself may some day detest its own greatness. Robert Stevenson who wrote: "That empty and ugly thing called popularity." Surrender to it and your life is no longer your own. It's wonderful to go where you wish—and by yourself, watched by no one.

Neutrality Weakens Good

(Pueblo Star-Journal).

Most of us think that we can take a neutral position between good and evil. We imagine that if evil is abroad in the land or community, we can comfortably take our own personal course of "peace", do nothing and yet somehow add our voice to those who have the courage to actively combat evil and to do good. The history of the moral and spiritual life of our communities and of the world does not bear out this assumption. When we remain passive, do nothing to combat evil, we actually add apathy weakness to the position of those who oppose actively do good, provide encouragement and increased opportunity for those who create evil.

Imagination's Role

(Montreal Gazette).

In George Bernard Shaw's play "Saint Joan" there is this passage:

Joan: "I hear voices telling me what to do. They come from God."

Robert: "They come from your imagination."

Joan: "Of course. That is how the messages of God come to us."

It is a striking phrase. For there are always those who suspect the imagination, as something fanciful and deceptive. They wish to stick to the facts. And yet the imagination may lead to a greater conception of reality than any plodding, narrow thought can ever reach. For it is the special function of the imagination to see the wider horizons, the greater possibilities.

If Sir Winston Churchill has, in our time, attained a place of his own, so to speak, larger than other men, it is mostly because his imagination has enabled him to see things in the farther perspective. Undoubtedly imagination has the dangers, and they have been present in some of his words and deeds. But in accepting the guidance of the imagination he has brought the firmness, touch, in time when many others were limited by their dutiful bondage to the obvious.

Once when someone in the House of Commons accused him of some charge that could be made, because it would be more logical, Sir Winston replied: "I am more aware of needless innovation — especially when guided by logic."

But Sir Winston has possessed vast imagination, and was inspired by the guidance of imagination. He felt, in 1940, that only courage which logic could offer no escape. Britain was then fighting almost without arms. If some one wished to summarize the British attitude in a hypothetical syllogism, he would have said:

No country without arms can stand up and repel the Nazi army.

Britain is without tanks and guns.

Therefore Britain is defeated. Q.E.D.

There is nothing the matter with that logic. It is merely unthinkable that Britain was in 1940.

But Churchill believed vastly more than that logic should set no rigid limitation upon the energies of the human spirit.

So while the logical Petain was ceding France and the logical Mussolini was hastening to grab the spoils of victory that seemed inevitable, Churchill, with glorious imagination, was saying: "We shall fight them on the beaches and the landing grounds," and "You ask, What is our aim? Our aim is victory!"

It didn't make sense. But it made history.

But imagination is not only a resource in the face of crisis. It can enrich and enlarge the life of the spirit, every day in the year. For it is only imagination that can create an awareness of the spaciousness that lies in life, and that—

...sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind of man.

Imagination is the ultimate source of all spirit, of the conviction that matter, of the things that are finally cherished. Only imagination is so generous and subtle enough for the things of faith. Cardinal Newman once said: "No analysis is subtle and delicate enough to represent the various sides of mind under which we believe or the subjects for belief as they are presented to our thoughts."

The metallic quality of sheer intellectualism has its important place, but when it is all that we live draws its sustenance from what is dead, and the "dream" in life, from the sense of wonder, from the intangible influence in the heart. "America is more than 'some one's death'" can advance us in all reasoning.

In this abiding sense of wonder is the source of the hope that Beechwood Cemetery in Ottawa is the grave of the Canadian poet, Archibald Lampman. And lines from one of his poems are on his stone:

There shall be beauty for all spring, eternal, sweet,
To speak for God and man.

Insomnia's Woes Grow

(Hamilton Spectator).

"Blessings on him that invented sleep!"

But who invented insomnia? When we were young, people used to have sympathetic jokes about sleeplessness, and, in desperation, you could always count on sleep whenever you worried about the price of wool.

Now we can't even do that. We are unable to find statistical confirmation of the existence of sleeping gulls although Americans take nightly, but it follows a pattern that developed in the years. And the "travelled sleeve of care" gets steadily more attention in the cities. We have a suspicion that the trouble is due mainly to expert attention from doctors and professionalised. We can't sleep for worrying about what will happen if we don't sleep, and, instead of bouncing, jumping lambs we have a herd of thousands of deteriorating blood cells counting themselves into statistics. Even restless dreams have to be Freudian, rather than simply unpleasant.

Now one of our favorite superstitions is that of the bed board. Henry Fielding, an English author of two centuries ago, was influenced by the position of the moon when he went to bed. In New York they have bed tests and claim that quiet sleep is induced by a darkened room, one can sleep well no matter what the position of the moon.

Maybe so, but the riddle of technical assistance to sleep is not entirely solved recently that one good way of bringing on sleep was to imagine a nice, warm theatre curtain. We tried that, only to be confronted by a curtain of musical comedy. Another wiseacre —whose theories we have always regarded with suspicion—suggested hard work.

There is, of course, the business of proper positions. (Somewhere in the dim past we were given guidance on this: If we slept on our left side it would affect our heart, if right side our appendix, and if we slept on our back we would develop "voice of people", do nothing and yet somehow add our voice to those who have the courage to actively combat evil and to do good. The history of the moral and spiritual life of our communities and of the world does not bear out this assumption. When we remain passive, do nothing to combat evil, we actually add apathy weakness to the position of those who oppose actively do good, provide encouragement and increased opportunity for those who create evil.

Who can't?

Stubborn Mariners

(Milwaukee Journal).

It had to happen sooner or later. Two car ferries reached a bridge opening at the same time, headed, respectively, for Manitowoc and Sturgeon Bay, and—to the astonishment of the land lubbers—neither would give right of way. They stalled, tied a passenger train and rail traffic backed up for miles. There was a lot of noise and a considerable crowd, nobody was killed on either side."

Girdles For Men

(Windsor Daily Star).

It may sound effeminate, but men in increasing numbers are taking to wearing girdles. This recently was New York's on the authority of manufacturers of such things.

Women have been much smarter than men about their appearance. When they start to lose their youthful figures—or if they never have had one—that they haven't hesitated to resort to artificial means to control the bulges and sags by enfolding their figures in a variety of contraptions designed for the purpose.

Men may not bulge or sag in the same places as do women. But the well-fed man, if he is physical nature, is inclined to develop a "bay-window" that is unsightly. It is not just unsightly. It is undignified. But man is a proud, obstinate, animal. Generally he has refrained from artificial contrivances to keep his waistline trim with a figure he no longer possesses.

Admittedly it takes a lot of nerve for a man to wear a girdle. But it also takes a lot of nerve for some of them not to do so.

Personal Health Talks

TRICK SPECIALIST GIVES CUSTOMERS THE BUSINESS

We have 2 children, ages 3 and 5 years (writes a reader). The older was born with the "stripe" throat allergy, manifesting itself in excessive mucus and postnasal drip. The pediatrician uses histamines and for her frequent colds, penicillin and terramycin.

Dr. Brady

I'm getting disgusted, because our younger child now seems to be developing the same condition. The older one hasn't been out of the house since November when the wind started from the north — the younger one was a bouncing 7 pounds and 6 ounces at birth. The doctors said he was "phenomenal," until his first strep throat at the age of 1 year. Now it's become a nightmare of shots, doctor bills and children suffering — (Mrs. T. A., Hull, P.Q.)

You ask for my advice, Ma'am, but I'm afraid you will not like it.

I advise you to consult a physician, not a "specialist," when the children have sore throat or the sniffles. Evidently you imagine a doctor who holds himself out to the public as a "specialist" knows more or has greater skill than an "ordinary" doctor. Perhaps you think the moon is made of green cheese and the north wind is baleful to such delicate children as yours.

"Strep" is known your trick specialists deal out to their soft-pomeonic customers, like their snap diagnosis of "a virus that's going around." is unmitigated chicanery. But that's the way the shell snobs like it, isn't it? The Joneses are duly impressed that that's the latest. Who cares about the outrageous doctor bills you have to pay for it?

I took the liberty of editing your letter, Ma'am. I changed the first personal pronoun from singular to plural once or twice. I hope you have a husband. I can't believe a mother on her own could be so blankety-blanked....

Sniffles or no sniffles, every child should be encouraged and permitted to go out and play whenever the child wants to, regardless of wind, rain, cold, snow, climate or season. This is my advice, Ma'am.

Every child, who is not actually ill, should be outdoors all knowing whether he or she is comfortable, should be encouraged and permitted to wear or leave off clothing to suit his or her own pleasure at the moment, at all times.

Histamines, penicillin, terramycin, what! No cortisone or Achtr? Your trick specialist must need new spare plugs.

When or if you read this, Ma'am, remember, please, that no one can prescribe intelligently but for you. I don't know who your are. "So that's nothing personal about it."

But I do hope my comment on the trick specialism evil may assist a few credulous customers to think.

THE PACKSACK

We have just been travelling with a married couple who carry a bottle of saccharine tablets in their wife's purse. She uses it on all meals, to sit on the dinner table. They explain that they are not dieting—they are simply being careful of their diet.

So they eat a fairly lunch of cream soup, lamb chops, hashed brown potatoes, red-white in a roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, mustard and then a hunk of pineapple cream pie. But when the coffee comes, she is terrible careful! Don't forget: the saccharine! And into the cup they carefully dispense one tiny pellet of the sugar substitute. Marriage Easy in Soviet Union, Divorce Not So Simple

Editor's Note: Bill Boss of The Canadian Press who spent five months in the Soviet Union, now has returned to Canada. He brought home three notebooks crammed with information about life behind the Curtain. Here are some sidelights on what he saw and heard in Russia.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Marriage is easy in the Soviet Union but divorce is not quite as simple as most Canadians imagine.

To marry, a couple goes to a registrar and signs a document saying that henceforth they will live as man and wife.

Foreigners who marry in Russia go to the same registrar. The last Canadian to do so was Katherine Jamieson of Carleton Place, Ont., who married Lieut. Jack Davidson, assistant British naval attache, last January.

First stage towards divorce is a compulsory session with a conciliation board. If the board thinks divorce would prejudice the welfare of the children, the matter stops right there.

If the couple gets permission to go before a people's court, they must advertise that intention. Space for divorce notices is limited in the controlled press, and there often is considerable delay.

When the case finally is called, the governing consideration is care of the children. A second divorce is hard to get, a third extremely rare.

The Communist party now speaks strongly against "free love" which was a mark of Russian society during the 1920s. It demands a simon-pure morality among its members and seldom lets a divorced member keep his party card.

LIKE HOLLYWOOD

Ordinary motion pictures present anti-American themes with about the same taste as Hollywood shows anti-Russian material.

Foreign films aren't shown often, but the Russians got a batch of United States productions of the 1930s, all carefully screened for political purity.

"Tarzan" with Johnny Weissmuller passed with ease politically. A few months ago it got into trouble with the ministry of agriculture.

On collective farms, movies are projected on out-door screens by mobile film units. Tarzan's whoops, the roars of lions, the trumpeting of elephants and jibbering of monkeys terrified the livestock. Egg and milk production programs were disturbed.

DEMAND FOR 3D

Three dimensional movies are supposed to be old hat to Soviet audiences, but there's a big demand for tickets at Moscow's "Stereokino," only theatre in the capital where they are shown.

Russia produced her first 3-D film in 1941, a version of Rachmaninov's opera, "May Night." It was still playing when I reached Moscow last autumn, but since has given way to another of his operas, "Aleko."

The stereoscopic effect is there but Soviet 3-D isn't easy to look at. I usually left with a headache.

On the other hand, Russian colors on film are less sharp and more pleasing than Hollywood's.

A good deal of Russian radio time is taken up with propaganda, direct and indirect.

Apart from news broadcasts and commentaries, radio Moscow announcers read editorials from Pravda, Izvestia and Trud. A number of school programs, plays and book reviews also reflect the Communist party teachings.

WITHOUT PATTER

Straight entertainment programs on the Russian radio are usually carried without any patter.

Symphony broadcasts and operas get only brief announcements, with no background about the composition or composers. All works are performed in full.

A 45-minute symphony program is preceded simply by:

"Beethoven—Symphony No. 5 Orchestra — Moscow State Symphony. Conductor—Samosud."

There are no commercials. The closest thing to advertising are announcements of book publications.

Soviet television is good. Home sets have small screens, but the picture is clear.

PROPAGANDA

The Communist-inspired "peace" campaign waged in the Western world is more than matched by the same propaganda inside the Soviet Union.

When Pravda, the Communist party newspaper in Moscow, reports a foreign-policy move, it says it is "consistent with the well-known and constant peace policy of the Soviet Union."

Russians love badges and decorations. If they aren't entitled to wear the insignia of some organization, they often sport a "peace" badge—a small enameled pin with Picasso's white dove on a red background.

Signs in public places, stadiums and even the circus proclaim "peace to the world." Children's donation cards to the Kremlin's New Year parties carried the "peace" slogan in five languages.

In conversation, Russians ask a foreigner: "Are you a fighter for peace?" The post office sells a "peace" postcard. It shows a fight between police and workers at a street barricade in a French city and "peace" chalked on a wall in French.

NO STALIN NEWS

The Stalin and Lenin families have disappeared from the news.

Vitaliy Stalin, the late prime minister's air-force-general son, has been transferred to a remote inland command.

Lenin's nephew, although his photograph with the founder of the Communist party hangs in Moscow's Lenin museum, works and lives in the capital as an ordinary engineer.

Russians say nepotism is impossible under their system. The party rules prescribe expulsion for members who choose personnel "from considerations of friendship, personal loyalty, hometown ties or kinship."

Lenin's nephew is given as an example. I did not find a Russian who would make any comment when asked whether Stalin's son was promoted only "on the basis of political and professional qualifications," as ordered by the party.

Too Much Fat Bacon Supplied

There is much more to getting our bacon than sending the little pig to market. At the present moment the little pigs that are going to market are very much in the news. If you have been complaining about the large proportion of fat in the bacon you are buying, then you have helped put them in the news. It is not the first time that pigs have had news value, for their breeding and rearing the press started soon after World War I. At that time producers realized that if Canadian bacon were going to appeal to the British market it would have to be much leaner than it was. So a campaign was started to improve the quality of Canadian hogs. Farmers began to experiment with careful breeding and controlled diet. Soon they began to increase production of a very good bacon-type hog which gave bacon with a good proportion of lean to fat. This bacon proved very acceptable in England and was also popular in the United States. Now that Canada is not exporting bacon to Britain, producers have allowed hog quality to slip back somewhat with the result that some of our bacon is at present fatter than it used to be.

FAT OR LEAN.

The old saying "The customer is always right" seems to be more true today than it ever has been. Certainly Mrs. Customer is getting what she wants more often than she did in the past. Today if she does not like a product she says so, and in most cases the producer, processor or manufacturer not only listens but does something about it. Bacon is the most recent example. So many customers are not satisfied with the kind of bacon they have been offered in the shops, that they have complained about it. As a result of their complaints several national organizations have asked the Canada Department of Agriculture to consider having bacon sold in the consumer by grade. In order to find out what consumers want in bacon, the department has been conducting a survey. Samples of bacon were displayed and then questionnaires were distributed so that consumers could give their opinion of the various samples. As soon as the report of the survey is completed the results will be passed along to the consumers. At this point, while the decision as to be for a leaner type of bacon than is usually found in the shops.

BACON TERMS.

From the number of questions asked, during the bacon survey conducted by the Canada Department of Agriculture, it would seem that many consumers do not understand bacon terms. Actually there are just two main types of back bacon and side bacon. However, they may be cured in different ways and are found under a number of different names in the stores.

Back bacon is taken from the lean part of the pork loin. It is cured, dried, and finally smoked to improve its keeping qualities and flavour.

Peameal bacon is back bacon, which has been cured but not smoked. After it is cured it is sprinkled with cornmeal. This gives the bacon an attractive appearance, and added flavor. The cornmeal process is also used for cottage rolls and a number of other pork cuts.

Side bacon is known as "Breakfast bacon" to many Canadian shoppers. Of course that does not mean that it can be eaten only for breakfast! Side bacon comes from the side section of the hog and it is naturally fat. While most consumers prefer a good proportion of lean to fat, they must not expect too much. A grade of "A" hog that is, the best bacon-type hog, will have well over 50 per cent fat in this section. While consumers might find some fat too fat, very lean bacon or "skippy" bacon is tough and stringy and lacks flavor. It will not be a small amount of fat so much as a good proportion of lean to fat and lean well streaked with fat that you will find desirable in your bacon.

When you buy bacon it is a good idea to buy only one week's supply at a time. The best way to store the bacon is to keep it well wrapped to prevent it drying out, and take from your refrigerator only the amount you are going to use. The bacon stands open in the air, it loses both flavor and keeping quality.

Coronation Club Enjoys Premiere Of Play

The members of the Coronation Club of Bridge Street United Church and their husbands were guests of the Y.P.U. in viewing the premiere of the Y.P.U.'s play, "To What Purpose," which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Following the play, the club resumed its business meeting. Miss M. Collins, assistant minister of the church, took the devotional, and showed that through the experience of the disciples that Jesus did live again; and how each one must come to know Jesus lives for all.

"Refreshment Through the Years", a film shown by a local company, accompanied by cokes, was greatly enjoyed. Members and husbands became better acquainted in a "get-together game" in which each person must find out the color of the eyes of as many as possible and introduce himself or herself to them. After a hilarious few minutes it was found that Mrs. G. B. Hyde had won, with Mrs. W. Holway a close runner-up, and Mrs. J. S. Loynes and Mrs. John M. Loynes tying for third place.

The evening closed with refreshments served by hostesses Mrs. Williamson, B. Leslie, S. Hoard, E. Littlejohn and Bristol.

Hustlers Ladies' S.S. Class Marks 20th Anniversary

RAWDON.— Mrs. Burton Morton was rigidly honored recently when she was asked by the president of "The Hustlers' Ladies' Sunday School Class", of Colborne United Church to compose a poem for their 20th anniversary.

The class was organized in 1934 and Mrs. Robert Coyle has acted as secretary-treasurer for the full 20 years with Mrs. Quinn as teacher.

When the class organized there were 15 ladies and now they have a membership of 60. Through the years the group have accomplished a great deal and this week they decided to have a special celebration in the form of a "Commemorative Concert," from which they realized $95 for their efforts.

WRITES POEM

Mrs. Morton wrote her poem using the class name as her guide and it was composed as a tribute to all who had been connected with "The Hustlers" for the past 20 years. This special poem was read at the concert by the Sunday School Superintendent, Mr. Irvine. A special thank-you has been forwarded to Mrs. Morton for her poem.

Home Again

By Mary Moore

Those Americans! The pace they set, the stands they maintain, the ambitions they achieve the fund of knowledge they retain the hospitality they dispense—all leaves me breathless.

The kind of condition that exists on my desk after a five-day absence is welcome. It seems so still and peaceful.

My beloved friend Garny is the personification of hospitality. The way she projects her imagination into our interests is nothing less than psychic.

Last night when I was relating our experiences to my sisters, Doris said "Garny makes good copy." She certainly does.

Just for the fun of it let me run through three of the dinner menus she served while Pete and I were there.

1) Fresh Shrimp (3 lbs. for 5 people) with a dip of melted butter and lime juice, melba toast, tossed salad, home-canned Syrup cherries. 2) Roast standing rib of beef, frozen green peas, stuffed baked Idaho potatoes, Waldorf salad, gingerbread (look for recipe sometime this week) with whipped cream and bananas. 3) Shrimp Cocktail, Baked Pheasants and Grouse, Cream Gravy, Sauerkraut, Wold Rice, Tomato Jelly Ring and Asparagus Salad, Cheese Cake and Fresh Pineapple in Shell. Salted Jumbo pecans and stuffed dessert dates.

There were countless other little interesting items served with these meals too, but she seems to spend a minimum of time in the kitchen. She buys, cream whips all of these complicated meals to guests and casual callers without a hitch and without hired help too.

Pete and Dora Jean (the lovely 17-year-old daughter) offered to go to the locker to pick up the pheasants and grouse, but she could not let herself accept that help because they might not choose exactly the right birds. (She and Joe had shot these birds in Northern Michigan during the hunting season last fall, and some of them were a year-and-a-half old Mary's visit at Easter.)

She is indeed a wonder woman and it is a rare privilege to know her.

On my return I opened a letter from a reader who is learning to cook and who tackled a cheese cake recipe I gave you—with highly satisfactory results. I do not know to which cheese cake recipe Betty Jo is referring but now I have another cheese Cake recipe for her to try. It is Garny's recipe and is the one she served to us on Easter Sunday. It is different because it calls for honey instead of sugar. This family does not eat sugar. This substitution of honey for sugar causes the cake to be slightly crumbly but the flavor makes up for that slight defect. When it was 24 hours old, however, it did not crumble.

GARNY'S CHEESE CAKE

Roll out 2 slices Zwiebsack to make very fine crumbs and rub into them 1 tablespoon each melted butter and honey. Use this to sprinkle bottom and sides of buttered small tube pan. Cream 1 lb. white cream cheese with 1-2 cup honey (or 1-2 cup sugar if you insist on a little more), 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3-4 teaspoon lemon juice, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup evaporated milk, 4 beaten egg yolks. When these are smooth and well blended, fold in very lightly four stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn onto crumb-sprinkled tube pan, sprinkle remaining crumbs over top and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour, then turn off oven heat and allow cheese cake to remain in oven for 1 hour.

NOTE:

Garny cooks with gas, and I believe oven heat recedes more quickly in a gas oven than in an electric one. When I make this cake I am going to leave it in my electric oven only 1-2 hour after heat is turned off to see if that is sufficient time to complete baking. You will have to use your own judgment.

I'll give you more Garny lore during this week.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

HEADING TOWARD THE BEAUTY GOAL

Young lovelies who desire to stand in the front ranks of the beauty chorus should realize the importance of proper head carriage. For perfect posture, the crest of the crown of the head and the neck should be on a straight line with the spinal column. There's small chance of looking smart and regal unless the head is on the level.

A lowered chin does more harm than one is likely to realize, especially among the older beauty-seekers. For, if the chin is lowered, the chest flattens and the shoulders fall forward. Drooping shoulders suggest drooping spirits. The muscle of the neck, being relaxed, may go into a decline with the result that the flesh develops ugly lines. From the jaw line to the collar bones are interlacing muscles. When they are firm, contour is youthful. When they lose tone there is not much which can be done to restore them.

Do not, however, get into the habit of holding the head too rigidly since this habit will cause muscle strain which in turn can cause discomfort. On the other hand, permitting the head to fall forward will eventually bring on a double chin. And, if a woman is inclined to take on weight, this habit may also produce a roll or fat just south of the nape line.

Perfection of figure is as grand an asset as a beautiful face but it cannot be attained without good carriage. A woman should have enough respect for her body to keep her chest lifted, her abdomen drawn inward and upward. Her arms, should fall easily and gracefully. Perfect posture is as essential to normal measurements as it is to lovely appearance. To carry oneself like a queen should be every woman's goal.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SAYS HE LOVES HER, BUT ISN'T READY TO SETTLE DOWN

If a man has responsibilities which make it necessary for him to postpone marriage for awhile, but has told a girl he loves her, given her a perfectly clear understanding of the situation, and asked her to wait for him, then, if she loves him in return, she will of course, want to do so.

But why any girl should care to put herself in the position of appearing to be waiting indefinitely for a man who can't make up his mind whether he wants to marry her or not, is something I find it hard to understand.

If she's so much in love with him that she'd rather stall around on the chance of eventually getting him, than put him out of her mind and look for somebody else, that's one thing. She can do it unobtrusively, using a wary eye on him while seeming to have other fish to fry.

But why let him think he's got her all tied up like a package set aside in a department store, waiting to do but wait until he decides whether he's going to claim the package or let it go by default? That's sheer folly on her part, as well as extremely poor judgment.

Take the following situation for instance, in which a 30-year-old widow writes of her hope of a second marriage with a bachelor two years older.

"I love this man very much," she writes, "and he claims he loves me, too. But he tells me he's not ready to settle down yet. He says if I 'will be nice to him' for one or two, we will then marry, but I don't see any reason why we can't marry now. I told him we had better just stop seeing each other, but he won't consent to that, so we have kept on going out together twice a week.

"Do you think I should just let things ride, and keep on hoping that he may change his mind and want to get married sooner, or even wait the couple of years he mentions? Also, do you think I should stay home on the nights he don't have a date? I feel as though, if I went out other nights, he might think I'm not really serious about him."

Well, once again, if a young woman wants to wait around as long as the man on whom she has set her heart is willing to string he'll finally marry her, that's her privilege. But why, in heaven's name, should she let him know that she's concentrating on this hope by giving up all her friends and staying home the nights he doesn't come around?

This man is undoubtedly having himself a fine time. Most young bachelors do. No responsibilities; about a wife and children and home to support; the money all his own, to spend as he pleases; free to come and go without anybody to ask questions—why should he be in a hurry to tie himself up to responsibilities that would cut off all this? Naturally, he's going to take his time about "settling down," especially when he sees that the girl is willing to wait for him indefinitely.

If this girl is smart, she'll be just as independent about her friendship with him as he is on his side. She'll let him know that she's not dependent on him for all her dates, and that she has plenty of other interests besides him. If there are other men who would take her out, I'd certainly advise her to encourage them, and let this man see he's not the only male in her life.

If she can get it into his head, without making it too plain, that she's trying to do so, that she might get tired waiting for him and decide to marry someone else, it might wake him up—provided, of course, that he really has some vague idea of marrying her some day and isn't just giving her a runaround. But sitting around waiting for him to take her out on a date, isn't likely to do it.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DON'T "STAND ON CEREMONY"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter has recently become engaged to a young man who is in the service. He will be in the service overseas for one year, and three or four months after her return home we will be discharged, they plan to marry. The relatives and most of the friends, on both sides, know about the engagement. My daughter did not want an engagement ring, and we are not going to announce the engagement in the newspapers until he returns. That is the background of the situation. And my question concerns what to do about his mother.- His mother asked my daughter to call her up, saying she did not want a whole year to go by without keeping in touch. If she invites my daughter to her home just an evening or to dinner, do I have to return this in any way? My husband and I have not met his parents yet. If she makes a gesture of any kind, am I supposed to make some gesture or should I wait until her son comes home next year? In other words, what is the correct thing to do during the "year of waiting"? — H.

I like this question. . .it's very human one and very important. In the first place, please don't let any superficial propriety. . .any "supposed to", or "not supposed to". . .get in the way of a right and friendly invitation. The mother of your daughter's fiance expresses it well: she "doesn't want a whole year to go by without keeping in touch." Of course she is the one who should make the first social move. Now that she knows about the engagement, she should make herself important and so-significant call on your daughter, to welcome her son's fiancee into her family, and to meet you. After this call she and her husband may invite you and your husband and your daughter to come to see them, or you and your husband may invite them to your house. Usually either invitation is for a stated date and for a definite occasion, to tea, perhaps, or to dinner, or to Sunday luncheon or midday dinner, or just for a call.

It is apparent that the mother doesn't know that she should make this call. . . very, very often the mother of a fiance doesn't know this rule. However, she has made a friendly and welcoming gesture to your daughter, apparently wants to establish some kind of relationship between the families. So I most enthusiastically suggest you telephone to her as soon as possible, invite her and her husband to come to your home. . .and have what is commonly called a "get-acquainting" tea.

This is what should be done. . .it will make the year's waiting so much easier for your daughter, and will, I know make her fiance happy and proud that "all goes well" at home!

LIGHTING GUEST'S CIGARETTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I would like to have you answer this question, please: When he and I are host and hostess to one woman guest at dinner in a restaurant, whose cigarette should my husband light first, the guest's or mine? The other evening he and I invited a college friend of mine, who was passing through town, to dine with us. My husband lighted my cigarette first. I think he should have lighted her cigarette first. What's the answer? — Marie S.

You are right (and I'm proud of your point of view, lady!). . . the host should light the guest's cigarette first, as part of the gesture-of-hospitality.

LARGE BILLS And How to pay them

Most people spend large sums of money only when they know where the money is coming from. But there are some bills that you just can't plan for. For instance, car smash-ups, unexpected medical expenses, fires, thefts and anything completely out of your control. Bills . . . that hit you like a bolt out of the blue. These large bills are often a serious concern to a family. That's when a Niagara loan can really be of help. At any case there are a lot of issues in our office which were written by people who certainly think our service was a mighty fine answer to this difficult kind of problem. You'll find if you inquire, that friendly loans at Niagara Finance often have lower rates. Another point about Niagara, loans to $1500 are life-insured at no extra cost to you. If you have a large unexpected bill which you can't handle why not drop in, or phone; we'll be glad to see you.

Gouzenko Thinks More Red Secret Police Can Be Expected To Quit Homeland for Asylum

By SAUL PETT

MONTREAL (AP) — The man said, before we entered the hotel room, "You'd better call him Stephen."

"Stephen" rose from the couch to be introduced. A pink-cheeked man of 35, with a nervous friendliness, he pumped my hand vigorously. With one eye on the waiter clearing away the lunch dishes, he made pleasant conversation about the weather and my trip from New York. Then the door closed behind the waiter.

The "Stephen" relaxed and became Igor Gouzenko.

He stopped talking about the weather and started talking about Russian spies and secret documents. He said more members of the Russian secret police can be expected to defect as it becomes known that the two who recently broke in Australia and East Germany received a warm welcome and protection from Western hands. He spoke with the conviction of personal experience.

Gouzenko is the former Russian cipher clerk who broke a Soviet atomic spy ring in Canada in 1945, mostly with documents he took with him from the Russian embassy in Ottawa. Today, nine years later, he still can't take any chances. As long as he lives and prospers, his case may tempt other Russians to make the break. The Soviet high command can be depended on to try to eliminate all temptation.

Thus, Gouzenko continues to live—and expects to live forever—a double life, a man of mystery with two identities, both of which are known only to his wife and a handful of others, he hopes.

SPLIT PERSONALITY

In the small town where he lives, Gouzenko is known by another name. Let's say the alias is Malok and Gouzenko are different in many ways.

Gouzenko is intensely interested in politics and world affairs. Malok can take them or leave them alone. A few months ago, when U.S. senators sought to question Gouzenko, Malok was at a dinner party with friends when suddenly the conversation turned to the Gouzenko case. Malok's heart flipped, but he pretended no more interest in Gouzenko than in, say, King Farouk.

"When that happens," Gouzenko said, "I try to be casual about it. I hope the subject will be changed but I try not to change it myself—or at least not change it too abruptly."

While he has learned to relax somewhat, Gouzenko still distrusts any car which stays behind his too long. When this happens, he pulls over to the curb and lets the other fellow pass to make sure he's not being followed.

When he drives to another town, like Montreal, where he is known by some as Gouzenko, but not Malok, he stops along the way to change his license plates. He doesn't want anyone in Montreal to get a clue to where he came from.

WOULD WOO CONVERTS

There are many other precautions in his to day living. But he'd rather talk about the widening chinks in the MVD, the Russian secret police.

He thinks more of its members can be encouraged to break away with valuable documents, as Vladimir Petrov did in Australia and Nikolai Khokhlov did in East Germany. This can be done, Gouzenko believes, if Western governments publicly promise:

Immediate citizenship, as soon as documents are authenticated; a 24-hour guard to protect them from Soviet reprisals; financial security and a chance to work at jobs suited to their talents; and documentary evidence, "in case they ever need to prove it" that they served their new country by helping to expose Soviet espionage.

On the question of financial security, Gouzenko said he was not thinking in terms of a "bribe" but a "reward."

"After all, we must be practical," he said. "Idealism, alone, is not enough. The Russian who breaks away does so at tremendous personal risk and sacrifice. He leaves behind his family in Russia, with little hope they will be spared. The anguish of his decision is enormous.

MIGHT AVERT WAR

"If we can encourage more Russian agents to break, and to break in quick succession, the Kremlin will find it almost impossible to get or rely on new recruits . . . Even their intelligence system is undermined, they will think twice about any aggressive action."

How do the Gouzenkos—or Maloks—live?

Mostly from income by Gouzenko, the writer. Shortly after his break, he wrote several magazine articles and a book. His second book, a novel called "Fall of a Titan," has been selected by the Book of the Month Club.

FILMING NEW MOVIE

A movie several years ago, based on his break, brought him additional money. A second movie, tentatively titled "Gouzenko: Man in Hiding," now is being filmed in Canada by producer Fred Feldkamp. This is a highly fictionalized version of his life since 1945.

In addition, the Gouzenkos have an annuity given them by a grateful Canadian who admired their courage in exposing the atomic spy ring. The annuity pays them $100 a month for the remainder of their lives.

All in all, the Gouzenkos have enough money to live in comfortable houses and own a good car.

When they broke with the Russians in 1945 and went under the protection of the government, Canada gave the Gouzenkos citizenship by order-in-council.

They were given new birth certificates from a foreign country other than Russia to explain their continuing heavy accents. Their two children, 3 and 10, know nothing of their Russian background.

LET'S SPEAK ENGLISH!

Gouzenko speaks English and Russian fluently. He can only just get by in the language of the country he now pretends was his birthplace. Let us say this country is Czechoslovakia.

When a real Czech meets Malok and thinks he has found a countryman, the Czech frequently tries to talk to Malok in Czech.

"I always try to discourage this," Gouzenko says. I laugh and say in the man, 'We are Canadians now. Let us speak English.'"

In the first few years after 1945 the Gouzenkos moved three or four times. Each time they moved, they changed their name slightly.

MOVING TIME AGAIN

For the last few years the Gouzenkos have lived in the same town in the same house. He feels it's time to move again and will do so when there is enough money.

"Nothing special has occurred," he explained. "But I'd just feel better moving. The business of changing our name again will, of course, cut a lot of complications since the children now are at an age where they need explanations."

The Gouzenkos are undecided as to whether they will ever tell their children their true identity.

"Perhaps," he said, "there will come a time when we'll have to tell them for their own protection. But I hope it won't be necessary for that reason. Still, I suppose, I'd like them ultimately to know so, perhaps, the Gouzenko name can be continued."

"All things considered, despite the obvious difficulties and the painful memories," he said, "we have never regretted we broke from the Russians. Democracy has been kind to us in every way."

'Wotta Man' Musial Sprays Landscape With Five Homers For New Record

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BASEBALL!

Coach Vern Goyer, of the Belleville senior Batas, had over twenty players working out the winter wrinkles over the week-end. He put them through conditioning paces on Friday, and Saturday nights at the CNR Athletic Field and tweaked them stretching their throwing arms and putting first-season edges on batting eyes.

Bobby Bunton, Art Wright, Sammy Mulholland were tossing 'em in under the watchful eyes of "Cuffer" Noakes. There were "pepper" sessions and an all-round general workout. Johnny Batchelor poled a couple over the left field fence during the batting practice. Jake Wade, who played in left field for Brantford Red Sox a couple of years ago, was on, and was Claude Carr, 'Tuk" Barclay, 'Mouse' Bush and several others.

Tony Petitti, who did the receiving for the Redmen two years ago, will be back with the Batas and will likely catch the first string catching assignment. Petitti is a fine receiver as well as being more than passing good with the hickory. Keith MacDonald, from East Lake, was out and should have little difficulty in making a position. Keith usually plays the keystone sack and probably will see into some acquisitions from Dick Fitzpatrick and Johnny Batchelor. However it is early yet and Goyer is giving the boys plenty of opportunity to prove their ability.

The team is holding practices at the CNR Field until the grounds at Exhibition Park are ready. Reports have it that the diamond up there will be the best in years with special attention being paid to the infield.

SHOULD GO GOOD!

President Gordy Steward of the Belleville District Softball League, has completed arrangements with the Toronto Nortown girls champion softball team to play here on Saturday, June 5.

The Nortowns, one of Toronto's starriest girls' teams, not only won the city title last year but went through to the quarter-finals of the North American Girls' Softball championships played in Detroit. They'll be the first star girls' attraction to play here since the famous Sunday Morning Class appeared here some years ago.

The game will be played at the CNRAA field starting at 8.30 or thereabouts. Prexy Steward said yesterday he was testing no stones unturned to make this one of the better attractions of the year. The Nortowns will play a selected team of the male species drawn from the ranks of the BDSL. Ducat prices are going to be given away, and the proceeds of the game will be devoted to the furtherance of minor softball in the city. Tickets will be available in the immediate future at Cook's, Thomas', and Symons' Tobacco store.

"Clucker" Henn had his Northern Electric cockerels prancing over the CNE field prior to the baseball workout in an exhibition tilt with "Warpy" O'Brien's Belleville Bisquicks. Henn sounds touted good in the initial tilt with the janitor's husky hurler, Bruno McCurdy, 17, showing up exceptionally well. Al Adams, who did mound duty for the Northerns, was supposed to be in good shape and was tossing 'em over the pan in good style.

"Turk" Barclay, who will play for Northerns when not cavorting with the Batas, is developing a Durocher complex. "Turk" was coaching at third base and had his tonsils working overtime. He should prove a good substitute for the Ole Clucker when his vocal cords get frayed.

MINOR SOFTBALL!

Fire Chief Gerald Vance with Leo Culhane and the rest of the fire laddies, will get the minor softball season started at the West Moira Fire Hall on Tuesday evening, starting at 6.15. All boys of peewee and bantam age are requested to report at the station at that time. Some six peewee and four bantam teams, it is expected will see action this season in the expanding program of minor softball. Belleville is around on Tuesday night, fellas, if you want to get in on the summer fun.

PLENTY OF ACTION!

This, apparently is "Getting Ready for Summer Sports Week." Nearly every night will be taken up with meetings of one sort and another and the weekend should see plenty of organization work "under the bridge."

Tonight the Belleville District Softball League executive is holding a session to discuss a "year-book" for the league.

Tuesday night the Belleville Minor Baseball Association goes into session at the Xiwanis Centre to formulate and organize plans for the coming season. President Bill Gaulin would like all hands on deck as there is plenty of work to be done before the diamond mopeds go into action. Coaches, managers, sponsors, umpires, etc., will be doubly welcome and anyone who can give a hand along these lines will be greatly appreciated.

While there is nothing definite on the baseball situation in Prince Edward County, it is more than likely a couple of teams from that place will enter the Belleville District Baseball League, which convenes in the city hall council chambers on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. President Frank Grandame has issued invitations to last year's clubs and prudential entries are cordially invited. It could be that Napanee will play in the circuit this year.

Hits 3 in Twin Bill Opener, Adds Couple in 2nd Game; Hank Sauer Good for Three

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now you know why they call Stan Musial, Stan the Man. No other hitter in major league history ever hit five home runs in one day.

Nine days ago Musial was bumping along at .250, gripped by the same slump that tortured him last spring. Now he is hitting .400 with eight homers and seven doubles among his 24 hits. The 33,000-a-year St. Louis Cardinal outfielder leads the majors with 21 runs batted in and shares the home run lead with Chicago's Hank Sauer.

Stan got four for four Sunday in the first game, three home runs and a single off New York Giant pitching. Then he added two more homers in the second game to set a record.

Musial's clubhouse comment was typical of a team man: "You can't smile too much when you lose a ball game." The Cards lost that second game 5-4 to the Giants after taking the opener 10-8.

12 HOME RUNS

A total of 12 home runs were hit in the doubleheader at Busch Stadium and 21 in all in the National League.

Philadelphia Phillies gained a 4-3 edge over Cincinnati in the first half of a game Monday night that the game was washed out. Bob Miller's relief pitching and Del Ennis' home run saved the day for the Phils.

Chicago and Pittsburgh also went on a homer spree with eight, three by Ralph Kiner. They split a pair. A Sauer homer and single gave Paul Minner a 5-3 first-game decision over Vern Law. The Pirates ripped into the Cubs for eight runs in the first inning of the second game on the way to an 18-10 decision. Sauer batted in the slaughter at the end of eight innings.

Brooklyn's game at Milwaukee was rained out.

The American League also had a postponement, the Baltimore at Boston doubleheader.

FAIR FROM SENATORS

Cleveland won a pair from Washington 4-3 and 8-3 in 10 innings, while the other American League clubs split. Detroit won the third straight shutout 4-0 at Philadelphia with Don Johnson throwing a two-hitter for the victory. Chicago came 2-1 on Elmer Valo's pinch single in the ninth.

New York Yankees broke loose with their heavy hitting, 12 runs in the third, to shutter Detroit 12-4 but were shut out 4-0 with one hit by Bill Tuttle in the second game, cut to five innings by darkness.

Wally Westlake's double in the 10th gave Cleveland its double score, and Washington after the Indians tied the score in the ninth.

Four homers were hit in the American League but two of them by rookie Bill Wilson and Chico Carrasquel provided Johnson's cushion for Chicago's first game virdict over Philadelphia.

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove of the Boston Red Sox fanned six Detroit Tigers to pass the 2,000 mark in strikeouts in an American League baseball League game 16 years ago today. It was proved a 20th victory in 15 years of baseball. In the following season, 1930, he was the champion American League pitcher for the fifth time since 1929—the previous four titles earned with Philadelphia.

Buffalo Drops To Fourth Slot; Leafs Defeated

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

What a difference a day makes—in the International League standings, that is.

Buffalo Bisons fell three notches in six hours Sunday and now are the hapless occupants of fourth place in the Junior Circuit after took over first place from the Bisons by beating the staggering Herd in a doubleheader, 4-3 and 4-2.

Rochester Red Wings and Havana's Cuban Sugar Kings also vaulted past the Bisons. The Sugar Kings whipped the Red Wings 5-4 and the two teams now are tied for second place.

In other games, Richmond Virginians defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 6-4, and Montreal Royals and Ottawa Athletics split a twin bill. The A's won the first 5-3 and the Royals the nightcap 3-2.

Jackie Mayo's home run in the ninth inning won the first game for the Chiefs. In the nightcap, Jack Sanford held the Bisons to seven hits and was given a three-run lead in the first inning on home runs by Stan Palys and John Hatsios.

Joe Lutz hit a home run with Ed Mierkowicz on base in the 10th inning to give Richmond the triumph over Toronto. Ken Heintzelman, fourth of the Virginia pitchers, was the winner. The second game was called at the end of six innings with the Virginians ahead 1-0. It will be completed at a later date.

Vince Gohl held Montreal hitless for five innings for the A's in the opener. He needed help in the eighth from Al Romberger, who protected the margin. Montreal scored its winning run in the nightcap on successive triples by Dick Whitman and Ham Hemric in the sixth.

Watson Calls Fronts Eastern Champs After 5-3 Victory Over Tepid Teeps

TORONTO (CP)—Quebec Frontenacs came up with their best game of the eastern Memorial Cup finals Sunday to defeat St. Catharines TeePees 5-3 and deadlock the best-of-seven series 2-2.

If the prediction of Quebec coach Phil Watson means anything, the Frontenacs will be the 1954 winners of the Memorial Cup. Watson predicted before Sunday's game that the winner of the fourth contest would take the works.

But even though his Frontenacs were ahead all the way in Sunday's game Watson wasn't satisfied.

"We haven't hit our stride yet," he said after the game. "If we really get going the guys after we knocked off (Montreal) Canadiens, it would have been a breeze."

The Frontenacs had a layoff of almost two weeks after winning the Quebec championship while the TeePees and Toronto Marlboros were fighting for the Ontario Hockey Association title.

HOT FOR GAME

A sweltering shirt-sleeved crowd of 7,349 saw Sunday's clash. Quebec went ahead 1-0 just after eight minutes of play but the TeePees tied the score before the period ended. Three unanswered goals by the Frontenacs in the second stanza decided the game but St. Catharines outscored Quebec 3-1 in the last 20 minutes.

Mike Ratchford scored two goals for Quebec for the second consecutive game. Gilles Thibault, George Faulkner and Butch Bouchard rounded out the total. Ratchford also assisted on Bouchard's goal.

Barry Cullen, Chea Warriner and Brian Cullen were the TeePee snipers.

TeePees, playing their 89th game of the season, looked weary and showed the strain of their two tough playoff series with Toronto St. Michael's College Majors and the Marlboros.

Thibault trapped Faulkner's goalmouth pass and snooped it in the net at 8:30 of the first period for the first goal of the game.

Barry Cullen tipped in a shot less than three minutes from the end of the period to knot the score. Ratchford was off for tripping at the time and it was the only penalty that was instrumental in the scoring.

MINOR PENALTIES

TeePees took seven of the total of 13 minor penalties handed out during the game.

Faulkner sent the Frontinacs ahead at 9:29 of the second after he pulled away from Jack Higgins, St. Catharines defenceman. Seven minutes later Ratchford increased the lead to 3-1 when he drove in Rousseau's pass. Bouchard took Ratchford's rebound off the back boards two minutes later and fired past Marv Edwards for the winning goal.

Warchol gave the TeePees some hope in the third goal his backhanded beat Jacques Marcotte but a two-man breakaway resulted in Bouchard's second goal that erased the TeePee bid. Brian Cullen wrapped up the scoring for Ratchford's fave off at 16:59.

The teams now travel to Quebec City for the fifth game Wednesday night. They come back to Toronto for the sixth meeting Friday.

Determine Is Derby Winner, First Grey to Win Turf Epic

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A little grey colt with a terrific appetite and a decided dislike for work is going after Saturday to head a coveted triple crown after breaking a line that pushed horses of his color through the 80 years of the Kentucky Derby.

No grey had ever won the glamor race, though many tried, until Andy Crevolin's Determine, a mite of a horse out of Alhambra, Calif., came from second place in the stretch Saturday to head a length-and-a-half defeat on the swift Hasty Road.

Fifteen other three-year olds, including the favored Correlation, were up the stretch ceting the dust of the leaders as Determine reached the end of the mile-and-a-quarter in 2:03.

Determine's next stop is the Preakness at Pimlico May 22. Then, according to present plans of his owners, Andy and Mollie Molter, he'll head back west, where he had won six straight stake victories before arriving in Kentucky. He hopped to Churchill Downs by a head in the mile of the Derby Trial here last Tuesday.

The little boy is now eligible for the Belmont Stakes, third race of the triple crown. And if Molter had his way, Determine probably also would skip the Preakness.

WON THE HARD ONE

"After all, he won the big one and that is what we wanted," said Molter. "Since he can't win the triple crown, it would just as soon skip him back home, but the boss (Crevolin) will have to decide exactly."

He added: "He dislikes work so much that we don't ask much of him between races but we race him at every opportunity."

Hasty Road, a speed demon from Allie Reinhart's Hasty House farm of Toledo, Ohio, stepped to the front soon after the start of the Derby, but Willie Hartack rode Determine further back than third, then struck when he gave the word.

The Crevolin grey moved within a length or so of Hasty Road the pace-setter at the eighth pole, raced on nearly even terms for another sixteenth and then took command with a surge.

Hasty Road had 2½ lengths on H. W. McElvain's Rassczynne, as the colt's second.

The victory, worth a record of $108,550, boosted Determine's total earnings to $280,325.

Wins Two $100,000 Races In One Day

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—Bill Kyne's 6th birthday party was a record-breaking success at Bay Meadows.

Andy Crevolin's Imbros won the inaugural W. P. Kyne Handicap, northern California's first $100,000 horse race. That made Crevolin, an Alhambra, Calif., auto dealer, the first man ever to win two $100,000 races the same day. Lucky Andy's Determine had plonked the roses at the Kentucky Derby just three hours earlier.

Imbros, ridden by Johnny Longden, sped the 1⅛ miles in 1:48.3-5, cutting 3-5 seconds off the 16-year-old 1:49 track record set by the great Seabiscuit.

Bay Meadows' lavishness and attendance records also fell. A crowd of 39,165 won $1,573,300 on the nine races. That's exactly 20 more than the 36,105 set May 11, 1946. The previous high mutuel handle was $1,481,905.

Imbros' victory was good for $42,800 net on the 42-1 spread and $100,000 purse money through eight lengths. Kyne, Bay Meadows general manager, was celebrating his 67th birthday and 50th year in horse racing.

Imbros, paying $4.80 as a 7-to-5 favorite, defeated Calumet Farm's Fleet Bird, 5-to-2 second choice, by half a length, with Trusting third.

Panthers Sign Coast Catcher

KITCHENER (CP) — Catcher Bob Turner, a 26-year-old player with the triple A Seattle club in Pacific Coast League, will join Kitchener Panthers of the Class D Intercounty Baseball League, manager Don Gallinger announced Sunday.

DORIS HART WINS

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., won her fourth successive British women's hard courts tennis championship Saturday with an easy 6-1, 6-3 victory over Mrs. Joy Mottram of England.

SETS RECORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Gladys Priestly, 15, youngest member of Canada's Olympic team, set a Canadian swimming record Saturday.

The girl swam the 150-yard backstroke in the junior women's class at 1:52.8, upsetting the record set in September, 1952, by Shirley Jones of Hamilton, who did the distance in two minutes flat.

Jimmy Carruthers Retains World Bantam Crown

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Australian Jimmy Carruthers narrowly retained his world's bantamweight crown Sunday night in a gruelling bout with Chamrern Songkitrat, the Bangkok police lieutenant who graduated from the drop-kicking Thailand school of fighting.

Australian referee William Henneberry, the only official, gave Carruthers 29½ points and Songkitrat 29½ in the 15-round fight. Bout weighed 117¼.

Carruthers and Songkitrat fought for the title in a torrential downpour that spilled a full inch of rain on the canvas in less than an hour.

By fight time it still was pouring, and there were 50,000 people waiting to see the Bangkok Bengie perform. There was $225,000 in the till. The sponsoring police welfare fund closed its weather eye and the fight was on.

FOUGHT BAREFOOTED

The canvas was so slippery that the fighters fought barefooted.

Songkitrat started fast, but Carruthers found the range and held command from the middle rounds. In the 10th, Songkitrat opened a deep gash over Carruthers' left eye. A rivulet of blood partly blinded the champion and set the Thailanders to screaming for Songkitrat.

The rugged little Thai pressed hard in the final two rounds but Carruthers' great left rocked him back every time he bore in.

However, Carruthers slipped and fell on his face in the 11th. Referee Henneberry later said he thought the champ had knocked himself out then. Carruthers paled noticeably and seemed to have hurt his left hand. But he recovered quickly and went on to win.

May Bar Sports Writer From Press Box

WINNIPEG (CP)—A joint meeting of Winnipeg sports writers and the executive of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers has been called for next week in connection with a threat to bar a sports writer from the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' games.

Al Vickery, president of the Winnipeg Football Writers and Broadcasters Association, said the club threatened to bar Bob Moir of the Winnipeg Free Press following Bombers' objection to the publication of a story on player negotiations.

Moir reported that Bombers were said to be negotiating with Chuck Concerly, quarterback of a New York Giants club in the National Football League. Bomber officials objected to the report although they refused to deny it.

Thomson Wins Race Trophy

HAMILTON (CP)—Bobby Thomson, 19, from the Dundas area won Sunday to regain for the Hamilton Olympic Club the Lacky Stewart Memorial Trophy.

Benson Smith, 16, of Brantford, withdrew after carving a bruised leg when pushed against a car by another runner.

Guelph took the team prize with 31 points, one more than the Olympic Club. Guelph had a second, third, fifth and 11th.

Results: Thomson 12:36; Jack McIntosh, Guelph, 12:52; Ron Nicol, Guelph 12:56.

RACING OPENS

TORONTO (CP)—The 1954 racing season opened Saturday at Greenwood Raceway before a crowd of about 16,000 in attendance for the eight-card race.

The warm weather was perfect for the first day of the 165 days of racing that will make up the season in Ontario.

Allan Cup Finals Open In Penticton Tonight

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — The battle of the amateur puck opens here tonight when Sudbury Wolves, eastern champions, meet Coast champions, take on Penticton V's, the best in the west.

At stake is the Allan Cup, symbol of senior amateur hockey supremacy in Canada.

Coach Max Silverman, the guiding light of hockey in Sudbury, Ont., for 23 years, is leading the Wolves along the path that could lead to their second Cup in history. They won the battered mug back in 1937.

His formula is work. The Wolves had been in town less than two hours when he had them out adding still more ice time to the 100 league and playoff games they have gone through this season.

The best-of-seven run for the cup promises to be the second fight-to-a-tough season for both clubs.

Penticton V's rolled over all opposition in regular Okanagan Senior Amateur Hockey League play, clinching top spot long before the season ended. Then, in a playoff with Nelson Maple Leafs, Western International Hockey League kingpins, they had to come from behind to take the B.C. title in eight games.

BIGGEST-GAME SERIES

The Penticton-Winnipeg Maroons series is the western championship also becomes an eight-game affray after both teams won two, Penticton tied the other three games by 4-4 scores.

The road that brought the Wolves all the way to the Okanagan valley is the straight from Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, who Sudbury trounced for the Northern Ontario Hockey Association's southern group championship. They got past Trail Iroquois Falls Kimberly Sound Mercurys and Matane, Que., Red Rocks to earn the eastern berth.

An impressive record and an impressive team—but Sudbury fans is a squad which came close to take the cup last year, losing out in the finals to Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, and which doesn't intend to make the same mistake twice.

Second game here in Vernon Wednesday and Kelowna Friday. Site of future contests will be decided by Dr. Bill Hunter, president of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association.

Italy's Mitri Still Middle Champion, Puts Turpin Bye-Bye With One Punch

ROME (AP)—Randy Turpin of Britain and Italy's Tiberio Mitri met on the comeback trail Sunday night. And 26 seconds after the opening bell Mitri was laughing happily again the European middleweight champion and Idol of Italy, and asking to tangle with world champion Bobo Olson.

Turpin, the former world champion, slammed to the canvas by his opponent's first punch, stood in his corner with glazed eyes, smiling a little, as if it couldn't have happened.

It was one of the quickest knockouts on record.

The end came so suddenly and the crunching punch was so short and swift that veteran fight reporters less than four feet away never saw the brutal left hook. They saw a blur, a pistol shot the way he went down," the elated Italian said later in his dressing room. "Now I want to fight Bobo Olson."

The disconsolate Turpin, who beat Sugar Ray Robinson for the middleweight crown in 1951 and later lost it to the American Negro in his dressing room, slumped on a stool.

"I could have gone on," Turpin said.

But his manager, George Middleton, later changed his mind and agreed that the referee was right in leading the beaten warrior in the corner and ending the fight.

Turpin won the European 160-pound title by knocking out Holland's Lucien van Dam in 1951.

Tory Gregg To Represent Ontario Body

TORONTO (CP)—At a special meeting Saturday the Ontario Hockey Association executive decided that president Tory Gregg of Whitby will be its special representative at the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association in Vancouver May 9-11.

Gregg will also be the OHA's nominee for the position of CAHA second vice-president if that position is vacated by Wilf Duranceau of Montreal. It is reported that Duranceau, ill for the last few weeks, will resign.

Gregg's endorsement brought a mild protest from Jack Dooley, an immediate past president of the OHA. He said he thought the should support the OHA member who contest the position if it is vacated by Duranceau.

Two years ago when the CAHA had an election of officers, Roxborough, the OHA president, lost out in the voting to Duranceau.

MATTER OF POLICY

OHA officials said it was a matter of policy to appoint its president to contest CAHA positions despite the fact that CAHA regulations stipulate that none of its officers may also be members of an affiliated branch.

The rule was introduced two years ago because many of the other branches said the OHA was getting too much foothold in the CAHA.

George S. Dudley of Midland is secretary-manager of the CAHA and W. A. Hewitt of Toronto is registrar-treasurer. Both are also on the OHA executive.

Eastern Body To Affiliate With OASA

BROCKVILLE (CP)—The Eastern Ontario Amateur Softball Association voted Saturday to affiliate with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

The decision was made following discussion on the advantage of such affiliation by OASA secretary Frank Feaver of Hamilton who attended the meeting. Feaver said the president of the EOASA would be appointed to the executive of OASA and that eastern Ontario will be invited to participate in Ontario playdowns. He added that minor softball groups would receive considerable assistance and encouragement.

One of the more important outcomes of the 32nd annual meeting was the expulsion from EOASA competition of Senior Service Commercial League, President Charlie Anderson said the Bull loop did not turn over the league senior softball championship trophy, which Service won it last season. The Bull group was accepted into the EOASA three years ago. The trophy has not yet been returned and the matter of withholding decided that a letter should be written to the Hull league about the matter.

Charlie Anderson of Ottawa, was re-elected president of the league and Larry Romhild, also of Ottawa, secretary - treasurer. Vice-presidents are Ralph Orlando of Smiths Falls and Vince Daley of Ottawa.

The next annual meeting will be held at Belleville the first Sunday in May 1955.

VALUABLE CATCH

In terms of value, lobsters are the biggest prize in the Atlantic coast and salmon on the Pacific.

PHIL FARLEY

Phil Farley, whose appointment in the Public Relations Department of Joseph E. Seagram and Sons Limited has been announced by Telford V. Kenney, Ontario Sales Manager. Mr. Farley, Senior Commercial League, President Charlie Anderson said the Hull loop did not turn over the league senior softball championship trophy, which Service won it last season. The Hull group was accepted into the EOASA three years ago. The trophy has not yet been returned and the matter of withholding decided that a letter should be written to the Hull league about the matter.

Horse Sense Bridge

By SAM GORDON
The Bibliter

The ranks of duplicate tournament players are split wide open on one very important subject. It is whether or not a player should open on a weak hand, or permit the deal to pass out.

To prove which is the best policy is something that nobody will be able to do convincingly, I fear. Because a lifetime of play is not long enough to handle the billions of different situations.

But my opinion sides with the passers. Probably because of my own experiences. In all my years of championship play, passing out weak hands has paid off with higher than average results.

Two things prompt this. One is that my partner can thin rely on every opening of mine. The other is that most opponents will keep it open and double with your own pair confident.

Deal number 21 in the national masters pairs is shown here:

♠Q J 10 6 5
♥Q 7 2
♦A 10 5
♣A 10 6

WEST EAST
♠A 9 4 3 ♠8 7 2
♥A Q J 6 ♥K 8 5
♦K 9 ♦Q 8 6 2
♣9 5 4 3 ♣K J 8

SOUTH
♠K
♥10 9 7 4
♣Q 7 2

There is no sound opening bid in any one of the four hands. Still, at each of the 36 tables the bidding was opened by somebody.

A little more than half the pairs that opened the bidding went down to a defeat of some kind. So, had they passed their side would have had a higher rating in accordance with match point scoring.

There were 18 different contracts: One or two or three notrump, two spades, two or three or four hearts, two diamonds, and three or five clubs. Some made it. Most of them went down.

There is probably no moral to any of this. Maybe a few who used a phony opening got the best of it by starting opponents in defence that went down. But mostly the openers went down.

The whole thing simmers down to whether it pays to lie to your partner on an opening bid. Some think it does not. Centuries from now it will still be in doubt.

I still think true bids are best. Even for the masters.

Movie Column

By ROB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — So you want to see Hollywood on your vacation?

You're liable to be disappointed. You probably want to watch them make movies. Unless you're a VIP you won't be permitted on a movie set.

And Hollywood itself is likely to be a disappointment. The studios, which are spread out in five communities besides Hollywood, look much like any other kind of factory from the outside. Hollywood boulevard is the same as most other main drags in medium-sized cities.

I don't mean that Hollywood isn't worth seeing. But you have to realize that you won't be dazzled by the glamor you have read about in fan mags.

You can get inside the studios if you'll pay for one of the bus tours. At least two of the studios have a deal with sight-seeing outfits whereby tourists can be driven through the lots. But you'll just see the buildings and some outdoor sets. You won't be allowed off the bus.

HAWKERS HERE TOO

There are also some tours conducted to the stars' homes. Or, if you have your own car, you can buy a map from hawkers on Sunset boulevard. It directs you to the homes of 300 stars.

If you want to see the actors at feeding time you could attend such bistros as Ciro's, Mocambo, Brown Derby, Romanoff's, Chasen's, Lacrue, Lucey's, etc. Test it, if the maitre d' will give you a seat-and if you can afford the prices, which range from fantastic to outrageous.

If you are alert and ambitious, you can see the stars at other places—in the swank stores and book shops of Beverly Hills, outside radio, TV and film studios, at theatre openings, charity shows, the better hotels, etc.

You'll probably want to watch your feet in the footprints of the stars at the Grauman's Chinese theatre. The summer concerts at the Hollywood Bowl are an experience you'll enjoy. Take a ride on the Hollywood freeway, if you dare compete with Los Angeles drivers, the most fearless in the world. Then drive up to the Hollywood hills and take a look at the sprawling metropolis. It's a sight you'll remember.

AT THE BELLE—Ann Blyth and Howard Keel appear in M.G.M.'s first CinemaScope Musical, "Rose Marie", song-filled romance laid in the Canadian Rockies. Screen version of the Rudolf Friml-Herbert Stothart operetta also features Fernando Lamas, Bert Lahr and Marjorie Main also star in the big color production showing today and Tuesday at the Belle.

AT THE McCARTHY—"Bad For Each Other" Columbia drama at the McCarthy Theatre today, stars Charlton Heston and Lizabeth Scott. Also Lloyd Nolan and Dianne Foster. Film deals with the "ghost surgeon" racket. Second feature is "That Man From Tangier" with Phil Archer.

AT THE CAPITOL — Whit Bissell, a prison guard, is held as hostage by the hill-crazed leader of the rioting inmates, Neville Brand, the new star find in Walter Wanger's sensational Allied Artists' production, "Riot in Cell Block 11", now at the Capitol theatre. On the same program an exciting drama "Murder Without Tears" starring Craig Stevens and Joyce Holden. Both hits are first Belleville showings.

Little Benny's Note Book

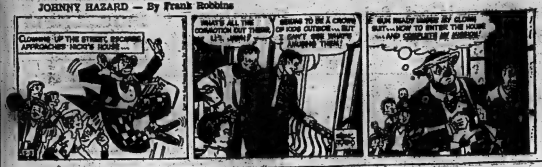
I was walking to the market with a list of things ma wrote down to get, and Puds Simkins came out of his house with a list of things his mother wanted, and we kept on going together. And the first thing we saw in the market was a lady in white, spreading some kind of cheese stuff on crackers and handing them out for free samples, and a line of ladies was walking past to get one to taist for nuthing, and Puds said, Oh boy, free samepls.

Oh boy, let's get in line, I said. While we did, about 8 ladies being ahead of us, and I said, G, maybe she wont give them to kids, sometimes they dont.

Maybe she'll think we belong to a cupple of these ladies, Puds said, and I said, Even if she dont, we're customers, aint we?

Sure, if she starts to say no kids, all we got to do is show her our lists and prove we came in to buy stuff, Puds said, and I said, Yeah, and if she says no kids anywhere, we'll tell her we'll go to some other market with our lists, where we're appriciated.

Sure, we can even claim we're going to ask the manager about it, that ought to scare her, Puds said.



Watch by that time there was only about 3 ladies ahead of us, on account of us being in the middle of the line instead of on the end, and Puds said, Heck, what do I want with cheese? At home I wont eat it even if I'm invited to, he said, and I said, G, neither will I, unless maybe it's creem cheese dishized with fruit. Heck, we needed all this time, I said.

And we quick got out of line just in time.

Trout-Fishing Season Open, Good Catches

TORONTO (CP) — The anglers were enthusiastic and so, apparently were the fish, as Ontario's trout-fishing season opened Saturday. Good catches were reported from most parts of the province.

An estimated 100,000 anglers dipped their lines in Ontario streams and lakes and found that trout were snapping in lively fashion.

Conservation officers said good cold Easterly winds rather than fancy flies seemed to be the most successful bait.

Most anglers travelled miles to get their favorite spots. But at Owen Sound, 14-year-old Bob Wilson, did it the easy way. He took three-pound rainbow from the Sydenham river—just a few minutes walk from his home.

Another keen Sound angler, Howard Siegrist, pulled in a 2½-pound rainbow within 15 minutes after midnight. A 10-pound laker was hooked by Bob Monkhouse in Hope Bay, Lake of the Islands in the Bancroft area.

Near Sudbury, Sudbury and Nipissing district fishermen can go after a new species of game fish introduced last year—the Wendigo. It is the result of two years of cross-breeding of brook trout and lake trout and has been stocked in seven northern lakes.

Rose Getting Ready to Launch Musical in Fall

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Rose is getting ready to set a new show spectacle before the populace.

"It starts in ancient Athens," Rose explains, "moves to heaven, then hell and back to Athens. Unless I'm a two-bit idiot it's a fine show."

It's a musical, "Orpheus in the Underworld." By current Rose planning it will be one of the early wonders of a new theatre season gets under way next fall.

Rose explained his new show is based on the melodic work of Jacques Offenbach. Three songs will be retained from that 19th-century composer's "Orpheus in the Underworld," but the Rose version will skim musical cream from such other Offenbach fare as "Tales of Hoffman," "la Belle Helene" and "Duchess of Gerolstein."

The book for the show is being done by Ben Hecht. E. Y. Harburg has the commission to prepare the lyrics. Casting is scheduled for next June.

Reminded that Offenbach is sometimes held in disregard by highbrow savants, Rose concurs: "Orpheus has not been performed —and quite rightly—in 23 years."

He fired two shots at the speeding car which was travelling in the opposite direction, but his cruiser slipped into the ditch as he tried to swing round to follow the car.

Earlier, constable Brown attempted to check an auto without a rear licence plate, but the driver sped away.

The constable continued after it towards Waterdown for about a mile, then noticed a car similar to the one he had been chasing travelling towards him at a high rate of speed. The shot came as he swung the cruiser around.

Fate of All Indo-China Hangs On Struggle at Dien Bien Phu

This story of the battle of Dien Bien Phu is based on a close study of accounts from AP correspondents and military authorities.

By REUMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

In the beginning, there were four main outlying strongpoints. They were built into gentle knolls on the northwest corner of the plain, near the base of the mountains. Each held about 200 soldiers, crowded into bunkers and trenches. Bristling clumps of barbed wire made the four outposts look like steel nettles. Each had been given a girl's name—Huguette, Dominique, Claudine, Elsea.

At a o'clock on Saturday, March 13, a bugle sounded somewhere in the hills.

By that hour in Indo-China, the mountain valleys are filling with purple shadows. The "opium road," which comes snaking down from China, is hard to see. The light is violet and deceptive.

After the first bugle, there was another, and another.

The first wave of Vietminh infantry hit the barbed wire and stuck there. A second wave followed. There were five in all. They attacked, Chinese fashion, yelling and screaming, and signalling with the bugles.

DECISIVE BATTLE

The attack lasted about an hour. When quiet came again, the French counted more than 100 bodies hanging in the wire. Some were moving; most were still.

So began the siege of Dien Bien Phu, 50 days ago.

The fate of all Indo-China may hang on this struggle. And it has been said, rightly or not, that the whole of Southeast Asia may be in the balance.

This is a decisive battle. It was planned by the French commander. If it has, not gone exactly as he planned, it is, in any case, another epic in the story of garrisons that stood firm against unequal odds.

Gen. Henri Navarre, commander in Indo-China, envisioned a series of such strongholds, well fortified bases, so situated as to command the main strategic areas and roadways of northern Indo-China. Their purpose was not only to block or impede the movement of large-scale Communist forces, but to provide springboards from which the French could operate.

Dien Bien Phu sits astride the "opium road" from China. It is about 70 miles from the Chinese border, and it blocks the path to Luang Prabang, capital of the Laos kingdom of Indo-China.

INHABITANTS EVACUATED

It is a flat, rock-strewn plain, about four miles wide and six miles long, and surrounded by mountains. The French base was in the centre of the saucer.

There had been a village at Dien Bien Phu with some 3,000 inhabitants, a gentle and smiling people who grew rice and vegetables and had a few pigs and some cattle. Their thatched-roof huts had to be destroyed and the great malarcity of the people left. Some, however, remained and are fighting today under the French tricolor.

Dien Bien Phu was designed as the kind of battleground where the French expected to have the advantage, for once, in open warfare.

The Vietminh commander, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, reacted rapidly. He pushed a Red division—usually 10,000 men—down the "opium road" and near enough to provoke a series of skirmishes with the garrison.

FRENCH BUILD-UP

Meanwhile, the French build-up was going on. Everything had to be brought by air from Hanoi, 170 miles away. Guns, ammunition, food, supplies of all kinds, even tanks, were flown over the rugged, jungle-covered mountains to the saucer.

Men, too, were coming in as fast as the transports could bring them. There were Viet Namese (non-Communist Indo-Chinese), officers from metropolitan France, burly Senegalese who prefer the knife at close quarters, Algerian and Moroccan riflemen, and as always, units of the Foreign Legion.

As commander Gen. Navarre chose an unusual soldier, Col. Christian Marie Fernand de la Croix de Castries, 53, a Parisian. His family has been sending officers to the French Army since the days of Louis XVI.

Why did Dien Bien Phu develop so differently from the plan of the French commanders?

Apparently the answer is that the Vietminh general, Giap, was able to bring up his forces far more rapidly than the garrison could push them back. All through December, January and February, the Communist build-up continued.

FRENCH OUTNUMBERED

They are believed to have four divisions, the equivalent of about 40,000 men, completely surrounding Dien Bien Phu now. The defenders number 10,000 to 14,000.

It was not long after the first Communist assault, March 13, before the outlying strongposts were overrun. The French pulled back to other trenches and strung more barbed wire in front of them.

The Vietminh moved up to these, using one of the oldest devices in warfare.

Sappers—mole men—tunnel up to the wire, and there dig trenches. If they can, they bring up explosives to tear holes in the wire. In reply, French tanks and infantry sally out to crush the trenches and tunnels and dig out the enemy with bayonets. The French believe they have put out of action at least 10,000 Reds, the equivalent of a division.

Now the big monsoon has begun. In Indo-China, the rains are almost like a solid wall of grey and pelting water. It is impossible to see more than a few feet through the downpour.

The monsoon may bog down the Vietminh, but the French are not optimistic about the effect on their own position. Their dumps and storehouses and "hospitals," filled with wounded, are well beyond the level of the ground. "We may have three feet of water down there in a week's time," an officer said.

Nevertheless, if the Communists hoped to crush Dien Bien Phu before the current Geneva conference is over, to strengthen the Red position at the bargaining table, they have failed.

MARMORA
H-S Association Holds Fine 'Men's Night'

MARMORA—The April meeting of Marmora Home and School Association held in the public school on Wednesday evening took the form of men's night.

Roy Frost, husband of the president, occupied the chair and secretarial duties were discharged by James Trombley, of the school teaching staff.

The chairman reported that the swings for the school grounds were in process of being made and it was hoped they would be ready for use by next month.

The attendance of grandparents and parents was taken by principal E. C. Prentice. His room and that of Mrs. James Heath shared the honors.

Leighton McGinnis presented the treasurer's report showing a good bank balance.

ART EXHIBIT

The chairman drew attention to the art exhibit to be held next week at which 17 paintings by eminent artists will be on view. Male members of the association were asked to assist with the unpacking and display of the pictures on Saturday.

James Sproul for the nominations committee drew attention to the fact that only 32 out of 52 nomination blanks sent out to members by him had been filled out and returned and asked that the matter be given urgent attention.

The chairman made the announcement of the meeting the I.O.D.E. is holding in the Masonic Hall on Friday evening which will be addressed by Miss Arkles of Belleville, a delegate to United Nations.

Mr. Frost brought up the matter of the Marmora and District Chamber of Commerce having sent a deputation to the school board relative to improvements at the school. The school had in mind the erection of a fence along the highway to the south of the school grounds as well as the beautifying and landscaping of the same grounds. It was suggested that a deputation from the Home and School Association meet the deputation from the Chamber of Commerce and the property committee which is headed by Vaughan Glover to give further support to the project.

Mr. C. A. Sorenson for the Chamber of Commerce deputation, spoke of having measured the grounds and going into the matter of landscaping and referred to a sketch that was available. Principal Prentice mentioned some obstacles to the beautifying of the grounds which should be removed and Donald Marett, chairman of the Public School Board reported the north side of the school grounds being levelled off at this time as a preparation for seeding.

DEPUTATION APPOINTED

The following were appointed as the deputation from the association to confer with the School Board and Chamber of Commerce deputation on the project, E. C. Prentice, J. Sproul and Mrs. R. Frost.

Mrs. F. Bobyk spoke briefly and called attention to the painting exhibition being given by her class in Marmora high school on May 19.

The business of the evening being ended, the entertainment followed taking the form of the showing of three films of the Shell Gas Company featuring the oil industry obtained through efforts of Mr. Sproul and shown by Mrs. A. F. Fraser.

These two members were thanked at the conclusion of their showing.

After the meeting closed the gentlemen served the ladies with refreshments.

Reds Will Find UN Korean Plan Hard to Reject

Pearson Vigorously Defends Record of United States

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENEVA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada today warned the Geneva conference that failure of peace moves in Indo-China may lead the world to consider further collective security measures.

At the end of his speech, he referred to the interest expressed by Asian countries which have just met at Colombo in assuring peace in Indo-China. He added:

"If these peaceful purposes are not achieved by a just, honorable and negotiated settlement, the consequences will be bad, and probably far-reaching.

MAY WIDEN SCOPE

"Failure here may well necessitate further collective consideration by those who, as a result of such failure, will feel increasingly threatened by further steps or by means to meet that threat. This, in its turn, may harden and make more dangerous the present line of division in the world. . . .

"The reward for success at Geneva will be great in terms of peaceful progress; but the penalty or failure may be even greater in terms of increasing tensions and the risk of war, with all its horrors of guilt and destroy us all."

Pearson made the latest part of his speech to a reply to Communist charges that the United States had been guilty of "aggressive imperialism."

DEFENDS U.S.

"As the leader of the delegation of the country which is a neighbor of the most powerful state in the world, I can say with a conviction, based on most intimate knowledge, that the people of the United States are neither aggressive nor imperialist.

"If indeed the United States did not respect the rights and interests of others, Canada would not today be an independent power, but merely a satellite of her powerful neighbor. Her representatives would not be able, as they certainly are able, to speak their own minds and stand up for their own views in councils of the nations, even if this means, as it has more than once meant, disagreement on many aspects of the policy of the United States."

COMMISSION UNWORKABLE

Discussing Communist proposals on Korea, Pearson made these points:

1. The proposed all-Korean commission suggested by North Korea's foreign minister, Nam Il, would be "completely unworkable, unfair and unacceptable."

2. The proposal by Communist China's Chou En-lai for a commission to bring about repatriation of Chinese and Korean prisoners of war who refused to go home would "serve no useful purpose." It was a dead issue.

Pearson said North Korea's desire for an all-Korean commission seemed to be the "central and vital" part of the Communist proposals. The non-Communist powers in that country "could not and will not take into consideration any question of proportional representation" in any settlement. South Korea is about 22,000,000 compared with 7,000,000 in North Korea).

NO AMBIGUITY

But Nam Il, Pearson said, had made clear in debate that the commission would arrive at its decisions simply by "counting on both sides." The Canadian minister added:

"This involves any ambiguity arising out of the scope of representation of North and South Korea, and over how decisions should be reached. It is clear now that even if North Korea had only 10 representatives in a commission of 100, they would have a veto over the activities and decisions of that commission.

"We know from long and bitter experience what this means. It means that a five-power commission would operate as the Communist members wished. This device of 'agreement on both sides' irrespective of the number of members or the number of people represented, would make, if nothing else made it impossible, any commission completely unworkable, unfair and unacceptable."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Cold Arctic air swept across Ontario Monday and dropped temperatures below freezing during the night. Occasional snow is continuing in the northern regions and a few snowflurries are expected in the southern parts today. Cold weather will continue over the province Wednesday.

GENEVA (AP). — The 38 countries which fought in Korea under the United Nations banner plan to put a compromise proposal on Korea before the Communists this week, a highly informed source said today.

This source said the compromise plan, its details were not given, would be a "very difficult thing" for Russia, Red China and North Korea to turn down.

The tentative plan, a reliable source said, is a compromise. It was said, will determine whether there is any real chance of unifying Korea and holding elections in the war-battered peninsula.

Differences among the 16 countries which fought in the Korean war problem were described as small and today there was said to be more unanimity than at any time since the Far East conference began last April 26.

VIETMINH GROUP ARRIVES

GENEVA (CP) — A five-man delegation representing the Communist Vietminh rebels of Indo-China arrived by plane from Moscow today to join talks at the Far East conference here aimed at ending the seven-year-old Indo-China war.

The delegation of Indo-Chinese rebels, headed by their deputy premier and foreign minister, Pham Van Dong, was met at the airport by an impressive array of Communist dignitaries. Among these were Russia's deputy foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko; Red China's premier-foreign minister Chou En-lai; and the North Korean foreign minister, Nam Il.

Representatives of the French-sponsored associated states of Indo-China, Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia, are still in Paris, but they can get here in little more than an hour by plane once a starting time for the talks is set. These four delegations will be dealt with representatives of the Big Four and China, with the aim of a conference which will seek to end the war.

The first item of business, however, will be to decide whether Communist China will be invited. Soviet source said Foreign Minister Molotov will propose that India, Burma, Thailand and Indonesia be added to the list.

ONLY A COUNTER

Observers said this might only be a tactical move. United States is anxious to keep the conference limited, and the Soviet informant said Molotov is prepared to insist on bringing in other countries if this does not jeopardize the parley.

The rapid progress made in setting up the Indo-China phase of the conference caught many delegates by surprise. They had expected much more basic work gaining on the procedure and composition of the parley.

NO CONFERENCE WILL BE CALLED ON QUEBEC TAX

Statement Made By P.M. in Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has eliminated a general federal-provincial conference as a means to solve the current Quebec income tax dispute.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday in the Commons that negotiation with the Quebec government is the only way to settle the issue which has arisen over that province's new 15-per-cent personal income tax.

Speaking in the budget debate, he said the province has made changes in its decision against personal income tax to be fully deductible from federal payments. The law permits only five-per-cent.

He said he knows of no alternative to the present federal tax-sharing agreement and hope the other nine provinces as a means to avoid double taxation.

However, the federal government was ready to consider any alternative put forward by Quebec, provided it could be offered to other provinces in lieu of their present agreement to assure the federal government of finances to meet obligations.

Referring to Opposition Leader Drew's suggested demand for a general-provincial conference on taxation and constitutional issues, he said: "I do not think we need such a conference if an alternative method is found."

CONFERENCE NO HELP

He added:

"I do not think that under any other condition the holding of a federal-provincial conference now would help us to solve the problem that is before us."

The government's position was one of "readiness at all times to confer with the authorities of Quebec for a full and frank discussion of any alternative to a tax rental agreement and hope that they will indicate their readiness to do so now."

Under the federal-provincial tax agreements, the provinces lease their income tax fields and federal-provincial conferences are held to come tax fields and succession duties. Each province receives grants in return for annual payments.

Mr. St. Laurent said there is no reason for other provinces to take part in discussions on the Quebec taxation problem.

Tax agreements, signed by the nine provinces in recent talks, had about three years to run and the government would not modify arrangements with any province before then.

Prairie farmers have been delayed in their seeding by cold weather. But spring work likely will be in full stride within a week or two.

Unofficial reports say that the Prairie dwellers plan to continue planting about the same acreage as last year when Canada grew about 18,000,000 bushels of wheat, 407,000,000 of oats and 282,000,000 of barley.

PRODUCE LESS GRAIN?

There have been some suggestions, mostly from producer groups, that with large grain surpluses overhanging world markets, perhaps less grain should be produced this year and more acreage left fallow. However, the majority of producers have rejected this view.

Initial prices for the 1953-54 crop year, announced last spring, were $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 northern wheat, 63 cents a bushel for No. 2 oats and 86 cents a bushel for No. 3 CW barley, basis delivery at Vancouver or the Lakehead.

The wheat board usually augments these initial prices by mid-year interim payments, usually of 20 cents a bushel for wheat. However, in the past few years, as time in some years, there has been no interim payment.

Gov.-General Tells Congress Peace Needs Infinite Patience

WASHINGTON (CP) — Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, governor-general of Canada, today said peace "can be won only by the quality of infinite patience."

In a prepared address, the first ever delivered to a joint session of Congress by a Canadian governor-general, Mr. Massey said Canada believes the United States does "that the problems of our time cannot be solved by military strength alone."

"The line can be held only by the deployment at the correct time of objective—peace—can be won only by the quality of infinite patience. In our collaboration, we may not always agree on every detail of policy and method to work together but there is no difference between us on the fundamental objectives we pursue; we may differ now and then on the 'hows' but never on the 'whys.'"

Mr. Massey's address to the joint session of the Senate and House of Representatives was the highlight of a 2½-day official visit by the governor-general to the U.S. capital where he opened Canada's pavilion in 1927. He is the first governor-general in 17 years to address any congressional House and the second in history. The first was Lord Tweedsmuir, who spoke to the Senate and House of Representatives separately in 1937.

Mr. Massey said today that United States can depend on Canadians as faithful friends and comrades.

HUNT DOWN RACISTS

"You and we work together in the international community. Along with kinsmen and friends across the seas, we are allies in defence of liberty and justice. And if I may say so I think that we in Canada, like you, have given proof that those values must be actively and zealously defended."

He reviewed Canada's efforts as a partner with the U.S.—joint defence of the far north; a brigade group in Korea; 12 air squadrons and a brigade group in Europe; mutual aid "on a considerable scale" to Europe and aid under the Colombo plan to Southeast Asia.

He said his visit reminds him of all the British Commonwealth

Roy Cohn Says Friends of Spy Worked on Radar

WASHINGTON (AP) — The McCarthy camp charged today that Associate Attorney General Warren Olney Jullius Rosenberg continued to work on radar secrets at Fort Monmouth, N.J., until the McCarthy sub-committee "accidentally" discovered it.

Roy Cohn, counsel to Senator McCarthy, called on Secretary Stevens whether he knew that to be a fact. Stevens replied that none of the four spy cases at Fort Monmouth was a Communist "so far as we know."

McCarthy called that "clearly false" testimony.

The spy sub - committee recessed for lunch. Stevens had testified for only 20 minutes. The rest of the forenoon session had gone into talk about a Navy plan for secret security checks proposed by Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep. Ill.) to confine the discussion to testimony by Stevens and McCarthy.

New Defeat For American Policy Says Pravda

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda today describes the Geneva agreement to invite the Vietminh to take part in Indo-China talks as "a new defeat for American policy."

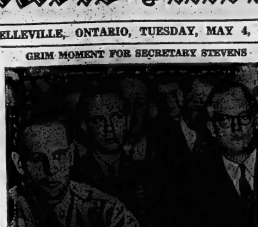
The Communist party newspaper, like the agreement itself, calls Secretary Dulles' departure from the conference "flight" and said it was a "flight" from Geneva.

Pravda's Geneva dispatch from Geneva says Dulles' departure, combined with the Indo-Chinese agreement, showed that United States was "compelled, if not to admit, at least complete retreat, at least to back up."

Jennie Lee Says Dulles' Diplomacy Delicate as Elephant Walking on Eggs

TORONTO (CP) — Jennie Lee, British Labor member of Parliament, said tonight she diplomacy of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of the United States "has all the delicacy of an elephant treading on eggs."

The 50-year-old wife of Aneurin Bevan was criticising Mr. Dulles' approach to European countries when he suggested a common defence policy for Communist-free Indo-China.



She addressed 2,800 persons at a meeting sponsored by the Toronto and District CCF Council.

"In Britain we don't think Mr. Dulles knows how to fight communism. We believe the great and generous people of the U. S. want their contributions to help make the peace and not to help make it in. But there are people in America as well as in Russia who think the world should be made over to their image."

Of the Indo-China war, she commented: "There is no reason why the Communists should not have behaved toward Indo-China as our Labor government behaved toward Malaya in setting her free."

Miss Lee's next stop is Washington.

GRIM MOMENT FOR SECRETARY STEVENS

Secretary of the U.S. Army, Robert T. Stevens (right) grimly watches as Pvt. G. David Schine, whose recent "coddling" brought the entire subcommittee to a standstill, testifies before the senate Investigations subcommittee in Washington. The two men differed on whether Stevens asked Schine to pose for a photo. (Central Press Canadian.)

Farmers Preparing for Seeding Without Knowing Crop Prices

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Prairie farmers are preparing their spring seeding operations without knowing what basic price crops will fetch next fall. They may not know until about the end of the crop year July 31.

Usually, about seeding time, the government posts initial prices the Canadian wheat board will pay on the harvesting of wheat, oats and barley which the board sells for producers under general arrangements.

This advance announcement gives the farmers some idea of how to concentrate their potential production to get the best possible return from farming operations.

However, Trade Minister Howe said Monday in the Commons in reply to Hazen Argue (CCF-Assiniboia) that an early announcement on initial prices will not be possible this year.

FACTORS OBSCURE

"There are too many factors that are obscure at the moment that will be reflected in the prices that will be fixed later in the season," he said. "Their announcement will certainly be made before the end of the crop year but not much before."

Under the federal-provincial tax agreements, the provinces lease their income tax fields and succession duties. Each province receives grants in return for annual payments.

Mr. St. Laurent said there is no reason for other provinces to take part in discussions on the Quebec taxation problem.

Tax agreements, signed by the nine provinces in recent talks, had about three years to run and the government would not modify arrangements with any province before then.

Prime Minister Comes Under New Income Tax Law

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec province's new income tax law affects even Prime Minister St. Laurent, the minister disclosed Monday in the Commons that, like others living outside Quebec, he comes under the provincial tax and already has made his first quarterly payment.

The provincial tax is approximately 15 per cent of federal income tax levies—the prime minister said it is "not being more or less" even in his case.

He noted that he will be entitled to deduct 15 per cent less of his federal income tax as a deduction when he settles his federal tax next spring.

He added:

"It of course no one likes the idea of having to pay about 10 per cent more income tax because he resides in the province of Quebec than if he resided elsewhere."

Mr. St. Laurent has an official residence here, but maintains a home in Quebec City.

QUEEN CONSENTS TO BE COLONEL CANADIAN GUARDS

Regimental Dress, Insignia Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—The Queen has consented to be colonel-in-chief of the Regiment of Canadian Guards, defence headquarters announced today.

The regiment, formed last October as the senior regiment in the six-regiment regular force Canadian infantry, is known simply as th Canadian Guards. The department said the Queen has indicated she favors this name for general service purposes, official title remains the Regiment of Canadian Guards.

Royal approval has been received for regimental badges, buttons and cap badge insignia. Ceremonial dress will include scarlet uniforms and black bearskin headdress. At first, only the band of the regiment's four battalions will wear the ceremonial uniforms, which will add a colorful touch to future Canadian Guards ceremonials.

NEW CAP BADGE

The new cap badge for the guards is a gilt-finished silver metal star, the points representing the 10 provinces. On top of the star is a crown. Below the crown, and in the centre, a sprig of three maple leaves grow from a scroll-like field, surrounded by the motto "Ex mari usque ad mare"—from sea to sea—in a red-coloured scroll.

At the suggestion of the Queen, stars of Canadian military insignia of rank will be miniatures of the cap badge without the crown.

Shoulder flashes denoting the battalion and regiment will be worn on the battledress. It will be on a white and red background. The guards will wear blue forage cap, or peak, caps. All officers will have gold braid on theirs.

REGIMENT BATTLE PATTERN

Generally speaking, the dress follows the pattern of the British Brigade of Guards.

All five British guards regiments—Grenadier, Coldstream, Scots, Irish and Welsh—wear black bearskin caps, scarlet tunics with blue facings, dark blue trousers with two-inch red stripes when they are on public duties.

Three of the Canadian guards battalions have been formed. The first battalion is at Petawawa, Ont., the 3rd at Valcartier, Que., and the 4th in Korea. The 1st will be formed at Petawawa from the 3rd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, which returned recently from Korea.

Explains Reduction In Fraud Case Amount

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Attorney-General Curtis said Monday in the Newfoundland legislature the latest charges against Dr. Albert A. Valdmanis was reduced because the original figure did not conform with the dates on the charges.

Valdmanis, former director-general of economic development here and former minister without portfolio, is standing German machine company of $270,000. The charge now is for $360,000 and the solicitor-general Myles Murray reduced it to $90,000.

The charge said the fraud was committed between January 1 and October 1951. Valdmanis is also charged with defrauding the Newfoundland government of $135,000.

Prince Charles, Princess Anne Get Into Thick of Tour at Malta

VALLETTA, Malta (Reuters) — Prince Charles and Princess Anne today got into the thick of their parents' royal visit to this Mediterranean island.

Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh kept them on the royal yacht Britannia Monday so they wouldn't get over-excited. But this morning Prince Charles, 5, and tow-headed Princess Anne, 3, left the yacht for a programme of jam-packed streets. The heir to the throne was in his admiral's uniform, bands blared all around him and soldiers stood at attention, with guns.

At the Phoenicia Hotel they met the Queen and the duke. Then they walked onto a carefully scrubbed balcony and stood on a specially built platform so that the Queen inspect Maltese soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Prince Charles wore shorts, and his little sister wore a honey-colored dress which was inherited by brother's shirt.

They forgot all about the parade when a brown-and-white dog got out of hand and wandered among the marching troops, dodging frantic purseers. Charles and Anne laughed and pointed excitedly as the mongrel until a perspiring Guardsman nabbed it.

Admiral Earl Mountbatten stood beside the royal couple on the reviewing stand.

The Britannia brought the royal party to Malta Monday from Tobruk, Libya, where the Queen and the duke saw their children for the first time since they left on their global tour of, the Commonwealth five months ago.

The royal couple will be here another three days before going to Tripoli, Libya, for last stop before returning to London.

Russia Ratifies UN Convention On Genocide

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet deputy foreign minister Andrei Vishinsky informed the United Nations Monday the Soviet Union has ratified the UN convention against genocide and a convention on political rights for women.

QUEEN'S Vietminh Renew Massive Assault On Dien Bien Phu

'Bitter Combat Under Way' States French Communique

HANOI (AP) — Renewing their massive infantry assault on Dien Bien Phu, the Communist-led Vietminh captured a new French strongpoint today on the western side of the besieged northwest Indo-China fortress.

A French army command announcement here said the battered French Union defenders inside the crumbling defences immediately launched a strong counter-attack.

"Bitter combat now is under way," the communique said.

But the communique indicated that the rebel renewal, at least in its initial stage, might be of less magnitude than the all-out attack which began Saturday night and was suspended the next day.

The Communique said Communist Lt. Gen. Nguyen Giap had launched his black-clad troops at eastern side of the main French Union garrison's defences.

FORTRESS SHRINKING

The latest attack was preceded by the usual step-up in the constant rain of rebel mortar and artillery fire. The rebels also kept up a constant digging of trenches in the areas from which they had driven the French Union forces.

The French said the Vietminh legions returned to the attack shortly after midnight, charging in small waves against the western sector.

Savage hand - to - hand fighting raged throughout the night. As dawn broke over the mountain pass, the battle still was in progress.

The Vietminh followed their usual pattern of attacking undeterred with human tidal waves. The second wave pressed so closely behind the first that it was almost bumped the household operations sub-group by a tenth of a point to a record 117.6.

Living Costs Are Resisting Rising Rents

OTTAWA (CP)—Living costs are resisting the impact of rising rents with lower food prices.

The particular measuring food costs made its fifth consecutive monthly decline in February, dropping to a nine-month low.

And while rents and homeownership costs rose to a new high, the consumer price index, measuring not for living costs generally, slipped by a fifth of a point to 113.5, lowest in eight months.

The March survey of the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, will not be published Wednesday.

Pork, cottee and fruits jumped in February, but beef and fresh vegetables countered with overbalancing drops, cutting the food sub-index by a full point to 110.7, lowest since last June at 110.1 of April, 1953.

In contrast, the shelter column, which includes rents and home ownership costs, continued its climb, moving up a full point to 125.6, up a fifth of a point from the previous month and three points in a year.

RELATIVE STABILITY

The opposing moves between food and rents, in some respects, give the appearance of a period of relative stability in living costs.

The drop of a fifth of a point in the consumer price index for February compares with no change in January and a drop of a point of a point in December.

And "there is nothing in the wind," says a federal economist, to indicate any major shift from this period of general stability in the next few months.

Other shifts in the consumer price index during February:

The clothing sub-index eased to 109.8, as scattered decreases shaved it by a fifth of a point.

Higher prices for dry-cleaning, laundry and for rent and house bumped the household operations sub-group by a tenth of a point to a record 117.6.

Rotarians Told Of Work Done In Astronomy

Dr. Peter Millman, an astronomer with the stellar physics division of the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa told Rotarians of the work being done in astronomy at the great observatories in North America in an illustrated address entitled "Probes Against the Sky", delivered Monday noon.

Dr. Millman, who did post-graduate work at Harvard and who was associated with the David Dunlop Observatory in Toronto for 10 years before taking his present position in Ottawa, illustrated his address with beautiful colored slides of the principal observatories in Canada and the United States, all of which he has visited in the past few years.

He prefaced his address by stating that he had "nothing to say about flying saucers" and then proceeded to say that there hasn't been anything happening in the heavens for the last 50 years that would affect windshields."

OLDEST OF SCIENCES

Describing astronomy as "the oldest of the sciences" Dr. Millman stated that progress in astronomy was greatest when men abandoned the teachings of Aristotle and began making instruments, measuring and recording events to determine the phenomena of the universe.

"For the past few years all the big telescopes in the world have been in the United States," said the speaker.

The speaker referred briefly to the work of the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa. He noted that the Harvard Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., had pioneered photographic astronomy taking the first picture of the moon and the first picture of a star. In addition to Harvard astronomy has varied it equipped with a 24 foot paraboloid reflector set for detection of eight and one half inch radio waves emitted by hydrogen. It has also had radio astronomy using this device, had been able to measure the age of the heavens whose light is shielded by other heavenly bodies.

PICTURES SHOWN.

Mr. showed pictures of the building housing the six inch reflecting telescope in the University of New Brunswick, the first observatory in Canada, as well as pictures of the 74 inch reflector at the Dunlop observatory north of Toronto. She largest instrument of its kind in the British Commonwealth.

He also described the scene on a brief pictorial journey to the Commonwealth observatory at Canberra, to the McDonald observatory in the Rio Grande Valley, Texas with its 82 inch reflecting telescope; to the U.S. solar observatory in New Mexico; to the Oak Creek Canyon meteorite shower in Arizona; and to the Lowe observatory at Flagstaffe, Arizona, which he described as the centre in which the finest observations of the planets had been made.

He concluded his address with comments on the great observatories of California on the Lick observatory with its 120-inch reflecting telescope being installed as well as its 36-inch lens telescope; the Mount Wilson observatory near Los Angeles with its 100-inch reflecting telescope; and the giant Palomar observatory in southern California with its 200-inch Schmidt telescope and its 200-inch reflecting telescope—the largest in the world.

Dr. Millman was introduced by Rev. Andrew Mackenzie and the thanks of Rotary were expressed by Stan Goodwin.

Rotary president Harold Mott, thanked all those responsible for the successful promotion of the two piano concert of Cara and Greg Butler, which was sponsored by the Rotary Club. Lee Grills, brought greetings from the Hamilton, Bermuda, Rotary Club and Don McKinnon announced the forthcoming ladies' night to be held at the Masonic Temple.

Rev. Herb Middleton led the sing-song accompanied on the piano by Egerton Boyce.

Fisherman Loses Left Hand As Stick of Dynamite Explodes

An Ottawa fisherman, who blew off his left hand while attempting to dynamite trout in Ashby Lake about six miles from Denbigh last Saturday evening, is recovering in Renfrew hospital today.

Toby Russell of Ottawa and Wes Kemp of Kingston, both in their late forties or early fifties, were out on Ashby Lake in a boat when the accident occurred, about 8.00 p.m. Saturday evening.

It is reported that Russell lit one stick of dynamite and then, believing the fuse was not burning, tried to light it a second time. It was while he was attempting to light it for the second time that the dynamite exploded, blowing off his left hand at the wrist, injuring his right arm and the side of his face.

Kemp was slightly injured by the powder blast. The outboard motor and the stern of the boat were also damaged.

The two men made their way to shore but were unable to use their car because of a flat tire.

Harold Shannon of Kingston, who was staying in a nearby cottage, drove the two men to Renfrew where both were admitted to Renfrew hospital.

Russell, who was suffering from a great loss of blood, was given blood transfusions and hospital officials refused to permit conversation officers and police to interview him Sunday and Monday because of the seriousness of his condition. Kemp was allowed to return to his home in Kingston on Sunday.

E. W. Ferguson, conservation officer at Denbigh, discovered the two men at the lake on a routine check on trout fishermen and called the police for assistance.

Both men will be charged with dynamiting fish. The charge is accompanied by a minimum fine of $100.

Conservation officer Ferguson, will interview Russell in Renfrew Magistrate's court.

Denbigh is 85 miles northeast of Belleville in Frontenac County.

Mercury Touched 20-Year Low Last Month

Statistics have proven what the majority of local residents knew all along—that the weather during April was a long way from being springlike.

While the month just past was a long way from being the coolest April statistics maintained at the Belleville water purification plant on the Trent road show that the mercury dropped lower last month than in any April in the past 20 years.

The records show a low of 7.2 degrees. On the other hand the weather did warm up occasionally and the high for April was 71.8, all of which went for a mean temperature of 44.5 degrees.

Actually the "chilliest" April in the past 20 years was back in 1943 when the mean temperature for the month was but 36.5 degrees. The high point reached that month was just 63 and the low was 12 degrees.

Highest temperature reached in any April in the past two decades was in 1942 when Old Sol really turned it on and the mercury climbed to 81 degrees. Incidentally April of that year had the highest mean temperature in the 20-year period.

Rainfall last month was 1.61 at 2.39 inches but at that it lacked considerable of the 4.39 inches received in 1951 which had the highest precipitation at 4.90 inches, including one-tenth of an inch of snow.

Seldom is there much snow in April but apparently this doesn't always hold true. Last month there was but a half inch of the fluffy white stuff, back back in 1944. April saw 3.1 inches or nearly as much as is received all winter some years.

Just two years ago—in 1952 April saw no snow at all. That was the only year in the past twenty that it had failed to snow in April.

Only One Shirt Missing of All Clothing Stolen

When Jack Lloyd of Bannockburn, went to his car this morning and found that it had been entered with $70 worth of new clothes missing he had little hope any part of his wardrobe would be recovered.

But he reckoned without the action of the thief and the honesty of a neighborhood woman who found the missing clothes on her verandah.

Mr. Lloyd had parked his car for the night outside 23 East Street, and this morning found it had been entered. He reported the theft to police and a few minutes later, Mrs. P. Osland, 62 Gordon Street, called the police station to report she had found men's clothing on her verandah. Lloyd identified the articles of clothing as his own, but one new shirt was missing.

Sgt. Tom Brady, Marmora, Talked With Queen, Duke

VALLETTA, Malta (Reuters)—Canadians got special attention from Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh during a special Commonwealth memorial service here Monday.

The Queen walked to the ceremony down a "Canadian avenue" of picked RCAF airmen from Canadian bases in Britain, France and Germany.

After Air Commodore Martin Costello placed a wreath for Canada and the RCAF at the unveiling of the Commonwealth air forces memorial here, the Queen paused to chat with Mrs. Annie Lavoie and Madeleine Patenaude of Montreal.

The duke then joined in the conversation, and spoke warmly of places he and the Queen had visited during their 1951 tour of Canada.

Present when the Queen unveiled the Commonwealth memorial was Wing Cmdr. Stan Turner of Toronto. Turner, who holds the DSO and DFC, flew Hurricanes from Malta during the war.

The royal couple also chatted with Mrs. R. MacMillan, wife of a Vancouver lumber millionaire, and with Sgt. Gerry Richards of Montreal and Sgt. Tom Brady of Marmora, Ont.

FILE ATOMIC SUIT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two residents of San Bernardino, Calif., Monday filed a federal court a joint $200,000 damage suit against the federal government, charging that they suffered injuries from atomic dust generated in tests at Yucca Flats, Nev., last year. They were Elma Mackelprend and Dewey A. Horit.

Thousand Bulbs Used in Design At Memorial Park

Citizens are reminded to take a drive or a walk up Station Street and visit Memorial Park where they will see a beautiful design of the Cross in white tulips and the remainder of the design back in red tulips with a border of white tulips. One thousand bulbs were planted last fall to make the design, under the authority of the Parks Commission and the work being done by Gordon Nicholson, parks superintendent. Mr. Nicholson deserves a great deal of credit for this fine job, well done and the Parks Commission is very grateful. The design will be at its best next Sunday, Mother's Day.

It will long be remembered by all citizens, the special coronation design "God Bless Our Queen" that the Parks Commission's enthusiast superintendent Nicholson to go ahead with in 1953.

When the bulb order is finished, another special design depicting the "Coat Of Arms" of the City of Belleville will be set out in plants of various colors to take its place.

Three Accidents Cause Extensive Property Damage

Extensive property damage resulted Monday evening in three separate accidents in which motorists kept city police busy. Property damage only resulted and no one was injured in the mishaps.

Most serious of the collisions was on Bridge Street at Albert, when a northbound car driven by Robert D. Adams, 272 Albert Street, collided with a westbound car on Bridge Street, driven by Clifford W. Flaughton.

Adams was said to have stopped before entering Bridge Street but failed to see the approaching car. The Adams' auto had about $150 damage, while $600 resulted to the other car.

A three-car rear end collision on Dundas caused about $250 to the three vehicles. Thomas J. Campeau, 198 Dundas Street, was east-bound being followed by the other two vehicles when he stopped to make a left turn. The second car driven by Blanko Klemencic, Batawa, was able to stop, but the third car driven by Walter Pavlish, 194 Front Street, failed to slop in time and bumped into the car ahead, which was forced into the first car.

The third mishap occurred on Station Street when Andrew Sudeta's garage. E. B. Kerr, 305 Dufferin Avenue, was west-bound and attempting to make a left turn when the second car went out of control and up the grass of the Trudeau forecourt and crashed into a light standard. Damage amounted to about $200.

Suzanne Cavers, Don Weir Win Scholarships

Over 300 persons Monday night saw and heard seven students of the Collegiate and Albert College compete in the fourth annual contest for voice training scholarships offered by the Belleville chapter of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. This year's contest, held at the Collegiate Auditorium and sponsored by the B.C.I.V.E. Home and School Association, was attended by the largest audience to date for this competition, and those in attendance were well rewarded by the efforts of the youthful contenders.

The Professor J. P. Haig, of the Ontario College of Education, fell the task of making the important decision and after serious deliberation he awarded the scholarships to Miss Suzanne Cavers of B.C.I.V.S. and Mr. Don Weir of Albert College. In his remarks previous to announcing the decision, the Adjudicator emphasized the difficulty he had to be faced in trying to judge such excellent performances. He expressed his appreciation of the high calibre of the singers which the schools had presented. Professor Haig then commented on each of the singers, and offered constructive criticism.

Last year's winners, Mrs. Jarka Hradecky (formerly Novak) and Mr. James Laughlin each sang for the audience, and showed the results of the further training which they had taken over the last year.

A mixed choir of students from Grades 10, 11 and 12, under the direction of Mr. Templer entertained the audience at the beginning of the program. Their singing was excellent and a wonderful credit to Mr. Templer's instruction. The Barbershop chorus, directed by Mr. Alf Evans rounded out the program with songs in barbershop style.

Mr. Bob Parks acted as master of ceremonies for the contestants and Jean Brentnhopper's President, Dick Brettingham, expressed the thanks of the organization to all concerned with the success of the evening.

Beaver Believed In Mill Flume Has Disappeared

A lone beaver that had fed all winter on grain at the Canniffon grist mill all but stopped the mill operating yesterday when employees found he had gotten himself trapped in the mill flume and was in danger of being drawn into water turbine.

The beaver was spotted in the flume when mill employees went to remove stop logs in the dam. The mill owner called provincial police. They in turn notified a wild life conservation officer, who said he would rescue the animal.

A check later in the day, however, revealed that the beaver had disappeared. Mill employees were unable to say whether he had been able to escape from the flume or whether he had met an untimely end by being drawn down into the mill turbine.

Police Blotter

Laziness cannot be one of the causes for a person developing into a thief.

At least that is the feeling of city police officers who today reported the theft of an expensive lawn mower from the showroom of the Canadian Tire Corporation store on Bridge St.

Apparently remembering the sweet lost while pushing a mower on his own lawn, one police officer commented: "Now who would want to steal a lawn mower?"

STILL TURNING UP

Missing Cora Cola school traffic signs are still turning up. During the night another of the traffic signs distributed by the soft drink company was found in a ditch and taken to the police station.

Over the week-end three of the signs were recovered — one from the Moira River, and two in a ditch in Thurlow township.

Hospital Chapel Fully Discussed By Ministers

The ministers of the Belleville Ministerial Association met in Bridge Street United Church parlors on Monday, for their final meeting of the fiscal year. Devotions were conducted by the president, the Rev. Keith Daniel.

Among the several items of business discussed was the matter of the Hospital chapel. It was unanimously voted to open an account with a local bank to be known as the 'Hospital Chapel Fund'. Donations for this fund to be gratefully received.

Bible Society Sunday, to be recognized this year on May 30, was again brought to the attention of the Association by the local chairman, Archdeacon J. R. Creegan. It is hoped that many will avail themselves of the special services planned for the evening of May 30 at 8.30 p.m. to be held in Bridge Street United Church with Prof. R. A. Ward of Wycliffe College as guest speaker.

The highlight of the meeting was an address which was given by the Rev. Miriam Collins. Speaking on the subject of "The Christian Ministry," Miss Collins told of her call to the ministry emphasizing that in any call to Christian service there must be a conviction that it is the will of God. "As for our work," the speaker continued, "we are called to serve and this we can only do effectively as we are able to say with Paul, "yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

The Rev. A. Strother moved a vote of thanks to Miss Collins for her most stimulating and thought-provoking address.

The Rev. J. F. Everson closed the meeting with the benediction.

MOTOR ACCIDENT STATISTICS

A little lightning calculation reveals that 11,363,636 miles per annum is the danger line for the car-driver. If he drives more than that, say 11,364 miles per year, the law of averages says that he will die in an automobile accident before he is a thousand years old.

Of course no guarantee goes with this prediction, aside from a warranty of its inaccuracy. Lady Luck is always spitefully reaching the law of averages. There is the chance that faith in our mastery of the mysteries of mathematics may be as misplaced as trust in the weatherman. And even if Lady Luck and our arithmetic were both as reliable as the setting of the sun we should be unable to cope with the fact that the motor vehicles branch of the Department of Highways is as ambiguous as the Delphic Oracle.

Perhaps, therefore, we had better give you the plain unvarnished facts. The Department of Highways, in its report on motor vehicle traffic accidents during 1953, states that on the basis of gasoline consumption there were 8.8 persons killed for each 100,000,000 miles travelled. It does not say whether, by miles travelled, it means passenger miles of vehicle miles. We presume it refers to vehicle miles, as we see no method by which gasoline consumption can be related to the number of passenger miles. The latter figure, however, is really the relevant statistic, because it is the passengers and not the vehicles which get killed.

To obtain our magical formula of 11,363,636 miles per annum as the danger line, we divided the 8.8 deaths into 100,000,000 miles and arrived at the conclusion that one person died for every 11,363,636 miles travelled. A driver could put in that distance in a thousand years by driving 11,363,636 miles per year. By the time he had been driving a thousand years, somebody in his car, but not necessarily himself, would meet death in an accident. That is if the Highway Department's statistics referring to deaths per thousand vehicle miles. If the reference was to passenger miles, death would have kept an appointment with his auto considerably earlier, since there is likely to drive for the average vehicle with more company.

The important thing about this death rate is that it is going down. In 1952 there were 9.2 fatalities for every 100,000,000 miles travelled and the average for the ten-year period from 1944 to 1953, both years inclusive, was 10.4 deaths per 100,000,000 miles. The death rate per 10,000 vehicles registered is also declining, being 7.7 in 1953 compared with 7.8 in 1952 and 8.3 for the ten-year period from 1944 to 1953. The rate per 100,000 population, however, is rising rapidly, being 22.1 in 1953, 21.15 in 1952 and only 17.9 for the ten-year period. In other words, more people are being killed on the highways, but the rate of increase in fatalities is less than the rate of increase in motor vehicles registered and operating on these highways and less than the rate of increase in the number of miles travelled.

Another interesting point is that, while there were 115,975 persons injured in accidents in 1953, only 110,357 drivers were involved. Obviously, therefore, some drivers must have been involved in more than one accident. That, in itself, is not startling, but when we learn that there were 1,145,902 registered drivers who went through the year without an accident of any kind it acquires greater significance.

Coming to home territory in the statistical field, we learn that the number of accidents in Belleville declined during the year, to 162 compared with 164 in 1952. Only one person was killed in the year injured, compared with one death and 65 injured in 1952.

The number of accidents in Hastings County increased, from 835 in 1952 to 1,000 in 1953, but the number of fatalities declined, from 25 to 14, and the number of injured also dropped sharply, from 348 to 289.

Prince Edward County's accidental total jumped from 136 to 161, but the number killed dropped from four to fatalities dropped, from five to three, and the number of injured persons also declined, from 58 to 52.

The total number of persons killed in the province increased from 1,010 to 1,082, and the number injured rose from 23,634 to 24,353, these statistics for this district are highly encouraging.

WINDSOR GROWING

We are indebted to the Windsor Star for the information that Windsor, Canada's 10th city in population, ranks third in the amount of money to be spent during the coming year on new public utility construction. The $30,705,000 which the Department of Trade and Commerce estimates will be spent in Windsor in 1954 is exceeded only by the $150,980,000 in Montreal and $130,163,000 in Toronto. Windsor is far ahead of such cities as Vancouver, Winnipeg, Quebec City, Ottawa, Edmonton or Calgary, and is trailed by Hamilton with an expected expenditure of $73,093,000.

We only hope that the Federal government doesn't take this as a challenge to make Ottawa the "capital" city in factory investment too.

IF LIFE SHOULD SAY TO ME

If life should say to me: Shut eyes to beauty,
Keep heart and strength and mind upon your duty,
Set not the flowers or bees which dip their honey,
See nothing in this lovely world but money—
That way lies fortune; blundering I'd go
And stop to gaze at tulips, row on row.
As does the boy, upon an errand sent,
Delay to watch a fire or accident,
Forgetting both his mission and its need,
Or I, though duly bound, should check my speed
And stop to hear the noisy whippoor-will
And play the laggard among daffodils.
Though warned by life to look not left nor right,
I still should turn if roses were in sight.
Forgetful of my mission, I should stay,
Hold by a sunset or a garden gay,
And should a wild thrush warble from a tree
I'd take his song and let the money go.

Ploughing of vacant lots in the city which will be allotted to the unemployed who desire to plant gardens, will be started tomorrow under the direction of Ald. William Harvey, chairman of labor in the relief committee. Seventy three names have been registered and if applicants exceed the free lots, the majority of those asking for lots this year are also to be made a success of growing produce last year on the same arrangement.

Mr. Samuel Good, a well known and highly respected resident of Thurlow township, celebrated the 80th anniversary of his birth on May 2nd and many friends extended to him congratulations and good wishes. The day prior to his birthday he made the trip to Belleville on the Tweed motor bus and enjoyed sightseeing through the stores and making purchases, he returned home on the late afternoon bus much pleased with his outing.

Mr. Horace Lattimer has returned home from the College of Pharmacy, Toronto, to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Denike and family spent Wednesday in Oshawa.

Mayor Clapper of the Boston Bruins, Doug. Brennan of the New York Rangers and "Toots" Holway of this city were tendered an honorary banquet by the Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Quinte Wednesday evening. The members were also brought them along and those without sons brought another boy to meet these hockey players whose names are synonymous with the progress of the game in Canada.

Did you know that street cars used to be manufactured in Belleville? Well, here is the proof form our file copy at this office: "Messrs. Thomas was the case; "Messrs. St. Charles and Pringle are busy on the contract ing work on the construction of 40 feet cars for the Montreal Street Railway. To the foregoing it may be added that the firm of St. Charles and Pringle has already manufactured the majority of omnibuses used by hotel owners from coast to coast to convey their patrons free of charge, from the railway station to the hotel and also to take them back to the railway station. Many Bellevillians when travelling will at times notice a name on the bus and read the notice at the front of the bus that it was manufactured in Belleville by the firm of St. Charles and Pringle, but Mr. Pringle has retired from the firm and Mr. James St. Charles controlled the company. There are other carriage manufacturing companies in Belleville, the Ashley Carriage Company, the Brown Carriage Company and the Pringle Carriage Company, but omnibuses and street cars were manufactured only by the St. Charles and Pringle Company.

Surgery and the War

C. L. Bolls reviews in London edition of a medical account of the part played by surgeons in the recent world war, under the direction of Sir Harold Gillies, founder of plastic surgery, and brief mention is also made of the work done by Sir Archibald McIndoe, who is now carrying on the work in East Grinstead.

There is no need for me to tell you about the world war of 1939 to 1945; you know that. It was a war of strategy and tactics and battles and so on. But there is a part of it you probably have not heard about, the part concerned not with destruction but reconstruction, the reconstruction of men's—and women's bodies. The work, in short, of our surgeons. Today there are thousands of British men and women living and in full health, lives who have suffered injuries that a generation ago would have written off as killed them or else left them, though technically alive, irreparably damaged.

What and whom do they have to thank for this? The answer is partly that they were well fed and cared for when they were in the services, so that they were able to withstand injury and illness. We have learned a lot about nutrition, the surgeons themselves have realized that a lot of apparent success was the work of these surgeons that saved lives and gave men back health, so that they were whole and unharmed, as if they had never been wounded at all; and at worst were still useful bodies free from much of the severe suffering that was seen a generation ago.

The chief surgeons have now total full-time jobs and are very full and factual report as part of The Medical History of the Second World War, published by His Majesty's Stationery Office. This part is by Sir Harold Gillies and Sir Archibald Mclndoe and is edited by Sir Zachary Cope. I want to dip into this immensely interesting book to answer the question to summarize the whole of it. J can but select a few examples to tell you about them.

Perhaps the first is the use of anaesthetics. This revolutionised surgery, as we all know, and you probably think that there is nothing much to say that is new, but the modern anaesthetic is not long before the war, for example, a new anaesthetic appeared, known as one of the barbiturates, thiopentone sodium, and its popular trade name is Pentothal. It was hailed as a narcotic and was popularized as the "truth drug."

I do not suppose many surgeons at the beginning of the war appreciated that this new anaesthetic taking the place of inhaling anaesthetics, was going to become just this for thousands of operations. The tremendous advantage of it is that there is no other apparatus needed but a hypodermic syringe, and even seconds a patient is unconscious. So it has been found invaluable to surgeons. "What should we do without Pentothal' was the question that was asked time and time again.

Over eighty per cent. of the casualties treated in Sicily, Italy, Africa and Italy in the winter of 1943-4 were done with thiopentone, and this figure increased to ninety per cent. towards the end of the war. It is easy to see that this drug could be used meant hundreds of men owe their survival to it.

Another anaesthetic device that proved its worth was called the intravenous drip method. Before the war in the University of Oxford, Ether was the anaesthetic used, and the method of the system was to keep the supply of gas to the patient constant and regular, assessed, by maintaining the ether at a constant percentage in the oxygen centigrade, thus giving a constant vapor pressure.

But in 1942 we had a common chemical, calcium chloride, which when it was injected into a partly liquid at exactly thirty degrees Centigrade. So, if the other liquid surrounding the calcium chloride the anaesthetist needs only to keep it at that temperature and the patient is ready to be sure he is getting the right pressure of gas. This apparatus is simple and automatic, proved successful in all the theatres of war.

And then there is blood plasma, something that in the long run may turn out to be the most important advance of all. This was the effective answer to the problem of administration of anaesthetics in a highly skilled occupation. So people who have lost blood, by the job, and every advanced field surgical unit and casualty clearing station had its trained anaesthetist whose job was solely, so to speak, to put into the veins of the dying or the injured patient and for the correct blood pressure, and in fact plasma as important, in set that they suffered no ill effects.

The facts I have selected are very impressive, but they are by no means the whole story of the wonderful work done by surgeons. include all the apparatus of many sorts, and all the varieties of drug, including one that came late in the war from Canada, the muscle-relaxing drug curare that was originally used as an arrow poison by primitive people.

All in all, an extraordinary job was done, as the surgeons say, so that many hard-pressed surgeons working with knife and scalpel in the front line in the unbelievably mutilated body of a young man who had a few hours earlier been it: it is the immediate treatment perhaps the fit and eager pilot of an aircraft, could always rely on having that body still and relaxed and free from pain whatever hail of rifles and bombardment there might be going on around. Thus he could concentrate on his surgery, so that in most cases the mutilated body was healed and restored to normal.

The photographs are striking documentation, and many are in color and all the more distressing for that. Hands with the tendinous stumps where the fingers should be, and, believe it or not, eventually new fingers made from a crushed skull, the enormous torn and gaping wounds of typically the vital organs—but I cannot go on harrowing you with this sort of detail. Take them for granted and protect your sensibility. And admire all the more the surgeon who can look undaunted at all this and think and think only of the life to save and the body to repair. I said 'repair' and that decision to lop off part of a limb was not the modern surgery way. It was the last resort, he had to do it he did so after exhausting all the possibilities of artificial limbs, so that the prospects for the unfortunate sufferer was not to condemn him without the prospect, that it, of salvaging the part of the body that remained was better than it had ever been.

Plaster was used extensively to give a rigid casing and protection. Many of the worst surgical lesions from flesh wounds to bone fractures. It was special to plaster. This was very effective indeed, so that men with spinal fractures could be moved about in a body plaster jackets. During the Battle of Britain, for example, men lying with broken backs encased in plaster.

This use of plaster is, of course, connected with the type of warfare, fought on the battlefields of the battlefield is possible and quite transport to the hospitals. Plaster gives the needed immobilization, and, if suitably done, comfort. Then there is debridement, the plaster itself has no healing virtue, but the surgeon's skilled and sedulous use of the knife and used skin had to be learned and applied properly, and this treatment was put on.

The most dramatic of the surgeon dealing with battle wounds is infection. Particularly dangerous is gas gangrene, which is caused by some bacteria of the sort that need no oxygen, anaerobic bacteria. Certain of these, the Clostridia, cause gas to collect between the skin and the surrounding tissues. A general infection of the body follows. All such infections can be kept at bay if a wound is kept clean.

This is not easy under battle conditions, but good cleaning to destroy bacteria is a great help. Many of the most important developments during the war in this direction was the discovery in 1940 of sulphonamide drugs in fica of penicillin. This enabled it to complicated of the wound to stay put, without infection. This one antibiotic, the first of a long series, has saved untold lives. It also freed surgeons of their worst nightmare, and so helped them to get on with the job of repair and reconstruction.

So skilled were they that even in Japanese prison camps—some of them of unbelievable complexity and detail, the surgeons there were torn out of place and even quite brilliant. The results, indeed, were tremendous. There were over 5,000 abdominal casualties in the Battle of Normandy alone, from Normandy to Germany, and seventy per cent. recovered completely.

Surgery like this succeeded partly because of the highly integrated and flexible organization of the surgical units in the field, and partly because it was a matter of immediate first aid. Men who would have been dismissed as impossible in peacetime.

Many surgeons worked not only for the saving of life, but for the survival in the purely biological sense, but even for the ability to face the world again. I mean the plastic surgeons, whose work in this techniques largely invented in Britain by a brilliant group of surgeons, were able to reconstruct whole faces, including noses and eyebrows, and to graft skin to produce the right color. These are perhaps the most delicate of all surgical skills, and the technique of sewing together two edges of skin, one by one, to grow right through but by using fine nylon and weaving only the ends of the two edges, so that no scar is visible when the join has healed. This is the work of a very famous medical surgery and partly rehabilitation. Archibald Mclndoe in general sense was also part of the job of getting men and women back to life, and not as a matter of forgetting a man once a clinical cure was obtained: it was a matter of following up his psychology, to restore morale and reconstruct the personality.

Sir Archibald Mclndoe, in the end which was praised by every surgeon, and by everyone as his friend—Rommel was astonished by NOT WHAT YOU EAT BUT WHAT YOU DON'T.

Reader tells me I should read a book by a M.D., which suggests that one with high blood pressure should avoid fats in his or her diet all animal fats, such as milk, eggs, cheese, butter, etc., because they contain considerable cholesterol which the reader says plates, is the cause of high blood pressure and many cases of sclerosis.

If I had high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries I assure you I wouldn't waste any time with a doctor who prescribed either cholesterol poor or cholesterol free diet.

There's no better scientific evidence to bolster the above-stated theory than there is to show that "uric acid" has anything to do with the pain and swelling called gout.

These quaint notions that this or that wholesome food is likely to cause one or another disease if you eat enough of it is master-requirements of good nutrition and satisfying appetite are without exception pure hooey nonsense, needless to say, medical hooey, but still pure hooey.

It's sad to think of all the harmful "dieting" done by Reducing Wiseacres for rheumatic for as the Yankee Sioux like to call it, arthritis, "autointoxication," "acidosis," "colitis", "neuritis").

I don't mean to imply that diet is not any importance. On the contrary it is of great importance, provided it is prescribed for the patient and not for the disease.

Take diabetes, for instance. In any case it is wrong to assume the patient may eat this or may not eat that. A diabetic child or adult thrives best if he or she eats all he wants, only on the amount of starch and/or sugar does not exceed the limit of his tolerance. The best diet for a diabetic is one carefully calculated to meet the patient's normal heat, energy and growth requirements.

The many queries of readers of late year indicate increased the use of honey in place of sugar in the diet of diabetic indicate that—well, that there is widespread ignorance of the composition of honey. Pure honey is a mixture "of sugars, principally dextrose and levulose, and also sucrose (cane sugar, beet sugar, maple sugar and the maple flavor). Sugar is sugar, no matter what kind you take or what it costs. This applies to the diet of a diabetic as well as to the diet of a baby—as well as to the labor trick pediatrician would have you think. Cane sugar, beet sugar, white syrup, no drug, brown sugar, molasses, maple syrup, (this is cane sugar and the maple flavor) —It's all the same to the invalid or the baby, I assure you, children.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CUSTOMS REFLECT INTERESTS

Have you ever observed youngsters watching a TV program? The little tykes are liable to get a mite restless if they sit still for in six inches of the screen. Teenagers usually sit on the floor, or very often sit cross-legged out on the floor in a way that would cripple the average adult. Not so the lad or lass of older people.

I wonder what leads them to take these strange postures. But we wonder also why they have such bizarre ideas, why they do have as they do, why they like the music they do appear to favor. Millions of parents in this country are ready to tear their hair every day as they listen to the endless telephone conversations which their daughters carry on with teen-age friends. Educators simply shake their heads in blank astonishment over many of the customs which interest their pupils with young people.

Some of these mystifying things can be accounted for by a difference in age between children and their parents. Usually many aspects of the customs are perfectly harmless, although they are strange and irritating. But many of the customs reflect interests which people are harmful and will poison the very springs of their lives.

Now I think you can dismiss with a shrug of your shoulders the music enjoyed by millions of the vail today in youthful circles. Ask yourself to what extent the home and school are to blame for these things. Youth on the rampage in any generation usually shows the effects of an environment created by the oldsters.

THE PACKSACK

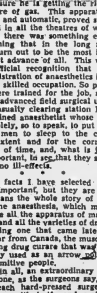
By GREGORY CLARK

A famous Canadian surgeon was attending the symphony concert. He had his wife with him. He had not left with over $400. in it which he had intended to bank that day but had forgotten to do so.

When the symphony was over, the surgeon was preparing to step out of the concert hall in the dense throng when he felt a tug at his coat tails and the hat check room.

As they shuffled along, amid the happy, relaxed and loud murmuring of the audience, he heard something touching him from behind. It was, he thought to himself, the pressure of a human body, and one of the forms of palsy, for the touch on the posterior continued: happened more than once.

If it had been you or I, no matter how educated and cultured and out of this world we might be, as the consequence of the beautiful music we had been hearing, we would have leaped instantly to the conclusion that somebody was after our pocket-book.



But eminent surgeons and doctors are not like that in this world anyway. They are men with other things to think about than the wickedness of this world. And our friend recalls that as he looked at his wife ahead in the packed crowd, he found himself speculating on the nature of the disease of-palsy the person behind him was afflicted with, and what was what age he might be, or might it be a woman? He was, of course, much too polite to turn and look.

The palsied one ceased pushing from behind. The surgeon thought no more about it, and took his place in the line at the check room. He had his hat check in his wallet as He reached for it. It was gone.

Like several things about this story. First, I suppose, is the thought that pickpockets too, may love fine music. Why not, indeed? But most I like the idea of the distinguished man, unique among us for his gifts of mind and hand, in all gentleness,—being the healer; mistaking the shock of the crime al for the symptom of something to be healed.

3 Communists Loudly Denounce U.S. Government

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Three Communists loudly denounced the United States government in federal court Monday and then were given short prison sentences for subversive activities.

A 22-year-old woman, said by the judge to have been the youngest ever brought into federal court under accusation of involvement in Communist conspiracies, was given a one-year prison sentence.

The defendants and their sentences:

Sidney Steinberg, 39, former assistant national labor secretary of the Communist party in the United States, three years.

Samuel Coleman, 43, former member of the top officials' staff of the Communist party of New York, three years.

Carl Ross, 41, former secretary of the Communist party of Minnesota, two years.

Mrs. Shirley Kremen, 22, former Los Angeles City College student and admitted leftist, one year.

All four were seized at a Sierra mountain cabin hideout near Twain Harte last Aug. 29 with Robert Thompson, a fugitive from New York who was convicted as one of the country's 11 top Communists.

During the trial, the prosecution charged that the three men Communists had gone underground in a plot to help hide Thompson, who jumped bond.

Quick Thinking Saves $176,000 From Bandits

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said a $176,000 holdup failed Monday because of the quick thinking of a cab driver and two store clerks. Approximately $174,000 of the amount was in cheques and the remainder in cash.

Nathan Stein, an employee of Modern Packers Limited, was on his way to deposit the money in a bank in Rosemount in the north east end of the city. Police said that when Stein stepped from his car in front of the bank two young men, one of them armed, approached and ordered him to hand over a leather bag containing the money.

When Stein began to shout for help, one of the youths disappeared and the second grabbed the leather bag and ran.

Taxi driver George Graham and two store clerks—Pierre and Andre Dery—took up the chase and captured the youth in a nearby yard. Stein's money and cheques were untouched.

Police said the youth gave his name as Jacques Arbour of Montreal.

Substance May Prolong Life Of Vaccines

By FRAN KCAREY

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A substance derived from a material occurring in citrus fruit peel may have possibilities for increasing the power and prolonging the effect of certain vaccines, a Philadelphia scientist reports.

Dr. Jack Moss of the National Drug Company research laboratories says the substance is a phosphorous - containing compound based on hesperidin, a material found in citrus peel.

He told the Society of American Bacteriologists, in a paper prepared for today that he has employed it, in laboratory tests, in conjunction with vaccines against typhoid fever, whooping cough and one form of influenza. He said there are indications that it enhances the effect of the vaccines from the standpoint of potency and of duration of immunizing power.

There also were tentative indications of a similar possible effect on materials designed to produce immunity against tetanus, diphtheria and one form of polio.

Birmingham Retains Civil Defence Group

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters) — The Birmingham civil defence committee decided unanimously Monday to continue its air raid precaution activities despite the local Labor party's demands that the committee be suspended.

The Labor party wants to follow the lead given by Coventry. The Labor - controlled Coventry city council decided civil defence precautions were pointless in view of the power of the H-bomb as shown by the United States tests in the Pacific last March.

Sarnia's City Council Fires Hospital Board

SARNIA (CP) — City council Monday night fired eight members of Sarnia's nine-man hospital commission, effective May 15. The ninth member, Homer Lockhart, resigned before the dismissal motion was made.

A new commission will be appointed at a special meeting of council expected to be held within 10 days.

The new commission will be requested to appoint a "competent hospital administrator" as soon as possible—a step frequently advocated by the mayor and members of council in previous discussions on the hospital.

The commission was fired over a dispute over financial management of the hospital. A resolution by council said:

"City council has complete confidence in the medical standards of the hospital, but is concerned only with financial management and public relations."

The commission recently hired a firm of management consultants to survey the hospital administration and recommend more efficient methods.

Two University Faculty Members Are Suspended

DETROIT (AP) — Two Wayne University faculty men were suspended Monday after refusing to tell a House of Representatives un-American activities sub-committee whether they are or were Communists.

Wayne's president, Dr. Clarence Hilberry, announced the suspensions of the two, Dr. Gerald I. Harrison, 37, assistant professor of mathematics, and Irving Stein, 33, a hearing before the school's faculty advisory committee.

Both Canadian-born Dr. Harrison, a Second World War defence project scientist, and Dr. Stein refused to answer a series of questions as the congressional group opened it Michigan hearings.

Wayne said Drs. Harrison and Stein would be given a later hearing.

Niagara Falls First to Vote On Lounges

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Residents here will vote Wednesday on whether they want cocktail lounges.

Since Niagara Falls has a population of less than 50,000, it is the first Ontario city to vote on cocktail lounges since the Liquor Licence Act of 1946. The act permitted cities of more than 50,000 to apply to the liquor control board of Ontario for cocktail lounge licences without a vote. Centres under 50,000 must first hold a referendum.

Voters will decide by separate ballot whether they want cocktail lounges where liquor is sold by the glass without food and whether they want cocktail lounges where liquor may be served with meals. A total of 13,911 persons is eligible to vote. A 60 per cent majority in favor of lounges is required to carry the vote.

In backing a wet vote, campaigners said millions of dollars in tourist money crosses the Niagara river each year to bars and taverns in Niagara Falls, N. Y. The affirmative group said local residents spend their money there also, as well as in local bootlegging establishments here.

Those opposing a wet vote said a new class of drinkers would be born out of the new sources of liquor if the referendum is carried. Forty polling sub-divisions will be open from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. EDT.

Your Hospital

(Editor's Note: Your Hospital is a series of seven articles dealing with hospitals in general and the Belleville General Hospital in particular. This newspaper presents these articles as a public service with the hope that they might arouse interest in the work and service of your community hospital which will be open to the general public for inspection on Hospital Day, Wednesday, May 12th.)

The origin or hospitals is hidden in the obscurity of the dim and distant past. The temples of Saturn are know to have been in existence some 4,000 years before the birth of Christ. Historians record that these temples were medical schools in their earliest form.

Christianity, however, tended to instil humanitarian views and, as civilization expanded, men and women of many races came to realize that the treatment of disease in buildings set apart exclusively for the care of the sick was a necessity.

The history of the world shows that, although a few of the larger towns in most countries contained hospitals of sorts up to and including the Middle Ages, it was not until the 19th century that cities of from 50,000 to 100,000 inhabitants began to provide hospital facilities for the care of the sick.

Prior to 1710, 23 of the principal counties in England had no general hospital. London, itself,—at that time, was mainly dependent upon St. Bartholomew's and St. Thomas hospitals.

FIRST HOSPITAL.

The first hospital recorded in England was built by the Archbishop of Canterbury in the year 900 A.D. St. Bartholomew's, still one of the leading hospitals in London, was founded in 1123 A.D., for the care of the poor, the lowlirm, the lame and the blind.

The history of Canada's first hospital dates back to 1637 when the Duchess of Aiguillon, niece of the famous Cardinal Richelieu, secured a grant of land in Quebec for the express purpose of building an institution to care for the sick and the diseased.

On August 1st, 1639, three Sisters of the Order known as "Les Religieuses Hospitalieres de la Misericorde de Jesus", accompanied by three Ursuline nuns landed at Quebec to build and operate a hospital. This particular Order of Nursing Sisters had, even then, a long and enviable record in the nursing field, having operated the various "Hotel Dieus" throughout France from the 16th century onwards. The most notable of these was the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Paris, built in 600 A.D. by St. Landry, Bishop of Paris, at his own expense.

FIRST IN CANADA.

The existence of Canada's first hospital, the Hotel Dieu in Quebec, was threatened in its first few years by fire, pestilence and savage enemies. During its first century of its operation it was twice gutted by fire and once completely destroyed by the gun-fire of the British.

Today in almost every city, town and community across the length and breadth of Canada, there is at least one hospital. All of these institutions are dedicated to serve the sick and the suffering 24-hours a day, seven days a week.

Operated as a humanitarian service to the community rather than as a commercial undertaking, your hospital is of immense value and importance to the healthy as well as the sick. Everywhere in Canada today hospitals are regarded as a community health centre from which to radiate all health activities, to teach preventive medicine and to improve the health-habits and, the well-being of all Canadians, regardless of race, color or creed. Here in Belleville, the history of the hospital dates back 74 years, having been founded in 1880.

Since that time the residents of this community have had the assurance that modern and scientific medical service has been available to them, and their families, when needed.

Visit your hospital, the Belleville General Hospital, on Hospital Day, Wednesday, May 12th, and see an institution with experience, planning to meet the needs of the Belleville district of the future.

TRAINS WOLF-HUNTERS

Ursula Cartland, of London, says she'd like to hunt wolves in Canada's Hudson Bay region. She has trained Borzoi dogs which are excellent at chasing wolves. Meanwhile, Miss Cartland, a tall blonde from Stettin, Germany, rents her dogs to English film companies. (CP Photo).

Thinks Revival of 'Coursing' Wolves Should Start In Canada

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Ursula Cartland, an authority on borzoi dogs, thinks Canada should establish a new national sport—wolf-hunting with hounds.

Miss Cartland, a tall blonde from Stettin, Germany, now is in London renting her borzoi dogs to film companies. She says that of all the countries in the western world, Canada has the greatest need for a revival of the old Russian sport of "coursing" wolves—catching the quarry with a small number of fast dogs hunting by sight.

"It could become a national sport," she said. "If Canada wants to get rid of its wolves—the four-legged variety, of course—this is the way to do it."

Miss Cartland figures that coursing would be a lucrative sport in Canada, with each skin bringing $50 in government bounties. Her dream is to set up a kennel of at least 60 trained borzois for wolf-hunting around Hudson bay.

FAST HUNTERS

Blessing the silky heads of two tall, pedigreed borzois she keeps for breeding and for work in films and evertising, Miss Cartland said in an interview: "Borzois are docile, obedient pets—but they have one of the oldest and fastest hunting records.

It will be some time before Miss Cartland can achieve her Canadian ambition. It takes too much capital to get started. "The dogs would have to be kept for a year and trained on wolves," she said.

She now earns £10 a day renting her borzois, 5½-year-old Teufel and Yerres, 8, for work in Rex Harrison's latest movie, "The Constant Husband." As part of the fee, it's her job to see the dogs do exactly what is required.

Bridge St .W.A. Enjoys Travelogue

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of Bridge Street United Church was held in the S.S. rooms, Friday afternoon with a good attendance.

Mrs. Everett Fairman presided and opened the meeting welcoming the members and guests.

Following the business meeting, plans were arranged for the coming Bay of Quinte Conference which takes place June 8-9-10. Many billets will be needed, and offers of hospitality can be phoned to the Rev. Miriam Collins, or Mrs. W. H. Finkle.

The Belleville Presbyterial W.A. convention will be held on Thursday, May 27, at King Street United Church, in Trenton, and it is hoped that a number of ladies will attend. Transportation is available.

The coming Spring Tea was also discussed; it was decided that all groups and church lists would be asked to assist with it.

Miss Sulman, Mrs. Gilbert and their group were in charge of the program. Miss Sulman gave the devotional service and led in prayer.

Mrs. Ralph Morden gave two readings, suitable to the spring season, them being "Dust" and "Keep But Violets Won't," and "The Package of Seeds," by Edgar Guest. These numbers were greatly enjoyed.

Miss Sulman introduced Mrs. George Campbell, who told something of her recent trip, and showed pictures taken in Ireland, Scotland and Paris.

Mrs. MacTavish thanked Mrs. Campbell for the Women's Auxiliary, for her fine showing of pictures and her most interesting talk.

Mrs. Fairman invited the ladies to stay for a cup of tea and a social half-hour.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A CASE OF SADLY -MISTAKEN KINDNESS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am nearing the end of my second year in the army and have two years old.

My problem is that there is a girl in my home town with whom I have been corresponding and she seems to have fallen in love with me. She mentions this in many of her letters and keeps saying she is afraid maybe I don't love her as much as she loves me.

I like her as a friend, but not any more than that, because there is another girl I really do love and hope to marry some time after I get home. Now, I don't want to hurt this other girl, though, I have said several times that I did love her. Off and on, I have quit answering her letters, hoping she would catch on and forget about me, but she has kept right on writing to me whether I answer or not.

My own girl doesn't know anything about this, and I want to get it all over with before I get back home. How can I do this without hurting this other girl too much? — D.B.

Dear D.B.:

You meant to be kind, of course, when you told this girl you loved her, but it hasn't been a mistaken kindness. She's going to be hurt in the end, anyway, and she would have been much better to have told her the truth in the beginning.

All you can do now is to write and tell her honestly that you are in love with someone else. As things stand, you are fair neither to her nor to the girl you really love. To come out with the truth, even belatedly, is the only right thing to do, and it is the only way that is going to clear up this unfortunate mess before you get home.

DOES HE REALLY WANT HER, OR JUST HER MONEY?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For four years I have been desperately in love with a man who is 6 ft. 3 in. This man wants to get married right away or quit seeing me, and I'm willing to work out about this.

You see, three years ago I was promised six thousand dollars from an estate. As soon as the heirs were paid off, I was to receive this money. It was not in the will, but I was to receive it through a person whom I would trust to the end of the world. I know she means to do right by me, but although the heirs were paid two months ago, she keeps putting me off because she wants me to keep on working.

Don't you think the man I love should be kind, and wait for me until I get this money? Another problem is that my health is not good just now, and I would like to wait until I am better, because he is younger than I am and likes younger women. — W.T.D.

Dear W.T.D.:

No, I don't see any reason why this man should wait for marriage until you get this money, if he really loves you and wants you to marry you. After all, he has already been waiting some years—and or has he? Possibly you may all this time have been reading into his attitude more than is actually there.

The fact is that I doubt very much if you would be wise to marry this man in any case. You say he "wants to get married or quit you," which sounds to me rather as though he would be more interested in the money that is supposed to come to you than he is in you yourself. Moreover you say he likes younger women, and if you already see that he has a wandering eye, then you would be very foolish indeed to marry him. For I am quite certain he is not going to lose his interest in younger women if he marries a woman four years older than himself. It may be that the friend who is supposed to give you the money doesn't trust this man, either, and so is holding it for you lest it fall into his hands and you lose it all.

I realize that you will be very unhappy for a while if you give this man up, but quite frankly, that would be my advice to you, for I think you would soon find yourself far more unhappy if you became his wife.

New Trends In Travel Theme of Talk

Masonic Temple was the setting for Moira Lodge Ladies' Night on Friday evening. Worship Brother Harold S. Robbins presided at a banquet served to members, their wives and friends by the ladies of Tabernacle Church.

Miss Carol Lane, Women's Travel Director of Shell Oil Company of Canada, addressed the gathering, speaking on "New Trends in Travel."

"Smart travellers today seek a personal look into the peoples, history, natural resources and recreational areas of the places they visit," Miss Lane stated. "These can be found not only at popular and busy places of interest, but also off the well-travelled highways. For more fun on family vacation trips, seek out the fascinating, but little-known sights and experiences off the beaten paths.

The travel authority pointed out that low budget, two-week vacations were the rule rather than the exception and recommended taking along only the amount of luggage you can comfortably carry yourself. Miss Lane demonstrated a non-cumbersome wardrobe consisting of four basic vacation costumes. The same sets of clothing combine into about twenty-four ensembles for travelling, day-time, sight-seeing, visiting, active or spectator sports and informal evening wear.

Miss Lane's travel wardrobe was "color-controlled" with a neutral hue predominating, spiced with a dark and a bright color for contrast. "Neutrals in medium tones of beige or grey or dust, look bright in hot or cold weather," she reported.

She praised the national and provincial parks for being "good buys" in low cost vacations for families. "We have the edge on our forefathers, who went across the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific," she pointed out. "They learned about our land while they moved. With the automobile, today, we can relax while we learn."

Miss Lane was introduced by Bro. Jack Cousins and thanked by the Worshipful Master.

Miss Helen Cook and her accompanist, Alec Gordon, entertained the company with several fine soprano solos.

Following a toast to the ladies, proposed by Brother Joe Maxwell, and responded to by Mrs. Bessie Marsh, Brother Ray Grant and his group presented roses to the ladies.

A few well-chosen remarks by Brother Mark Vanner concluded the banquet, which was followed by an evening of euchre, bridge and dancing.

GIRL BEATEN, TIED

READING, Pa. (AP)—Judith Spang, pretty 20-year-old girl, was found Sunday night nude, beaten and tied to a tree with her own garments less than a mile from the spot where the nude body of a 15-year-old girl was found in an ash barrel in January, 1953. Mrs. Spang was taken to hospital in fair condition without being able to tell her attacker was. The murderer of the other girl was never found.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

TO WRITE THE SIZES ON INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs Beeckman:

My dearest friend is to be married in September, and I am to be her maid of honor (She has no sister) Her four bridesmaids are great friends of hers and of mine, and I had been thinking it would be a fine idea for us to join together to give the bride-to-be a Personal Trousseau Shower I have been perplexed about how the girls to be invited would know about the right sizes. Today in the mail I received an invitation to exactly this kind of shower, and on the bottom of the printed shower invitation was written the sizes of slip, of stockings, and so forth. This seems such an easy way to give information. But is it correct, I wonder? — Wilma

This is quite often done in the case of a Personal Trousseau Shower. It's entirely proper, very sensible and very practical.

FATHER'S BROTHER TO GIVE HER IN MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About two years ago I married a widow with two grown children, a girl and a boy. They have been after me marriage, after we had all established a fine and happy relationship, to adopt them legally. Now the girl is to be married soon, and she has asked her father's brother to give her in marriage. This uncle is also her godfather, and I must admit has always been very good and generous to her. They have been looking forward with such anticipation to her asking me to give her in marriage, as her mother says she prefers not give any opinion in the matter. What would be your opinion, Mrs. Beeckman? — Septimus

Yes. . .my opinion is that you are entirely wrong in feeling disappointed and hurt about this. It seems to me that, not only for the reasons you give, but for your own, it was the most natural thing for this bride-to-be to ask her father's brother to give her in marriage. As her father's brother, he is the closest representative of her father in this important honor of giving her in marriage. . . he has that most important position of being her godfather, and he has known her and been good to her all her life. For these important reasons you should feel delighted, and I'm sure no one else would have this reaction. And sir, you should give deep thought to ensuring that you will not make that fine wife of yours unhappy about your unwarranted point of view

WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES ARE BLOSSOMING FORTH TOO!

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

My husband's mother and father are to have their Silver Wedding anniversary soon, and we would appreciate your suggestions as to simple, inexpensive way to entertain them. We know that they want to have their family and relatives with them on that day. Would "Open House" fit the occasion? If so how would we announce it? And what would we serve.

P.C.

"Open House" is a perfect plan for this occasion. If only the members of the family, close relatives and some intimate friends are to be invited, the invitations may be given verbally or by telephone.

NOTE FROM EMEM:

Again I have to cry "Uncle!" As many of you who have written to me know, I am behind in my answers to you. Would you be kind enough to 1) give me at least three weeks before you expect answers; 2) enclose a 5-cent stamped self-addressed envelope with your letters; 3) hold off writing for two days after you've read this? This way I can catch up on the backlog of mail, and enjoy that coveted feeling of "holding the line" instead of steadily falling behind. Is it a bargain?

QUESTION:

. . .look forward to your column every day . . . need a spot of help: 1) My fresh mushrooms need to be peeled, or any mushrooms for that matter? . . . my young son who works in a supermarket often brings home bargains on Saturday nights. . . especially mushrooms. 2) Is there any way of making marshmallow sauce out of marshmallows. . . 3) How do you prepare smelts? A reader asked for salad dressing that tastes like the commercial stuff one buys. On the side of . . . mustard it's delicious. . . Another reader asked about using chicken fat for pastry. . . I was suggesting using tallow in thicken (harden) it. Who wants tallow in pastry? . . . I was wondering if one could make good pastry with chicken fat. Some mothers says she prefers not give any opinion in the matter. What would be your opinion, Mrs. Beeckman? — Septimus Yes. . .my opinion is that you are entirely wrong in feeling disappointed and hurt about this. The party may be given on the actual date, or, if this is early in the week, it is often considered more convenient to have the Open House on the following Sunday or Monday, the date. . . Usually it is in the afternoon from 4, or 4 to 6, or 3 to 6, whichever is more convenient. Then a few guests is suggested about cake, simple fillings; small cakes or cookies; tea and or coffee. And the two important features: 1) a cold beverage, with which to drink the toasts to the couple; and (2) a handsome anniversary cake, the first slice of which is cut by the "bride" and "groom," and shared by them, as a symbol of renewed always-sharing.

PRETTY LIPS

Watch your facial habits Perhaps you fancy you haven't any since few women are aware of them. That's because you never see your countenance in action When taking a survey in the mirror your face is in repose. Of the lights and shadows you know nothing. Laughter and animation illuminate it; depressing emotions cast a shadow over its natural charm and loveliness Eyes stay as they are throughout the years, but the lines of the mouth color in the middle and time. Amiability is a beautifier beyond price. It lights up the eyes and is an insurance against distressing furrows that come through tension and irritability. Not only that, but affability will take a woman a long way toward success in social or business affairs.

The woman who is austere, who is set in her ways and tastes, tends more toward her fellow creatures, will eventually destroy the smooth lines of her mouth, pressing the lips tightly together in an expression of dislike or disfavor. Nature will lose tone and sag.

She will develop a brittle appearance that will keep her loved ones at arm's length. Nobody will give her a hug and a kiss. She'll be a sweet. She walks pretty much from then on.

How often one hears the expression "She has a weak face." Seldom does one see corners of the lips to droop. Selfishness is stamped upon them. With her face in all get and no give, a trait of character that is reverse to appeasement — the air lip-readers is a way. Lips don't have to speak to reveal thoughts. Even the blind, I think, know well enough when one of them is as well as they should be worried. Mothers, especially, read the faces of their children. They have to, I think.

For the sake of one's looks—not only now, but in the future—one should make one's lips behave prettily. They should be kept soft and pliable. Lipstick used the skillfully, laid on as the outline is clear cut, the application smoothed with a lipstick brush,

Lions' Club Establishes School Patrol

CAMPBELLFORD — A school patrol for the purpose of promoting safety on the streets from traffic hazards during the period when children are going to and from school, was officially opened by the Lions' Club after 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon at the Public School grounds. Mr. Rothwell, principal of the Public School, lent his full co-operation to the project.

President Vern. Rose, of the Campbellford Lions' Club, was in charge of the opening. The president, first introduced Constable Don Mackay, of the Peterborough Police Department, under whose impetus a school patrol locally was conceived. Constable Mackay said that he had already noticed a big improvement in traffic on local streets since the idea of a school patrol, and what it meant, had been publicized. He appreciated the whole-hearted support that had been accorded its institution by Principal Rothwell of the public school and Reverend Father Moloney of the separate school.

WORTHY PROJECT.

President Vern. Rose next introduced William Rothwell, who remarked that he sought many answers from those favoring a school patrol and was convinced that the project was well worthy of establishing in the interest of the safety of school children on the streets. Special thanks were voiced to the Lions Club and also to Constable Mackay and Chief of Police, George Rose.

Vern Rose called upon Father Moloney, who congratulated the Lions organization on their work on the project and said that it helps boys and girls to make better citizens.

Chief of Police, George Rose, expressed appreciation to the Lions Club and Constable Mackay, and also to the children for their fine support in this endeavor.

Cliff Costello of the Ontario Safety League was a special guest, and complimented the local service club on its enterprise and told the children that they should wear their bells proudly as they had a most important job entrusted to them.

Harold Peters, chairman of the Boys' and Girls' Committee of the Lions Club, presented the equipment to be worn by the patrol. This was accepted by Father Moloney and principal Rothwell on behalf of their respective schools. Equipment consisted of 17 raincoats, three rubber coats, 30 white belts, six stop signs, and some badges which were purchased by the Lions Club.

The School Patrol was officially declared a reality by Councillor Fred M. Rutherford, who thanked the Lions Club for undertaking this safety measure in own. The councillor wished the Club every success in its future endeavors.

Shopping Centre Will Not Replace Downtown Areas

TORONTO (CP) — The suburban shopping centre has its place, but it is nonsense to suggest that it will supplant downtown areas in the foreseeable future, Morgan Reid, assistant vice-president, retail, of Simpsons-Sears, Ltd., said Monday.

He advised retailers, in an address prepared for delivery to the annual conference of the Canadian Retail Federation, to examine whether proposed new developments are based on retail experience or are promotional efforts where land has no profitable alternate use.

"It is not possible," he said, "to guess how many of the shopping centres now on drawing boards will actually come into reality and be successful, but I should be very surprised if more than one out of 10 are really justifiable.

"As with other new ideas of undoubted but limited merit, the shopping centre has been definitely over-sold."

STILL GO DOWNTOWN

The same survey showed that consumers in downtown areas up to 15 miles away from the hub made 50 per cent of their purchases downtown.

Mr. Reid said purchases by categories showed the following downtown percentages:

Fur coats 75; cloth coats 64; jewelry 57; china and glassware 57; sheets and pillow cases 57; furniture 56.

In the 15 to 35 mile limit, 12 to 21 per cent of purchases, depending on the merchandise, went downtown.

Downtown areas, however, if they were to maintain and increase their position, must study the need for improved transportation and better parking facilities.

I.O.D.E. Hears Engaging Talk On Visit to United Nations

MARMORA—Miss Norma Arkles of Belleville, delegate of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, to the United Nations last year, gave an interesting address to a goodly sized gathering at the open meeting in the parish hall of St. Paul's on Friday evening under auspices of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E.

Mrs. J. L. Aitchison, regent, presided and after welcoming the attendance, asked Mrs. E. Manchester to introduce the speaker, whom the latter fittingly described as a wide awake teacher.

Miss Arkles who quickly commands the rapt attention of her hearers, said she would present her ideas of United Nations and show slides and film strip illustrative of her address in which Rev. K. J. Crawford kindly assisted by operating the projector. She said she found her experiences with United Nations most enjoyable.

She was one of 72 women delegates present there in New York at Easterlde, a year ago. She could almost say there were no limits to the privileges extended delegates but there was one notable exception. Coming as they did from so many different countries in their national garb, she assayed to take a picture of the delegates in the dining hall-to quickly learn it was not permissible. She felt the description that United Nations was a workshop for peace well suited it. There were 60 member nations represented, and all were busy at the sessions.

THE MORE THAN PEACE INSTRUMENT

Previous to her visit there, she had thought of United Nations only as an instrument for peace, but discovered it was more than that. And to prove her point digressed on its five departments. First she told of the general assembly where the problems of the different nations are discussed. Then she referred to the security council the body of 11 members chiefly concerned with preventing war and checking its spread when there has been an outbreak. Five of its members are elected from the major powers. Thirdly, she dealt with the economic and social council. Its 18 members are concerned with the general welfare of the people of the world, truly a great undertaking. This council she mentioned, as dealing with labor problems, distribution of food, and other matters for a nation's welfare and being definitely concerned with the education and health, particularly of backward races.

This council besides promoting an International bank, has a technical assistance department where by experts go from countries including Canada, to help people in other countries where they need it, in industrial and agricultural matters. Through this means one Canadian had been sent to Ethiopia to help in agricultural matters and another Canadian went to Mexico to assist in steel problems.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS

Miss Arkles also spoke to some length on the other two departments the Trusteeship Council and the International Court of Justice both working for the common weal of mankind and also paid a glowing tribute to the chairmanship of Hon. Lester Pearson.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended the speaker by Mrs. Aitchison.

A silver collection was taken for the funds of the I.O.D.E.

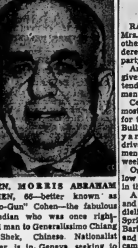
Winnipeg Man Heads Aircraft Production Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Production Minister Howe Monday appointed Thor Stephenson of Winnipeg to head the department's $400,000,000 a-year aircraft prodeiction program.

The 55-year-old aeronautical engineer, former deputy director of the aircraft branch, takes over from T. N. Beaupre of Montreal who leaves shortly to take up an executive post with a Montreal chemical corporation.

The defence production department has been undergoing cutting and squeezing to fit it into a peacetime economy geared to a "long haul" defence program, but the aircraft branch is still as busy as ever, concentrating on production of jet fighters, trainers, navy planes and new reconnaissance air wagons for the RCAF.

Mr. Stephenson, graduated from the University of Toronto and the California Institute of Technology, will be pushing ahead with production and modification of the all-Canadian CF-100 jet fighter.



The powerful, twin-engine all-weather jet may eventually be turned into a delta-winged body, shaped for higher supersonic speeds.

OTHER AIR PROGRAMS

Other major aircraft programs include the F-86 Sabre jet fighter, the T-33 jet trainer, the T-34 Beechcraft trainer for the United States, production of United States Grumman anti-submarine planes for the Canadian navy and the purchase of U.S. Banshee fighters for Canada's new aircraft carrier the Bonaventure, now under construction.

Still another program is the modification in Canadian design of Britain's Bristol Britannia, to be produced at Canadair Ltd., Montreal, as a reconnaissance plane for the RCAF.

All these programs are concentrated in the department's aircraft branch, with total costs running about $400,000,000 a year. Mr. Stephenson says spending likely will be stabilized at that figure "for some years."

"Careful, Pauline!"

Of course no one would dream of climbing a telephone pole without being especially careful. Yet every time you climb a shaky ladder or stand on a rickety chair you may not realize what a big chance you're taking. Actually more people have accidents right at home than anywhere else.

By avoiding accidents you save more than suffering and worry—you save money, too!

In a family the size of ours (we're now over 31,000), these savings are important. That's why our employees are not only thoroughly trained to use safety tools and methods, but continually reminded to take every precaution to avoid injury to themselves and others.

It's another way we help keep costs down so we can provide you with the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost.

How to prevent home accidents is shown in "Home Safe Home", a folder available free from the Health Department of your Provincial Government or from the Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa.

Today B-A refineries across Canada are producing higher octane gasolines than ever before. Higher octane means you get more knock-free power from every drop of Super 88 or Super 98—especially important for today's high compression engines. But no matter what car you drive you can't buy better gasolines than Super 88 or Super 98.

23 Television Stations Will Be Operating in Canada In Late Autumn Say Officials

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—By late autumn 23 television stations will be operating in Canada. Three-quarters of Canada's population will be in range of TV.

Manufacturers estimate 625,000 television sets were in use at the end of January. Last year, 366,488 units were sold for $148,753,000, almost $100,000,000 higher than radio sets.

That's how much Canadian television has grown since the first station opened at Montreal in July 1952.

ALLOTTED AREAS

Of nine TV stations now on the air, five are CBC stations and four privately-owned. Before winter, there will be seven CBC and 16 private stations.

TV licences in the largest cities so far are restricted to the publicly owned CBC. F. H. Elphicke of Vancouver, past president of the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, says viewers in those cities have no alternative but American TV if they don't like the Canadian program. The CBC cities are Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. (Halifax and Winnipeg are still to open).

NETWORK PLANS

A micro-wave television relay now links Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and London, with a link to Buffalo to pick up some U.S. programs. There will be a leg off this relay for the Hamilton station opening soon. It is proposed to extend the network to Quebec and Windsor and Halifax, Quebec City, Sherbrooks and Simcoak, Que., and Kingston, Hamilton, Windsor and Port Arthur.

The only CBC station among the western ones ready to go on the air is CBWT at Winnipeg, opening this month. The first western private stations, opening in a few months, are at Saskatoon, Regina Calgary and Edmonton.

Plans are also being drawn for extension of the micro-wave to Halifax and Winnipeg.

Some day Canada may have a transcontinental micro-wave system linking all TV stations. It involved would be construction of relay towers over vast stretches of open country.

Micro-wave beam relay is practical only over "line of sight" distances; one tower has to be seen from the next. By using towers 100 feet or more in height, and taking advantage of high spots in the terrain, it is possible to space them 30 miles apart.

FIRST STATIONS

Television watchers in border communities were already familiar with American programs before the first Canadian stations started. Montreal's CBC outlet, CBFT, and Toronto's CBLT went on the air in September, 1952.

Four-more started last year, Ottawa's CBOT got off with a bang on Coronation Day, June 2. The first private station, CKCO-TV at Sudbury, Ont., opened in October and the second, CFPL-TV at London, Ont., in November. CBUT came on the air at Vancouver just before Christmas.

The English - language CBMT started at Montreal last January, 17 months after its sister CBC station, the French-language CBFT. The privately owned CKCO-TV opened at Kitchener, March 1 and CHSJ-TV at Saint John, N.B., three weeks later.

Says Few Chinese Have Any Use For Red Regime

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A Montreal-educated physician who was held in China for 18 months under "town arrest" says "not more than five per cent of the Chinese people have any use for the Communist government or any confidence in the party."

He forecasts an ultimate uprising.

Dr. William E. Braisted, graduate of McGill University medical school, went to China first in 1936 for the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society. He operated a hospital at Kityang, Kwangtung province, in south China. Part of the time it was under control of the Communists.

He believes "it is only a matter of time before the end will be seen in a mass uprising."

The only loyal Communists were party officers, members of the military and "stooges," and "even they are far from 100 per cent loyal."

"The mass of people," Dr. Braisted claims, "are totally disillusioned by the failure of the new government to fulfil promises of better administration. They are deeply resentful of the oppression of the new rulers."

CITIZENS "MURDERED"

"And they are particularly full of resentment for the murder of many of their best citizens.

"The people are more miserable than before with less food, higher taxes and the loss of all freedoms and security.

"This fits a familiar historical pattern, and I believe it is only a matter of time before the end will be seen in a mass uprising."

Who might lead such an uprising?

Dr. Braisted found some lack of enthusiasm for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek among Chinese with whom he talked. He says their attitude was: "We didn't like those rules that were eating up our grain, a while ago; but we like these rats even less."

Doucett Says Govt. Willing To Aid New Road

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Highway Minister Doucett said Monday the provincial government is willing to give "substantial aid" to metropolitan Toronto's proposed $50,000,000 lakeshore expressway.

Mr. Doucett said: "They can't spend $50,000,000 on that project this year anyway. We might be able to give them a couple of million to help in the engineering work necessary to get the thing started."

Metropolitan chairman Fred Gardiner has asked the province to share 50 per cent of the cost.

BLOOD CONTRIBUTION

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians last year contributed 345,089 bottles of blood to the Canadian Red Cross Society, Vernon C. Hale of Hamilton, blood donor committee chairman, told the annual meeting of the Red Cross central council Monday. On the basis of prevailing costs of $25 per bottle for blood and $40 per bottle for plasma, the Red Cross free blood service saved Canadians $6,686,630 in 1953.

TABLES TURNED!

The Damyankees may have beaten the Southern Rebs in that civil war brawl south of the border in the late nineteenth century but Saturday's Kentucky Derby recalls the story of how those "Sutherndn. suh, done outkicked the No'thernehs in a battle of the bangtails a few years later.

The Blues had a rag called American Eclipse, rated the fastest haybarner north of the Mason-Dixie line, and accordingly to some, the swiftest mail-carrier on the continent. Came an audacious challenge from the southland.

"Cunnel" suh, William R. Johnson, of the Virginia Johnsons, asked if the owner of Eclipse would race his hawse against the "Champion of the South" for a side-bet of $10,000—big money in those days.

The canny cunnel would not name the southern "Man O' War," as, if the challenge was accepted, they would have to decide a champion by elimination races.

The challenge accepted. The "No'th" was in high glee. The race was sited at Union Course, Long Island, and when the northern hidalgos were told a huge delegation from the south would be on hand heavily cargoed with the coin of the realm, the backers of the blue were all fixed for southern blades.

Thousands of southerners moved northward for the race. They carried overstuffed carpet bags, heavy with folding money, mortgages, insurance policies, and a few, forgetting emancipation, toted along a chain or two of slaves.

The doughty sons of the north watched the invasion with unholy glee. American Eclipse was invincible. In fact the only sag that could beat him was Externator and he wasn't born yet. The southern champion was "Sir Henry."

The race was at four-mile heats, best of three and Sir Henry won the first. American Eclipse winning the second and third heats against the southern champion copped the race. This created the impression the Northerners had cleaned out the south, but the truth was they'd been shot down by the wily sons of the mint julep.

In races under the current betting system there was betting on individual heats and also on the outcome of the race. The Northerners walked into the southern trap with their pockets and purses wide open. The folks from Dixieland knowing that Eclipse would win at least the second and third heats, put the bank roll, ranches, colonial mansions and few southern belles on the first heat.

The Northerners assumed the southern gentlemen would be shooting for the $10,000 side bet. That is exactly what Julep Joes wanted them to think. The Blues, did not know the Dixieland crowd was willing to lose the big grand for the chance to make a "killing" on the first heat.

So the entire bulk of the southern money was bet that Henry would win the first heat. The northern crowd covered it, not knowing that the strategy of the southerns called for Henry to win it even if it broke him down for the rest of the race.

At the word "Go" (they're off" was not yet invented) the jockey on Henry gave him whip, spur and boot, plus promises of retirement to stud in California for the rest of his life and a spot in the equine Hall of Fame. He rode him dizzy, dippy and dilly for the entire four miles.

The Willie Shoemaker astride Eclipse curled his lips. "Let him go, Clipsy ole kid," he murmured, "we'll meddle the bum in the next cuppla workouts." What he did not know was the dust being kicked in his face from the flying hoofs of "Hank" was golden pay-dirt.

So, "Henry" won it, just as the clever southern syndicate had figured, in 7.37½, which ranks as one of the top speeds for four miles earn unto this day.

The southern "genuelman" worked over a flock of Julups, and collected their winnings on the heat. Then to the consternation of the Northerners they ignored the offers of wagers on the second heat. It was a southern "clean-up." Eclipse won the next two heats handily, defeating Hank by a half mile in the final event.

Thirteen years later the Northerners sought revenge in another challenge match. They stipulated the wager on this race be the same as the first. The smiling Julep Joes agreed. The northern horse was "Post Boy", the hero of the south "John Sacombe." This time the southerners bet on the first two heats, and that "Boy" would win the race "two straight."

The northerns did not know that the southern slickers had scouted "Post Boy" but good, and often. He was a milk-horse as far as "J.B." was concerned. They took two against one that Jaybee would cop the first heat. He did. The southern gold was piled right back on Jaybee's nose for the second heat. He won.

Estimates of those days have it that "Cunnel" Johnson and his julep-sipping cohorts cleaned up a cool million in the first challenge race and duplicated the coup when Jaybee came through.

Hard-Hitting Bruising Battle Features Allan Cup Opener; Horeck Draws 2 Misconducts

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — Sudbury Wolves hammered out a narrow 2-1 victory over Penticton Vs here Monday night in the first game of a best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup.

The Allan Cup is the symbol of senior amateur hockey supremacy in Canada.

It was a game of breaks. A potentially tying Penticton goal was disallowed on an offside call and on Sudbury's first marker the puck smack-hipped through a forest of players, caromed off a leg and hopped into the goal.

Lennie Speck and Nick Tomiuk scored for the easterners and Jim Fairbairn tallied for Penticton.

Tonight both teams will rest from the bruising they took in a brulsing which resulted in 17 penalties before taking to neutral ice in Vernon for the second game Wednesday.

Eleven of the penalties went to Sudbury, who scored first and fought to keep the lead, and six went to Penticton who traded blow for blow in a bid to haul the contest out of the fire.

Speck put Sudbury ahead in the first period at 9.43 and it stood up until the third period, when Tomiuk stretched the margin to 2-0. Fairbairn's one third-period effort wasn't enough to catch up.

GOAL DISALLOWED

Penticton flashed the goal light first, early in the first period and Jack McIntyre picked up a pass from across two lines and sent it in score. It was disallowed.

Speck's goal came on a pass from Orval Teal and Tomiuk's shot, just inside the blue line.

The second period, with Wolves riding on a 1-0 edge, was tense and tempers exploded several times. Pete Speck picked up the first of two 10-minute misconducts by bothering the referee. He was boards in protest against a call. Mauno Kauppi served it out.

Horeck's second 10-minute misconduct came just past the 18-minute mark of the same period when he and V's Jack McDonald tangled and Horeck battled Montreal referees Mel Snowden and Syl Breen to get at the Penticton player.

Tomiuk's goal was the swiftest of the night, coming only 55 seconds from the third-period faceoff on an Andy Milne pass. Fairburn's goal came on a passing play with Grant and Bill Warwick. McLellan was pulled in the final seconds, but V's couldn't score.

No Interest In Hamilton Clubs

HAMILTON (CP)—Two hockey clubs are still up for sale here but franchise owner Ken Soble says "no one seems to be interested."

Hamilton's entries in Alberta and the junior A Cubs were put up on the auction block last week for a sale price of approximately $5,000 each.

"But it's just as if nothing had happened." Soble said Monday. A few enquiries had been made about the junior team, but none regarding the Cubs.

Soble said a purchaser will need at least $50,000 for operating expenses, including salaries, plus an assured 2,000 to 3,000 persons at every game to break even at the end of the season.

Oshawa Truckmen Win Sr. B Title, Will Make Bid for World Tourney

SIMCOE (CP)—Oshawa Truckmen Monday night won the Ontario Hockey Association senior B championship by defeating Simcoe Gunners 5-3. Oshawa took the best-of-seven series 4-1 with one game tied.

The visitors took a 2-1 lead in the first period and increased it to 4-1 early in the second before the Gunners came to life and put in two goals. In the third period, most of the play centred about the Oshawa net but Simcoe failed to score. On one of the few thrusts into Simcoe territory Oshawa's George Samolenko put in the final goal.

Jerry Scott, Truckmen captain, received the goals and Jack Thaler put in a single. Simcoe scorers were Ralph Orlando, Len Cooke and Jerry Goodwin.

OSHAWA (CP) — Officials of Oshawa Truckmen, Ontario Hockey Association senior B champions, said they will make a bid to have the Truckmen represent Canada at the next world hockey champion ships.

General manager Wron Blair said Monday the Truckmen will forward their application to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association meeting in Vancouver next week.

"I know the CAHA has said it will send only senior A and junior A teams over to Europe after what happened to Toronto East Yorks," he said, "but our club is actually of senior A calibre."

East York was beaten by Russia in the finals of this year's world championships.

The Truckmen Monday night defeated Simcoe Gunners 5-3 to win the senior B title 4-1 in games.

Official league figures show Calgary had 251,778 paid customers during the regular season and the playoffs. The total topped the league.

It also topped Calgary's 1953 total by 61,240 paid customtrs.

The Calvert SPORTS COLUMN
by Elmer Ferguson
Every Kentucky Derby like every other great horse race — has its episodes of glory, but every renewal of this great race has its bitter disappointments, and its upsets too.
For instance, there was the 1940 Kentucky Derby, and there never has been a satisfactory answer to the question of just what happened to the great Bimelech in the Run for the Roses that year.
Colonel E. R. Bradley has an amazing number of thoroughbreds, including four winners of previous Derbies, and also the mighty Blue Swords, Beggersbagage, Blue Larkspur, and so many others, and he had furnished the sire which produced the immortal Black Gold going up to the 1940 Derby, Colonel Bradley said:
"I think Bimelech is the greatest horse I ever had."
Bimelech won 6 races straight as a 2-year old. Making his debut as a 3-year old, he won both races in which he had been entered, and came up to the Kentucky Derby of 1940 with the reward of being unbeaten in 8 starts, apparently at the peak of his form, and with the turf authorities insisting he had the Derby at his mercy.
The punters made him a favorite at 40 cents to the dollar. The field he was pitted against was regarded as one of the most mediocre of many years. It represented the best of the crop, but the crop, at its best, was not presumed to be in a class with Bimelech.
"Bimelech should win by a quarter of a mile" the experts insisted. "No other horse in the race can run the mile and a quarter faster than 2.05".
Yet Gallahadion, who never knew greatness before, not showed any greatness afterward, was too fast for Bimelech that afternoon. Gallahadion won by a length and a half. Gallahadion's time: 2.05.
Not until the defeat of the grey ghost, Native Dancer, last year, at 7-10, has there been a similar catastrophe of form, and even so, the odds on Bimelech were much shorter, so that the great mystery of all the Kentucky Derbies is: "What was wrong with Bimelech on Derby Day of 1940?

Chisox Whip Athletics 14-3 For 9th Win in Dozen Starts; Cards Deal Giants 8-2 Loss

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago White Sox are making every effort to run away from the New York Yankees in the American League pennant race, and for a change they're getting some help.

For more seasons than they care to remember the rest of the managers in the league have found out the hard way that no team can beat the Bronx Bombers all by itself. But this year every team but the Yanks have played has beaten them at least once—and they've played every team in the league except Baltimore. The Orioles open a three-game series in New York today.

Meanwhile the White Sox have recovered from their quick lesson at the start of the season and have taken nine of their last 13 games. They lead the league by one game over the surprising Detroit Tigers and hold a four-game edge over the Yankees.

HERE'S WHY . . .

Johnny Groth, .253 weakling with St. Louis Browns last year, is leading the Sox with a .364 average. Nellie Fox, who followed two straight batting championships with a miserable .256 performance last season, is hitting .328.

Pitchers Bob Keegan, Sandy Consuegra and Don Johnson have contributed seven victories without being beaten.

Consuegra won his second one Monday, limiting the 14-3 score against Philadelphia Athletics he gave up only seven hits, both single and a wind-blown double—both by Eddie Joost.

St. Louis Cardinals beat New York Giants 8-2 Monday night in the only other activity in the majors. It was too cold at Milwaukee for Brooklyn to play the last-place Braves, and it was too wet at Washington for the Senators' game with Cleveland. The other clubs weren't scheduled.

At St. Louis, Stan Musial, who slugged a record five home runs in Sunday's twin bill with the Giants, didn't get a hit. He was walked four times and fouled out on his one official appearance.

Sauer, Musial Bidding For Batting Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Veteran outfielders Hank Sauer of the Chicago Cubs and Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals are challenging pace-setting Ransom (Hardy) Jackson of the Cubs for National League batting supremacy.

Jackson, who led by a healthy margin a week ago, saw his average drop to .426. Sauer, meanwhile, moved into contention at .410, followed by Musial, a six-time batting champion, at .400.

Bill Glynn of the Cleveland Indians still tops the American League with a .466 mark, but Detroit rookie Bill Tuttle is right at his heels at .464, the figures include Sunday's games.

Jackson, after swinging at a .500 clip last week, went 4-for-10 and dipped 78 points. Teammate Sauer, on the other hand, collected nine hits in 17 trips and gained 59 points. Musial, with 12-for-22 during the week, boosted his average 84 points.

PHENOMENAL RISE

Brooklyn's Duke Snider, fourth with .352, and Don Mueller of the Giants, fifth at .351, also had phenomenal weeks at the plate. Snider delivered 14 hits in 34 at bats and raised his average 68 points, while Mueller clinched 15 safeties in 40 for-28.

With Al Rosen taking over at first base for the Indians, Glynn had only one bat during the week and his American League average fell 13 points. Tuttle, tied for second a week ago, went 6-for-15 and advanced to within two points of the top.

Billy Goodman of the Boston Red Sox, who won the batting crown in 1950, was third with .376. Cleveland's Bobby Avila is fourth with .353 and Mickey Mantle of the Red Sox rounds out the top five leaders at .354.

Hawks Goalie Al Rollins Wins Hart Trophy

MONTREAL (CP)—Angular Al Rollins, sensational goaltender for Chicago Black Hawks, has been judged the National Hockey League player most valuable to his team last season, the NHL trophy announced today. He wins the Hart Trophy and $1,000.

In a pool of hockey writers and broadcasters in the 20 NHL cities, Rollins got the nod over Red Kelly of Detroit Red Wings. He won points comparison by 74 for Kelly. Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens was third with 68 points.

A remarkable feature of the Rollins victory was the fact that he played with a team in last place club, the first player to so-achieve the honor since Harry (Cowboy) Anderson won the award while playing defence for New York Americans in 1941-42.

Rollins is the first goalkeeper to win the award since Chuck Rayner took honors in 1949-50. Detroit's Terrible Trio has won the trophy for the last two seasons.

Elwin Ira Rollins, 28, was born at Watrous, Sask., and played his last amateur game with Edmonton Flyers, Allan Cup winners in 1947-48. He won the Vezina Trophy in his first season as a professional with the Hawks, also winning Toronto Maple Leafs of 1950-51.

Softball Body Names Head

GALT (CP)—Ralph C. Yager of Fenwick has been re-elected president of the Ontario Rural Softball Association.

The only new member on the executive is treasurer Earl Sage of Galt, who filled the vacancy left by the resignation of Jack Carson of Stratford.

Edmonton Oil Kings Chafing at Bit, Said Strongest West. Team Since '48

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton's "go-go" Oil Kings are chafing at the bit, waiting for the East to decide their opposition in the Memorial Cup junior hockey final—either St. Catharines TeePees or Quebec Frontenacs.

But the Oilers can't wait is nothing new in the Edmonton club, whose habit of winning playoff series in minimum games has resulted in three prestigious layoffs this year varying from eight days to two weeks.

Add this trait to Oil Kings' record of 62 wins in 67 league, playoff and exhibition games this season and you see why many observers rate them the West's strongest contender since 1948, the last year the West won the cup.

They lost only one of 19 games in four playoff series, a 2-1 setback from Fort William Canadiens in the western final, snapping their win streak at 35 games, believed a Canadian record.

BOUNCED BACK

Proving they bounce back hard, Oil Kings won the next game 8-0 on Fort William ice.

A relatively "bad" junior club, the 18 Oil Kings average 182 pounds but their lone 200-pounder is a sparingly-used rookie defenceman. The average age is 18, making the Edmonton club one of the youngest Memorial Cup finalists. They have only three 20-year-olds. All but two players are Edmonton and district products.

Goalie Al Jacobson, in his fourth junior year, gives Oil Kings goaltending of the first order. He's steady goaling. The defence is a little shy on experience but closes the gap with desire and hard checking. Edmonton's two top forward lines are considered a match for anything in the East.

DOWN THE MIDDLE

Their main strength lies down the middle in centres Norm Ullman and Jerry Melnyk. Ullman, 18-year-old pivot, specializes in digging pucks out of corners for his wings.

Ullman won the WJHL scoring championship the last two seasons and runner-up this year was Melnyk, 19-year-old playmaker highly regarded by Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings.

In 56 league and playoff games, Ullman scored 159 points, including 75 goals. This compares with the 29-game regular season record of 161 points, including 68 goals, compiled by St. Catharines' Brian Cullen, considered the East's hottest pro prospect. In his 55 games, Melnyk, a three-year man, had 55 goals while scoring 138 points.

Bombers Claim Right to Bar Sports Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Officials of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers say they have every right to bar a newspaper man from the Winnipeg Stadium press box and, unless circumstances change, will continue their ban on a city sports writer.

Ralph Misener, president of Bombers, and James T. Russell, vice-president in charge of public relations, made the statement Sunday night after a letter dashed Saturday that the Western Interprovincial Football Union club intended to bar Bob Moir of the Winnipeg Free Press from the press box.

The ban was imposed after Moir reported that Bombers were said to be negotiating with Chuck Connelly, quarterback of the New York Giants of the National Football League. Bomber officials objected to the report although they refused to deny it.

Al Vickery, president of the Winnipeg Football Writers and Broadcasters Association, said a meeting of the association will be held and the group will meet later this week with Bomber officials.

Aces, Stampeders Clash Tonight In Series Opener

CALGARY (CP)—Quebec Aces escape a potent battery on home ice when they take on Calgary Stampeders here tonight in the opening game of a best-of-nine series to decide Canada's minor professional hockey championship.

The Stampeders lost only one of their 10 home-ice playoff games in eliminating Billy Reay's Victoria Cougars, Bud Poile's Edmonton Flyers and Art Chapman's Vancouver Canucks to win their first Western Canada league title.

Both the Aces and Stampeders have just emerged from two tough series. Aces came from behind a 4-2 deficit in games to win their best-of-nine series with Ottawa Senators for the Quebec Hockey League championship. Stampeders eliminated Vancouver four games to two in their Western final but it was nip-and-tuck throughout.

This is the first post-season series between Canada's two minor professional loop. They play for the Edinburgh Cup, donated by the Duke of Edinburgh, who became a hockey fan during his 1951 tour of the Dominion. Next year the series will be played in the east.

Queen's Plate Field Reduced To 43 Entries

TORONTO (CP)—The field for the 95th running of the Queen's Plate has been reduced to 43 colts and fillies.

The Ontario Jockey Club said today that final payment is due to keep horses eligible for the June 12 race was due last week-end. Last year 35 owners made the May 1 payments.

The Queen's Plate, Canada's top turf event, offers a prize of a $25,000-added purse and 50 guineas. It is run over a 1¼-mile course.

There were few surprises among the scratches. The western Canada contingent was reduced to two horses. Only Hi Laude, owned by Dr. L. H. Appleby of Vancouver and Mr. Speaker, owned by Attorney-General Lucien Maynard of Alberta, are still on the week's list.

R. James Speers of Winnipeg, who had a couple of contenders in Weyburn and Prince Royal, scratched the fillies when they failed to train to expectations.

For the first time there will be two separate trials for the Queen's Plate. A six-furlong test will be held May 22 and a second trial of one mile and 70 yards will be run June 2.

There are 177 original nominations for this year's plate. The field was reduced to 74 when another payment was due Dec. 1.

Snow Halts Ball Games

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minneapolis and St. Paul baseball officials had a quick glance at the snow carpet covering their ball parks Monday and called off scheduled American Association games.

Minneapolis was due to play Charleston and St. Paul was to meet Columbus. But one of the area's worst May snowstorms in recent years forced a quick halt.

REFORM INCREASE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A report that the Kentucky Derby purse will be increased from $100,000 to $150,000 next year "might be right." Bill Corum, Churchill Downs president, said Monday.

Corum commented: "I can't deny that it might be right, but any such decision would have to be made at the December meeting of board of directors."

N. Z. LAGS

BUDAPEST (CP)—New Zealand defeated Hungary in doubles play Monday but still trailed 2-1 in their first-round European zone Davis Cup series. The final two singles matches will decide the winner.

Lions Parade Two Prospects

VANCOUVER (CP)—A pair of new prospects were on hand Monday when B.C. Lions, the new western conference football entry, held their first spring training session.

Tailback Ernie Zalejski, one-time Notre Dame, Baltimore Colt and Washington Redskin speedster, was the main attraction.

Coach Annis Stukus said the six-foot, 190-pounder from South Bend, Ind., showed he was a "good passer and a nice runner."

Also on hand was Guido Scarton, a five-foot-nine, 185-pound halfback formerly with Wake Forrest in the southern college conference.

Scarton, who played three years for Wake, is stationed in Seattle with the U.S. Army. He finishes his service in July.

SUSPEND RIDER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The board of stewards at Churchill Downs announced Monday the suspension for rough riding of Howard Craig, jockey on Timely Tip in Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

Timely Tip was in the midst of jostling at the start of the 1¼-mile race. The suspension is for 20 days.

Red Sullivan Named MVP In American League

NEW YORK (AP) — George (Red) Sullivan of the Hershey Bears, who set a scoring record of 119 points in the season just ended, today was announced as the most valuable player in the American Hockey League for the 1953-54 campaign.

The circuit's sports writers and broadcasters sent him to the top in their voting. He compiled 26 points out of a possible 30.

Frank Mathers of Pittsburgh was second with eight points, followed by Jackie Gordon of Cleveland and Gaye Stewart of Buffalo. Other players who received points included Frank Eddolls of Buffalo, Gordon Henry of Hershey, Ed Slowinski of Buffalo, Emile Francis of Cleveland and Danny Lewicki of Pittsburgh.

Sullivan, who missed one game because of an injury, scored 30 goals and had 89 assists. The former record was 118 points set by Carl Liscombe during the 1947-48 season.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma, and the wind was blowing like anything, making men grab their hats and ladies grab their dresses, and ma said, My, what a day.

It's sure grate, aint it, ma? I said, and she said, I dont know why it was ever silly enough to leave the house.

Well, hmmmies, ma, what fun can you have in the house with all this swell air blowing? I said.

I declare I never saw such a wind, ma said, and I said, Me neither, ma, I believe I like this all the time.

My hat actuall feels as if it's reddy to leave my head, ma said, and I said, Yeah, even my cap is pulling as if it thought it was a kite, oh boy, it takes some wind to pull like that. Yeah, I was a bird on a day like this. They must be having the best time of all. Look at that lady, ma, she's trying to walk strate and she has to walk up sideways. Did you see her, ma? I said.

Yes, having all I can do to attend to myself, I can hardly keep my eyes open, there's so mutch dust, ma said, and I said, G, ma, you'll miss all the sites if you dont keep your eyes open.

Do you mean to say you're really enjoying this for land sakes? ma said, and I said, Sure I am, man, aint you?

Of course not, such a question, ma said. I was never so provoked and irriated and mizerble in my life, she said, and I said, Well gosh ma, if a little air is good, why aint a hundred times more a hundered times better?

Oh for goodness sakes hush, ma said.

Being the end of the subject and proving everybody cant injoy the same things, so somebody has to suffer.

By SAM GORDON
The Xibitzer

It would amaze me if all masters in the same match would reach the same contract in any one deal. It would surprise me if most of them would actually be in the best contract.

From the last national masters deal number nine is shown here:

♠K 10 9 5 2.
♥A 8
♦K 8 7 3
♣K 9

WEST	EAST
♠Q 8 3.	♠A J 6
♥Q 10 9	♥J 7 5 2
♦Q 9	♦J 10 6
♣A 10 7 6 4 3	♣Q J 2.

SOUTH
♥K Q J 6 4
♣8 5

North has support for a rebidable heart suit. South has only support for the north spade suit.

Any palooks knows that. Even the master players should know as much as that about bidding.

Nevertheless, of the 36 tables to play, 25 were in spades and only three of them were in a heart part score. Regardless of the result, is that what you would call master skill?

Among these were all the famous names held up to the public as models whose policies should be followed. And they themselves are the ones to know correct bidding when it stares them in the face.

It matters not that in this particular case the result might be better or worse with this or that suit or no-trump. What sticks out is that they are wrong in fundamental policies.

Make allowance for the fact that they are clever manoeuvrers who may be caught at it. Is that any reason why their basic ideas should be haywire? Or, that so many of them differ in their basics?

It makes you wonder whether they actually know the basics of bidding. From all the records I have studied, they give me the impression that they are actually ignorant of what is right.

To be in a spade contract, north must have rebid spades. Any beginner knows the spades held by north do not make a rebiddable suit; whereas, the south heart suit is truly rebiddable.

I have a wonderful admiration for their playing ability. In play they are justifiedly phenoms. But it looks as if much of their bidding must stenk. I theenk.

FOOTBALL BOOSTER DIES

EDMONTON (AP)—Mark (Red) McColl, 61, a member of the Eskimo football team that played against Queen's University for the Grey Cup in 1922 and a director of the present club, died Monday. McColl was elected president of the Edmonton Touchdown Club the year it was formed to promote professional football in Edmonton in 1949.

DAVIS CUP TEAM

LONDON (AP)—Three veterans and a youngster were named today to the British Davis Cup team which meets Brazil at Eastbourne May 13-15. The youngster is 18-year-old Billy Knight, Britain's most promising player since the early days of Fred Perry. Veterans named were Tony Mottram, Geoff Paish and Gerald Oakley. That trio made up the 1953 team which lost in the third round.

TENNIS CHOICES

LONDON (AP)—Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif., and Australia's Lewis Hoad are favored to win the Wimbledon tennis championships, starting June 21.

North. Electric Wins Opening Soccer Game

The Belleville Northern Electric soccer team came up with a close 3-2 win over Kingston United in Kingston on Saturday in the opening game of the Eastern Ontario Football League.

With a slight breeze at their backs, Kingston pressed the attack but the half back line Peterson, Dolan and Robby, playing heavy up ball, held their own. United opened the scoring when Gray broke through all alone to beat Jones at the 20 minute mark.

Dolan tied it up ten minutes later from a free kick from 25 yards out which the Kingston goalie never saw. On the next attack, Peterson took one off the toe of Gillisale and Folger stopped a hot one from Gemmell.

Northern Electric went on the offence in the second half and Folger was called on to make some fine saves. Belleville was awarded a penalty with Dolan making no mistake at the 60 minute mark. Play then resumed with both teams having hard luck.

Minutes later Jones after making the clearance, could not get back in time to stop a fine header by Crundy to knot the score at 2-2.

Northern then put on a sustained drive and after forgiving five corners, Gemmell headed home, lovely corner by N. Carter [illegible] the goal.

Northern lineup:

Jones, Loutit, Lane, Robby, Dolan, Peterson, Salter, E. Carter, Gemmell, N. Carter, G. Bunyan, Hatfield, Williamson, Scott.

DERBY FAVORITE

LONDON (AP)— Ambler II, Americo-owned colt owned by William Woodward, Jr., of New York Monday started as the favorite for the June 2 Epsom Derby. In the latest rollover of odds at the Victoria Club, Ambler regained the favorite's role from Darius, winner of last year's Two Thousand Guineas classic. Darius was at 13-2 followed by the French-bred Ferriol, 8-1.

EYES HAD IT—TURPIN

ROME (AP) — Britain's Randy Turpin said he saw "a whole bunch of Mitris" Monday night just before Italian middleweight Tiberio Mitri flattened Randy in 28 seconds.

Turpin's manager, George Middleton, said Monday that the first thing Randy will do when he returns to London in three or four days will be to see an eye specialist.

He quoted Turpin as saying just as the bell sounding for the brief encounter:

"My eyes are queer—I can't see anything."

AT THE ODEN McCARTHY

Britain's latest report to America, beautiful Dianne Foster who may be seen in Columbia Pictures' "Bad for Each Other," also starring Charlton Heston and Lizabeth Scott now at the Oden McCarthy Theatre, did not behave strictly by British rules when she arrived in Hollywood. One one thing, she drank orange juice when the other English actors in Hollywood drank tea each afternoon at four.

"It's a perfectly British reaction," Miss Foster explains. "Coming from England, I've had plenty of tea. But orange juice—it's rarer than caviar, over there."

Of course there is a lot of American in Dianne, since she was Canada's foremost radio actress before going to London to make a name for herself on Britain's stage and screen. In "Bad for Each Other," she plays the other woman who saves Charlton Heston from Lizabeth Scott's career in the rock-medical drama made from Horace McCoy's best-seller, "Scalpel."

Dianne has been acting since she was 13, when she made her debut as Maggie in a Canadian stage and screen. In "Bad for Each Other," she plays the other woman who saves Charlton Heston from Lizabeth Scott's career in the rock-medical drama made from Horace McCoy's best-seller, "Scalpel."

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 5, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mixed vibrations with sound, useful activities, domestic affairs and financial matters most favored. Use aggressive attitude, seeking unwarranted favors or advancement not in order. Care!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Venus' position stresses need for kindly understanding in home, family affairs. Otherwise this can be a productive day financially, if you are wisely alert and smart in management.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Quick, unpremeditated promises, action, carelessness in any written or verbal matters taboo. All interests and work require conscientious treatment. Take time to study, plan.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — A pleasant, promising outlook but you must be sagacious and avoid extremes and ill temper. The Moon and Jupiter in fine aspects are encouraging for money matters and occupational interests.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — The Sun, Mercury and Mars will not be auspicious for those who are unmindful of obligations and necessary tasks. Calmness, kindliness, close attention to day's affairs will bring good results.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Don't promise or undertake what you cannot fulfill or negotiate. Day asks reasonableness, wise forethought, studious judgment. No straining or becoming upset if all does not please.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Similar tendencies, admonitions and advantages as Virgo's now. You can have financial—and other gains from sound investments, work well done, business rightly managed. Care in routine matters!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—A slackening of yesterday's fine aspects but day is favorable for skilled work, all well managed business and money transactions. Just don't go overboard in promises, undertaking too much.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Some fortunate indications which should net advancement, monetary gains, perhaps other good leads. You should turn in a fine record today. Keep emotions under control; be conscientious.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Arbitrate, reason, don't permit irritability to stymie achievement or cause your finer self to be misunderstood. Go about day's activities calmly, serenely; you'll win.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You're on the spot but not an unfavorable "spot." Just a challenging day for astuteness, thoughtful judgment and slick-to-tiveness. You can accomplish now if you heed this advice. Fulfil!

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Neptune, Moon and Jupiter auspiciously aspected today give you a boost for fresh benefits, perhaps unusual advancement, surely incentive. Go forth with faith, honesty, determination.

YOU BORN TODAY are highly intuitive, capable in a thorough and general way. Much good fortune can be yours if you rightly develop and use your God-given talents and don't abuse or waste the skillful tools you possess—spirituality, winning personality, sincerity, honor, honesty. Never permit laziness to become laziness nor love for comfortable living to cause you to live beyond income or go into needless debt. Perfect your mechanical ability even though you may make your living at another profession. You can create, invent, improve others' creations.

Vietminh Envoy Son of Mandarin, Long a Rebel

PARIS (Reuters) — Pham Van Dong, 48-year-old leader of the Indo-Chinese Communist delegation to the Geneva conference, has become a key figure in the Vietminh peace movement only since 1949.

But for the last 23 years he has been a most active figure in Indo-China's extreme left-wing nationalist circles.

Pham Van Dong was born in Annam, of a wealthy cultured mandarin family. His father was for a time secretary to the emperor of Annam, Duy-Tan.

Van Dong first attracted attention when, as a Hanoi law student in 1925 he helped to organize a strike to commemorate the death of an Annamite nationalist leader. Police issued a warrant for his arrest and he fled to Canton, China, where he joined a small group of exiled Indo-Chinese nationalists, including Ho Chi Minh.

He remained in Canton for a year, studying at the "agitators school" formed by Ho Chi Minh there, and at the end of his course became a Communist and returned to Hanoi as a teacher in a private school.

ACTIVE PROPAGANDISTS

He quickly became one of the most active Communist propagandists in Hanoi and was arrested and sentenced to six years hard labor at Poulo Condore, the island detention centre for Indo-Chinese extremists.

After his release he is believed to have spent several years in Russia, attending courses at schools for overseas Communists.

In 1936, he returned to Indo-China, and for two years helped put out a Communist French-language newspaper, Volonte Indo-Chinoise.

In 1938, threatened with rearrest he fled to China with Ho Chi Minh and helped him form the Vietminh movement in 1941.

In 1943 Van Dong returned to Indo-China to take part in anti-Japanese guerrilla warfare in the Tonkin delta. He emerged in 1945 as a member of the "Viet Nam people's republic liberation committee" and the leader of a tiny Communist-inspired party, the "Viet Nam Dan Chu Dang" (democratic people party).

He became finance minister and secretary of state for defence in the Ho Chi Minh government set up in 1946. In June, 1946, he was president of the Viet Minh government delegation to Paris.

When the Indo-China war began in December, 1946, he went underground with Ho Chi Minh. In 1949 he was reported to have been made vice-president of the Ho Chi Minh government and president of the defence council.

Massey Guest Of Eisenhower At Washington

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's governor-general, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, today will tour a city familiar to him from the three years he spent here as Canada's first minister from 1927 to 1930.

The governor-general spent Monday night in the White House as guest of President and Mrs. Eisenhower, returning a visit they paid Ottawa last November.

This morning he was to move with his immediate staff across Pennsylvania avenue to Blair House, hospitality annex of the White House, where he will remain until his departure for Ottawa Wednesday afternoon.

Massey and his party, which included his son and secretary Lionel and Mrs. Lionel Massey, Defence Minister and Mrs. Brooks Clarion and the U.S. Ambassador to Canada and Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart, arrived in Washington Monday afternoon to an unprecedented reception program.

Quebec Mines Minister Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Daniel French, 70, prominent for many years in the farming, building and political life of Quebec, died at his home here Monday night after a prolonged illness.

Mines minister in Quebec's Union Nationale government since 1948, his term of office coincided with the big Ungava development of iron ore and other large-scale mining projects.

Rugged-looking but soft-spoken, he was the only Protestant, English-speaking member of the Quebec cabinet and was held in high esteem by politicians on both sides of the legislature.

Thatcher Shows How Canadians Can Save Money

OTTAWA (CP)—A Saskatchewan hardware merchant has proposed a wide range of economies which he said could save Canadian taxpayers $75,000,000 this year.

Ross Thatcher (CCF — Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) said in the Commons Monday his proposals would enable the government to reduce current tax rates. He described the taxes as jeopardizing Canada's trade position abroad and causing unemployment at home. Taxes were lowering consumer purchasing power and reducing demand for goods and services.

Additional savings of some $200,000,000 could be made by modest cuts in defence spending. The shooting war had ended in Korea and the international situation had improved.

The United States government had cut defence expenditures by 10 per cent and was aiming at a further five-per-cent reduction. The United Kingdom and Australian governments also were attempting to cut defence expenditures.

"TO SET EXAMPLE"

"I call on the federal government to set an example to Canadian industry by improving its own efficiency, by cutting its own expenditures and getting its own costs down," he said. "If it will do that as an example then it is fair for the minister to tell the Canadian business people to become more efficient."

Mr. Thatcher, who often disagrees with his party, said he was expressing his own views and that they did not necessarily agree with those of his colleagues.

The government could save up to $10,000,000 a year through establishment of a central purchasing agency, which would take advantage of maximum quantity discounts by bulk buying. Dozens of government branches maintained their own purchasing agencies and often competed with each other.

He said the government should reduce expenditures by cutting waste, duplication and extravagance. That would permit a tax reduction.

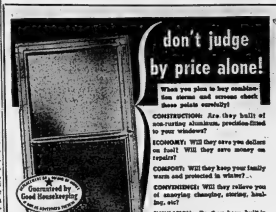
Many Changes Made in Ont. Highway Dept.

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario Monday announced the appointment of a new deputy highways minister, the streamlining of three provincial departments and the formation of a construction and planning committee.

Mehourne A. Elson, a 44-year-old mining engineer, is the new deputy minister. He succeeds J.D. Miller, deputy since 1943, who now becomes deputy public works minister in charge of engineering.

The present deputy public works minister, George Williams, assumes responsibility for architecture.



W. A. Clarke, acting chief engineer of the highways department since last year, is confirmed in that position and John J. Wingfelder is confirmed as executive officer under the planning and development minister.

All four are members of a new construction and planning which will co-ordinate the general planning of all three departments. Mr. Frost said, Mr. Williams is chairman of the committee and Mr. Wingfelder is secretary.

The committee will pass upon all claims for extras and settlements of contracts in all departments. This will remove from any one individual the responsibility of authorizing expenditures more than the original contracts, the premier said.

APPEALS DEATH SENTENCE

QUEBEC (CP) — The five judges of Quebec Court of Appeals Monday took under consideration an appeal by 34-year-old blacksmith Orila Boucher against his conviction and death sentence for the axe-slaying three years ago of an elderly store-keeper. Tabloid Urges Queen Get Rest On Return Home

LONDON (AP) — The tabloid Daily Sketch today gave the Queen a new title—"Her Slender Majesty." The paper urged the people to see she gets a rest when her world tour ends next week.

Across its front page the mass-circulation paper spread a picture from Malta showing a much slimmer queen than Britons had seen before her tour began last Nov. 23.

That picture followed up a pair of "before and after" photos Tuesday, captioned, "See how slim the Queen is getting."

The Sketch headed its editorial, "Give her a rest."

"Everywhere," it says, "there is concern that how slim she has become: She has lost weight: She has fine-drawn and tired—as well she might.

"The tour has been an arduous and long one. She deserves a holiday—and a long-one."

Officer Says Comic Books Had Bad Panels

TORONTO (CP) — A morality officer testified Tuesday that picture panels in two comic books depicted possible murder, torture and strangulation, as the first charges laid in Toronto or selling crime comic books were heard.

Charged jointly with six officers are Leslie Morrison, publisher and manager William Zimmerman. They pleaded not guilty to the charge which carries a maximum two-year sentence.

The charges were laid April 12 after investigation by morality officer Harry Long and refer to alcrime comic publications.

Long said he visited the offices of the publishing company where Zimmerman told him the books were printed in Canada from "mats" obtained from the United States.

The trial is continuing.

Malan Says Nehru Enemy Of White Man

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — Prime Minister Daniel Malan Tuesday said Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru is "the enemy of the white man."

He also attacked the "utter stupidity" of the United Nations, and listed UN interference as contributing to Africa's greatest present danger.

In a foreign policy speech in the House of Assembly, the Nationalist party leader also threatened to lead his country out of the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization if UNESCO made any more "serious attacks" on South Africa's internal policy.

The Malan government's policy of "apartheid" (racial segregative) has long been under attack in the United Nations, and from Moscow.

Nehru, Malan said, had his eyes "firmly fixed" on wiping the white race out of Africa.

Nehru has protested Malan's attitude toward South Africa's large Indian population.

DREW SUPPORTS QUEBEC BID FOR TAX DEDUCTION

PC Leader Wants Conference Called Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec's bid for full deduction of its new 15-per-cent income tax from federal tax levies has gained the support of Opposition Leader Drew.

He said Tuesday in the Commons that Quebec's request should be granted this year and that a general federal-provincial conference should be called immediately to settle the broad problem of reallocation of taxing powers before next year.

The Progressive Conservative leader, entering the closing stage of the budget debate, for the first time specifically supported Quebec's request for full deduction of the tax.

He said it would cost the federal government $25,000,000 more than a tentative agreement which it wanted Quebec to sign. It would mean no new cost to the other provinces and would relieve them of begin discussions on the general problem of a new alignment of taxing fields as between the two provincial governments.

Quebec's government has rejected Quebec's bid for full deduction for its new tax. Monday, Prime Minister St. Laurent turned down the proposal made earlier by Mr. Drew for an immediate federal-provincial conference but said the door is open for Premier Duplessis to discuss a solution.

AN UNHAPPY SPEECH

Mr. Drew said the prime minister's statement was a most unhappy speech in every way.

"In effect, it was a simple and emphatic statement that until the provinces of Quebec submits to terms imposed by this government, there will be no conference, although every province has been asking for a conference for a long time.

It was clear the federal government's door was open only if Premier Duplessi accepted an agreement similar to the tax-rental deals signed by the other provinces.

Under those agreements, the provinces leased their right to collect personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties, in return for annual federal payments. The existing agreements expire in 1956.

Mr. Drew said the Quebec tax dispute is a family and unhappy conflict.

The federal government had admitted the principle of deductibility and allowed a reduction of up to five per cent from federal taxes for provincial income taxes.

The principle was the principle that the federal government could dictate the amount of provincial income tax that would mean the end of the federal system.

"STRAITJACKET COMMISSIONS"

"The provincial governments would be nothing more than subcontract commissions carrying out the orders of this government.

"This is the straitjacket it stamps for Ottawa. And whenever they needed more money they would have to come cap in hand to the premier of Quebec has been invited to do, through that door that is opened for such a clearly defined purpose."

China Steps Up Sale of Drugs To Aid Spread of Communism

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Red China was accused Tuesday of stepping up its sale of narcotics in a government-operated plot to spread drug addiction and use the money proceeds to spread communism.

The charge came from Harry J. Anslinger, U.S. narcotics commissioner. He refused to charge voiced in past sessions about Red China's role in the narcotic drugs traffic, they included new details which Anslinger said before the UN subcommission on narcotics drugs.

Among them:

The Chinese Communist regime foreign ministry now has over-all control over the entire program.

Most portion of the profits from the sale must be returned to the finance ministry of the Communist regime in China.

In some areas of Red China poppy cultivation has tripled, under government supervision.

New heroin factories have been set up in the country.

The drugs are offered for sale through the world.

Spreading narcotic addiction and using the funds for political purposes is the policy of the Communist regime in mainland China, not just the policy of one man.

Fear Death Toll Will Be 50 In Italian Coal Mine Blast

RIBOLLA, Italy (Reuters) — Rescue officials here today feared 50 miners and firemen dead in one of the greatest mine disasters in Italian history.

Black-shawled mothers and wives gathered again today at the entrance to the mine shaft, hoping desperately that some of the miners trapped 800 feet below were still alive.

An explosion seared the shaft Tuesday and brought tons of rock down in a cave-in.

Walls of grief went up from the waiting relatives as six more bodies were hauled to the surface, bringing the known death toll to 19. Twenty injured men have been rescued during 24 hours of frantic digging by rescue workers.

So far only 10 men of those originally trapped have been brought to the surface unhurt.

Reports of Flying Saucers 'Too Accurate to Be Ignored'

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Department of lands and forests townermen here have been told to watch the skies for flying saucers.

Flying Officer Bill Scott, in command of the ground observer corps at North Bay, instructed the men Tuesday to include "saucers" in their lists of airborne objects to be reported to the filter centre here.

He referred to the report made by a trapper north of Moosonee of a strange object flying at a height of 2,000 feet, which had been substantiated "by another level headed observer."

"Reports of flying saucers are too accurate to be ignored," Flying Officer Scott said.

He conferred 44 GOC wings on foresters, rangers and townermen.

He told the House the suits are for $200,000 against the Evening Telegram, St. John's, and $15,000 against The Western Star, Corner Brook.

The suits arise out of reports of a speech by Mr. Pottle in the House in which he referred to conditions in a section of the province. He did not name the district in his speech.

The parents presented a petition, to the board protesting Mrs. Pitez dismissal. The board's decision was it in closed session and then declined to uphold its original decision.

The parents said the board has refused to meet with them and the city couhil to discuss the matter openly.

The parents said if their representations to the board and department of education failed they would vote in their own representatives at the next municipal election.

Remanded Week For Mental Examination

HAMILTON (CP)—Charged with threatening, Helen Leonard, 42, appeared before Magistrate Reamer W. Hopkins this morning and was remanded one week for mental examination.

The charge was laid following investigation of two mysterious fires which broke out Sunday morning in the nursery business on Douglas St. The charge is that on several occasions the accused woman threatened the life of Alvin Cheek, owner of the nurseries, and Mr. Badder and his daughter Grace Mitchell, out of the nursery business.

Inspector George Halliday of the Ontario fire marshal's office said today the investigation is "far from over."

When the first fire broke out Sunday, 17 children and four adults were removed from the building. Firemen discovered rags had been piled at the bottom of a stairs.

Alderman Ada Pritchard, chairman of the special housing committee set up by city council recently, has called a special meeting of the committee for Thursday afternoon as an aftermath of the fires.

"The fact that there were 17 children living cared for at the boarding home has pointed up the urgent need for low rental housing in Hamilton," said Alderman Pritchard today.

SEAWAY BILL DEBATE OPENS IN U.S. HOUSE

'Now or Never' Decision Will Be Made Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States House of Representatives opens debate today on the first St. Lawrence seaway bill to reach its floor in the nearly 20 years the international project has been proposed in legislation.

The U.S. Senate has already passed the measure which would authorize U.S. participation with Canada in construction of the 27-foot-deep channel in the St. Lawrence river. The seaway would allow low larger ocean-going ships to steam from the Atlantic to Great Lakes ports.

House leaders have called for a vote on the measure Thursday — and the tally will amount to a "now or never" decision as far as U.S. participation is concerned. Canada has officially stated that it will build the seaway by herself on the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence if the U.S. legislation fails in Congress this year.

One of the main points of contention in the debate preceding the vote is expected to materialize around an amendment denying aid or financing of the U.S. portion of the project. The vote was offered by Representative Charles Brownson (Rep. Ind.).

The bill, as passed by the Senate, would authorize a St. Lawrence development fund of $105,000,000 in revenue bonds to the U.S. treasury department. The bonds would be retired within 40 years through tolls received from ships using the waterway.

WANTS PRIVATE OFFERING

Brownson, however, will propose that the bonds be offered to private investors instead of the treasury. He contends that if the project would be self-liquidating, as claimed by proponents, private capital would have no hesitation in purchasing the bonds to supply the money needed for construction.

Supporters of the bill claim the amendment is "meaningless" and would have a crippling effect. They contend that money from private sources could not be available when needed for construction.

The seaway has the backing of President Eisenhower, his cabinet, the national security council and the military joint chiefs of staff, which declared that for defense reasons, its construction is needed as the greatest single project of defense.

The measure is opposed by eastern U.S. railroads, Atlantic and Gulf coast shipping interests, producers and private utility groups. All of these groups contend they would work an economic hardship on their interests.

Southeast Asia Security Pact Is Being Formed

Eisenhower Backs Dulles Says Progress 'Considerable'

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eisenhower said today the proposed southeast Asia security pact now is "in process of formation."

In a statement read to his weekly press conference, the president announced that the countries of the Indo-China area now are "thinking constructive terms, which include the indispensable concept of collective security."

"Progress in this matter has been considerable and I am convinced that during this week it will continue to be made."

Mr. Eisenhower said the fact that a southeast Asia security arrangement "is in process of formation would have an important bearing upon what happens at Geneva during the Indo-China phase of the conference."

BACKS DULLES FULLY

Eisenhower declared his unqualified support for State Secretary Dulles and for Dulles' efforts to form a united front against communism in southeast Asia.

The press conference followed a meeting between Eisenhower and Dulles after which the secretary said he does not know what is back for the idea that he suffered a diplomatic defeat at the Geneva conference.

In answer to a question whether he thought the Geneva conference on Asian peace problems had been a major defeat for American policy, Eisenhower replied, simply that no one can count a battle lost when it is still going on.

The secretary returned Tuesday night from the Geneva sessions and reported to Eisenhower today on his efforts there to find peace for Asia and a way to keep Indo-China from Communist conquest.

DULLES CHUCKLES

A reporter told Dulles the idea he advanced was that he suffered a "major diplomatic defeat" in his meetings with the British and Chinese Communist leaders in Geneva.

His reply was that "I don't understand what's happened there that would lead to that type of conclusion."

Dulles chuckled in good spirits and was chuckling as he gave his reply.

Later, Dulles arranged to take up the critical Indo-China situation, as the greatest problem of dealing with the Chinese, in a conference with congressional leaders and senior members of the foreign policy committees.

In advance of these sessions Dulles was said to be determined to get from the leaders their views on a coalition of free countries dedicated to halt Communist expansion in Indo-China and Asia.

BRITISH UNCO-OPERATIVE

So far he has been unable to obtain British co-operation in this project. Present United States policy holds that Britain's participation in a security system there is essential.

However, there now is some speculation in official quarters that if events start to turn the wrong way it might be true if the Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu is overrun. The Communist leaders in Peiping, Moscow and Eisenhower may consider forming a coalition with any countries that will co-operate.

William F. Knowland of California, Senate Republican leader, has recently advocated such a course if the administration so far has held that any military intervention by the U.S. in Indo-China must be a part of a joint enterprise with other powers—an enterprise which would require congressional approval before the government would act.

Sun Oil Drops Price of Gas 2 Cents a Gallon

TORONTO (CP) — Sun Oil Company today dropped the wholesale price of gasoline to dealers two cents a gallon. The company sells only "premium" grade.

A company spokesman said the move was result of "a new marketing policy" permitting decreased costs through opening of the new Sarnia refinery and the sale of one grade.

Retail price a gallon at the one company - operated station here was reduced to 41.5 cents from 43.5. Retail dealers are expected to drop their prices in line with the company's action.

Spokesmen for other major companies said they are not aware of immediate decreases by their firms.

Improvement Shown

SUDBURY (CP)—An improvement in the employment situation here is reported today with the announcement of a 1,374 decrease in those seeking work in this district.

Figures released by the national employment service show there are now 4,166 unemployed compared with 5,540 at the beginning of April.

Operative Mortality for Angina Pectoris Low Says Montreal Doctor

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Arthur Vineberg, the Montreal surgeon who provides angina pectoris sufferers with a transplanted artery into the heart, reported today that the operative mortality for 29 cases over a four-year period is 14 per cent.

In a paper prepared for presentation to the American Association of Thoracic Surgeons, Dr. Vineberg said that 23 cases where the patients suffered no anginal pain while at rest were operated on—an operative mortality rate of 4.3 per cent.

In the cases of status angina—anginal pain while the patient is in complete rest—there were three deaths, a mortality rate of 50 per cent.

Dr. Vineberg also reported on experimental work, carried out jointly with the department of experimental physiology at McGill University, showing the oxygen of blood flow and oxygen reaching the heart through the transplanted artery.

The surgical procedure originated and developed by Dr. Vineberg is known as the internal mammary artery implant. The purpose of the operation is to bypass diseased coronary arteries with the fully functioning chest artery and supply blood to the heart.

Dr. Vineberg reported on 19 human cases one to four years after operation and 10 cases one to nine years after operation.

In the first group three patients, cases of severe angina, died within 63 hours after the operation. Five of the seven who survived the operation are working. Of the 10 hours a day. Three of these five are in their first year, who worked 16 hours daily, has slight pain when walking fast or lifting. One of the five worked for two years and died while pushing his car out of snow. The cause was an old rupture in the heart muscle. There was no thrombosis—artery blockage.

Of the two others in the five series, one lived three years and died from a case of anaemia when the artery pulled from the heart. The other patient died from improvement a year after the operation.

In the 19 cases studied one to four years after operation, however, the operation on one patient was not successful. Angina returned, with edema—a swollen state of tissue, with heavy fluid in the lung area. One patient died of pulmonary edema two hours after the operation.

Of the 17 others, 12 are pain free and have increased exercise tolerance. Three have pain but are improved. One had severe pain, without improvement. One has about the same pain as before the operation.

Former Toronto Mayor Gives Insight to Kiwanis Club Of Magnitude of Famous CNE

"One reason the CNE does not hire Canadians to headline its grandstand show is that establishe radio and television stars are afraid to work in front of a live audience and possibly destroy what they have built up on radio and TV", said Hiram McCallum, former mayor of Toronto and general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition in an address to the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at Kiwanis Centre Tuesday noon.

Mr. McCallum stated that there is not a sufficient theatre background in Canada to produce headliners and that lack of work forces Canadian theatre talent to go to the United States for experience and employment.

"Radio and TV artists are not accustomed to working in front of live audiences," he continued reporting on the wane of two of Canada's highest-paid radio comedians who "laughed at us when they were approached to headline the grandstand show."

Mr. McCallum noted, however, that the emphasis in the production of the grandstand show has changed from a "made in U.S." label to a "made in Canada" setting, and the employment of all Canadian choreographers, Canadian scenic painters, lighting supervisors and production personnel. Canadians now composed the bands and dancing choruses, which formerly were almost all staffed by Americans.

LAUDS PRODUCER.

Mr. McCallum lauded producer Jack Arthur as "one of the outstanding figures in the field of North America."

"We are not sure of our grandstand show this year," said the speaker in commenting on the CNE show which will be in the middle of a quarrel between two A.F. of L. unions.

"Unfortunately we have no laws to protect people trying to put on a show from being caught between unions," he said.

The 1953 CNE, he discussed briefly the history of the CNE. "This is the 'morning after'," he said, "and until 1879 when it settled permanently in Toronto, it rotated among Penetanguishene, Hamilton, London, Niagara Falls, Cobourg and one year in Brockville.

"It was a beginning of 50 acres and 100,000 spectators in 1879; the CNE grew to its present peak as world's largest annual exhibition with 350 acres of land, an attendance of 2,713,000 in 1952, and a gross revenue from admissions and concessions of $2,252,000.

He pointed out that the agricultural prize list has grown from $1,000 to $125,000.

PROPER CONTROL CNE

Who controls the CNE? Mr. McCallum said that the people of Canada control the CNE through 138 representatives from 75 organizations—in all phases of Canadian life. The representatives, who serve without pay, are divided into three sections; those representing public bodies, those from manufacturing groups, boards of trade, merchants, etc., and those representing agriculture.

From each group 16 members are elected to the board of directors, all members of which serve without pay.

He explained that the city of Toronto owns the land and the $20,000,000 worth of buildings on it that CNE surpluses are given to the city, because the Dominion government deeded the land to Toronto in return for the city's promise to maintain Fort York.

Accomplishments of the CNE cited by Mr. McCallum included the establishment of agriculture through the $125,000 prize list and the training of junior livestock judges from all parts of Canada; $65,000 paid to bands, the granting of musical scholarships and promotion of music day; 600,000 free admissions in Ontario's elementary school children; grants to cadets and veterans groups, and the institution of Olympic trials for Canada's athletes to provide them with the best possible competition as a means of strengthening Canada's future Olympic contenders

In amplifying his remarks on the grandstand show Mr. McCallum stated that it is a big show.

WON'T HAVE SPEAKER

"The worst thing we could do," he said, "would be to put Canadian talent in a show that isn't ready for it. There are 25,000 seats in the grandstand and even Jimmy Durante, when he saw the size of it and realized that the audience was a mile and a half away, was afraid to go out there. I never saw anyone so hard to sell an audience as Durante did," he said.

"We can make or break Canadian talent in two weeks at the CNE," Mr. McCallum said, stating that there is no Canadian theatre where actors and actresses have a chance to be tried.

"What we have done is give Canadian talent every opportunity to work at the CNE wherever possible. We feel that all Canadian first and second billing on the show are more important than having Canadian talent in the belt on stage."

In referring to the 32-mile diameter take-a-look to be promoted this year, Mr. McCallum said, "I do not think any one person can do it because of the distance and the field."

NOT PAID IF SHE FAILS

"Florence Chadwick had a look at it and thinks she can," he said. "We will pay her if she finishes. She can't if as often as she likes during the time of the exhibition and if she succeeds we will pay her. If she doesn't make it, she won't get paid. If she does, the Canada swim will become the premier marathon swim in the world."

He expressed confidence that the relay race would be a success.

"Already an Egyptian team has entered the relay," he said, "and we expect several good Canadian teams to be entered. We won't make the same mistake with our international swimming team that we made with the hockey team Canada sent to meet the Russians," he said.

"The CNE is the show window of the nation," said Mr. McCallum, noting that this year's show would be opened by the Duchess of Kent and her 17-year-old daughter. "They are a fine family in the world and deserves your support."

The speaker was introduced by Bill Stovin and the thanks of Kiwanis were expressed by Louis Marsakas.

Police Blotter

City and provincial police enjoyed a period of comparative quiet during the past 24 hours with few occurrences, even of a routine nature being reported.

Shortly before midnight last night an east-bill woman heard a slight racket outside and glanced out just in time to see a young man pick up her new garbage can, place it in his car and drive away. She was able to give police a description of the vehicle and part of the licence number.

James Truaisch New President Of Bridge Club

The Belleville Bridge Club closed another successful season Tuesday night at the Shrine Club when the election of officers was held and plans laid for the coming season of play.

James Truaisch was the unanimous choice of the members for the presidency during the coming year, succeeding Don Stirling. The honorary president is R. J. Wray, a charter member of the club, while Ross Bailey was elected vice-president. W. B. "Ski" Vandervoort is the secretary-treasurer, and Homer Townsend, James Ward and Claude D. Tice as directors. The slate of officers was brought in by a nominating committee of Harold Mott and Jack Lawrence. Don Barrett and "Dutch" Tilker were elected as a committee to arrange for a ladies' night which permits the members to thank the women for their kindness in preparing lunches during the playing season.

By a motion was proposed to take away the slam points if a slam was bid but not made, but the opposition felt this would weaken the bidding and the motion was soundly defeated. It was agreed to raise the entrance fee to $10 this year in order that the club would break even financially on the year's operation. It was also agreed that an earnest effort should be made to have at least 24 teams in the league next year.

PRESENTATION MADE

Don Stirling, the retiring president, thanked the members, the efficient secretary and board of directors for the co-operation given him during his term of office and stated it was a distinct honor to be chosen to head this fine club. Before retiring from office he made a presentation to Mr. Vandervoort for his efficient service during the year and 'Ski' graciously replied.

On taking the gavel as the new president, Mr. Truaisch thanked the members for the honor conferred on him and hoped for another successful year. With the help of the secretary the awards for winning play were distributed and were in order of standing: Harold Mott and Homer Townsend, Jack Lawrence and Don Stirling, Frank Domenico and Joseph Wims, Al Drysdale and Ernie Pugh, Wm. VanTassell and Morley Ward, James Walker and James Truaisch. The winners of slam points were Roy Lynch and Robert Little. The section winners were Bruce Miller and Bill Mellick, Harold Mott and Homer Townsend, Don Barrett and Edward Lewis and Gordon Vince and "Ski" Vandervoort.

The evening was spent in playing bridge with Al Drysdale and William Coulby being the winners and Ross Bailey and F. Domenico second. Door prize was won by Claude D. Tice. A social hour was spent after the Board Reserves Decision On Question of Pay

Whether carpenters at Tweed are to be paid at the same rate as those working in the Belleville area, was the question up for decision at a board of arbitration hearing held at the Belleville city hall this week.

The board reserved decision on the question of whether the agreement in effect extends to an area beyond Belleville as defined in the Ontario Industrial Standards Act. The hearing was a board of arbitration appointed under agreement between the Belleville and District Builders' Exchange and the local union 573 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Specifically the hearing concerned the rate of pay to be paid to carpenters working on the contract for the new post office at Tweed. The board is to decide whether the $1.75 per hour rate of pay for carpenters in Belleville or the $1.50 rate for Tweed as set by the government for that post office job should apply.

The carpenters' union claims Tweed comes within the Belleville area and that the $1.75 rate for carpenters should apply.

The board of arbitration consisted of Eric Taylor, Toronto, as chairman; Robt. Temple, for the Belleville Builders' Exchange, and Frank Quaife, London, representing the union. Robt. A. Pringle of Belleville, acted as "counsel for the Builders' Exchange, and Harold S. Blakely, represented the carpenters.

Police Assistance Is Requested To Locate Man

Police assistance in locating Charles McQuillan of Alder Creek, Alta., who it is thought may have come to the Belleville area, has been asked by the mayor of a town in British Columbia.

Information reaching police here indicates that Mr. McQuillan operated a farm in the Belleville area as a young man and may have returned to this area possibly to visit relatives.

Any person knowing of Mr. McQuillan's whereabouts or who knows of any relatives in this area, are asked to call the Belleville police station.

Eight-Year-Old Peter Ross Hooks 8-Pound L. Trout

"I'll give you ten dollars for it" said a bystander.

Eight-year-old Peter Ross, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Ross, 15 East Moira Street, clutched the handsome eight-pound grey trout, looked sternly at his tempter and said, "Listen, mister, I would not take a hundred dollars for it."

Peter was the proudest boy in Hastings county last Sunday, for hadn't he hooked his first big fish with an ordinary minnow and a nylon line. He caught the big fellow in Trout Lake near Bancroft, where dad has a cottage.

Peter was fishing with cousin Bill Ross, 23, when his hook caught what he thought was a submerged log. The "log" suddenly came to life and for the next few minutes, an excitedly youngster and a fighting fish battled grimly.

Meanwhile K. Broadsworth and Leo Ross, other members of the party were adding their contribution to the day's catch. Mr. Broadworth, using a bamboo pole and bait to match, got himself a couple of three-pound greys, while Mr. Ross landed a two-pound speckle.

Trout Lake contains both speckles and greys, according to Dr. Ross. Last season they hauled twenty-four grey trout out of the lake, the largest graduating from eight pounds to two.

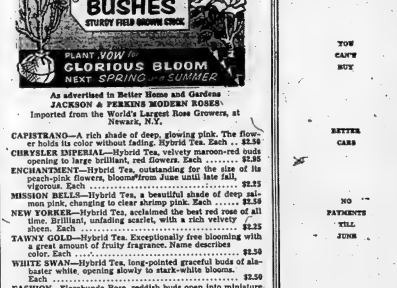
BCI Cadet Corps To Be Inspected On Friday

The largest male cadet corps ever held by the cadet corps of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School is scheduled to be held Friday, May 7th, at 10.00 a.m. at the Belleville Fair Grounds.

Upwards of 300 boys will take part in the annual cadet inspection. For the first time in several years the girls' cadet corps will not be on parade.

This year's cadet inspection is expected to be the largest to be held in the city for some years to come as the corps will be split with the opening of the new Bay of Quinte District High School next fall.

Commanding officer of the corps this year is Jack Lafferty, Yukon, and the adjutant is E. Done, assistant cadet training officer, from Kingston.



Features of the inspection will be the general marching exercises of the whole cadet corps, the band drill, and post parade demonstrations including part reading, small arms training, bren gun and Vickers machine gun drill, mechanical transport and platoon tactics.

It is expected that at the close of the inspection the corps will parade down Front Road and across the bridge, up Bridge St. East to Church and thence up Church St. to the Collegiate compound.

In case of light rain the corps will hold its inspection on the B.C.I. campus and in case of heavy rain the inspection will be held in the armouries.

Road was 38 degrees but further north it was said the temperatures would undoubtedly be lower.

One farmer from the Foxboro area said this morning that the white frost was quite general in that area. The temperature did not get low enough however to freeze ice, he said.

BIG, BOLD AND BUSTLING

If there is anyone in Ontario unaware that Toronto is a large, bustling metropolitan cosmopolite, it is not because Toronto's new corps of civic boosters has been backward in spreading Toronto's gospel.

That civic monster, "Metro," born of necessity following the wedding of staid, old Toronto with sundry aggressive suburbs, was the most heralded municipal baby in Ontario's history. At one fell swoop Toronto moved up from fifteenth to eighth place in size among the cities of North America and presented its first serious challenge to the Montreal metropolitan area as Canada's largest city.

Torontonians, remarkably reticent in suffering under the "Hog Town" label, stuck out their chests like pouter pigeons. The Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Commission, complaining with unaccustomed fervor, lured 40 per cent of Canada's new factory construction into its area and calmly announced that their operating sphere extended from Oshawa on the east to Burlington on the west and Newmarket on the north. Hardly had this conception of sprawling Toronto sunk in than Toronto's new subway placed the city in the select company of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston as "both American's "subway cities."

Last Thursday Toronto again celebrated its new status as a great city by playing host, for the first time for any Canadian city, to a baseball team from Havana, Cuba, appropriately named the "Sugar Kings" and the newest entry in the International League's truly international league. To give the occasion the proper foreign fillip, sports writers sprinkled their stories with snatches of Spanish while a Toronto radio station, in a burst of genius, bowled over to our Cuban neighbors by including a threeinning commentary on the play in Spanish by a Cuban announcer. This gesture of international good will served to emphasize that Toronto—that Canada itself—was a major participant in the only trilingual sports league in North America.

We salute the opening of the baseball season, the new Cuban-International League "Sugar Kings", and Toronto's on-the-ball promoters for capturing the Canadian debut of Havana for the Queen city of Canada. Montreal reminds its slip this golden opportunity to outmaneouvre their arch-rivals from Toronto can only be explained on the basis that the Canadiens' lotfier finish in the NHL somehow dulled the metropolis' wits. That Toronto could steal anything international from Ottawa gives one some idea of the ambition and verve animating Toronto's corps of wonderworkers in Ontario's new Bagdad on the subway.

And with that sobering thought we bid one and all, Adios, Adieu and goodbye.

A MATTER OF INTERPRETATION

Educationists ought to thank their stars for Communism and the hydrogen bomb.

Otherwise our modern educational system would be the No. 1 spectacle in the chamber of horrors of those who habitually view with alarm.

As it is, it goes on exhibit fairly frequently because of the necessity to change programs occasionally.

A contributor suggests that "what is really wrong with education may be educators."

As proof it offers this summary: "Columbia University gave the average high school superintendents when are usually given 8th and 12th grade students. In arithmetic, the top 10 per cent of the educators succeeded in tying the high school seniors. In 20 per cent of the questions, grads made poorer scores than the average 8th grade pupil. In reading, the educators came out with really red faces, making a showing considerably worse than that of the two university groups."

It must be a stubborn streak in us, but we fail to understand how the fact that his pupils are smarter than he is proves that an educationist is a failure. Or how it proves that the system of education he advocates is such that "all equal and all stupid would be a splendid motto to inscribe over the portals of the magnificent public schools rising across the land and dedicated to the ideals of progressive education."

Making the next generation smarter than the present one would appear to be the primary aim of a worthwhile educational system.

TOO LONG A DELAY

When is a report not a report? Frank H. Hall, chairman of a union committee representing 148,000 railway workers, thinks this situation arises when members of a conciliation board bring in three separate reports.

Mr. Hall is also annoyed about the fact that proceedings have apparently taken six months.

Other labor leaders could probably produce proof that this is no record.

Conciliation boards are falling into disrepute.

A "cooling off" period is certainly desirable when any union is considering a strike. But when that period extends for several months the delay is more likely to generate resentment than to promote better feeling. Arbitration lead more to a stubborn than a reasonable attitude.

LAW BREAKER

The good man wondered why the crook
Should violate the statute book
And wreck his life and give his time
To wanton folly and to crime.
It seemed to him that all should pause
To count the cost of breaking laws.

The doctor to the good man said:
"You must go earlier to bed,
Need not so late at night and take
A long vacation or you'll break.
This overstraining of your brain
Will bring you to a bed of pain."

"Think not that you alone can do
The many tasks which fall to you,
Drop half your burdens; learn to play.
Don't rush so fast along the way.
Though very noble seems the cause
You're breaking all of nature's laws."

The good man heard, and well he knew
The words the doctor spoke were true.
"I'm one," said he, "who cannot quit.
Why men refuse to count the cost.

Ski Training On Street Cars

(Montreal Gazette).

Now that the skiing season is ended, many Quebeckers may be worried. They may fear that they may lose the skills they have acquired. For assistance provides little opportunity for keeping up one's skiing practice.

Perhaps they should heed the suggestion that Senator Norman Paterson once offered. He said that travelling by street car calls for the same rhythm and balance as the ski slopes. The point, he warns, is that you mustn't hold onto the strap. Just bend your knees and take the swing and sway the far as you can.

Perhaps the suggestion may be taken up by many travellers. In the next time you take a street car and see all the straps swaying to right in the air, while the people standing in the aisles bend in unison to absorb the shocks, don't be surprised. They're only enthusiastic skiers, trying to keep their rhythm and balance.

Perhaps it might be found that the skills so acquired could be used by the transportation Company without outlay anything provided the traditional festional instructors on the slopes of the Laurentides. Some things are born to help skiing next winter may find that they have not only maintained their skill but have benefit that their skills have improved beyond anything they considered possible. No hazard will daunt them.

And it will all be provided by three tickets for 30 cents—with the transportation thrown in free.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

VALUES SLIP AWAY

There is a story in the Old Testament of a soldier who was appointed to guard a prisoner, but who let the prisoner escape. When he was brought up on the carpet for his dereliction, his excuse was, "While thy servant was busy hither and thither he, he was gone."

This term has been used hundreds of times as ministers set forth the truth that often we let the little things of life so engross us that we are not able to retain the things which really matter. We find ourselves in a round of busyness, and after weeks or months or years, we ask ourselves what it has all been about anyway. The other day I heard of a professional man so busy in keeping up a great reputation that he has neglected some of the most obvious duties that he would like to perform. The scandal sheets are full of accounts of how this mouthpiece of business or that clownish playboy has become involved in scandal because of liquor. They have spent dollar fortunes and soul fortunes trying to make themselves happy, and happiness has eluded them. While they were busy hither and thither, he, he was gone.

It's easy—all too easy to let the things of real value slip away from us, and usually because we are too busy with things of lesser value. "I, here . . . there . . . gone."

By Molly Gates Daugherty in The Christian Science Monitor.

My daughter Joan organizes my housework, lends me money, and gives me tips on managing my husband!

She was born fourteen years ago, looking as though she'd been put through a wringer with the help of the head obstetrician in a New York hospital. But the wringer process was only the beginning of what she was to go through with.For I belonged to the steady generation of mothers who meticulously followed the advice of the experts on bringing up children.

If Joan was hungry at two-thirty, I waited until three to feed her. Three was her mealtime. That was what the baby psychologists said to do, and they ought to be right! If she cried for attention, I let her cry. Picking her up might spoil her. That's what the authorities said, and they ought to know.

But I didn't stay there. I read books. After I'd exhausted the library, I sent for government pamphlets and my own baby specialties as "Are You Teaching Your Child to Be Selfish?" and "Should it wasn't long before I stumbled across Rule 999 in a fifteen-cent booklet. That was the one I relied on teaching your child to take care of himself in all situations. In it, went something like this:

"Provide two or three large, well-selected playthings for baby and leave the child alone at the same time for one to two hours. Shut the door and ignore him completely. This develops self-reliance.

Self-reliance or not, I'd get home nervous wreck. By that time there the rule was, right in a row, the playthings in the newspaper or are in a book . . .

The first day I plopped down on the floor in the middle of them, she howled.

The second day she crawled as fast as she could to beat me to the door before I could open it. The third day I got beat her to the door, and she started developing.

The first inkling I got that the baby psychologists had goofed was when she was two years old. As soon as her grandparents came in the door Sunday, she'd dart upstairs, packed a suitcase, and come down with her hat on, her dress on backward and her bonnet at a rakish angle. She'd run off to the nearest blother and Dad took her home with them for a day and regale us with accounts that she was having a wonderful time.

When she was three she moved to Pennsylvania. Just when the furniture arrived, Joan rushed in to help. She was then riding in the Fourth of July parade and kids were coming to her birthday party.

"Not my kids" I told her, unpacking the dishes.

"Mother, you're not about scanty equipment in Rule 999!

Joan was marshal in the parade and the mayor's giving her a birthday party. I have to tell me breathlessly an hour later.

Sure enough, there was the child all lavished with love by her brother's blue jeans, a collarless shirt, a cowboy hat, boots and a stovepipe hat made out of shirt cardboards, accepting a day's pay and the congratulations of her impersonation of Uncle Sam.

During the Second World War Joan was in high school, where she taught Army and Navy courses in college physics on many a camping trip. She was an adept at tenderfoots (if you want to call it that) and Girl Scouts. And the day that I entered her in nursery school, but fast. At the end of the first day she announced that she had to take piano lessons because she'd be the only girl who could play. When I looked startled, she consoled me. "Mother, can't I?"

In two months she knew twenty pieces, transposed from one key to another, and played at a recital.

She attended kindergarten in Minnesota. The day she didn't show up after school I called the principal, and all of the neighbors, I called the police. Then I started to drag the Lake of the Isles.

We found her in the barber at her boy friend's house two miles away. She had snidably beaten two gangs of first-graders that were stalking him and had escorted him home in protective custody. "Mother" that bore a striking resemblance to an ordinary police call.

Not only did Joan feel responsible for her playmates' welfare, but she turned John and me into responsible citizens. We became part of the community with her generous offering of our time to the church, the school, and the Brownies. John found himself chairmanning all kinds of boards. I became president of the parent-teacher association, and two daughters. They immediately went into reverse, and an occasional F appeared on her card.

When she hit seventh grade, though, she began thinking about boys, and the realization that she was no little homemaker hit her full force. We couldn't save, and she was in despair.

"But what'll I do?" she asked tearfully when she came home from school one afternoon. "I've got P in sewing if I can't darn a sock." I noticed the bandaids on her fingers. "Tomorrow's the last day, and the teacher said to get you to help me and bring it to her." Then I found out she'd been crying for I'd get F on my report card.

I couldn't help her. I'd never learned to sew. When I first married, my mother had holes in his socks, of course, but after a month of blisters on his heels—and my darning, he never showed me any more socks that needed mending. And I didn't go around looking for them. I was that smart, anyway!

I cut a hole the size of a quarter in John's new hole-proofs and sent them back to Joan to make a clean start.

"Now you can sort of figure it out for yourself," I suggested, counting on her to handle the situation successfully.

But when she got through, the wool didn't even fit the hole. She was a pretty discouraged little girl. She'd done exactly what she was doing after supper . . .

The next morning, Joan took the darning egg, the basket we weave this side of a basket to the store, the yarn, and the socks I'd classed of all the seventh-grade girls, and even the leather gloves. Joan never learned how. Maybe she won't have to.

In Illinois the housing situation is critical. Joan is married now. Although we had to buy a house without a fireplace, we didn't go through with the rule, right in our family.

We have a lot of brick houses going up all around us, but nothing except Jack's basement-room has a place for the fireplace in our backyard. Each brick in the fireplace would cost $5," she asked. "The last line's too long, but it shows . . .

"Why, it sounds fine," I told her, surprised. "Maybe the school will publish it."

"I think I'll send it to Highlights for Children first and ask the editor to send me two dollars," Joan replied.

Two weeks later the postman handed her her self-addressed envelope, unopened.

"Don't feel bad," I told her, going on to tell me about how writers get rejections. Look how many I eat."

"It's a check!" Joan exclaimed. "A check for two dollars!" She read aloud the note Dr. Myers had written her: "Anyone that can write as breezily to an editor as you did deserves recognition."

Will somebody please put me in an empty room with a few well-chosen toys and shut the door quietly?

Housewife Makes Reply

(Galt Reporter)

Periodically there are discussions and comments and conferences about whether there are enough married women working. Quite interesting is one female correspondent's letter to the Reporter. She writes:

"I am a housewife. People frequently ask, "Do you work?" Meaning, of course, do you work in an office, a department store or in any one of the many places where women are employed.

I always say, no, and feel like the lying traitor that I am. Truthfully all of those noble women who spend eridless hours on the clothes line do a "big" housework.

No, I don't work. I have a two-storey home where no help is hired. All I do is keep the house clean, prepare the meals, wash the clothes, use the washing and ironing, try to be mother, counselor and reviser to a teen-age daughter, and be a true helpful loving wife to a very busy man.

Truthfully, I find time all these gadgets are a big help. Grandmas didn't have them, but for that matter, they didn't have a lot of other women. They're all labor-saving devices, you noticed?

Someday, when we get the house paid for, I hope to buy a dishwasher, an ironer, a clothes dryer and some of the things that are such a boon to the modern woman. Hope I'm not too feeble by then to learn how to operate them.

What was that? How do I spend my spare time? Really my dear, I haven't thought about it. I haven't had any yet.

But, I don't work.

XEROSIS 31.90 WO RD FOR DRY SKIN.

Man has had dry skin trouble for years, especially in cold weather, when it flakes most and becomes somewhat scaly. The consulted a skin specialist who said it is xerols, but there is nothing much that can be done for it.

(D.B.).

Other names for the condition are ichthyosis (fishskin disease). xeroderma (dry skin), alligator hide.

Anything else you want to know? That's all I know—and everybody knows I know it all.

Such abnormal dryness, harshness and scaliness of the skin is a common complaint, particularly of young women who can't bare—I mean the appearance of the outer surface of legs and arms and elbows is "dirty" even though they bathe every Saturday night.

The allusion to the Saturday night bath is no joke. Any one with the slightest degree of xerodermа should use as little soap and water on the skin as he or she allows.

Instead of soap and water, use oil, real oil, not so-called mineral oil, to cleanse the skin. Freshly made cold cream, ointment of rose water, unguentum Aquae Rosae, U.S.P., is excellent if perchance, real pharmacist will prepare a pound of it for you. But don't use mineral oil, cold cream, cocoa, cosmetique or creme froide) that is months old.

The coarest skin and poorest complexion is generally the one least exposed to sunshine. The skin and complexion of patients under systematic sun bathing treatment (for bone and joint tuberculosis) becomes soft, smooth and fine in texture as it tans.

The skin of a young person generally has enough, often too much natural oil (sebum), and therefore it is a mistake for a young person to use any kind of cream or oil on the skin.

The skin of an oil-ch, well, my one of mature age is likely to have insufficient natural oil and therefore should be judiciously oiled with a wee drop of fresh real lanolin, or, if freshly made cold cream or what have you other "unctuous" oil.

It is not the cold that makes the winter season hard on dry skin, but rather the excessive dryness of the artificially heated air in home, school, office, shop. Humidifying installations protect the interior woodwork, floors, musical instruments, paintings and grow ing plants.

TODAY'S TALK

INFLUENCE

On every hand may be noted the power and importance of influence. The influences about us are what shape our lives. We may think that we are giving them but gentle brush-off, but they cling to us nevertheless, without advertising the fact to us.

In reading the many books I medical men I note how they all seem to pay tribute to one of the greatest of all—Sir William Osler. Welch, world-famous teacher and investigator in medicine, declared that a number of doctors came under his influence. Scientific contributions under his own name are rare, but so great was his influence upon others that I have read that if all that he inspired "could be gathered together in one place it would fill a small library." One who knew him intimately had this to say: "The thought of him warms my heart with affectionate reverence for that fine, big, generous nature which is as rare as genius."

It is the influence of a man or woman which lives on and on. It's the real importance of life. We call some of these books "classics" because they are timeless, fitting into any time and age. Think of the loss to the world should there never be such books as these preserved. Or that everything that Shakespeare wrote should no longer be available. No one can estimate the influence for good that has been left by the great men of Christianity hovers like a great cloud over the earth today.

There are certain men and women in every city, or community, who are looked up to among all, and when that influence is exerted for the better good, bringing of a material nature can match it. There are figures in history who have played a great thought and progress of their time, and everyday life is constructive means we have as an inheritance from them. Nothing of a material nature can be compared for an instant with the mind as an influential medium in the world. Thought is immortal.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Approaching the village of Caledon, in Ontario, by highway, there is a sudden, steep descent, a steady incline which, for a great distance, gives the motorist a marvelous reputation of being a "magnetic" hill. Newspapers and magazines have published articles on the phenomenon, with quotations from scientific authorities on the likelihood of there being meteorites buried in the hill, or possibly great subterranean deposits of iron ore.

As you approached the slope in your car, and then, as you glided on the days when cars had hand operated windshield wipers, you took crank for starting the engine always lay on the floor by the back seat, you gave it all the gas it had, and you charged. It was a very modest hill, in fact, and to you were not accustomed to it, or had not been forewarned about its magnetic properties, you would be less than half way up it when you were changed to second gear, and often you would finish in third, engine boiling.

But as I grew stronger, the magnetism of the Caledon hill decreased. Perhaps the second old man, it stands more to reason than that car engines have improved.

Sanitary Land Fill Method Proposed to Reclaim Area

TRENTON (Special)— If councillor Claude Graham has his way the town will commence to reclaim swampland known as Mac Gilmour flats south west of Bay Street along the waterfront. Last night Mr. Graham suggested starting the sanitary land fill method of building up that part of Trenton's wasteland. It was proposed to level off the present dumping ground at the north end of Sidney Street before going ahead with the new undertaking.

Mayor Ross Burtt introduced a discussion pertaining to election of council representatives. The decision was left with the present councillors after much talk passed back and forth. Mayor Burtt preferred a system of choosing two candidates from each of the three wards.

Council decided to grant the Chamber of Commerce $250. The chamber represented by Jack Goldberg, the incoming president, propose to erect signs at both ends of the town this year. The signs taken during the two years will be used again.

Council legislated regulations covering the highway bridge across the Trent River. Trucks weighing more than 15 tons gross weight will be liable for a fine of $50. Also, the gross will be checked by the town police's new electric timing device, must not exceed 15 miles an hour. Violators can be fined not more than $10, it was decided.

APPROVE EXPENDITURE.

The spending of $3,020 on remodeling and renovating the town hall was approved. The petition went to the McGregor Company of Trenton.

Comment was heard on a local bank getting a refund of $900 on overdue taxes. Assessor Bill Hall rate on an increased assessment of $1,000 as the main factor for the rebate.

Town Engineer Reid Clark suggested a plan to have all sewers cleaned in three areas not yet sub-divided.

TO VISIT HOMELAND.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Cunnell today realized a 35-year-old dream. They started this morning on the first leg of a vacation trip to England. They will visit relatives at the village of Diss in the county of Norfolk. Mrs. Cunnell last saw England in 1911. Mr. Cunnell, a veteran of the First World War never returned to his native land after serving in conflict. He has leave of absence from his job as Trenton Welfare Officer and Sanitary Inspector.

Plan to Develop 800 Acres Land For Industry

KITCHENER (CP)—A tentative plan to develop 800 acres of land in the southern section of the city as a new industrial area was outlined to the city council at a special meeting Tuesday night.

Deputy Reeve Ridout Toronto, president of the Ridout Real Estate Company, which proposed the development, discussed the plan with civic officials.

The area being considered, half within the city limits, is now largely farm land. The Canadian National Railways line to Galt runs through the middle of the tract.

It was reported that the real estate company will consider plans for the erection of industrial buildings which would be leased to European, Canadian and American companies.

Minstrel, Variety Show Enjoyed

"Spring Fest of '54", a minstrel and variety show presented by the senior and junior choirs of College Hill United Church, played to a near capacity audience in the new night stand in King George school auditorium last Friday night.

Mr. Bruce Beslay, pastor of College Hill church, and Rev. Duncan McPhail, pastor of Bridge St. United Church, spoke briefly to the audience during the program.

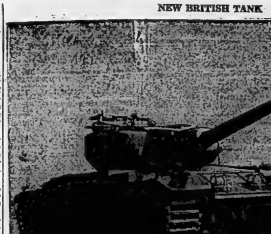
Songs, pantomimes, recitations, novelty acts, instrumental numbers, and dance routines were featured during the program.

The show opened with a medley of southern songs by the senior choir, followed by a dance routine by Brian Mooney and Judy McKnight, pupils of Barbara Barlow. The Quinones sang, Billy Stewart and Jean Bryant did a pantomime, Mrs. Lyle Jones recited, Harry Elvins sang, and Bruce Sills did a novelty number before intermission.

Following the intermission the senior and junior choirs sang several songs, Lois Bailey played a piano solo, and the Quintones returned for another number. Miss "Gentry" Jerome played the accordion, the Stewarts returned in another pantomime and Mrs. Jones gave another recitation.

The senior and junior choirs sang the finale.

Minor Baseball



Thirteen persons attended a meeting of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association at the Kiwanis Centre last night but because of the lack of definite action not much headway was made.

The possibility of charging a set price for the first year of sponsorship with the Association charge after all uniforms and a bat and ball for each league game was discussed. Also it was the idea of playing all pee wee games at one field. Lloyd "Hec" Dorrs and Bill Gault will attempt to get in touch with sponsors, find out how many they have and how much they want to spend before these and other problems can be cleared up.

This is Britain's new heavy-gun tank, the Conqueror, which will be put through first trials by the British Army in Europe this summer. Designed by the same experts responsible for the Centurion tank the new tank will be complementary and not a replacement for the Centurion. More heavily armored and larger than the Centurion, it will carry a crew of four. - (CP from U.K. Information).

Coventry Council Will Not Give Up Civil Defence

COVENTRY (Reuters) — The Coventry city council Tuesday night postponed abandoning its civil defence organization as called on the British government to supply an answer to hydrogen bomb attack.

The council voted to ask Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe whether an adequate defence against the hydrogen bomb exists.

The council also decided to ask the home secretary to form a civil defence corps capable of dealing with attacks by modern atomic weapons.

Pending an answer, the council voted to maintain its 3,000-strong civil defence organization. It previously had decided to disband the corps on the grounds no precautions would be adequate to meet an H-bomb attack.

British Ambassador to U.S. Gives Advice on Negotiation

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The British ambassador to the United State, Sir Roger Makins, Tuesday advised the United States not to regard negotiation with "your former adversary" as "almost equivalent to surrender or appeasement" and therefore as something to be avoided."

In an address in Wisconsin entitled "The Purpose and Practice of Diplomacy," the ambassador did not refer specifically to the Chinese Communists, to the Indo-China problem or to the Geneva Far Eastern conference.

He did not refer to current press and congressional criticism of the endeavors of British diplomats to negotiate a settlement of the Indo-China problem before agreeing to join in the "united action" in Southeast Asia proposed by the United States.

HITS CRITICISM

But, whether by design or not, Sir Roger's remarks struck at the roots of much recent criticism and provided a defence of the basic principles of British policy at Geneva, sometimes in contrast to those of the United States.

First, Sir Roger said: "there is a tendency in this country to regard negotiation, the act of sitting down with your former adversary, as almost equivalent to surrender or appeasement, and therefore as something to be avoided."

"You cannot expect to win at the conference table what you have not won, and are not prepared to try to win, by force of arms. But, equally, a willingness to negotiate does not imply any intention to give way, to surrender an essential interest."

Secondly, Sir Roger emphasized the importance of leaving the "executive" all foreign policy in the executive branch of a government after that policy had been decided upon with the approval of the legislature.

DEPLORES PUBLICITY

Thirdly, Sir Roger deplored the tendency of modern diplomacy for each party to a negotiation to make "for home consumption, a full public statement of its own position and demands at the outset."

He added: "This procedure is warmly applauded by all those who adhor what they have been taught or call 'secret diplomacy.' It often produces a series of splendid ringing sounds. It also makes it nearly impossible for any of the negotiators to do what they have met to do—namely, to negotiate.

"For negotiation implies the exercise of concession, of give and take, of adjustment; and the man who, in order to secure a modicum of importance, is prepared to concede something of less importance, will be accused of having given something away. He will be lucky if his conduct is called by no worse name than appeasement."

Finally, Sir Roger emphasized the great difficulties of what he called "diplomacy in a gold fish bowl" and deplored the public "release of far too much information far too soon about matters which may well be at a most delicate stage of discussion."

Traffic Lights At Intersection Being Repaired

Courtesy at the crossroads was the order of the morning Wednesday at the main intersection at Bridge and front Streets as time stood still on the traffic lights.

Motorists and pedestrians established nodding acquaintances for a few hours as the time clock regulating the traffic lights was removed for cleaning and a general overhaul. Removal of the clock left a blinking orange light in all directions to direct traffic.

A traffic constable on duty to unravel possible traffic jams had little to do but smile as motorists and pedestrians arbitrated the right of way.

Pedestrians watching the orange light stood somewhat confused for a brief period before venturing into the traffic while motorists exhibited considerably more than usual concern negotiating the Front St. traffic bottleneck.

Best of all there were few complaints and fewer traffic snups. The system worked just fine.

Wild Mustard Robs Soil Values

The continued use of weed free seed and the exercise of better cultural practices with an assist from the use of 2-4-D, will eradicate and control Wild Mustard reports the Crops Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Wild Mustard, sometimes called Herrick or Charlock, is one of the worst weeds in Ontario. It is to be found everywhere. Wild Mustard (Brassica Arvensis) is an annual weed, producing up to 15,000 seeds each year. Its bright yellow flowers and a many branched stalk make it easy to distinguish.

It is a land robber, taking more moisture and fertility from the soil than most other weeds. It decreases grain yields and will live in the soil for years, or until it is brought to the surface by cultivation. It is considered as a primary noxious by our seed laws, and will not be found in the better grades of seed. Special impression — cultivation and good after-harvest cultural practices, will reduce the number of seeds found in the soil by encouraging germination.

In 2-4-D we have a potent chemical to eradicate this pest. One acre of mustard plants carrying 2,000 to 3,000 pounds of living green plant material can be killed by only 4 oz. of 2-4D acid; and at earlier stages and in good conditions even 2 oz. will destroy this weed. The increased yields from our grain crops make it economical to try any or all of these method; to control Mustard.

Howe Is Not Opposed To Purchases of Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Howe said Tuesday the federal government has no objection to Consumers Gas Company of Canada, Ltd., temporarily increasing its imports of natural gas from the United States.

The company, operating in southwestern Ontario, announced Monday it is boosting its import of U.S. gas by 15,000,000 cubic feet a year over the 8,500,000,000 now being imported. The company can increase its contract with U.S. suppliers when Alberta gas arrives in Ontario through the proposed trans-Canada pipeline.

Representatives Will Discuss New Pipeline

HAMILTON (CP) — Representatives from the counties of Brant, Wentworth, Oxford and Halton will meet in Brantford tonight to discuss the new pipeline to be put in by the Union Gas Company from Chatham to Hamilton.

The meeting is to formulate some means of protecting farmers' property in these districts.

T. Pates Pinckard, general manager of United Gas and Fuel Company of Hamilton, a section of the Union Gas Company, said this morning that the farmers may have some real grievances and felt that individually they could do nothing about them. Combined, they would a stronger body and make their requests be better order.

"Our company will be pleased to send representatives to any meetings held by the farmers to answer questions or to help them formulate protection agreements. The farmers themselves know whether this protection is necessary and if it is we will help in any way possible," said Mr. Pinckard.

UNNECESSARY LOSS.

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Retiring after 42 years as a fireman, fire chief James Aroll said he was appalled at the number of lives lost unnecessarily in fires. He emphasized that everyone should have a plan in mind for what to do in case of fire.

There will be a buffet luncheon for out-of-town visitors, and a gymnastic display in the afternoon.

Mrs. Donald Clase, of this city, has received word from her husband, Cpl. Donald Clase, that he has arrived safely at Soest, Germany. In his letter Don told of a pleasant Atlantic crossing on the Empress of France and of several days spent at both Liverpool and London, before crossing to Holland.

Weddings

AMM—BATEMAN

Potted ferns, spring flowers and the soft glow of candlelight formed a lovely setting for the double-ring ceremony held in Springhurst United Church on Saturday evening, April 24, at 7 o'clock, when the Rev. H. E. Beare united in marriage, Barbara Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Bateman of Tweed, to Mr. William George Amm of New Toronto.

Mrs. John McKeown played the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Barbara Meikleajohn of Marmora, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," preceding the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a strapless gown of white chantilly lace over satin in ballerina length, fashioned with a matching bolero having long sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her finger-tip veil of fulle illusion was caught to a beaded headdress and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Attending the bride were her two sisters, Miss Marilyn Bateman, as maid of honor, wore a ballerina-length gown of orchid nylon bengaline, designed with short sleeves; sweetheart neckline and matching mitts. Her headdress was of orchid net and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and white 'mums. Miss Shirley Bateman, as bridesmaid, wore a similar gown of pale green with a matching green net headdress and carried a nosegay of yellow roses and white 'mums.

Mr. Bob Topping of Trenton, attended the bridegroom. The ushers were, Mr. Harry Mills, of Toronto, and Mr. Jewel Ray, of Springbrook.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the L.O.L. hall where the bride's mother received the guests assisted by the bridegroom's mother. Mrs. Bateman was attired in navy and faille and lace with white accessories. She wore a white gardenia. Mrs. Amm wore a gown of navy crepe with pink accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Those who served were six girl friends of the bride: Misses Donna Bateman, Lois Mason, Ruth Leonard, Rosemary Webb, Mary Reid and Mrs. Edgar Graham.

For travelling to Quebec City, the bride donned a suit of pale blue with navy accessories and a pink shortie coat with corsage of white gardenias. On their return the young couple will reside in the Parkdale district of Toronto. Guests were present from Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto.

Queen Victoria P.S. Pupils Display Art at McCarthy Theatre

An interesting collection of art work by the pupils of Queen Victoria public school has been on display in the lounge of the McCarthy Theatre for some days, and will remain on view until Saturday of this week. This collection ranges from the kindergarten work up to grades six and seven, and is noteworthy for its originality and imaginative drawings.

The display includes pencil drawings, depicting Marco Polo, the great traveller of the old world meeting with the Emperor; Alexander Selkirk, the prototype of "Robinson Crusoe," a buccaneer of the South Sea wilds, following a quarrel with his captain was abandoned at sea on the lonely Juan Fernandez where he lived for four years, later becoming a lieutenant in the navy; Christopher Columbus before Queen Isabella of Spain; "Bambi and the Squirrel," a woodland scene, which was nicely drawn as was that depicting a sculpting "Going Fishing" which showed two boys, one with the can of worms and the bamboo pole over his shoulder, the other balancing himself in a small fence.

INTERESTING MURAL

An interesting mural, or group of pictures, in color, exhibited North America's explorers: Jacques Cartier, shaking hands with the Indian chieftain; Champlain, Marquette and Joliet; La Salle; Radisson at Groseilliers, and Henry Hudson, all well known characters in Canadian history.

The sketching of the sounds of musical notes consisted of single notes and swerls as the explorers peared to each little listeners' Potato painting was shown in black, green and yellow; a happy scene of children at play; and a hockey game showing animation and color appreciation.

There were also cutout work of snowmen and squirrels; an Irishman with a quizzical expression, and a tall hat, as well as fairy rhymes in picture which were nicely done, represented each story appealed to the little would-be artist. These included "Little Boy Blue" who slept in the hay; "Puss in Boots" and "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," and others.

NORWEGIAN MOUNTAINS

The Norwegian mountain scene was rugged and snowed deep, purple mountains with a home nestling at their feet; mountain goats on the gentle slopes, as told as a boy and girl, and below in a forest, a slowly moving freight. This showed talent, and imagination. Another scene which drew the attention was that of the choral singers, a little Dutch boy and girl, background by the Dutch windmill, and in the foreground pots of flowering tulips.

The repetitive designs included musical notes; silhouettes of a woman in old world garb; butterflies, and some in lig-saw effect, all nicely drawn and neat in outline.

Other drawings which drew the interest of children included "Peter Rabbit carrying little Peter in a huge basket on his back, while little rabbits were dancing around in happy mood, smiling and gay. A most happy picture. The spatter-work, which was used so much in other days for mottoes, "The Lady With the Lamp", showing the wreck of a building in the background, and three or four hastily improvised cots in the foreground; "Mrs. Cottontail at the Letterbox," all were attractive, depicting interest in the subject.

ORIGINAL DESIGNS

The original designs were fanciful and vibrantly colorful, clear and crisp. The relief work, made with colored batting showed some little ducklings with all their individual expression, while one little fellow still was only three-quarters out of his shell. These depict a child's idea of what he or she would like to be when grown, showed a chemist with the usual utensils used by one, while that of a doctor and patient on the operating table, were most interesting and intelligible.

The pressed flowers and various common weeds found in the country side were nicely mounted.

A colorful, but not sad nor horror inducing crayon drawing was that of the dragon breathing out "fire and brimstone", a deterrent to disobedience!

A nicely colored and sketched drawing was that of "The Northern Lights", showing the varying colors of these gorgeous wonders of nature seen sometimes in the northern skies, was exceedingly well done. Name writing, always intriguing, was also in evidence.

IN HANDWORK

The alcove, as usual, had some unusual exhibits, among which were the three dimensional reef collections, which were lovely and dainty in their colorings. These showed serpents, star fish, sandy flabes, pearl shells and lacey-like corals, all of which demonstrated a love of our United Nations.

The outstanding exhibit of the handicraft were the "Easter Bonnets" with their rare crowns, some of rabbits, others with birds' nests and eggs, all of which were accented with large bows and streamers of red. A silent caricature of feminine styles!

Matted wax paintings were something new and pleasing. These paintings were in grays, greens, yellows and rose and purple, graceful and pretty. Some undersea paintings were also shown, and paper cutouts with their curls and figures of fish and ferns, showing the exactness of little fingers.

SAWDUST MEDIUM

"Another odd and novel medium was that of the sawdust, paste and flour painting of a cave with an Indian in a canoe and trees beside the entrance. A small display of various kinds of seeds and designs, all modelled on faces made for the purpose, were also eye-catching in their cute expressions, as well as the different styles of headgear.

Another exhibit from this school, demonstrating love of color, careful handwork, rich imagination and appreciation of design.

Teacher, Child, Parent Relationship Stressed At W.T.F. Meeting

The annual meeting of the Women Teachers' Federation of South Hastings Inspectorate, was held on April 28, at Tobe's County Gardens. Seventy-nine members attended, with Mrs. Thelia Spafford presiding.

The group has as guest speaker, Mrs. R. W. T. Middleton. In her address the speaker stressed teacher, child and parent relationship. Also, she suggested that children should be taught to love poetry, to observe all things, and citizenship.

She felt that a teacher must subject herself to the strictest discipline of thought and spirit if her response to the numerous challenges that meet her in the course of a day is to be what it ought to be. Mrs. Middleton said that teaching is a noble profession, though exhausting work if anything worthwhile is taught or received.

The speaker concluded her address with a poem which brought out the thought, that teachers build a temple of a child's immortal soul.

Mrs. Middleton was introduced by Mrs. Spafford and the thanks of the group were expressed through a gift presented by Miss Lola Emerson.

Avondale Couple Honored on Their 25th Anniversary

Last evening a surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wright, Avondale, when 30 community friends assembled to honor them on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The Reverend R. W. T. Middleton, of Wesley United Church, Bayside, was master of ceremonies.

Following an address read by Mrs. Clarence Holmes on behalf of the Avondale and Wesley communities, and signed by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Holmes; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Walley Denyes, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ewing, Mrs. Ling made the presentation of an engraved grape design silver service tray, and matching cream and sugar with smaller tray, for which Mr. and Mrs. Wright expressed their appreciation and pleasure for the unexpected honor conferred upon them. They were also the recipients of other gifts from the immediate family, as well as many lovely cards bearing good wishes and congratulations.

Cards and a social get-together comprised a happy evening. Those successful at cards were, ladies, high, Ellen Calvert; low, Mrs. M. Frederick; men, high, Frank Reid; low, Clifford Calnan. The lone hand was won by Jack Denyes.

Mr. Wright, whose work as contracting carpenter is also fortunate in having carpentering as his hobby, while Mrs. Wright's hobby is cooking.

Mr. Wright is a native born son, from Sidney, while Mrs. Wright came from Prince Edward county, Amelisburg being her home.

They have one son, Douglas, who is attending Ontario Business College, here.

Refreshments were served by Avondale friends, following which the evening came to a close with the bride and bridegroom of 25 years ago, being showered with confetti, bringing back memories of that happy occasion.

Guests were present from Stirling, Foxboro, Victoria and Belleville.

MANY WILD DOGS

Your Hospital

(Editor's Note: Your Hospital is a series of seven articles dealing with hospitals in general and the Belleville General Hospital in particular. This newspaper presents these articles as a public service with the hope that they might arouse interest in the work and service of your community hospital which will be open to the general public for inspection on Hospital Day, Wednesday, May 12th.)

The growth and development of Canada from the vast wilderness to a mighty nation in three generations is a remarkable achievement.

Even from the earliest days of the pioneers right up to the present time hospitals have played an important role in Canada's progress, especially with regard to the health and the well-being of our population.

In fact, the evolution, the growth and the development of modern hospitals across Canada parallels the growth of our land and affords one of the most marvellous evidences of the advance of science in the humanitarian principles which the world has ever seen.

It is to be expected that Toronto, as the capital of Ontario, should be credited with being the locale of the first hospital in the province. The Toronto General Hospital is generally considered as being the first hospital built and operated in this province or, as it later came to be known, Ontario. Tenders for its erection was called in November 1819.

INDIAN HOSPITAL

However government records show that a hospital for Indians was operated at Sault Ste. Marie by missionary priests as early as 1790. There is also recorded as early as 1802 data concerning an Indian hospital consisting of two huts at Kingston.

Actual construction of a "brick hospital in the town of York" was commenced in 1820. But the building does not seem to have been ready for occupancy until the end of 1824. When the parliament buildings burned down on Christmas eve of that year, the government of the day took possession and adapted it to legislative needs. The building was so used until 1826.

On this continent today, just a little over 120 years since the Toronto General Hospital commenced operation, hospitals rank fifth in size in comparison with other basic industries. In Ontario alone there is a total of 217 public and government hospitals, including 147 general hospitals and 21 Red Cross Outport hospitals.

Ontario hospitals have a total bed capacity of well over 44,000, including bassinets for infants, in public, general and Red Cross hospitals. Approximately 750,000 patients are now treated annually in the public general hospitals of this province.

BIG BUSINESS

Over 90 per cent of Ontario hospitals are in hospitals. In 1952 employees in the public general hospitals numbered in the neighborhood of 31,000. Their salaries and wages exceeded $47,000,000 and total operating expenses amounted to no less than $81,000,000.

From these statistics it can readily be seen that the community service being rendered by hospitals has kept pace with the phenomenal progress of our nation.

But, despite the ever-increasing number of hospitals in Ontario, with greater accommodation and larger staffs, your hospital still has as its primary purpose, the care and the treatment of the sick and the suffering. Today, tomorrow—ten years from now—your hospital is always ready to serve the endless stream of suffering humanity which passes through its portals.

Here in Belleville the hospital has 198 beds. The number of patients admitted flat year was 6,800, and a total of 5,676 operations was performed.

Wednesday, May 12, Hospital Day, is the day you and your friends can see the Belleville General Hospital at work. Plan to take a guided tour through the interesting and fascinating parts of your hospital.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE THIS YOUNG WOMAN JUST ISN'T INTERESTED

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young fellow of 20, and very much in love with a girl 22. I am sure she is in love with me, because we like the same things and have the same ideas, but she doesn't seem to care to go out with me, and I think it is because she's older than I am.

What do you think? — Bill

Dear Bill:

Any girl who is interested in a boy would not, I think, worry too much about a couple of years difference in age. If that alone were responsible for her reluctance to go out with you, she would probably tell you so frankly.

Are you sure you're not just trying to give yourself a reason for her not being interested in you as you are in her? You may feel that you "like the same things and have the same ideas," but are you sure she feels that way, too?

As I see it, all you can do is to keep on showing her that you want to be friends, but if she doesn't respond with equal enthusiasm, you had better find some other young lad'y who will be more responsive.

HE GOT INTO TROUBLE—SHE WANTS TO STAND BY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 17 who has been going steady with a boy of the same age.

All my family, including my mother, approve very highly of this boy, but a few months ago he got mixed up in some trouble, and although he had no part in it himself, he was considered an accomplice since he was with the boys involved at that time.

I love this boy very much, and I thought he felt the same way about me. But now I am wondering, because the past few times we have been together he has acted a little strange. Last night he told me he was worried about the trial, which is coming up soon, and he said he thought it would be better for us to break up now, before the trial, because he doesn't want me to be hurt in any way. I tried to tell him I was willing to stand by and help him if I could, but it just seemed to go in one ear and out the other.

Do you think the reason he gave me was the true one, or do you think he may have lost interest in me? I do love him, and want to help him any way I possibly can. M.B.

Dear M.B.:

Your desire to stand by this boy in his trouble shows that you are a fine girl, and a true friend. Also, the fact that this boy inspires such a desire in you, plus the fact that your family approves of him, certainly indicates that he also must have fine qualities.

This being the case, it is entirely, even probable, that he is telling you the truth when he says his own desire to keep you fro m any unpleasant experience is the reason why he feels you should break up at this time. If you were in his place, your affection for him might very well make you feel the same way.

What I would do, if I were you, is to tell him that if it will make things easier for him at this time in any way, you are willing to go along with his suggestion, but add that if it is only on your account that he made the suggestion, then you would rather just forget it. If he says it will make things easier for you to break up with him, then tell him you will accept his decision until after his present troubles are over, but that he can count on your friendship in the meantime, and you will be ready to take up where you left off when and if he feels the right time has come.

What he says to this should give you some clue as to what his true feelings are, and you can then proceed accordingly.

If Garny Makes It — It's Good

By Mary Moore

While the memory of Garny's cooking is still fresh I am going to pass on her recipes to you.

Pete and I were to leave their house for our long drive home at 7:30 a.m. At 5:45 a.m., I heard the tap-tap of her little footsteps (size 5 shoe) on the stairs, and knew she was up early to pack our lunch for the trip and to get us a hearty breakfast. So I rolled out of bed, slipped into my dressing gown and shuffled out to the kitchen. Over a first cup of coffee she carefully gave me the recipes I wanted for you, and then got on with the lunch packing while I dressed.

I gave you her cheese cake in this column yesterday. All of the items I am giving you today she made and we ate while we were there. I think they are extra good. Indeed everything Garny cooks is.

GARNY'S GINGERBREAD

(No sugar.)

One-half cup melted shortening (Garny used 1-3 butter and 1-2 chicken fat), 1 beaten egg, 2 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 1-4 cups best quality molasses (Garny calls this sorghum molasses but you should hunt for light colored Barbados molasses in Canada), 1-2 teaspoons each soda and cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon each ginger and salt, 3-4 cup hot water. Mix together the shortening and molasses. Beat in the egg. Sift together the dry ingredients and add them alternately with the hot water. Bake in buttered pan about 12x8 inches at 350 deg. F.ahr. for about 45 or 50 minutes.

GARN'S SHRIMP

I have to explain something: There are two ways of shelling shrimp. If you have the time and patience and the curved pointed shrimp-shelling instrument, shell the shrimp and remove the vein in one operation before cooking them. Joe did this for Garny and it took him 1-2 hour to shell 2 lbs. thawed frozen shrimp. But Joe is a surgeon and an expert with instruments. 2) If you know your guests well and want to have a fun supper (where everybody shells his own at the table) cook the unshelled shrimp in boiling water to cover for 12 minutes. In either method to the water add salt, celery leaves, 1 clove garlic and a little lemon juice. Shelled shrimp require only eight minutes—less time if they are small. When they are cooked drain them well and pile in shallow hot serving bowl. Have ready melted butter to which you have added a little lime or lemon juice. On each plate at the table have a little paper cup (manufactured for just such a purpose and to be bought in large chain or stationery stores) filled with the hot butter mixture. When the shrimp are passed take your share then dip each shrimp in the butter—and taste—and drool. For once in my life I had enough shrimp.

GARNY'S CHEESE BALLS

The.. are to be served with salads at a light lunch or with cocktails such as frozen orange juice or tomato juice before dinner.

Into one cup sifted flour cut 1-4 lb. margarine and 1-2 lb. finely grated old cheddar cheese and a shake or cayenne. This is cut with pastry blender as you would pie crust but no liquid is added. When blended roll it into balls between the palms, place on cookie sheet two inches apart and chill. Bake 20 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. Garny says these are fine if made and baked a day ahead of serving or made day before and baked at serving time. She says for a change sometimes she rolls half of them in sesame seed and the other half in celery seed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

HUSBAND IN DOG-HOUSE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How wrong was I, Mrs. Beeckman? Last evening my wife and I were invited to dine with a couple (in their home) whom we met only recently, but whom we like very much and who have dined with us in our home. There was one other couple present, whom we were meeting for the first time. The hostess has no maid, she loves to cook, and she had cooked the most delicious chicken casserole I have ever tasted. And I told her so, enthusiastically. She seemed delighted to have me say so, and, as a matter of fact, this comment of mine led to her telling how she had 'acquired' the recipe, and that she had made it her specialty.

But in spite of this my good wife reproved me roundly for "commenting about the food," as she called it. She said it isn't good form to comment about foods served to you, and particularly when the hosts aren't intimate friends of ours and also since we had just met the other couple at the dinner. So, Mrs. Beeckman, how wrong was I?

Husband in the dog-house

Come right out of that dog-house, sir, and assure your good wife that she really must know! that there doesn't live the woman who doesn't greatly rejoice to have someone, say enthusiastic things about her cooking! Naturally she's thrilled. . and she should be! Why not praise a work of art (and making such a delicious and delectable chicken casserole is an art!) even though you've just recently met the artist?

Today it's smart to know about foods, to be observant about cooking. And to comment on foods and cooking intelligently and discriminatingly makes (as in your case) Conversation Piece. So what's wrong about making your pleasant and approving comments?

ANNOUNCES HERSELF TO HUSBAND'S SECRETARY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was married recently, and my husband is a junior executive in a very large and important company here. It has been necessary for me to telephone him at his office only once or twice, and then I have said to his secretary, "Hello, Miss Jones, this is Katherine Robinson, May I speak to my husband, please?" I've become so interested in the advice you give in your column about correct forms of address in various situations, that I'm wondering if I am right about the form of name I use to my husband's secretary. Should I say "my husband"?

Newly-wed

You should announce yourself to your husband's secretary by your formal name, not by the informal name used. "Hello, Miss Jones, this is Mrs. Robinson. May I speak to Mr. Robinson, please?" (You may say "my husband," but "Mr. Robinson" is perhaps better.)

SIGNING HOTEL REGISTER CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine and I are going to Washington for a week in June, and we will stay at a hotel. Neither one of us has stayed at a hotel before, and we do not know the correct way to register. She is not married. I am a widow. Please tell us how to sign.—H. and S.

You sign the registration card (today this is more customarily than a registry-book) Mrs. Henry Clark. Your friend signs Miss Mary Hall.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

WHITE-HAIRED GLAMOUR

White hair is fashionable. And it is no beauty problem for the woman who has retained her youthful complexion and slender figure. In fact, it is a blessing to the one whose countenance has taken on what beauticians kindly refer to as "expression lines" since it has a softening effect.

The woman with the silvered hair must do some heavy thinking about the colors she wears, however. Her crown is dimmed by drab attire. It comes to life and glitters like snow in the sunlight when a bit of gay color is a part of the ensemble—deep rose, jade green or French blue, for instance. When black is worn, it should be relieved with colorful accents, lipstick should be vivid, and the cheeks should show a faint touch of the rouge pad.

By the time one's crest is snowy, the complexion has usually taken on a transparent quality. Then pastel shades are a happy choice—mauve, periwinkle, dove grey, but never yellow.

Brown and steel grey are seldom becoming. Purple is extremely trying to the complexion and does nothing to accent the beauty of the hair.

Shiny fabrics make a woman look older while soft ones are flattering. It is especially necessary that hats should not have harsh, severe lines. If a woman has not been skilled in advanced age hat lore she should consult a good hat salon. Here she will be interested in seeing how hot looks stunning atop the white tresses, especially if she has brown eyes.

Brilliant colors must be used with discrimination, of course. But they do have a definite psychological effect. The old girls need them more than the young ones do. So, if you are in the sixty- bracket, don't avoid gay colors in the belief that dismal ones are more suitable at your age.

Chanel Re-Opens Fashion Shop With Fanfare

By MARC PURDUE

PARIS (AP)—The word, electrifying the fashion world, got around fast. Chanel was coming back.

Gabrielle Chanel, who created a completely new "genre" of style, even helped change the way women live and think, was abruptly emerging from regal retirement, reopening her binge-carpeted, mirror-walled establishment at 31 Rue Gambon.

In her heyday she was credited with ruining the corset and hairpin industries, with making jersey a fabric of elegance, with making costume jewelry respectable. What would Chanel, after 15 years out of the limelight, do now?

When her first post-retirement collection was unveiled to the fashion world, her showroom was packed with critics.

"And when the first mannequin came out," related an eye-witness, "and you could hear, literally hear, the gasps — of disappointment. It was so old-fashioned."

But when the shock subsided, it became apparent that Chanel had prevailed again. She was a success.

NOTHING CHANGED

Chanel has changed none of her basic convictions about clothes. What Chanel believed made women look best in 1939, she still believed in 1954, right down to hemlines.

Vogue magazine, 'bible of the haute couture, undertook to explain: "Chanel . . . followed her 1939 ideas so closely that the public gasped in surprise at the unchanged simplicity and many of them gasped in disappointment. They came expecting the same sort of fashion miracle which Chanel had performed in 1919, when she introduced her 'nothing of a dress' into a world of elaborate, overdone clothes. In 1954, the fashion world looked for another surprise—and the surprise was that none appeared."

Mademoiselle Chanel, slim, wiry and approaching 70, isn't paying much attention to her rivals, as befits a woman who pioneered in the business of skirt lengths and hemlines.

"There are too many men in this business and they don't know how to make wearable clothes for women," Chanel remarked.

"It isn't a matter of art. Not at all. It's like architecture. It has to be practical first. And the most important element is good taste."

EYE RULES HEMLINES

Her most deadly fire she reserves for the business of skirt lengths and hemlines.

"It's completely ridiculous to talk about this many inches above the ground or below the knee. It's a question of the eye."

She jumped up to demonstrate her own skirt.

"For one woman it may look best here. For another, higher. Another, way down here. For me, just here. Women's legs are not identical."

So Chanel is back after 15 years —almost unchanged. There are, or course, stories about why Chanel decided to return. One is that her real motive is to pick up some publicity to push sales of her famed perfumes.

"I was bored," Chanel told her own friends.

Civil Defence Committee Will Fold Up

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The 10-man advisory committee on civil defence said Tuesday night it will ask city council for permission to disband because the Ontario government says it has no intention by joining or participating in a federal system to finance civil defence work in municipalities.

The committee, headed by Alderman John Dewart, passed a resolution which said:

"The committee now finds that a combination of financial stringency, public apathy and an apparent conflict of opinion on policy between the Dominion and provincial governments makes further progress under existing conditions impossible.

Residents Asked To Feed Birds At Lakehead

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Naturalists have appealed to Lakehead residents to help save the lives of thousands of birds migrating to Canada.

Hundreds of the bird have been found dead and many more are starving. Residents were asked to throw bread crumbs and other bits of food outside their homes.

Keith Denis, president of the Thunder Bay Field Naturalist Club, said motorists driving along the highway from the Lakehead to Duluth Monday "witnessed a great migration tragedy."

"For miles the only snow-free area was the highway pavement and thousands of birds were seen feeding on the slippery surface," he said. Many of them were killed by the cars.

"We counted more than 3,100 robins, more than 4,000 slate-colored juncoes, more than 500 hermit thrushes, hundreds of rusty and red wing blackbirds and song, white-throated and other sparrows," Mr. Denis said.

LEFT WINGS ATTRACT RIGHT WING

Police had their hands full escorting a group of anti-Communist Russian pickets away from Union Square in New York when a pro-Communist May Day celebration was in progress. Union Square, traditional rallying point for leftist May Day marchers, was the scene most of the day of a celebration by a merchants' group. Then later the square was taken over by a left-wing group which attracted these banners.

Blood Stream Used to Combat Rheumatic, Arthritic Pain; No Pills

Penetrant Dilates Capillaries, Flows Fresh Oxygen-Rich Blood Through Afflicted Areas

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — Discovery of an entirely new method of relieving pain has been announced here. This new method applies, for the first time, a well-known medical principle of pain relief to a product now readily available to Canadians for home use. The discovery literally calls upon the blood stream to bathe away pains of rheumatism, arthritis, sore muscles and pains of most kinds.

Sold under the brand name "InfraRUB", this new cream is odorless and greaseless. InfraRUB has the unusual ability to penetrate the skin and dilate tiny blood vessels deep down in sore muscles and joints. This permits fresh, oxygen-rich blood to flow freely through the afflicted area. The fresh blood, combined with InfraRUB's soothing medication, attacks pain at the source. Users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Another feature of this new product that appeals to many people is its ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary as InfraRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

InfraRUB leaves no oily film or pungent objectionable odour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

InfraRUB is now sold at all drug counters. No prescription is necessary.

Illicit Liquor Ring Broken By RCMP

OAKVILLE. (CP) — R.C.M.P. went into action Tuesday against what they called the first large illicit liquor ring to operate in Ontario since the war.

Simultaneous raids were made on three Oakville homes and a farm at Thornton, near Barrie, early Tuesday, resulting in four arrests and the seizure of a semi-commercial 45-gallon still which police said was capable of turning out "a lot of liquor."

The still was found on a Thornton farm, said police, who arrested Joseph Miller as the operator.

In Oakville, police seized six gallons of illicit liquor and arrested three town residents on possession charges.

SAY PLOTTED OVERTHROW

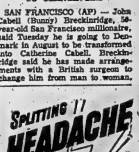
CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's military regime said Tuesday a group of 25 army officers had confessed plotting the regime's overthrow to set up Communist rule. It promised an early public courtmartial of the accused.

Body Recovered

ERIEAU, Ont. (CP) — The body of Wilfred G. Davidson, manager of the Chatham branch of the T. Eaton Company Limited, was recovered from a car raised from 23 feet of water in Lake Erie here Tuesday night.

A witness said he saw a car driven into a dock and crash through a guard rail into the lake. Mr. Davidson had been reported suffering from a long illness. He formerly was with the Brantford branch of Eaton's.

SAYS BARRED FROM U.S.



TORONTO (CP)—Samuel Seigel, about 55, said Tuesday he has been refused admission to the United States for the last two years because he gave $5 to a Communist newspaper in 1947. He said he gave $5 to a subscription canvasser for The Daily Tribune in 1947 on the urging of a business associate.

New Provincial Income Tax Will Cost Quebec Residents Additional 12 Million Dollars

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — Some 300,000 residents of Quebec province are in the middle of a constitutional and political quarrel between Ottawa and their provincial government that seems likely to cost them $12,000,000 a year in taxes not paid by other Canadians.

The 300,000 will pay $22,000,000 in a new provincial income tax to Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale government, but about $10,000,000 will be deductible from federal income tax payments.

It is the first entirely provincial income tax imposed in Quebec. There was a Quebec tax from 1940 to 1942 but it was grafted to the federal income tax structure and collected by the federal government. The Godbout Liberal government discontinued it when it signed wartime Dominion-provincial tax agreement.

MACHINERY SET UP

The new tax works out at about 15 per cent of federal income tax payable by all Canadians. Quebec has set up the first income tax collecting bureau in its history, bought computing machines, and expects to spend one per cent of tax returns for administration. It has set up an appeal system under provincial judges. No decision may be appealed to federal courts.

Mr. Duplessis, whose administration has been re-elected three times during 19 years in which he has been feuding with Ottawa over tax rights, said he believed Ottawa would permit deduction of the entire provincial tax from federal income tax returns. He said this would recognize only "a fraction of provincial rights."

But Finance Minister Abbott rejected this suggestion in his April budget speech. The amount of provincial tax deductible from federal returns is not to exceed five per cent of the federal tax.

Mr. Duplessis had contended French-Canada's language and religious traditions depend for survival on taxation powers. Mr. Abbott said in his speech that the provincial theory of priority in direct taxation "would not only place the federal treasury in an intolerable position but it would completely destroy any basis for provincial-federal tax rental agreements."

SUPPORT FOR DUPLESSIS

Middle-of-the-road newspapers in Quebec province expressed disappointment over the quarrel and urged Dominion-provincial talks to iron out the long-standing dispute. However, Le Soleil of Quebec, which labels itself a Liberal organ, accused Ottawa of not recognizing the provincial tax because it wants to bring about a centralization of government; and the strongly provincial but, anti-Duplessis Le Devoir of Montreal said Ottawa had shown it was "insincere" when it promised wartime tax-rental agreements with the province were temporary.

Indications are that the tax battle with Ottawa has brought Mr. Duplessis new support in business and labor circles, even among elements which fight him openly on other grounds.

Revenue from the Quebec income tax will be spent on education, public health and social legislation.

Quebec is the only province which has refused to sign with the federal government a taxation agreement under which it would receive a subsidy in return for vacating the direct taxation field.

Under such an agreement, Quebec would collect about $115,000,000 annually. Its present corporation taxes and succession duties give it about $60,000,000 a year. With the $22,000,000 from income tax, Quebec will still have less revenue than if it had signed with Ottawa.

LOSS OF REVENUE

The loss in revenue in six years has been estimated by government opponents at $58,283,000. There has been loud criticism from the Liberals but Mr. Duplessis has said Quebec's taxation rights are "not for sale." He contends Ottawa has gone too far in direct taxation and wants to starve the provincial government.

The question of education — a sacred domain in Quebec province—is involved in the income tax fuss. Mr. Duplessis says Quebec must retain taxation power if its culture, traditions, language and religion are to survive. Canada benefits from two cultures, he says but current federal policy pleases those who would like only one language and one religion."

Provincial Liberals have accused Mr. Duplessis of playing politics with provincial rights to get votes. Mr. Duplessis, in reply, accuses the Liberals of selling out to Ottawa. Each year the provincial legislature is the scene of angry debates over the issues.

First indication that Quebec was contemplating an income tax came last October during a controversy over federal aid to universities. After allowing the universities to receive $2,027,000 in federal grants in 1950-52, Mr. Duplessis announced his aid would be cut off because it was a federal encroachment in the field of education.

POLITICAL FIGHT

When the tax set-up was announced, Liberal spokesmen in the legislature asked why the new tax had been planned to hit mainly city residents and not the rural areas from which Mr. Duplessis draws his main strength.

George Marler, the Liberal financial critic, said if Quebec had signed a taxation agreement with Ottawa in 1947 it would have drawn $58,283,000 more than it collected through corporation taxes and succession duties.

Mr. Duplessis replied that Quebec's provincial taxation rights in the long run would be worth more than subsidies.

Rumors have been circulating that a provincial election will be called on the income tax issue before 1956 when the legislature's life normally expires.

Competent observers here see no firm basis for such reports, but the Quebec tax law runs out in 1956 and presumably Mr. Duplessis will make it the main issue when he does go to the people.

COPENHAGEN (CP) — Pamphlets in Russian were found on the Danish island of Moen Monday after planes of unknown nationality flew over the area Sunday night. The pamphlets were sent to Danish Army intelligence for investigation.

Little Benny's Note Book.

Ma sighed a big sigh to herself, saying to pop, My William, I mean actuality, I never went under such a day. From the moment you set out early for your office this morning, not a single thing went rite that could possibly of gone rong, she said.

I can well understand it, my dear, and you have my heartfelt simpathy, pop said, and ma said, But William, you dont know the first thing about a single detail, so how can you sit there and say you understand?

I understand that everything went topsy turvy, pop said. In other words, instead of going smoothly, everything seemed to by contraries. Instead of one and one making 2, sixes and 7's appeared to be the general rule, he said, and ma said, I hope I'm never asked to put in another such day, and when you hear why, you'll know the reason.

I dont wonder that you feel the way you do, pop said. I can just imagine how everything went at cross perposes and back and forenoon. I realize that you didn't know whether the world was upside down, or just yourself. That's what I meen when I say I can feel for you, he said, and ma said, But William for land sakes, I haven't even started to tell you a single thing that happened.

You dont need to, my dear, pop said. I've just been proving that you were wrong in saying that I haven't the faintest inkling of all you had to put up with, I can feel for you without even knowing the facts, he said, and ma said, Maybe you can, but you're not going to, you aggervating thing.

And she told him the facts without stopping for about 10 minutes.

HYDROGRAPHIC DREAM SHIP

The keel is expected to be laid this fall for this dream ship of the Canadian hydrographic service specially designed to explore and chart Arctic waters. The vessel, shown in this ship designer's drawing, will be a 285-foot, diesel vessel designed to withstand the pressure of Arctic ice and with a draft of 15 feet to enable it to chart shallow waters. It will carry a crew of 102 and will have a flight deck and hangar amidships for two helicopters. If all goes well the ship, first hydrographic ship built in 40 years and the first designed and built for hydrographic service operations, should go into operation in 1956. - (CP Photo).

New Ship Will Be Especially Designed to Explore Arctic Waters

OTTAWA (CP)—The men who chart Canada's coastal waters will soon have a new ship specially designed to explore Arctic waters.

The attention of both economic and defence planners for some time has been directed to the little-known channels, reefs and inlets along Canada's northern coast and in the Arctic archipelago.

The keel is expected to be laid this year for the dream ship of the Canadian hydrographic service, its first in 40 years.

Tenders are expected to be called shortly, says Dominion hydrographer F. C. Goulding.

It will carry new electronic devices for fixing the ship's position, operating with two portable shore beacons with a range of 300 miles.

Mr. Smith says the vessel has been in the blueprint stage for several years. It will be the first designed and built for hydrographic service operations based on the east coast since the old Acadia was launched in England in 1913. There have been other surveyships since then but none have been designed for the job.

Mr. Smith says the job of charting the Arctic seas will take 30 years to complete. But the more immediate aims will be to meet the pressing needs of defence and industry.

Defence planners want safe sea lanes in the Arctic that will enable them to reduce their reliance on air transport. And industrialists seeking to open up the mineral wealth of the North want good ports and safe sea lanes for the future.

NEED SAFE ROUTES

The importance of safe routes is seen in the cost of marine insurance. If safe routes can be found, such as the one to the Hudson Bay port of Churchill, insurance rates will go down and, perhaps, further economic development of the North.

In the last few years the hydrographic service has been busy with special jobs—finding safe harbors for titanium at Havre St. Pierre on the St. Lawrence and for iron ore at Sept Iales and along the Labrador coast.

While looking for harbor facilities in the southwest corner of Ungava bay last year, hydrographer D'Arcy Charles and his party found the highest tides in the world, a 54½-foot rise which beats the Bay of Fundy tides by some two feet.

On the Pacific coast, hydrographers have been charting safe routes for ships which will carry aluminum ore to the Kitimat project.

This year surveys will be made for a nickel ore port at Rankin Inlet on the northwest shore of Hudson bay, below Chesterfield inlet.

The service took over one of it biggest jobs with the entry of Newfoundland into Confederation. Charts of the coast of Newfoundland's Labrador were largely obsolete, and Mr. Smith sees 25 years' work there for his ocean searchers.

Unloads Record Cargo

The largest ship ever to sail the Great Lakes, Canada Steamship Lines' new ore carrier T. R. McLagien unloads at Hamilton, Ont., a record cargo of iron ore. The cargo of 18,909 tons is the biggest ever to arrive at The Steel Company of Canada, Limited. Named after the President of CSL, the 25,900-ton vessel is 715 feet long. The vessel is also the fastest, having a cruising speed of 17 knots as compared with 12 knots for most of the CSL fleet. — (CP Photo.)

ANTI-COMMUNISM PAYS

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Louis Budenz, former editor of The Daily Worker, says he has earned more than $70,000 in the last six years from anti-Communist lectures and articles and fees for testifying against Communist party leaders. The 63-year-old Budenz, now on the faculty of Fordham University, made the statement Monday in testimony at the trial of nine alleged Communists charged with conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government.

FALLS FROM CEILING

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Harry Hepburn, 32-year-old engineer, fell 16 feet from the ceiling of a grocetería here Monday and landed among the customers. He was admitted to hospital with severe injuries to his right hip and right wrist. He had been supervising installation of an air-conditioning system.

YOUTHFUL SPEEDER

TORONTO (CP)—A 14-year-old boy was turned over to Toronto detectives by suburban Long Branch police Monday after a threesmile chase of a stolen car that reached speeds up to 70 miles an hour. The chase ended when the car and a police cruiser both bandied in a ditch. Another boy who was in the car escaped.

APPROVE PARKING LOT

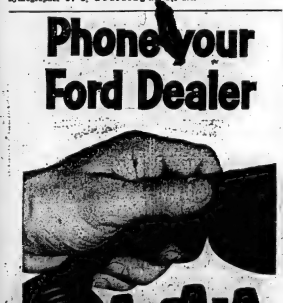
SARNIA (CP) — City council Monday night approved purchase of five lots in downtown Sarnia with a total area of more than 21,000 square feet, to be used as a civic parking lot. The land will cost $74,000 and buildings will be removed within 60 days to permit development of the lot.

Research Council Scholarships Total $283,200

OTTAWA (CP) — Scholarships totalling $283,200 in value have been awarded by the National Research Council for 1954-55.

The 236 scholarships include 73 bursaries worth $800 each, 103 studentships worth $1,100 each, and 21 fellowships valued at $1,400 each, the council announced Tuesday. All of these will be held in Canada.

Special scholarships for study abroad include 20 awards worth $1,900 each. Ten of these will be held in the United States, eight in the United Kingdom, one in France and one in Sweden.



In addition, 17 overseas postdoctorate fellowships at $2,500 each have been granted for work overseas—12 in the U.K., two in Sweden and one each in Denmark, Franks and the Netherlands.

BRANTFORD (CP) — Mark Simpkins, 67, of St. George, was killed Monday when his automobile collided with another car four miles north of here. His wife was admitted to hospital with a brain injury and her condition is critical. Two occupants in the second car, Mrs. E. Cowing of Galt and her 16-month-old daugher were admitted to hospital with minor injuries.

Salesmanship Required Retailers Told by Official

TORONTO (CP) — People will continue to buy goods of lasting value in large volume, John D. Campbell of Hamilton said today.

"There seems little doubt," he stated in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Retail Federation, "that retail sales in the durable goods field (such as electrical appliances and furniture) should remain at an over-all high level in spite of seasonal or temporary slow-downs, and should continue to advance during the next 12 to 18 months."

Mr. Campbell, who is general manager, consumer products division, Canadian Westinghouse Co., Ltd., advised the retailers, however, that they must do a selling job.

"It almost seems we have lost the art of selling the product and are only capable of selling prices, terms and trade-ins."

In an apparent reference to various current devices to attract customers, he added:

"We are manufacturing and selling products that everybody wants and that nearly everybody has the money to pay for, and we're allowing it to degenerate into a panicky, disorganized free-for-all—a sort of commercial claustrophobia.

SALESMANSHIP NEEDED

"Most buyers will spend more to get more. Salesmanship is needed to show them how much more they are getting. And most dealers have discovered that a product properly sold in the first place will stay sold—with fewer complaints and more satisfied customers."

Salesmanship, especially on mechanical goods, included service, and Mr. Campbell stated, dealers who are engaging in an orgy of price-cutting are doing so either at the expense of their legitimate and necessary operating profit, or at the expense of proper attention to the needs and rights of their customers and the manufacturers.

There was evidence that not a few dealers were giving away their normal profits "in their feverish desire" to outdo competitors.

Credit managers, Mr. Campbell added, should be on the lookout for storm signals. Reduction, or in payment and extension lengthening of the newspayment period should be viewed critically.

"Dealers operating on such unsound financing practices are already finding themselves in a very tough spot when the customer discovers it pays to let go of his purchase, in which he has only the smallest financial stake, and buy some other product at a lower price, also on ridiculously favorable credit terms."

'Gator Captured On Highway Near Wexford

WEXFORD, Ont. (CP) — Man with an alligator problem is carpenter Brian McMullen. He says he finds it uncomfortable to housekeep for the 30-pound, four-foot reptile which shrewed up in his headlights on Sunday.

Returning from a fishing trip to Credit river—with no fish—he spotted the animal running diagonally across the road.

Brian reacted by stopping his truck, causing a temporary highway block while he grabbed the alligator by its tail. It turned on him, snapping viciously, but he held on while someone came along with a rope. Safely harnessed, the reptile was lifted into McMullen's truck and now broods in a dark corner of his fruit cellar.

A Royal Ontario Museum official said the alligator must be someone's pet as it cannot survive long outside a temperature of 75 degrees.

Brian hopes the owner will show up.

"I can't afford to feed it," he said.

Arabs Lose Fight In UN Council To Censure Israel

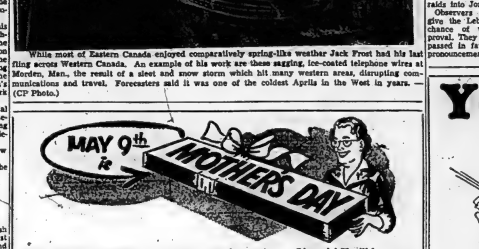
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The Arabs have lost their fight in the United Nations Security Council for an immediate censure of Israel, but have backed down on previous threats to boycott general debate on the tense situation between Jordan and the Jewish state.

Lebanon's Charles Malik, only Arab representative on the 11-member council, opened the debate Tuesday night with a new demand for action against Israel. He called for UN members to sever economic and diplomatic relations with Israel if necessary to stop border raids into Jordan.

Observers at UN headquarters give the Lebanese proposal little chance of winning council approval. They expect it will be bypassed in favor of some general pronouncement on the whole frontier situation.

The council voted 8 to 2 Tuesday to hold the general debate rather than consider first Lebanon's charge that Israeli forces raided the Jordan village of Nahalin March 28, killing nine Arabs.

Malik and Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky voted against the proposal for the general discussion. Nationalist China abstained.



The Lebanese foreign ministry had said previously Malik might walk out if the council did not consider the Nahlin complaint first. But Malik said after the vote: "We have decided not to withdraw from the engagement but to fight the good fight to the end."

DISMISS CHARGE

KITCHENER (CP) — A charge of illegal possession of liquor against Walter Geiger of New Hamburg, was dismissed Tuesday. The party was held March 26.

Cpl. Dickenson Given Ten Years As Collaborator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson was convicted Tuesday and sentenced to 10 years' hard labor on charges of informing on his comrades in a Korean prisoner-of-war camp and currying favor with his Red Chinese captors.

Both the conviction and the prison sentence are subject to review by an army board, which may act in about a month.

The court martial of the 23-year-old farm boy from Crockett's Neck, Va., ended late in the afternoon of its 11th day. Dickenson was tried on charges of collaborating with the Chinese Communists and informing the Reds about the escape plans of a buddy, former Pfc. Edward M. Gaither of Philadelphia. He was convicted on both counts—the first time a U.S. war prisoner had ever been so tried and convicted.

Hollow-eyed and haggard, Dickenson stared gloomily at the floor as the verdict was returned after 10½ hours of deliberation by eight army officers. The soldier's blonde bride of four months, Kate, fought down tears.

Dickenson is one of 23 American prisoners of war who refused repatriation and chose to stay with the Reds after the Korean armistice. But he and one other, Claude Batchelor of Kermit, Texas, later changed their minds and chose to return home.

Batchelor, self-styled leader of the group of 23 at one time, now is in custody awaiting court martial.

Meanwhile, the air force Tuesday cleared 19 officers and airmen of wrong-doing while they were prisoners of war. Fourteen others not completely cleared were ordered to show cause why they should be permitted to remain in the service.

Four Committed To Stand Trial On Murder Count

MONTREAL (CP) — Four persons, including a brother and sister, Tuesday were committed for trial in Court of Queen's Bench on charges of murdering Rastaurateur B. J. Bert McAbble in a $5,000 robbery Jan. 19, 1953.

Facing trial are Jonathan Dawn, 22, Gertrude Servant, 25, her brother Leo, 36, and Roy Colligan, 33. Police still are searching for a fifth suspect, 33-year-old Gerry McGrigal.

Dawn, main crown witness at a preliminary hearing of the other three last week, showed no emotion Tuesday when a woman eyewitness described the fatal robbery in an apartment over the restaurant Au Latin Qui Boude.

The woman, 33-year-old Margot Drouin, former employee of the restaurant, said she had been with McAbble the night of the crime and saw Dawn take part.

Vietminh at Dien Bien Phu Use Bad Weather as Shield While Burrowing Through Mud

HANOI (Reuters) — Vietminh troops at Dien Bien Phu today used bad weather as a cover to burrow trenches through muddy soil in preparation for a new assault against the heart of the French Union's northwest Indo-China fortress.

For the third successive day clouds hampered French air attacks against the Communist rebels and prevented many planes from dropping munitions, food and ammunition to the defenders.

Some supplies reached the shrinking fortress, but the rainy season is threatening to cut Dien Bien Phu off from the parachuted supplies that have sustained it since the battle began 54 days ago.

A French high command spokesman said Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries' forces now are encamped in a giant mudbath.

AWAIT ATTACK IN MUD

Tough French paratroopers and Foreign Legionaires are ankle-deep in the sweeping of awaiting the next rebel attack following the Vietminh capture of a western outpost Monday night.

Vietminh troops spent the night extending their trenches on the western flank, where they now are only 600 yards from French command headquarters. They also maintained pressure on the eastern perimeter.

Reports Tuesday night said there had been some clashes in the tangle of trenches, French and Vietminh suicide raiders stalked each other with knives.

De Castries asked his wife by radio to send him a pair of rubber boots by parachute.

New deputy minister of highways in the Ontario government is Melbourne A. Elson, a civil servant, who replaces J. D. Millar, shifted to the newly created position of deputy minister of public works. Baku Oilfields Are Russia's Largest Single Source of Oil

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Baku is known as the Soviet Union's "Windy City" but no wives rustle in its forests.

The forests are oil derricks. Mile upon mile of countryside, as far as the eye can see, bristles with the steel pylons and their pumping machinery.

Baku is the fourth city of the Soviet Union and its strategic importance is reflected by the squadrons of MiGs lined up on its airstrip.

BIG OIL SOURCE

The Baku oilfields are Russia's largest single source of oil and account for one-half the country's production. The city is capital of the Soviet Republic of Azerbaijan whose Caspian sea coast adjoins that of Iran. It is joined by a railway to Batum, oil port on the Black sea.

Azerbaijan became part of Czarist Russia in 1806 and its oil has been exploited since the famous Nobel brothers, Robert and Ludwig, started a refinery in 1875. Other Swedish, French, German and British financiers, including the "House of Rothschild" shared in its development.

Foreign interests were thrown out after the 1917 revolution. By the outbreak of the Second World War, Baku had become the second-greatest oil producing area of the world.

Politically, Baku was the scene of Joseph Stalin's first successes as a Communist organizer but they were not considered significant at the time.

SECURITY AREA

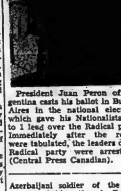
I flew to Baku from Tashkent by way of the Asiatic cities of Ashkhabad and Chevpinsk. Driving through the oilfields to the city with a Russian guide, I asked to look at a well. She said, "no," firmly.

"This is a security area and foreigners are not allowed to visit it. Visitors to Baku are not allowed outside the city limits. You are able to see this only because the road from the airfield has to go through it."

Because Baku is an inland seaport with harbor installations, there are particular regulations concerning foreigners, especially photographers. It was forbidden to turn right on leaving the hotel, or to go far into the hilly area back of it.

Baku is really a Russian city with an Azerbaijan element. There seems little link between the capital on the Caspian and its predominantly agricultural hinterland, where most of the 3,300,000 Azerbaijani live.

OTHER INDUSTRIES



Besides oil, Baku's rising industries include flour mills, textile and clothing factories, bromine and iodine extraction plants and other chemical works. It has army barracks, drydocks, engineering works and factories producing equipment for the oil industry. Its food industries include packing plants for grapes, olives, figs and pistachios, for which it is famous in the U.S.S.R.

A tremendous housing program is under way. Designs for new apartment blocks, public buildings, and hospitals incorporate traditional Azerbaijani motifs.

The city has a friendlier atmosphere and purely Russian cities of the union. I spent one fine evening in one restaurant with a friendly Azerbaijani soldier of the Red Army and his wife. A Russian couple stopped briefly at the table but left when they realized I was a foreigner. The Azerbaijanis don't seem to care.

Baku by moonlight suggests a subdued Mediterranean city. Its battlements, arched entrance-ways and dimly-lit cafes making it almost human—for the Soviet Union.

WINS ELECTION JAILS OPPONENTS

President Juan Peron of Argentina casts his ballot in Buenos Aires in the national elections, which gave his Nationalists a 2 to 1 lead over the Radical party. Immediately after the results were tabulated, the leaders of the Radical party were arrested.—(Central Press Canadian).

3 Girls Committed

WINDSOR (CP)—Three Windsor girls were committed for trial in higher court Tuesday on charges of housebreaking and theft and robbery with violence.

Jean Ann Stewart, 19, Joyce Dupuis, 17, and Cora Bayliss, 16, will face trial before a jury next month. Only Dupuis and Stewart will face the first charge.

Bella Bechard of Windsor said she returned home on the morning of April 3 to find her premises ransacked and clothing, luggage and jewellery missing. Police said they found the goods in the girls' possession.

Mrs. Hilda Blackmore and Mary Hedwig, both of Windsor, said they were beaten up by the three girls and their purses stolen.

Orillia Girl Missing

ORILLIA (CP) — Ontario provincial police said Tuesday night Rosalie Craig, 15, has been missing since April 23 when she went to Barrie to attend a dance.

Officers said they have charged Ronald J. Bourgon, of Ottawa, with assaulting a 15-year-old girl friend of the missing girl.

Police said they are looking for two men in connection with the disappearance.

Municipalities Need Assistance To Build Schools

OTTAWA (CP)— A 33-year-old lawyer elected to Parliament in a by-election March 22 Tuesday night demanded that the federal government make it possible for Canadian municipalities to finance adequate school services.

John Pallett, who succeeded the late Gordon Graydon as Progressive Conservative member for the Ontario riding of Peel, made the suggestion in his maiden speech in the Commons.

Mr. Pallett said Canada's rapid increase in population and the need for new schools has placed an uncompromising financial burden on municipalities.

Wants Press Admitted

KITCHENER (CP) — Appeal for the admission of the press to council committee sessions was made Tuesday by Reeve Clayton Rickert, of Waterloo township. Reporters were barred by resolution passed at the beginning of this year.

Reeve Rickert said paying councillors for committee meetings is costing too much money. He said reporters should be allowed to hear background discussions.

He said in a statement that all committee meetings should be held before the council session with the press in attendance. Committee decisions could then be ratified the same day.

'Veterans of the Cross' Centennial Service at St. Paul's, Stirling

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLIN

On Sunday the day was ideal for the centennial "Veterans of the Cross" service at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

Beautiful daffodils and trilliums were used as decoration and the retired ministers living in this area graced the platform with the pastor Rev. E. J. Baker.

Mrs. A. E. Baker A.R.C.T. contributed "Meditation", "Largo" and "Lyghens", as organ selections.

The Hoyd junior choir sang "O Saviour Sweet" and the senior choir "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord" with Mrs. Walter Warren singing the solo in the anthem.

Mr. Bryce Philp rendered his initial solo, "Green Pastures", in excellent voice. The large congregation sang that old familiar hymn "Faith of Our Fathers". Mr. Baker presided and graciously welcomed all the visiting ministers and other guests.

The offering was gathered in the Methodist collection boxes by Messrs. Harold Bird, Albert Wells, John Good, Fred Bateman and Grant Richardson.

A special quiz on Bible characters added interest for the children.

Rev. H. G. Steers, Belleville, read Bible verses worth remembering and Rev. W. R. Merrick, Belleville, offered a special prayer, commemorating St. Paul's centennial.

THREE SERMONETTES

Three sermonettes of ten minutes each were delivered as follows, and all contained much food for thought.

Rev. James W. Flatt, Belleville, gave a vivid picture of "The Past". He pictured life in Stirling 100 years ago at the time of the erection of St. Paul's Church. At that time Christianity had reached the middle of a great crusade.

This was a time of humanitarian ideals and great missionary endeavor. The world was at peace and church work was advancing on all fronts. In those days ministers used such words as regeneration and sanctification. Life was lived simply and all doors were open to church work of all kinds. People were neighborly.

At a leading convention at that time, one speaker said, "I believe it is possible to evangelize the world in this generation as we have great spiritual resources. Then came the slogan, "Every day in every way we are getting better and better."

"The war followed in 1914 and the lights went out all over Europe. Following World War I the church was criticized and Communism crept in with the slogan 'Let's build a new world with a new social order'."

"However, the 'past' reveals to us that Christianity is the true way to build up civilization. Each individual must continue to have faith in God and feel greatly honored that there are real opportunities for good."

THE PRESENT"

Rev. A. C. McCallum, Trenton, based his message on "The Present can't".

He opened his message with the words of a modern poet, "We are dwelling in a grand and awful time," and compared this statement with that of Niagara Falls. The speaker voiced the fact that the church of Jesus Christ stands erect and triumphant despite all the evils of the world today.

He narrated a story to prove that an optimistic spirit is needed to believe that despite many evils still God holds a supreme place in the world. He aptly portrayed the value of faith through a most worthwhile poem. He also stressed the value of sympathy, understanding and sacrifice in order that peace and righteousness may flourish in today's church.

THE FUTURE

Rev. J. F. Everson, Belleville, spoke on "The Future". He graphically described his work through the years and how he prepared himself for retirement. He told of his journalistic work in various church magazines, his joy of having a garden filled with blooms and above all, his visits to the sick folk in homes and hospitals.

He also read a story written by Rev. Archer Wallace on "Kindness" and then outlined a number of good points about "Retirement." A minister had no steady program to follow, no meetings to attend with late hours, and you do not need to depend on your parishioners, as you are free to carry on as you think best.

He emphasized that the best years of life are after 60 and proved his point with several illustrations and quoted two poems "Grow Old Along With Me" and "You Are Not Old."

All three sermonets vividly pictured that the church is much alive, but there is still room for more workers to carry on the traditions of 100 years ago.

Mr. Baker outlined the meaning of the seal of the United Church of Canada, which was printed on the program in full colors. He said "though the United Church has been in evidence since 1925, still there are many people all over Canada who do not know about this seal. He requested that a copy be forwarded to the press and so acquaint the people of its history. A brief synopsis follows:

THE SEAL

The oval form in which the crest is set is derived from the outline of a fish which was used as a secret symbol by means of which Christians identified one another during the days of persecution in the first century. The letters in the Greek word for 'fish' form the first letters of the words "Jesus Christ, Son of God, Saviour."

The "X" at the centre is the Greek letter "Chi" (chi) which is the first letter in the Greek word for Christ and the traditional symbol for the person of Christ, who is the living centre of the faith of the church.

In each quarter of the cross is an appropriate symbol, three of which are particularly associated with three communions. Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian, which united to form the United Church of Canada on June 10th, 1925.

The open Bible represents the congregational churches with their emphasis upon God's truth that makes men free. From this communion we have a heritage of liberty in prophesying; love of spiritual freedom, awareness of the continuing creative power of the Holy Spirit, and clear witness for civic justice.

The dove is emblematic of the Holy Spirit (Mark 1: 10) whose transforming power has been a distinctive mark of Methodism. From this branch of church union the heritage is out of evangelical zeal, concern for human redemption, warmth of Christian fellowship, the testimony of spiritual experience, and the ministry of sacred song.

BURNING BUSH.

The Burning Bush is the accepted symbol of Presbyterianism. It refers to the sign given to Moses of the bush that burned and was not consumed (Exodus 3: 2) and has come to symbolize the indestructibility of the Church of God. From presbyterianism has been received a heritage of a high and reverent regard for the church as the Body of Christ; for the order of Her life; the dignity of Her worship, and the education of Her members, and the final authority of sacred Scripture as the word of God.

The intertwined symbols in the lower quarter are the Greek letters "Alpha and Omega. These are the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet, and may be freely translated as the "first and last." They symbolize the eternal living God. (Revelation 1: 8).

UNITED CHURCH.

Around the outer rim of the crest is the motto, "The United Church of Canada", and the Latin words are, "Ut Omnes Unum Sint" which means "That All May Be One." They are taken from the prayer of our Lord, as recorded in John 17: 21 and refer to that unity of spirit which is found between (man and man), and (man and God), in the church, which is the Body of Christ. They are a constant reminder that the United Church is also the United and the Uniting Church.

If members of the United Church of Canada will ponder these symbols they will find that they are rich in meaning for our lives as each one represents some particular phase of God's everlasting love for His children and of all that He is ceaselessly giving for us.

Each individual member must see that he is the very essence of life. To live is to give, and to withhold is to perish. The gifts we place on the offering plate are symbols of our lives, offered in devotional service to God. Each gift is used by Him in a particular way — to carry on His work in the home congregation and community and by means of the missionary and maintenance fund to reach out and share in the manifold ministeries of His church in Canada, and around the world.

The service closed with an old Methodist hymn sung to the old "Lyngham Tune" and Rev. Steers pronounced the benediction, after which the choir sang their theme song.

A short period followed when the five retired ministers took their places with those who had accompanied them and were formally presented to a large number of the congregation. Later, they were all entertained to dinner in Stirling homes.

There will be five more centennial services with a special "Mother's Day" next Sunday.

On May 16 the general treasurer, Dr. V. F. Mooney at the morning service and a fraternal visit in the evening by Sidney and Plainfield circuits.

On Sunday, May 23, Dr. H. B. Neal, Lindsay, will conduct two special services and Holy Communion will be served at 9 p.m.

On May 30 the general secretary, Dr. Wilfred Bailey will close a year of commemorations for St. Paul's historic church.

Rejects Proposal Parliament Control Money

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott Tuesday rejected an opposition proposal that Parliament be given control over the country's money supply.

He said he considers it neither desirable nor feasible to spell out legislation fixing the amount of money which should be distributed.

Currently, control over currency production and distribution is vested in the government and its agency, the Bank of Canada.

J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive warned the Commons banking committee that there might come a time when a "really irresponsible" government would be armed with power to push the monetary supply "to the sky."

Jennie Lee Says Canadian Role Underestimated

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Canadians often underestimate their importance in international affairs, Jennie Lee, British Labor member of Parliament, said Tuesday.

She told representatives of Canadian Congress of Labor unions, holding a seminar on international affairs, that Canada's unique position of understanding, but at the same time being able to differ with both Britain and the United States gave her great influence.

The seminar is closed to the press but a statement is issued daily summarizing the highlights.

Miss Lee, wife of Aneurin Bevan, asked delegates to urge the Canadian government to align itself with Britain and a group of Asian prime ministers in seeking admission of Red China to the United Nations.

Expect Laniel To Win Vote Of Confidence

PARIS (AP) — Parliamentary observers expect Premier Joseph Laniel's government to win a National Assembly vote of confidence Thursday unless the besieged Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu falls to the Vietminh rebels in the meantime.

Laniel told the assembly Tuesday night it would have to look for a new government or postpone demands for a debate on Indo-China beginning May 14, "When deputies, including some of his own supporters, persisted in their call for the debate, the premier made the issue one of confidence in the cabinet.

This would require the government's resignation if the assembly does not uphold its demand for a postponement of the discussion.

The French constitution requires a full day to elapse before such a vote.

Truck Sales Decline 1,500 Men to Be Idle

WINDSOR (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada, in a letter to employees, Tuesday announced layoff of more than 1,500 production employees May 12.

The letter, signed by T. J. Emmert, executive vice-president, said a sharp decline in truck sales will cut a shutdown in the truck assembly line, not expected to last past mid-June.

The company previously announced 652 men will be laid off in connection with the transfer of motor car production to Oakville.

Charles McDonald, president of Local 200, United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), said the new layoffs bring to 2,800 the number of men to lose their work at Ford since the first of the year.

Journalists Urged To Intensify Efforts

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope urged Roman Catholic journalists Tuesday to intensify their efforts in the world's spiritual struggle, "whose extensiveness everybody knows."

"An immense wave of atheism is crashing against the world, and rarely has the action against the religion of Christ been more penetrating and systematic," the pontiff wrote Count Giuseppe Dalla Torre. The count is editor of the Vatican's L'Osservatore Romano and president of the fourth international congress of the Catholic press, now meeting in Paris.

The Pope's letter said "even within Catholic ranks, one finds faithful (members of the church) whose confidence in the mission of the Church is shaken."

The Pope mentioned especially the need for the Catholic journalists to obtain an "adequate professional and technical preparation in methods of modern journalism."

Labor Party Makes Sweeping Gains in Vote

GLASGOW (Reuters)—The Labor party made sweeping gains in Tuesday's local government elections in Scotland, capture ng control of six more town councils and increasing majorities elsewhere.

Control was gained in Dundee, third biggest Scottish city, with nine Labor gains; at K rkcaldy, Fifeshire linoleum manufacturing town; and at Paisley, Kilmarnock, Renfrew and Kilwinning.

But Socialists lost their majority in the Airdrie and Denny town councils.

With final results still awaited, Labor was credited with 47 gains and 17 losses.

Overnight results showed a sharp swing to the left everywhere, despite squabbles among the Labor party's national leaders.

Socialist quarters say the leftward swing is due to resentment against the Conservat ve government over high living costs.

Local government elections will be held next week in England and Wales.

U.S. LABOR CHIEFS UNITE TO ATTACK UNEMPLOYMENT

The heads of unions in the coal, steel and trucking industries are shown in Washington after they announced that they would combine to seek U. S. government action on unemployment and underemployment. They also plan to act together in seeking other national and state legislation they favor. The labor leaders (left to right) are: David J. McDonald, president of the CIO United Steelworkers; John L. Lewis, head of the unaffiliated United Mine Workers; and Dave Beck, general president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and biggest union in the American Federation of Labor. (Central Press Canadian).

Steel Industry Showing Signs Of Picking Up

NEW YORK (AP) — American steel manufacturers are beginning to express "limited optimism" on the business outlook, Iron Age, national metal-working weekly says.

"Optimism is based largely on the fact that the ingot rate has levelled off and the market has been stabilized," says the magazine.

"Of even more significance now is the fact that the rate of new orders is definitely picking up, although not all companies are profiting equally."

The Chicago area was enjoying the "strongest and best balanced market," Pittsburgh producers were "more encouraged than they have been for many weeks," and Detroit business volume was "good but badly unbalanced."

"Hottest product at the moment, and perhaps for the balance of the year, is oil country country goods," says the weekly.

As for automotive demand, Iron Age says the big firms are increasing their buying, while smaller companies stay practically out of the market.

VALUABLE EXPORT

HALIFAX (CP) — More than 3,000,000 Christmas trees were exported from Nova Scotia in the last fiscal year, the annual report of the provincial lands and forests department showed. The report estimated the shipments were worth $1,700,000 to woodlot owners, labor, truckage and railway companies.

Seamen Parade Before Queen On Carrier

VALLETTA, Malta (AP)—Some 1,500 seamen paraded across the windswept flight deck of the aircraft carrier Eagle today before Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Queen swayed in a 20-knot blast of wind and clung to her light-fitting blue straw hat as she and the duke rose to the deck on a huge lift used for moving planes.

The Queen launched the Eagle in 1951.

Average Canadian Tough Customer Exporters Told

LONDON (Reuters) — A government guide on export trade with Canada pictures the average Canadian as a pretty tough customer.

The guide has been drawn up by the Board of Trade to give advice and guidance to British exporters with an eye on the Canadian market.

It said living standards were high in Canada where economy was expanding.

"There is a much stronger emphasis on selling or merchandising in Canada than there is in the United Kingdom," it said. "Goods are not 'bought' by the customer; they have to be 'sold' to him.

"The Canadian is price-and-value conscious. He is a good judge of value for money, but distinctions to buy what he regards as superfluous value.

"His judgment of quality is not, as is so often the case in the United Kingdom, based on durability for he is less interested in durability which will outlive improvement in design."

The Canadian market is very much subject to American influence, it said. "But . . . goods for sale in Canada should not . . . be slavish imitations of American models. They should be designed for Canadian taste and use after careful study of the market conditions."

FIRE SWEEPS CONVENT

BRUXELLES, Man. (CP)—One hundred and forty pupils were led to safety Tuesday when fire swept the two main buildings of the Ursuline convent in this hamlet, 60 miles southwest of Winnipeg. Damage was estimated at $75,000.

BEVAN'S WIFE ATTACKS DULLES

Sever criticism of the policy of U.S. Secretary of States Dulles was made by Jennie Lee, British M.P., and wife of Aneurin Bevan. Speaking to a Toronto CCF rally, she said Dulles' approach to Asian problems was like that of an elephant walking on eggs. British labor did not support Mr. Dulles, she said, because most persons were convinced he did not know how to fight Communism.

New Type Germ Found in Milk Of Michigan Cows

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Isolation of a new and more potent form of brucellosis germ in milk of some cows in Michigan was reported Tuesday by a scientist who also said it was similar to an organism previously discovered in the blood of three undulant fever patients in Alabama, Massachusetts and England.

Saying that in cows at least the organism has been found to cause more damage than previously-known strains of the germ, Dr. I. Forest Huddleson of Michigan State College, and one of the world's leading authorities on Brucellosis, said in a report to the Society of American Bacteriologists:

"If it is spreading, it could lead to a very serious economic loss in the dairy industry because while previously-known types of brucella organisms caused abortion, low fertility and low milk production in affected cattle, this new type can also cause a mastitis-like inflammation of the udder which could practically shut off milk production."

But he added:

Unlike previously-known strains of brucellosis in cattle — which have been resistant to the most powerful drugs in practical and economic quantities — the new form, at least in laboratory tests, appears to be vulnerable to penicillin in relatively small amounts.

HOW MUCH? THAT IS THE QUESTION!

Newspaper reporter Syd Livingston could see no reason for prospectors to head westward to search for uranium when there were plenty of rocks in his native New York state. He acquired a geiger counter and began poking at outcroppings around Phillipston, N.Y. After a few stabs with the sensitive instrument, he hit what he hopes is the jackpot. But only more sampling will show if his uranium discovery is big enough to merit development. (Central Press Canadian).

Bing at Fifty May Switch To Serious Acting

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bing Crosby has hit 50. The birthday may go down in show business as the birth of the new Crosby—a serious non-singing actor.

Bing makes no secret of the fact that he's ready to turn dead serious after a lifetime of casual banter. He believes a switch to serious acting now can add 10 to 20 more years to his career. One intimate makes this observation:

"Bing is a smart man. He knows his days are numbered if he tries to compete with Eddie Fisher and the rest of these kids. The teenagers want their crooners young and the middle-aged set wants Liberace."

So look one of these days for a Crosby movie without songs. It's coming. What does Bing think of such a project?

"I'm more than willing," he admits. "I'll take the serious stuff any day. It's a breeze compared with making musicals."

Some see Bing's yen to dispense with songs a result of a serious dip in his record sales. A Decca executive recently said that the kids, who make up the bulk of the record-buying public, just won't buy Bing.

"To the teen-agers," said the executive, "Bing is just Gary Crosby's father."

Launch Annual Drive Against Forest Fires

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Time was when the nerve-frazzled business man could sneak away to his favorite fishing hangout and forget about everything civilized.

Not so now. Aerial eyes are watching him and aerial voices may call out to him. Should his camp fire be burning too fiercely a voice—like a heavenly commercial may rasp out a warning: "Watch that fire. Watch that fire."

The voice comes from the planes of the Ontario department of lands and forests whose air division has already launched its annual campaign against forest fires.

Twenty Beaver - type aircraft have been fitted with aerial ground hailers to warn campers to douse their fires, butt their cigarets and watch their matches.

TWO YEARS OLD

The hailers were first introduced to the department's air division two years ago. A 125-watt loudspeaker is fitted into the bottom of the fuselage. The microphone is operated by the pilot. Cost of the installation runs around $300.

Hap Shear, department pilot operating over the Lindsay and Tweed fishing country from the Toronto Island air base, said during a Press demonstration Tuesday that while flying at 80 feet the hailer can be heard over a radius of two miles.

Jack Dillon, supervisor of forest protection control, said the fleet operates during the summer months north of the French and Mattawa rivers. When the aerial ground hailer was first introduced it was used during periods of high forest fire hazard. But it was found through experience that more fires were started during low hazard periods when campers lit more fires to keep warm.

At least 12 times the hailer has been successfully used to guide lost persons out of forest areas.

GUILTY OF BIGAMY

OTTAWA (CP)—Winston Frederick Hensler, 46-year-old Toronto man who served a month in jail in 1953 for stealing the Currie report on the Canadian Army, Tuesday pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy. He was remanded in custody until today for sentence. Evidence was that Hensler has been married three times.

SAYS TORIES' FRIEND

LONDON (Reuters) — Deputy Socialist Leader Herbert Morrison Tuesday accused rebellious left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan of being "the answer to the Tories' prayer." Morrison, writing in the magazine Socialist Commentary, lashed out at Bevan for causing an "open conflict" in Parliament by publicly disagreeing with Socialist Leader Clement Attlee on collective security proposals for Southeast Asia.

CRIME-DISEASE LINKED

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Hidden physical ailments often are part of the disease of juvenile delinquency and crime, a psychiatrist-expert said Tuesday. Finding the physical disease and correcting it helps "cure" the delinquents and criminals, said Dr. Ralph S. Banay, former chief psychiatrist at Sing Sing prison, Ossining, N.Y.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WORTHY CHAMPS!

Orphans of the hockey storm, the Oshawa Truckman, newly-crowned Senior "B" champions, came through with flying colors in the final series with the Simcoe Gunners. The Truckies won the series 4-1 with one game tied, and but for a sudden lapse in the third period of the opening game, would have taken the crown with nary a defeat.

The Blairmen's victory, with crown attached, upheld the predictions of the majority of the sportswriters in the Eastern Ontario grouping, that the Oshawans would come through. This department picked the Orillia Terriers to win over Oshawa in the group finals, but also went limb-crawling to the effect the winners of this group would be the ultimate Senior "B" champions.

Now, Wren Blair, dynamic manager of the champions, is looking further afield for next year and has offered to take his crown-owners across the pond to represent Canada in the world hockey tournament.

Well, Canada could do a lot worse. In fact they did just that last season. The Toronto Lyndhurst, at their shining best, would be no match for the starry Truckmen, and if that august body, the CAHA, decides to send a Canadian team over 'over' next year, they should give the Oshawans some consideration.

However, we do not exactly agree with Myles Blair that his champions are of Senior "A" calibre. True, they are tops in the "B" division, but there is quite a difference between the two classifications. Blair made some kind of effort at the last eastern group meeting to have the entire set-up go Senior "A", but the suggestion received the icy shoulder from representatives of the other clubs.

However, this department adds its congratulations to those of the Belleville Memos club and Belleville fandom to a team of worthy Senior "B" champions.

Dick Burrowes stocks jocks go to the post tonight in the inaugural race meet of the season at the Fair Grounds. Burrowes appears to be a large field of entries from all parts of the district, including Belleville, Kingston, Trenton, Picton, and other spots.

The new grandstand is ready for occupation and will provide comfortable seating for a large crowd. Track drivers will vie for prizes and honors and if past performances are a criterion, there should be plenty of thrills, chills and perhaps spills, when the stox jox turn on the power this evening.

WILL PUBLISH YEAR BOOK

Increasing popularity of softball among the youth of the city as indicated in expansion of peewee and bantam leagues this year is causing some concern among members of the executive of the sponsoring Belleville Minor Softball League, and Fire Chief Gerald Vance and his merry men who administer and take general care of the softball-chasing moppets.

Expansion of activities, and growth of the game among the youngsters fry necessarily means additional expense. To be, perhaps, brutally frank, the BDSL has no money other than that for seasonal operational expenses. Chief Vance and his men are devoting long hours and effort to further the game, and are not expected to dig down in the personal jeans for expenses, although this has been done on numerous occasions.

To assist in meeting the increase in minor expenditure the league executive decided at a meeting on Monday night to publish a "Year Book." At the meeting was Mr. Harold Faran, of Toronto, an expert in producing and publishing books of this nature and who has had wide and varied experience in the field. After hearing Mr. Fagan, the executive was unanimous in accepting his proposition and gave him full accredited authority to start work on the book as soon as is conveniently possible.

The book will be packed with information pertaining to the activities of the softball association since its inception and rejuvenation after a lapse of lean years. Histories of teams and achievements will be included as well as a lot of pertinent information regarding the game itself. History of the BDSL's rise to its present proud position in softball circles after toiling in the doldrums for a few years will be among the interesting features of the book.

The co-operation of the city merchants and other residents in assisting Mr. Fagen and the BDSL executive in raising much-needed funds through the production and publication of the proposed "Year Book" will be greatly appreciated.

The association, like the minor hockey and baseball bodies is doing yeoman service in bringing wholesome recreation to youngsters who otherwise would be easy prey to the many temptations of these modern times. "Keep 'em on the field and off the streets" would not be a bad slogan. Minor recreation is contributing a great effort along these lines.

It is expected the groundwork of production of the Year Book will be laid sometime this week.

Win Hoists Team From Cellar; Phils, Cards Use 15 Pitchers In Wacky 4-Hour Battle

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

When you're in last place and you've got a team in town you think you can beat, you play the game even if it snows.

That seems to be the current theory in Milwaukee. The Braves, who have had a rough time this spring, beat Pittsburgh 6-1 Tuesday night in a game interrupted in the sixth inning by a miniature blizzard.

The victory pulled the Braves out of last place in the National League and dropped the Pirates to the bottom.

NEAR FREEZING

Although the temperature was within five degrees of freezing at game time, 2,363 of the Milwaukee faithful paid their way into the park and had such a good time during the four hours and forty-seven minutes it took the players to get through with the game.

In games that were played, Chicago White Sox increased their American League lead to a game and a half over Detroit by whipping Washington 8-6, Bob Trice won his first start with the Philadelphia Athletics shaded Cleveland 3-2, and Philadelphia Phillies whipped St. Louis 14-10 in 11 innings. The Phils poured across four runs in the 11th.

The Phils-Cardinals struggle ran four hours 31 minutes, finished up in the early hours of this morning and saw a major league record set for the total number of pitchers.

The two clubs tossed 15 assorted pitchers into the marathon, starting with two of the league's best—Harvey Haddix and Robin Roberts—and winding up with Hal Rice for the Cards and Murry Dickson for the Phils.

FOURTH SUCCESS

Dickson got the credit, his fourth success against one loss since moving to the Phils from the Pirates.

Warren Spahn struck out 12 Pirates in the Milwaukee triumph, which came against Max Surkont, traded away to the Pirates by the Braves during the winter. Joe Adcock homered for Milwaukee.

A single by Joe Demaestri followed by a walk and a single by Gus Zernial gave the Athletics the run they needed to whip Cleveland, who had won six in a row.

A grand-slam home run by Minnie Minoso set up the Chicago victory in Washington. It was the first grand slam in the American League this season.

Teeps, Fronts Ready For Fifth Battle

QUEBEC (CP) — St. Catharines TeePees, out to recapture their lead in the deadlocked eastern Canada Memorial Cup final, invade Quebec tonight to challenge the Frontenacs on home ice. The best-of-seven series now is tied 2-2. The TeePees lost their 2-1 hold on the series Sunday when the Quebecers loaned a three-goal barrage in the second stanza and stayed off a last-period rally by the TeePees to walk off with the game 5-3.

St. Catharines will be looking to Brian Cullen to provide the punch they need to win back their lead. Cullen, third leading scorer of the St. Catharines team and winner of the centre berth on Ontario Hockey Association Junior all-star team, is the best man in TeePees No. 1 line with brother Barry and Hugh Barlow.

LINEUPS UNCHANGED

The visitors did not practise Tuesday while the Frontenacs confined themselves to light skating exercise. No change is expected in the St. Catharines lineup from Sunday's game and Frontenacs coach Phil Watson said he doesn't plan any changes either.

Watson said he is confident his team can gain control of the series tonight.

Colder weather is likely to make for a faster brand of hockey than was seen in the week-end encounter in Toronto when both teams played ragged hockey in an arena muggy as a result of temperatures in the 70s outside.

Winner of the series meets Edmonton Oil Kings in the Memorial Cup final.

Bit-Champing Edmonton Oil Kings Play Jr. Hockey 'Like Professionals'

By GRAHAM TROTTER

EDMONTON (CP)—In western Canada, Edmonton Oil Kings earned the reputation among opposing players, fans and sports writers of playing junior hockey "like professionals."

The western champions come by this reputation several ways. Under 32-year-old coach Ken McAuley, former New York Ranger goalie, they play strict positional hockey, start rushes without letup, use bodily contact to good advantage and backcheck religiously.

Oil Kings practised about a dozen times with Edmonton's professional team, the Flyers of the Western League. Five of them had pro trials with the Flyers in WHL action, collecting eight points, including four goals, in seven games. Only one man was held scoreless.

Likewise, up to six juvenile prospects practise with the junior squad 60 per cent of the time so they fit in easily when called up for keeps. Eight of this season's Oil Kings are rookies who were brought along this way. Six are two-year men, four three-year men.

Although a taskmaster even when winning by a mile, McAuley imbues his team with a tremendous esprit de corps. Their practices often are tougher than actual games, with McAuley calling for plenty of hard skating, stops and starts.

When he left for the east, he summed up his team's spirit this way: "All I'm going East for is to open and shut the gate on our players' box. My guys know what they're going to Toronto for. The club that plays us (either St. Catharines TeePees or Quebec Frontenacs) is going to have to skate for 60 minutes or they're dead."

Stamps Thump Quebec Aces In Edinburgh Trophy Opener

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders, champions of the Western Hockey League, thumped a somewhat befuddled Quebec Aces 4-1 before close to 8,000 Hans Tuesday night to take the first-game of their best-of-nine series for the Edinburgh Trophy. "This is the first game they've played, has been up for competition.

Second game of the series will be played Thursday night and the third at Edmonton Saturday night.

The game was a lack-lustre affair although Stampeders were full value for their win.

Steve Black led the scoring parade with two goals. Singleton were scored by Johnny Michalak, Bill Finney, Jim McFadden, Steve Wittak, Archie Scott and Frank Ashworth.

The lone Quebec goal was scored by Adam Brown in the first period.

The Calgarians, who finished first in the WHL title by eliminating Vancouver, Canucks, went without two of their key centres. Pat Lundy and Ray Barry, Lundy, out with a bad injury, is expected to return to action at the week-end. Barry is out for the season with a stomach ailment.

UNABLE TO STOP ATTACK

Aces, champions of the Quebec hockey circuit, has vast talent but in the nets but he was unable to stem the Stampeders forwards. Lorne Nesbitt and Bill Burgess were missing from the Quebec lineup.

Michalak put Stampeders into the lead early in the first period but Brown got them equalized about the midway mark. After that it was all Calgary.

Stampeders tore into Quebec territory for three goals in the second period and four more in the final 20 minutes.

The officials handed out four penalties, two to each club, and two figured in the goal-scoring.

In the shoot-on-goal department, Hrennan kicked up 18 attempts and Gelineau slogged 30.

Red Wings Hand Sugar Kings 14-4 Setback

(By The Associated Press)

Niles Jordan, a strong left-hander for Rochester Red Wings in the International League, is making a strong bid for a comeback in the major baseball leagues with the parent St. Louis Cardinals.

Jordan's contract was purchased by the Cards last year while he was pitching for the Red Wings. He compiled a record of 12 victories against six defeats.

The 26-year-old lefthander gave up 13 hits Tuesday night but coasted to a 14-4 victory over Havana as his mates collected 16 hits behind him. The victory gave the Red Wings undisputed possession of second place.

The Red Wings and Buffalo doubleheader and the Richmond-Toronto game were postponed because of cold weather. Ottawa and Montreal were idle.

Track Clinic Set for Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Two outstanding American track and field coaches will conduct a five-day clinic here this summer for Canadian athletics, it was announced Tuesday.

They are Brutus Hamilton, director of athletics at the University of California and coach of the 1952 U.S. Olympic track team, and Ken Doherty of the University of Pennsylvania. They will be assisted by Harold Brown, coach of the University of Toronto track club.

George Duthie, manager of the Canadian National Exhibition sports department and organizer of the-Canadian Olympic training plan, said the clinic will be held Aug. 30-Sept. 3, prior to the Dominion track meet sanctioned by the AAU and the COTP. Eight-Pound Brook Trout Tops Field

NEW YORK (CP) — Bill McCollum of Great Bay, Ont., won the prize for landing the biggest brook trout in the spinning division of Field and Stream's 1953 fishing contest, the magazine announced Tuesday.

Fishing the Nipigon river Aug. 12 with a Prescott Cockatoush lure, McCollum landed an eight-pound-four-ounce trout.

The prize for northern pike was won by Robert E. Schoewald of New York for his 24-pound, eight-ounncer he caught on Bourmont Lake, Que., June 17. Schoewald used an Eppinger-Daredevil lure.

Weston Edges Siskins 2-1

WATERLOO (CP) — Weston Dukes edged Waterloo Siskins 2-1 Tuesday to stay in the running for the Ontario Hockey Association junior B hockey title. The Siskins lead the best-of-seven series 3-2 and the next game is slated for Weston Thursday night.

Doug Falby caromed a shot off Dukes defenseman Don Kendall's stick to give the Siskins a one-goal lead in the first frame. But Kennedy tipped in Ron Casey's shot to tie the score and Gill MacNeil fired the winner in the third when he batted in his own rebound at the 1.33 mark.

Smythian Bait Lures Cullen To Maple Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League announced Tuesday night they have acquired the rights to centre Brian Cullen, one of junior hockey's most prolific and highest scoring players.

The Leafs said in a statement that they got Cullen, a member of St. Catharines TeePees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, in a straight player trade with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. The exchange sends Charles Dusty Blair, Jack McClair and Frank Sullivan to the Bisons.

The deal ended a guessing game of which professional team would get Cullen. The Bisons owned Cullen's junior rights and reports said that Montreal Canadiens and Leafs were interested in him. Buffalo is Montreal's farm club.

Blair was the all-star centre with Ottawa Senators, Lead Memorial Cup Quebec Hockey League. Le-Clair was voted the most valuable player in the QHL a few years ago and Sullivan was a defenceman with Pittsburgh Hornets, Leaf farm club in the AHL.

Cullen set two OHA junior scoring records last season and captained TeePees to the OHA title and the eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals. He scored 161 points during the regular schedule. The total is 22 goals more than the old mark set by Ken Laufman of Guelph Biltmores in 1951-52.

He bloodied 68 goals to eclipse the old mark in that department. Cullen received the MVP award held by Lou Jankowski who scored 65 for Oshawa General in 1949-50.

Visiting Bowlers Lead Tourney

Welland leads the men's B open team event with 3,288. G. Lloyd of Preston has 649 points, tops in the singles of this division. He also leads the B aggregate event with 1,765.

The ladies' section Windsor heads the open team event with 2,733. D. Hawkshaw and T. Hawkshaw of Galt posted 1,145 points to lead the doubles.

Guelph Signs Teen Hurler

GUELPH (CP)—Eddie Drapcho, 18-year-old pitcher from Clarence, Pa., has been signed by Guelph-Waterloo Hurons of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League, it was announced Tuesday.

A southpaw, Drapcho had a 3-4 won-and-lost record with Guelph last year before he was sold conditionally to Oshawa Merchants. He wone one and lost four at Oshawa.

CAMPANELLA OPERATION

BROOKLYN (AP) — Roy Campanella, Brooklyn, Dodgers' slugging catcher, underwent a successful operation Tuesday for the removal of a bone chip in his left hand. Dodger officials were assured that Campanella would not be lost for more than 3½ weeks. Originally, Campanella, the most valuable player in the National League last year, planned on struggling through until the end of the season. But when he was assured he would be out for less than a month instead of the eight to 10 weeks originally predicted, he decided to go ahead with the surgery. His batting average has been .333.

He suffered the injury last March 30 in an exhibition game with New York Yankees in Miami.

OLYMPICS DOINGS

LAUSANNE (AP) — Lausanne's new Olympic Stadium with a capacity of 84,000 was dedicated Tuesday night with the executive council of the International Olympic Committee as honored guests.

The stadium will be used for the world soccer championships this summer and to bolster Lausanne's bid for the 1960 Olympics.

Meanwhile, Ernest Holt, the chief director for the 1956 Olympics said Tuesday night he was confident the stadium will be declared later this month for Melbourne to stage the games. He made his statement at the end of the second day of hearings by the executive council.

Famous Notre Dame 'Four Horsemen' To Celebrate Thirtieth Anniversary

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Autumn will bring the 30th anniversary of the christening of the most famous football team in the history of the game, the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame.

Grantland Rice recalls that it was on a cold murky day in 1924 that he scribbled the phrase typical of Harry Stuhldreher, Elmer Layden, Jim Crowley and Don Miller rip an army team apart here. Rice immortalized them on his gifted typewriter.

Plans are being made to celebrate the event when the Irish team Saturday Pittsburgh to play the Panthers next winter. Stuhldreher, now a steel company executive in that city, will be host.

Three of the Four Horsemen—all except Miller, who had been caught aloft in a scoring attempt—sat around at table here the other day and chatted about their days in the glory of the prosperous and successful men today, with a total of 16 children, to exercise boys between them. It was good to hear them express their enthusiasm.

"Granny," said Layden, "no one would remember us today if it hadn't been for you. We would just have been another good backfield. We haven't taken it seriously, but it's been a lot of fun."

102 POUNDS OF TALENT

"Nonsense," growled Rice, "there hasn't been a greater backfield yet and I don't expect to see a better fullback than you were, even if you didn't weigh but 150 pounds."

The Notre Dame teams on which the "Horsemen played in 1923-24-25 set an overall record of 27 victories, two losses and one tie. Both losses were to Nebraska.

"They had a good football team," Stuhldreher grinned, "but we finally caught up with them on our third year."

Was there ever any truth, someone asked, to reports that the Horsemen were played in front of the Horsemen and opened the holes and referred to themselves sardonically as the "seven mules" were jealous of their famed teammates?

"We heard that," Stuhldreher said, "but it didn't make sense and we could keep winning the way we did unless there had been complete harmony."

Montreal Sports Writers Incensed At Rollins Award of Hart Trophy

TORONTO (CP)—Goalkeeper Al Rollins of Chicago Black Hawks was awarded the Hart Trophy Monday night as the most valuable player to his National Hockey League team but at least two sports columnists said Tuesday he shouldn't have got it.

The selection for the 1953-54 season was made in a poll of hockey writers and broadcasters in the six league cities. It started a field day for second-guessers who may have figured either defenceman Red Kelly of Detroit Red Wings or Maurice Richard of Montreal Candiens was a cinch for the award.

Commentator Elmer Ferguson of the Montreal Herald:

"We can't agree with the experts made a more idiotic selection. If this sort of mawkish sentimental voting is to become a permanency, it's better we should scrap all the awards in the book and turn over their allocation to the league or the governors or the coaches."

PREFERRED RICHARD

Baz O'Meara, Montreal Star: "Our own preference was for Maurice Richard and he was not dictated by devotion to Canadiens or Richard friendship or sentiment. . . Nearly everybody thought Kelly would win the award but he has had plenty of honors and awards this year. . . our own idea is that there should be some other method of selection, some method by which referees and linesmen should be allowed into the panel."

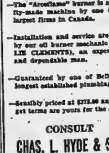
Red Burnett of the Toronto Daily Star said:

"It's just possible that Detroit's Red Kelly, Canadiens' Maurice Richard and Leafs' Harry Lumley were more valuable to their teams than Rollins in the strict sense of the word.

"However, from our-point of vantage, the hungry-looking six-foot-two native of Vangaard, Sask., rates the coveted Hart Trophy—maybe they should spell it 'heart' in this case—for courage if nothing else."

Rollins was credited by many with holding the Hawks together last season. They won only 12 games in the 70-game schedule and finished in last place.

SUSPEND RIDERS



TORONTO (CP) — Stewards of the Dufferin Race Track Tuesday announced suspension from May 6 to May 11 of jockey Richard Buissonneault and apprentice George Duprey for careless riding yesterday.

A third rider, Leonard Pong, was fined $50 for lodging a frivolous claim of foul after running of the

Wolves, Pents Gird Loins For Second Fray

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—This fruit-growing centre in British Columbia's lush Okanagan valley is prepared for an invasion today as they play host to the titans of Canada's amateur hockey ranks.

Sudbury Wolves and Penticton Vs meet here tonight in the second game of the best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup, symbol of senior amateur hockey supremacy. Sudbury took the opener 3-1 on Penticton ice Monday.

Vernon is only 90 miles north of Penticton, a mere step for the rabid fans who have followed their ,Vs to the Allan Cup finals for two years in a row.

The Penticton club is fighting now the way they fight best—with the chips down and the odds against them.

"It's happened before," coach Grant Warwick said after their Monday night defeat. "The boys aren't happy unless they're in the hole. Now we'll start digging."

The record backs him up. V's took the British Columbia championship by scoring seven behind in eight games. Then the best-of-seven western final with Winnipeg Maroons went eight games—two wins, three ties and three—and Penticton took the sudden-death eighth.

HAD THE ADVANTAGE

V's had the edge Monday—even Wolves coach Maxie Silverman admits that—but were it away.

"They should have taken us," Silverman said. "Everything was against us—the crowd, strange ice, Wolves haven't played a game for 10 days. It was Penticton night and they didn't take us."

It was a two-day meeting between two teams which wouldn't admit the other had an edge in any department.

And the officials, with the possibility of another six games ahead were just as rough, handing out a total of 37 penalties in an effort to ensure less rugged contests for the rest of the series. Wolves were assessed 11.

The third game will be played in Kelowna, midway between here and Penticton, Friday. The fourth game is back in Penticton Saturday, with any other necessary venues decided by Dr. Mel Butler, president of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association.

Where's That Famous Cup Spirit? Oil Kings Get Chilly 2-Way Reception

TORONT" (CP)—Edmonton Oil Kings breezed into Toronto Tuesday to a reception nearly as cool as the chilly wind that prevailed them from the west.

"There wasn't anybody on hand to meet us at the station," coach-manager Leo LeClerc a few hours after Oil Kings arrived.

The trails arrived eight hours late because of heavy more on northern Ontario but LeClerc said "the CAHA sent for us and you'd think they would know what time we got in."

Oil Kings will meet either St. Catharines TeePees or Quebec Frontenacs for the Memorial Cup and Canadian junior hockey title. The best-of-seven series in the Eastern Canada finals now stand at 1-1.

LeClerc also said Oil Kings had to make their own arrangements for ice for practices.

NOT TOO GOOD

"We had to do our own scurrying around to line up ice," he commented. "We arranged to use Weston (a Toronto suburb) arena but the facilities aren't very good."

For one thing, daily transportation bills to the arena from their motel on the outskirts of the city will cut into their expenses. And considerable expense are what the Oil Kings have had nothing but for the last two weeks.

"This layoff waiting for the east to decide a winner has cost our club about $3,000 already," LeClerc said.

The Oil Kings aren't particular who they meet in the champion-ship series, and they are not overconfident. Says LeClerc:

"We've had our own two of the last 18 games against eastern champs in Memorial Cup action. We're not going to come out with rosy predictions about what we'll do. Let's just wait and see."

GAVILAN BOUT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kid Gavilan will defend his welterweight boxing championship against Johnny Saxton at Connie Mack Stadium here during the latter part of June or early July, promoter Herman Taylor announced Tuesday.

The bout will be Gavilan's first title defence since Nov. 13, 1953, when he defeated Johnny Bratton in Chicago.

Name Canada's Golfing Team

TORONTO (CP) — Three eastern Canada golfers, three from the West and an honorary member of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association from South Africa will form the Canadian team which will meet a United States PGA team for the Hopkins Trophy.

Details of the third annual match to be held this year at the Toronto Mississauga course June 10-12, were announced Tuesday night by John Jay Hopkins, founder and president of the International Golf Association, sponsor of the event.

The team, chosen by the CPGA selection committee, will consist of Harry Martell of Edmonton, captain; Stan Leonard, Vancouver; Pat Fletcher, Saskatoon; Gordon Brydson, Toronto; Bill Kerr, Montreal; Jules Huot, Montreal; and Bobby Locke of South Africa.

The seven-man team of the American PGA is expected to be announced soon.

The matches inaugurated by Mr. Hopkins, international industrialist and golf enthusiast, have been won the two previous years by the American pros although last year's result was close.

DEAD BIRDS LITTER CITY

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The most expert players in the world would do better if they took a few pointers in the basics of bidding. It tickles to me as if they started learning bids somewhere in the middle.

I am talking of the players who are rated the highest in the world. And this is no spoof I am giving you. Everything points to the fact that their bidding may be practical but not accurate.

Before challenging such a statement, review what they do in any of the top championship tournaments. Take, for instance, deal number five in the last national master pair. Here it is:

NORTH
♠ A J 6 3 2
♥ J 9 5 4
♦ K 10 3
♣ 10

WEST
♠ K 9 5
♥ 8
♦ A Q 9 7 5
♣ Q J 7 3

EAST
♠ Q 10
♥ Q 10 7 5 3
♦ J 4
♣ K 9 8 5

SOUTH
♠ 8 7 4
♥ A K 4
♦ 8 6 2
♣ A 6 4 2

In this match were 36 tables of players with the highest rating in the nation. One very they butchered the bidding makes you think of palookas let loose to substitute for them.

Eight were in one spade, nine in two spades, two in three spades; five were in two hearts, five in one no-trump, one in two no-trump; four were in two or three clubs or diamonds, two passed out.

If even half such players were in the same contract some kind of alibi could be found for the rest. But not even half of them had the best idea. Not even a third of them.

In the first place, fundamentals would have told them there was no sound opening bid in any one of the four hands. Even though west looks like an opening it is not a true starting bid.

You can counter this by saying such brilliant players will take a gamble with it. Okay, so they gamble. Then why is there such a wide difference in where they should end for their best score? It must be because they disagree on exactness of showing what they have.

It may interest you to know that half the tables were defeated. So, if they were looking for best scores they are ignorant of how to reach the best contracts. They need lessons, they do.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — On the better side from noon to 8 p.m. Use every honest and intelligent idea you can to build advantages for a better future. But watch your words and moves carefully.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Born before May 1? Take it easier in finances and in pushing business matters. All of you: Keep personal likes, dislikes under control. Onward with discretion. Mind important assignments.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Give first consideration to matters of close concern to your family, work. Diplomatic and confidential interests require delicate handling. News thoroughly analyzed offers advantages.

June 22 to July 21 (Cancer) — An opportune outlook for you sensitive, sometimes retiring but truly industrious folks. Favorable aspects for just your leanings. Step up and gain your spurs.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — A promising period. Launch your ideas and work with new impetus. Tackle those propositions as if you knew you were going to win—and you will. Don't indulge in irritability or fears.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Early survey may not seem stimulating. But as day unfolds, things will pick up in tempo and advantages increase. Move at a sensible pace. Personal interests should satisfy if handled discreetly.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A productive, gainful period by which the energetic intelligent worker, professional or home-worker can profit. Don't be afraid of new ideas as long as you know the right formula.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Personal and business gains may be stymied for a while. Concentrate on worthwhile urgent matters, reasonable requests and due expirations. Domestic affairs are your own to manoeuvre.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—You should have no quarrel with today's influences. Both business and personal affairs get a fair share of the "breaks." Fresh openings and news from a distance should be encouraging.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—You can put today in the front line of accomplishment if you try properly. Steadiness, courtesy come first, and a knack for the unusual will help. You possess the character factors.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You could be tripped if complacent, too sure of self or methods. Don't let it happen to you. Some tricky indications can be guarded against. Be awake, concerned about worthwhile things.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—A wide open period. Equally good for and against cause. It's within your power to avoid most of the pitfalls, rough spots. Stay alert, be keen in studying outlook, conditions.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately dependable, generous, humane, ready to help when it's needed. A reasoner, a good counsellor to those in distress or confused. There is seldom anything that you cannot handle rightly. You could become excellent doctors, judges, lawyers, nurses, teachers, farmers, handle live stock ably. You probably have a green thumb. Cut overindulging in good times that could injure health, cause financial waste and loss of time that should be spent at constructive advancement. Be temperate.

Birthdate of: Maximilien de Robespierre, Fr. revolutionist; Lieut. R. E. Peary, Arctic explorer.

Cavalry Division Stages Revolt In Paraguay

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A Paraguayan radio broadcast said today a cavalry division has revolted against Paraguay's government. The broadcast said other troops and police had rallied to the defence of the administration.

The broadcast was made by Radio Tebicuary of Asuncion, the capital.

Other advices reached here from Asuncion said rioting had broken out side-the city and the government had declared a state of siege throughout the country.

SAY PRESIDENT ESCAPED

The broadcast indicated that Paraguayan President, Frederico Chaves, 74, had been ousted. He was inaugurated last Aug. 15 for a five-year term. His previously served almost four years of an unexpired term of ousted president Elias Lopez.

Recent political calm had contrasted sharply with the preceding 20-month period which saw four presidents come and go.

The reported new uprising reached Buenos Aires just four days before election. President Juan Peron was scheduled to leave for his second state visit to Paraguay in seven months.

Paraguay and Argentina signed an agreement for closer co-ordination as a result of his visit last October.

EDC ASSEMBLY APPROVED

PARIS (AP)—The six countries of the European army plan agreed Tuesday night to set up a popularly elected assembly to oversee the proposed pool of military forces. Canada's Role In Asian Pact Not in His Mind

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENEVA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said today that when he wrote his speech for the Geneva conference he had not had in mind the specific possibility that Canada might join the projected southeast Asia security pact.

His made this comment when asked about the significance of the statement in his speech Tuesday that failure of the Far East conference here might result in further collective security measures by the Western powers. This would apply particularly in respect of Indo-China.

CHILDREN HELP

MITCHAM, Eng. (CP)—Youngsters in this Surrey community are raising a "Mile of Pennies," worth about £20, to help build an old folks' home. They have already passed the halfway mark.

Price Index Up Slightly

OTTAWA (CP)—Scattered increases in living costs pushed the consumer price index up by one-tenth of a point during March to 115.6 from 115.5. It was the first rise in six months.

Food prices continued to decline and shelter costs were unchanged. But there were increases in the cost of clothing, household operations and a group of other items, including health and personal care and postal rates.

The boost in the consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, followed a February decline of one-fifth of a point. It was the first rise since the half-point jump last September.

ITALY SENTENCES SPIES

TURIN, Italy (Reuters)—Four Italians were found guilty Tuesday of spying for Communist Czechoslovakia and sentenced to prison terms ranging from 17 to nine years. A military tribunal was told that the band of spies was led by Eugenio Dorin, 26-year-old worker said to have been trained in a Czech spy school.

Seaway Advocates Predict Approval By Wide Margin

House of Representatives To Make Decision Thursday

By JAMES C. MUNN

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States supporters of the St. Lawrence seaway plan boasted of unqualified confidence today as the House of Representatives called up the controversial bill for a vote.

The U.S. Senate already has passed the measure which would authorize the U.S. to join with Canada in constructing a 27-foot-deep channel, up the St. Lawrence river so ocean-going ships could steam from the Atlantic to Great Lakes ports. The House has never before voted on the issue, which has been a controversial legislative matter here for more than 20 years.

Canada has officially said that if the U.S. authorization does not come this year, she will proceed to build an all-Canadian seaway on her own side of the St. Lawrence. So today's vote could decide the issue for the U.S. for all time.

Backers of the project made no effort to play it close to the vest.

One, Representative Thaddeus Machrowicz (Dem., Mich.), predicted the margin of victory would be "at least 50 votes, maybe more."

FORECASTS AGREE

His forecast was in line with that made earlier by House Republican leaders. They anticipated passage by a substantial margin.

The only stumbling block toward final passage in the House, and its possibilities were misjudged by seaway proponents, was an amendment written by Representative Charles Brownson (Rep., Ind.).

Brownson proposed that the $105,000,000 U.S. share of the waterway's construction be met through sale of revenue bonds to the public, rather than by the U.S. treasury as proposed in the bill.

The key vote was here. Opponents of the original plan, which the treasury also wanted defeated, asserted it would have the effect of crippling the bill.

Narcotics Agent Paid Girl $62 For Milk Sugar

CLEVELAND (AP) — The young woman handed the police 81 capsules containing a white powder and accepted $62 in return. Then the man, a federal agent, arrested her on charges of selling drugs.

But Judge Charles J. McNamee Wednesday dismissed the charges against Miss Josephine Evans. A laboratory tests showed the capsules she sold contained only milk sugar.

Newspaper Sued Over Article For Community Chest

WINNIPEG (CP)—Decision has been reserved in a civil action for libel and defamation brought by a Winnipeg man and his wife against the Winnipeg Tribune in connection with its publication of a picture of their daughter which has been provided by the Community Chest.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Dennis said they felt an accompanying article gave the impression the child was in a deliquent state and was neglected. They asked unstated damages.

The child was not identified in the newspaper, which denied the charges.

A Community Chest official said the child was photographed as a typical child representative of the children's Hospital, an organization helped by the Chest. The photographer was not connected with the newspaper. The picture was provided to the newspaper with story suggestions intended to spur donations to the Chest.

SAYS STORY HORRIBLE

L. St. George Stubbs, the parents' counsel, said the story was horrible and the picture published with it connected the child with the story. He said it was agreed the Tribune did not deliberately and maliciously intend to libel.

"We are not claiming malice in fact, but malice in law," he said.

Defence counsel G. S. Thorvaldson said anyone but a careless reader would see the article could not refer to the girl in the photograph. He said it would be unfair to base libel actions against newspapers on what careless readers thought.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Warmer Pacific air has spread eastward across the Prairies. Otherwise the weather maps show very little change. The weather will be somewhat milder in Ontario Friday with temperatures reaching 65 in southern regions and 45 in the north country. Frost is forecast for tonight across the province.

SCOTCH RUMORS QUEEN NOT WELL AFTER LONG TOUR

'Feeling Perfectly-Fit' And in Best of Spirits

VALLETTA, Malta (CP) — Authoritative sources have scotched rumors that the Queen is not feeling well as she nears the end of her round-the-world tour, and several British newspapers backed them up today.

The London Daily Sketch Wednesday had created some uneasiness by remarking that the Queen has lost weight in the tour which began last November and "looks fine-drawn and tired."

But sources here Wednesday night said she is in "good health and the best of spirits." Circles close to the royal household said the Queen probably has been suffering some pain from the aftereffects of a lightning change in climate, from Aden, at the southwest corner of Arabia and one of the world's hottest spots, to this British naval base in the centre of the Mediterranean.

Today's London Daily Mirror asserted in reaction that the Queen's while somewhat thinner, is in good health. Its correspondent in Valletta said that at the royal banquet here Wednesday night she looked "perfectly radiant."

It said she had suffered a slight chill when she arrived here shaken off and is "not physically tired in any sense that can cause alarm."

ENGLISH SWEETHEART

The London Daily Herald estimated that the Queen has "put on a stone" since she left, which the treasury also wanted defeated, asserted it would have the effect of crippling the bill.

The Herald said: "this isn't surprising in view of the heat during her afternoon tour." The Herald quoted a member of the royal entourage as saying "the Queen is feeling perfectly fit."

Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express predicted "optimistic reports" while protesting their loyalty seem to take perverse delight in forecasting trouble for the Queen."

It is possible, said The Express, that the Queen "deliberately has been slimming to counteract the effects of all the feasting and banquets held in her honor."

"Or the hot climate, maybe have reduced her appetite."

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh had a quiet day Wednesday before the ball. The duke took part in a rifle game while the Queen watched with their children.

Britain's Roger Bannister First to Run 4-Minute Mile

OXFORD, England (CP) — Britain's Roger Bannister ran the first mile ever recorded in less than four minutes here Wednesday.

The 24-year-old medical student was clocked in three minutes, 59.4 seconds in a race at the Oxford University track.

He had to be assisted off the track after running the long-sought dream mile.

In becoming the first man to run the mile in four minutes or less, Bannister also equalled the world 1,500-metre record time of 3:43.

HAEGG HELD RECORD

The closest any man had previously come to running the four-minute mile was 4:01.4—a mark set by Sweden's Gunder Haegg.

Today's miracle mile was all the more impressive because conditions were bad. There was a strong cross wind.

A crowd of about 1,000 sent up a mighty roar for the historic moment in sports, a moment that track enthusiasts had dreamed about and argued over for years. But a mark such as this to be accepted as the world record, approval must be given by the International Athletic Federation. All aspects of the race will have to be reviewed — the number and the accuracy of the watches operated by timing, together with surveyors' reports on the length of the track used.

The fact a wind was blowing probably will not affect the showing, since on a quarter - mile oval shaped track such as was used here any wind is a factor rather than help a runner.

Bannister, amateur who gets his medical degree in a few months and who has been entered in the British Empire Games in Vancouver this summer, was a last - minute substitute for Oxford track star, Chris Chatterway, and the English steeplechase star Brasher in the race, which was a feature of a dual meet between the British Amateur Athletic Association and Oxford University.

Bannister was completely exhausted when he finished, but when he heard of his time, he quickly brushed up, rushed over and embraced Chatterway and Brasher.

STRONG PACE SET

Immediately stepped into the lead from the opening gun and led Bannister to the first quarter. Bannister was officially clocked in 57.5 for the first 440 yards.

Chatterway was still a step ahead of Bannister at the half-way mark. Bannister's time for the 880 was 1:59.2.

As the third lap got under way, Chatterway held the lead with Bannister at his heels. Brasher faded at this point. Chatterway was a yard ahead of Bannister at the three quarters.

Bannister was at the start of the last lap was 3:00.5.

About 300 yards from the tape Bannister cut loose a magnificent sprint and with head back rocked to the finish, breasting it in finishing 4:07.2.

Immediately he had passed the tape pandemonium broke loose. The crowd jumped on the stands, rushed across the track and the exhausted runner, supported by officials, was carried off the track smiling and admiring crowd.

EVER ADMITTED GOAL

Bannister has never admitted openly that he wanted to run the four-minute mile.

But his friends saw him working in bitter wet weather on an icehard training track in London and that he might be the man to do it.

Bannister, who won best time at 4:02 established in June 1951 London but never accepted as a world record, because it was unofficial.

His official British record is 4:03.6, set at the Oxford track last year.

Something that made today's feat all the more remarkable was the fact that it was Bannister's first race of the season, although he trained throughout the winter months as he could get off from his medical studies.

Drew Calls for Survey to Save Over 700 Million Dollars

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative party leader, said Wednesday the only suggestions made by the federal government to deal with unemployment were "platitudes" and that industries should increase efficiency.

"It makes no effort of any kind to do the same thing itself," he told some 400 delegates to the Western Ontario Progressive Conservative political educational meeting here.

He said the bureau of statistics reported 710,000 persons either unemployed or only partially employed.

He advocated a "committee of experts" to make the "whole organization of government" and estimated it could effect a saving of close to $700,000,000.

"This saving could have the effect of creating individual wealth as well as rapidly increasing employment from the production that would follow reduction in sales and excise taxes, he said.

Both Mr. Drew and Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario spoke at organizing for possible coming elections.

"We cannot afford to be complacent," said Premier Frost. "There is always so much to do and so little time to do it in."

IN FIGHTING TRIM

Mr. Drew told western Ontario Progressive Conservatives to get their organization "in fighting trim for the coming election."

Mr. Drew said "not a single bastion" of the Liberal empire has been sold and the situation would get worse if this year produced a "bumper crop" of unemployment was increasing but the federal government appeared not to have heard about unemployment. The textile industry, the electrical equipment industry, the automobile industry and other large employers."

The Conservative leader said the government's federal government seems to think there is nothing to do about which it will not be forced by efforts of the United States.

"I have very great respect for the United States, but I believe it is the job of Canadians to tackle their own problems," he said.

Britain to Join Asian Talks If Geneva Parley Is Failure

LONDON (AP) — Britain has agreed to join Allied talks on united action in Indo-China if the Geneva peace parley fails, British legislative sources said Wednesday night.

The report came as London newspapers voiced fears that Britain would drift into a serious split with the United States over Allied talks on Indo-China. Informants also said they have asked that British refusal to join in "new aggressive plans" "isolated" the U. S. at the Geneva Far East conference.

The American-proposed parley is expected to take place within the next three weeks in either Washington or Geneva, and will also involve Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Informants said it would discuss plans for:

1. Guaranteeing any sort of political settlement in Indo-China that might emerge from the Geneva parley.

2. Saving Indo-China from being overrun by the Communists.

Vietminh if the peace talks fail.

Informants said acceptance of the conference was not disclosed, but the U. S., Britain, France, Canada, New Zealand and Canada at least are expected to send staff officers.

Appeal Turned Down

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario court of appeal Wednesday turned down an appeal by Walter M. Murdoch and members of the Toronto Association against a court order directing them to play dances only in accordance with Revue television show.

The ruling said it was not the court's place to decide the merits of the case. They would be open to litigation later on some before a trial judge.

Mr. Justice Andrew Body, Robert Van Norman, Babe Christie and William Yee—are members of the Toronto Association of Variety Artists, a rival union of the Musicians' Association.

LIBERAL MEMBER VOTES AGAINST GOVT. ON TAX

Budget Policies Receive Approval

By EDDY GILMORE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Government's budget policies have received Commons approval in a vote in which a Liberal member sided with the opposition over the Quebec income tax issue.

Wilfrid LaCroix (L, Quebec Montmorency) voted against the budget as it passed the Commons Wednesday by 138 to 70.

He said he could not approve the Government's refusal to permit Quebec's new 15-per-cent personal income tax to be fully deductible from federal tax payments. The tax permits only a five-per-cent deduction.

The vote, in effect one of confidence in the Government financial policy, ended a nine-day debate in which the major topic was the budget announcement opposing Quebec's bid for full deduction of the tax.

It cleared the way for immediate study of a series of resolutions to give legislative effect to tax changes in the April 6 budget.

Besides Mr. LaCroix, the votes against the budget came from the three opposition parties and three independent members from Quebec—Gilbert Rondeau, Social Credit; Raoul Poulin, Bonaventure, and Fernand Grenier, Labor.

HOPED FOR AGREEMENT

Mr. LaCroix, the last speaker in the budget debate, said he had hoped the federal and Quebec governments would reach agreement on the income tax question "so the federal finance department cannot openly encourage the use of the favourable claims of my province."

He was met with catcalls from the Liberal benches as he voted.

The 63-year-old Quebec City attorney has been a member since 1935. He escaped the floor of the House in 1946 to sit as an independent as a protest against the sending of conscripted troops overseas. In 1949 he was re-elected as an independent Liberal but later joined the Liberal party.

During the debate, Progressive Conservatives and the three independent members urged total deduction of the Quebec tax. Opposition Leader Drew said this should be done this year pending an immediate federal-provincial conference on reallocation taxation powers.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said the door is open for Quebec's proposals to discuss a solution to the problem of double taxation. However, there was no need for a tax conference with all the provinces.

Frozen Cooked Steaks Coming For Bachelors

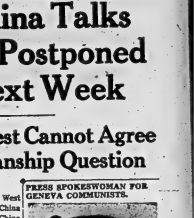
TORONTO (CP)—Bachelors who go for juicy steaks instead of canned dinners will soon be able to buy frozen cooked steaks from their refrigerators.

Delegates to the 11th annual convention of the Canadian Food Locker Association of Ontario said Wednesday frozen steaks, bread and cake will be added to the growing list of pre-cooked food.

The cake mix method was elected president for 1954. Named to the executive were Lorne Edwards, Cornwall; George Delcourt, Zurich; George Salmon, Brantford; Ralph Hodgson; Ralph Hicks, Exeter, and F. Cook, Vineland.

Sliced Bacteria Cut Like Bologna May Be New Aid for Cancer Study

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sliced bacteria, cut something like bologna, may be a new aid in the study of normal and cancerous growth, Princeton University scientist said today.



Dr. Ralph D. Chapman, describing the first successful preparation of germ slices thin and flat enough to study under the microscope, said the method already has provided new information on the process of cell division — one of the basic mechanisms of all growth.

He told the Society of American Bacteriologists in a prepared paper Dr. that bacteria—only 1-25,000th of an inch in circumference and only three times as long have been sliced lengthwise as thin as 1-250-

Canada Goose Guarding Nest Worse Than Lion

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Workmen at the zoological gardens here are fairly fearless around lions, tigers and bears, but one lonely Canada goose has been taking the long way around.

It's a Canadian gander gander, guarding its mate on a nest.

Several curious zookeepers have strolled shins and other wounds to remind them to give the bird a wide berth.

ORILLIA (CP) — Robert Newman of Cleveland died early today of a heart attack suffered a few hours earlier after a light plane in which he and Joseph Wallace, Jr., St. also of Cleveland, were flying from Cleveland to North Bay on a business trip crashed near here.

Police said Newman apparently suffered the seizure just before doctors arrived at the crash scene eight miles north of here.

Newman's wife arrived from Cleveland during the night.

Police said the almost-new plane apparently developed engine trouble as Walton flew it low when snow and rain cut visibility. It had been refuelled at Toronto, about 70 miles south of Orillia.

Bracken Arrives To Start Work On Commission

WINNIPEG (CP) — John Bracken, who headed the Manitoba government when the present liquor laws were enacted, arrived in Winnipeg Wednesday to act as chairman of an independent five-member commission which meets today for the first time to review the Manitoba liquor laws.

The 71-year-old former Manitoba premier arrived from his farm at Manotick, Ont., where he has lived since resigning as national Progressive Conservative leader in 1942.

He said he is not surprised that Manitobans want a "new look" at their present liquor setup, but he added that, "This is a job that will not likely increase the popularity of the commission, but it is a community task and one that has to be done."

Trustee Fred Sheridan said the educative department policy is that everyone gets a diploma.

"In the old days, you had to work for it and there were departmental exams for every form. Now they say 'Let everyone go through.'

"A child could start in Grade 1 and go right through school and be a teacher or a nurse without ever writing a departmental exam."

Dept. of Education Approves Plans for $730,000 School

TRENTON (Special)—An official of the Board of Education announced today that the Board had received the formal approval from the Department of Education of the tentative sketch plans for the proposed new high school.

The green light was given in the Planning Committee headed by Dr. John Richmond. The final approval arrived after several months of negotiating.

Board chairman, Grant Rathbun, simultaneously announced that the architects have been advised to prepare the formal plans and working drawings. It is hoped that tenders will be invited early in July. It is expected that the building will be ready for use by September 1955.

The new high school estimated to cost $730,000 will be situated on the land known formerly as the Dafoe property, recently sold to Trenton in the newly-annexed territory. The site comprises about 14 acres providing ample playing fields as well as agricultural grounds. The design of the school is in the hands of the architectural firm of S. B. Cross and Son of Toronto known in Trenton for providing the plans for Dufferin, College, and Queen Elizabeth public schools and the Masonic Temple.

SEPARATE AUDITORIUM

Embodied in the new centre of learning will be a separate auditorium, which was added to the original design at the request of council for an outlay of $75,000. The auditorium complete with stage and sloping floor will seat approximately 750 people.

The school provides accommodation for 500 pupils. The high school teaching staff now numbering 21 will have to be increased to 28. New courses including home economics and manual training will be available.

According to the Board of Education spokesman the financing of the 16-roomed school has already been approved by the Ontario Municipal Board. As a condition for providing accommodation for 120 pupils from the Middleton Park housing project the Department of National Defence is making a generous contribution toward the cost of the school with the exception of the cost of the auditorium.

When the new school is opened at present high school facilities it is regarded as a structure that will improve the beauty of the western approach to the town. The terrain lends itself to this educational project, for the site at the northeast corner of the site a natural amphitheatre can be provided at a small cost.

Harry W. Mills, Plant Supt., Is Honored

Superintendent of the Belleville Water Purification Plant on the Trent Road since 1937, Harry W. Mills has been presented with the Hunt Award for efficient operation of water works plant.

The certificate and gift of books was presented to Mr. Mills at the annual convention of the Canadian Section of the American Water Works Association held recently in Toronto.

The Hunt Award, given by the Peterborough Public Utilities and presented by the Association, is given in recognition of that large group of water works men responsible for the operation of plants, maintenance of mains and equipment, so important to the municipality and the consumer. The award is made each year to some member, who has shown outstanding efficiency in his work.

Report President Of Paraguay Has Been Deposed

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — President Federico Chaves of Paraguay has been deposed by a military coup, according to reports from travellers arriving here from Asuncion today.

The head of the Paraguayan bank, Gonsalez Fleitas, has taken over the presidency, the travellers were quoted by Reuters news agency as saying.

Mendez Fleitas formerly served as Paraguayan ambassador to Buenos Aires and was head of the nation's central bank.

Earlier unofficial reports said a rebel command had been set up at the Camp Grande military establishment, near Asuncion, the capital.

They said the chief of police in Asuncion, Roberto Petit, was killed in a skirmish with the rebels, who had attacked police headquarters.

Telephone communications with Paraguay were still cut off, two days after a cavalry division and the presidential guard attacked police headquarters.

Pan American Airways subsidiary line, Panagra, cancelled today's flight to Asuncion and the state-owned Aerolineas Argentinas is only taking passengers on special conditions.

An account from Clorinda, on the Argentine side of the Paraguayan border across from Asuncion, said the insurgents had taken the capital, and Chaves and his ministers had taken refuge in Asuncion's military academy after the rebels seized control of communications.

Turn Down Move To Legalize Sale of Liquor

GUELPH (CP)—More than 60 per cent of the eligible voters in Puslinch township have turned down a move to legalize the sale of liquor in the area, dry for more than 40 years. They went to the polls Wednesday to vote on five questions.

Unofficial returns completed early today show that 76.7 voted against any liquor outlets, while 21.3 per cent favored the establishment of a liquor store, a brewery warehouse, men's beverage room, ladies' beverage room, and for the sale of liquor under a dining lounge license.

Dominion Festival Of Drama Will Open

HAMILTON (CP)—The showcase of Canadian amateur drama, the Dominion Drama Festival, gets under way here Monday with a week-long showing of eight plays to be presented by dramatic groups from Coast to Coast.

Governor-General Vincent Massey is expected to open the festival Monday night. Special adjudicator Hugh Hunt, a former director at London's Old Vic Theatre, will fly to Canada Saturday.

Mr. Hunt, younger brother of Col. Sir John Hunt, leader of the group that conquered Mount Everest last year, is a free-lance producer and director. He is most praised for recent productions of "Love's Labor's Lost," "Hamlet" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Communists Say 5 Armed Agents Were Captured

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China today said "five armed agents of the American side" were captured April 10 near Tashwa, a Red-garrisoned island off Korea's west coast.

The Peiping radio heard here said the men "manifested duty were from the 18th district corps of Syngman Rhee's army intelligence department." This would indicate the men were Koreans.

The Red radio quoted the men as saying they had been "ordered by infiltrate and conduct hostile activities" on Fy Cho peninsula.

Peiping said the men, armed with a light machine-gun, three rifles, grenades and 500 rounds of ammunition, were captured in a boat.

Available maps do not show either a Tashwa island or Fy Cho peninsula.

Jewel Thieves Raid Forbidding Dunimarle Castle

CULROSS, Scotland (Reuters)—Jewel thieves have raided forbidding and lonely Dunimarle castle near here, the reputed scene of the murder of Lady MacDuff and her children by agents of MacBeth, Scottish king in the Shakespeare tragedy.

Valuables and art "treasures" worth several thousand dollars were stolen by thieves who broke into the castle, on a remote promontory by the sea.

More than 100 years ago, the castle was transformed into a museum of treasures by a Mrs. Maclellse Erskine Sharpe, whose marriage at the age of 27 to an admiral who had been her childhood sweetheart ended in his death after three days.

When she died in 1872 the collection was worth a fortune, and the casue was left in trust as a museum.

It fell into decay through lack of money, but the trust deed prevented the sale of any of the treasures.

Thieves broke into it Wednesday and stole Mrs. Sharpe's diamonds and emeralds.

Police Continue Search for Girl

ORILLIA, (CP) — Police are continuing the search for 16-year-old Rosalie Craig, missing since April 23.

Her disappearance was reported after she left a dance at nearby Barrie with magazine salesman Ronald Bourgon, 22, of Ottawa.

Bourgon has been charged with common assault on Carol Simmerton, 17, one of the three girls who left the hall with him and another magazine salesman, Clarke Presley, 20, of Arnprior, Ontario.

The Simmerson girl charges that Bourgon "made a pass" at her in a car after the dance.

Police have questioned Bourgon and Presley about the girl's disappearance and are seeking a third man identified only as "Slapped" for questioning.

South Koreans Agree to Vote Throughout Land

GENEVA (Reuters) — Prospects for Korea and Indo-China settlement brightened today with fresh moves made behind doors of the 19-nation Far East conference here.

South Korea was reported to have agreed in principle on Korea-wide elections under United Nations supervision. President Syngman Rhee's government had previously held out for elections in North Korea only.

But a South Korean source said Rhee's government will still seek UN-supervised elections in North Korea before nation-wide elections are held to determine the country's future government. The source said South Korea in addition will insist on the withdrawal of all Chinese Communist troops before the all-Korea elections.

Diplomatic sources also said that senior delegates of the three major Western powers this morning discussed a new French plan for ending the Indo-China war. They said the plan proposed regional armistices throughout Indo-China which would be internationally supervised and guaranteed.

MAKING HISTORY AT GENEVA

We have the uncomfortable conviction that any editorial page worthy of the name ought to be carrying comment, these days, about the international conference at Geneva. It is a parley which may well shape the future of the globe and for that reason should not be ignored, even by editors in small cities half a world away from Korea and Indo-China.

But what is there that can be said? Who would dare predict the outcome of the deliberations? And, if we do not attempt to forecast the future, what-that is new can be said about the past? Every newspaper reader is aware of the world-wide struggle between Communism and the nations of the West—and of the fact that the recent war in Korea and the present war in Indo-China are just two phases of this all-embracing conflict. Every well-informed Canadian knows, too, that particularly in Indo-China this basic issue between Communism and democracy has become entangled with another fundamental conflict, the effort of Asian peoples to attain the right to govern themselves.

"Too little and too late," the tragic theme-song for the democracies during the early days of the world war against Fascism, is today applicable in some, but fortunately not all, of the skirmishes between Russia and the West in Asia.

More and more, as the years pass, the British Government's action in granting independence to India—and to Pakistan—appears like a masterpiece of statesmanship.

Unfortunately is it not an example which can be easily copied in other lands. Too little freedom was granted—and now the successors of Jawaharlal Nehru-trained in wedding Communism to nationalism have made it too late for the West to stage a whirlwind courtship with the seekers of independence.

All the West can hope is that this ill-starred union will end in an early divorce.

Basically that is what Western diplomats are trying to arrange at Geneva. Whether their hopes may be for success must rest with the fact that both sides probably believe that time is their ally. In the very nature of the situation, therefore, if any agreement is reached it will probably be years—or perhaps even generations before it is evident which side, if either, won.

NO DISCOUNTS, PLEASE!

The Oregon Journal reports that United States visitors to Canada do not like having their money discounted.

The Journal is quite reasonable about the situation, but makes with approval that a few Canadian retailers and tourist service agencies "are playing it smart and waiving the discount."

The Journal also adds: "We suspect that if others followed suit they might also find that increased U.S. business would take care of them."

If any Canadian retailer wants to "play it smart" in this manner, he should not complain if he loses the trade of his fellow-Canadians.

Most of us are at a loss to understand why the U.S. dollar should be worth less than the Canadian dollar. We know that the U.S. dollar buys at least as much south of the border as a Canadian dollar does north of it. So we cannot understand why the U.S. dollar is discounted. But we know that it is—by the banks. And we know that Canadian retailers who accept U.S. dollars do not get 100 Canadian cents for every U.S. dollar when they bank them.

It follows that, if the retailer accepts U.S. dollars at par, he is selling his wares for less to the tourist than he is charging the home trade.

Most of us would resent having to pay more in our home-town stores than was paid by a visitor from another land. And the amount of argument and ill-will caused by waiving a discount is smart for the retailer and will repay him—in good-will and in trade—will alter our feelings on the matter.

A BIRTHDAY FOR ISRAEL

On Thursday of this week the State of Israel celebrates its sixth birthday.

For Zionists this is a great occasion. Despite the hostility of the Moslem world, Israel is growing in strength and in achievements.

For many Jews, this return to the Promised Land has deep historical and religious significance.

But some few among the Jews, and many among the Gentiles may view it with misgiving. Here is another thorn pricking those peoples of the Middle East who have already wandered too long among the brambles of poverty and exploitation.

There are some in the West who are exasperated by the border strife between Arabs and Jews, blaming one or the other or both impartially. But the West should be humble.

If it were not for the West and its intolerance, there would be no state of Israel today, for it was Nazi persecution which turned a dream into a necessity for the Jews.

If the Arab finally accepts them, he will have shown greater tolerance and more wisdom than some of those lauded like to regard themselves as the "advanced" nations of the world.

THE HOME SERENE

A home where quarrels never rise,
And bitterness is never known;
This is the dream of all the wise,
The joy that all men long to own.

A home where faith and love abide
And lovely laughter oft is heard;
This is the deepest source of pride
By which the hearts of men are stirred.

A home where anger has no place,
And hatreds never pass the door,
Where never enters dark disgrace;
The greatest man can gain no more.

A home where dwells contentment sweet
In spite of grief and loss and pain;
To lose this is to know defeat;
To win it is success to gain.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 6, 1934.

Twenty-four years ago today a king died and a new king came to the throne of England. On the death of King Edward VII, the Prince of Wales, George, was proclaimed Monarch of the British Empire. He had crowned on June 22.

In Queen's University prize lists D. D. Arbuthnot and Sydney Bulbuk of Marmora were each awarded a scholarship of $75 in first year science.

Mr. Cyril Walle, manager of the Dominion Bank here for the past five years and chairman of the finance committee on the board of directors, has been promoted to the position of manager of a larger branch of the bank in St. John, N.B., and he will leave here on Tuesday to assume his new duties. He came to Belleville in 1929 from the Dominion Bank, Montreal, of the Dominion Bank. Many friends will be pleased to extend congratulations upon his promotion, but at the same time they will entertain much regret at his departure from the city. He has been for some time the organist and choirmaster at Christ Church, his services in this capacity being ordinarily without remuneration and in addition to musical activities he has rendered valued support.

30 YEARS AGO

MAY 6, 1924.

The Rotary Club minstrel show in the opera house last evening was a great success and a large audience was present. The performance was very capable interlocutor and the end men were Deloss Dulmage, Eddie Georgie, Leon Walmsley, Howard Clarke, Ab. Wheeler, Charlie Delaby, Bert Bell and Morley Day; they furnished plenty of amusement. The chorus was excellent and was reinforced by the finest solo male quartet in the city, viz., Ken Haffner, James Bankler, A. L. Stillman, Harry Moorman and Fred Burke each rendering solo selections. Ab. Wheeler was very funny in his monologue. Charlie Symons gave "A Little Bit of This and That" by cartoon drawing. The act was well received and showed proficiency in the art of sketch drawing. The "Two Kings of the African Harp", Reg. Hinchey and Tom Robertson, a quartet number of fine selections assisted by Harold Barrett, Reg. Hinchey conducted the excellent orchestra. The Belleville Kiwanis Club members turned out in good numbers with their wives and sweethearts and the community singing prior to the opening of the show was great in grand style by Ernie Dickens. "Riding" Day as a colored preacher afforder much amusement. Charlie Dolan's song "Sometimes not Always" was well received. The "Coon Hollow Nine" a basket ball team which Eddie George was the manager, umpire, was very amusing. It was truly a good show and the boys deserve credit and the thanks of the people for present a very entertaining evening.

40 YEARS AGO

MAY 6, 1914.

Here is an interesting item from our file copy at this time in 1894: The production of the "Cadet's Picnic", was greeted by a large audience in the opera house last evening and the successful manager in which the operetta was performed pleased everyone and Mr. Joseph Nevin Doyle, the producer, is to be congratulated. The boys and girls certainly furnished an evening of great enjoyment. The following were the cadets: Frank Wolverer, Jas. Somers, Willis McKay, Russell Carman, Cecil Fraiekk, Herbert Fish, Peter Doyle, W. F. S. Johnson, Harry Keiso, John Doyle, Allen McFee, Russell Weller, Ellis (Bud). Bogart, Carl Rous, Tommy Clark, J. Patty, W. C. Mc-Lean, Ed. Rous, Fred Wellers, F. Doyle, Lindsay Hamilton, James Macdonald, Fred Burrows, Harry Walker, Willie Ward and Bob Hungerford.

50 YEARS AGO

MAY 6, 1904.

Would it not be well for the street surveyor to visit the sidewalk in front of the opera house where he will find a broken plank and a hole some three feet deep? It is a dangerous trap to cause a broken leg.

People are wondering when the ruts and pitch holes on Front Street are going to be filled. A couple of loads of gravel would make a great improvement.

Mr. Will Cunnington of Toronto, who is home on a visit, sang "Day By Day" in Bridge Street Methodist Church on Sunday.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ACQUAINTANCES

I have read where it says that too much "social" life for a dog is a bad thing, that where the dog has few, if any, friends outside the family circle, he is the better for it—more affectionate and loyal, and more content on his mat before the stove, or under the bed, and withal a delightful companion to the few.

Isaac Newton, when invited to join the Royal Society in London, declined. He said he feared "it might increase the circle of his acquaintances, and that many acquaintances attest to neither love nor popularity. There is such a thing as knowing too many people. On the other hand, two or three genuine friends are quite sufficient for a lifetime.

Mrs. Browning once asked Charles Kingsley for the secret of his life. "Tell me," she said, "that I may make mine beautiful, too." Kingsley's reply was simply: "I

New Wood Products

(From the Christian Science Monitor)

The alchemist of ancient times who tried to make gold out of lead might have done better had he worked with wood. Modern technologists and industrial chemists are finding no end to the variety of useful products that can be made from trees.

The board-foot content of a tree — in terms of two-by-fours or 13-inch planks — is becoming less and less significant. With more than $20,000,000,000 invested and timber-growing blue-prints that extend far into the 21st century, today's forest industries are concentrating on the cubic feet of wood cellulose they can grow to the acre.

The forest industries of the United States are pouring about $40,000,000 a year into research. They are getting results, too. New products emerge right all the way from microwood veneer that can be applied like wallpaper — even around corners — to circular columns—to paper bathing suits.

Chances are you'll see plenty of the paper bathing suits on the beaches this summer and not even recognize them. A method of treating the wood pulp with melamine resin gives the paper wet strength.

Another new wood product, plywveneer, is getting a thorough trial in the Hiawatha country around Spring. The expedition's supplies are being transported in 100 boxes all made of specially treated fir veneer overlaid with kraft paper. The veneer material is used because it is light and unusually strong. It is thoroughly being tested in steaming jungles and on sub-zero mountain slopes.

In the laboratory, professional baseball leagues around the country glue their cracked bats to the plate with bats made of pieces of ash and hickory held together by glue. These laminated bats are substantial sluggers, too. Players prefer laminated bats for their better balance and more strength than those made of one piece.

Plastic bonded golf gun shocks made of laminated wood. These are accepted and used by the Defence Department for combat outfits.

• • •

Nor is this business of putting many small pieces of good timber to forms a single larger piece restricted to the military and the automobile companies. Even commercial buildings. A gigantic new government exposition center constructed just outside Washington uses laminated wood for its structural members. This building, which covers 23 acres, demonstrates the adaptability and economy of wood in modern construction.

With edge - gluing techniques, forest industries can bring boards out of little ones. In most cases the glue is set electrically. Many new products from wood can be fitted and fastened together to make the finished article. Even the trees no longer need be big, tall, straight and more than 100 years old to give the manufacturer the board or beam he needs.

Take the wood smart and reassembles it in a multitude. of useful forms and shapes.

Take plywood, for instance. A new Weyerhaeuser Timber Company plant at Longview, Wash., produces 90,000,000 square feet of hardwood a year from white fir logs. Another plant in Oregon is Dudley Buck, in fine voice at Methodist Church service on Sunday.

Mr. R. J. Wilson, M.P., and Mrs. Wilson of Napanee were guests of the Rev. Dr. Creithers at the Bridge Street Methodist Church parsonage yesterday.

Eyewash From Mars

(Detroit Free Press)

We note an opinion put forth that the epidemic of windshield pitting is due to a meteoric rain of eyewash carried by flying saucers. Perhaps it is. But some flying saucer has a leakage in the eyewash department.

It is not our disposition to leap to a conclusion, though the eyewash theory sounds as logical as anything we've heard. One thing we want to keep in mind with is how closely people examined their windshields before this pitting alarm was sounded.

In our own case there are some large pits made by pebbles which got thrown by passing cars. We know about them and never have looked for others. Maybe there are scads of those little pinpoints that we never noticed. If we remember to, we'll look sometime.

At Oakridge, Ore., the Pope & Talbot Company is constructing a new plant to convert ordinary sawdust into a soil conditioner. Tests indicate this wood product will substantially increase the crop-growing potential of agricultural soils.

The petroleum industry looks to a West Coast forest industry byproduct, Silva-cell, as a virtual necessity in oil-drive secondary. Another company — this one in California—makes dinnerware out of reconstituted wood.

At the Army's Aberdeen, Md., proving ground three trucks with allwood bodies are in the final round of tests to determine their fitness for rough military service. The three truck bodies, designed by the Timber Engineering Company, a research affiliate of the lumber industry, are made of laminated hardwood.

Pulp and paper companies are leaders in the field of product research. A New England manufacturer, the Brown Company, of Berlin, N.H., is typical. It makes underground electrical conduit tubes, sewer-pipe and connection fittings out of wood cellulose. Other Brown products include one to make a high refined wood cellulose used in the textile, rubber, wood rids, detergents and filter aids.

Still another product of the New Hampshire mill is a wood fiber material for shoe insoles, ladies' heels, counters and box toes.

Today one has to look twice to tell whether a product is made from wood. Usually it will be sure. But an ever higher percentage of the forest industry investment finds it way into the market place in the form of useful products.

Cannot Follow Housing Rule

(La Droit, Ottawa)

If Canada's policy is to be the principle of buying only a house the cost of which is equal to only two years' salary, it is doubtful, the building industry would slow down. The average dwelling bought for a debt for 20 years to come. The housing industry must be reorganized and modernized to answer the problem.

Worker Wants Longer Hours

(Financial Post)

Labor unions which have been so active in promoting shorter hours and shorter work weeks appear to start figuring seriously how to get more out of the 40-hour week. Figure that has been created'if they don't they may soon be facing the unpleasant necessity of workers for longer instead of shorter weeks. Such a trend appears to be coming to that in new sections of the country where normal living standards are not plentiful.

The movement comes from a worker at Kitimat:

The aluminum union recently had a long session with the management and asked for a 35c an hour increase, a three week vacation with a 40 hour week amongst other things. Any increase in pay is just what I anticipated my complaint has not been the rate of pay but the number of hours only which I am allowed to work in that rate. On a rough calculation of 168 hours a week, I find that I sleep 70 hours, eat 14 hours, rest 10 hours, eat food 7 hours, lie on my bed or else taking it do 40 hours and work 48 hours. It will therefore be easily understood why I am willing to kill myself working for 40 hours and flopping around on my mattress for 48 hours per week. The only major commercial disadvantage of Kitimat to me is that the hours of work are not long enough and I therefore follow the consequent pay cheque on an hourly basis, is also insufficient."

There is a lot of common sense in that contention! Not everybody wants to play golf, or go fishing or watch television six or seven hours a day. Not everyone can paint, or even whittle.

The simple, irrefutable fact is that most of us admittedly are contented for the most time at their jobs.

What! Fishing 50 weeks a year, 40 hours a week? Phooey. Yes, such jobs as fishing would be hard to fill.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN FRACTISED NUDITY.

One of the seven keys to vite is Nudity. I mean nudity, not nudism.

Stanton Delaplaine who writes a column called Postcard in the San Francisco Chronicle says this throws him. He thought nudity and nudism were the same: he often takes off

Dr. Brady your clothes and walks around in a mixed company. That's what I thought nudity was. Also nudism." The column must kill San Franciscans. I bet the newspaper people in San Francisco still tell people the trouble is aphasia when some one forgets his own name and where he was born.

Benjamin Franklin advocated and practised nudity but not even a San Francisco columnist can find him guilty of indecent practice of nudism.

The difference between nudity and nudism, Mr. Delaplane, is as great as the difference between the San Francisco Chronicle and a modern newspaper.

Franklin used to sit nude at his writing for an hour or so in the morning before breakfast. He believed this beneficial to his health.

Mr. Delaplane was discombobulated by two of the other keys, namely, temperance, which he dismissed as one man's opinion, and Belly Breathing.

"We were intended to breathe with our stomachs" asks the dear fellow, "why did we get lungs? This was too bad. It would have been no such funnies if the comical fellow had said "in'ards" instead of "stomach."

For centuries no newer got past the third grade, Webster says nudity is the state or fact of being nude; nakedness; nudism is the cult of living in a nude state.

Stanton Delaplane says nudism "seems likely a mightly odd housecloth. People running around bare, somersaulting and breathing with their stomachs . . ."

That isn't the half of it. We use no toothbrushes or glorified mops to keep our teeth clean. We have no bathtubs—or we never use the bathtubs built in before we became aware of what they were doing. We haven't any use for physic, sleeping pills, powerful germicides, cough and cold cures, booze, fishing tackle, guns, metalobliterators, electrocardiographs, red nail polish agents' hair-dos.

In fact ours is Odd House—but hardly as odd as Franklin was able to achieve when I had a series of talks to under our roof several years ago before the soaring costs took the fun out of it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A most interesting national poll of Canadians might be taken along these lines:

What sort of sky do you prefer?

Do you prefer an all blue sky?

Do you prefer a blue sky with moving clouds?

Do you prefer a cloudy sky?

Do you prefer a grey sky with rain?

From listening to Canadians for the past two generations or so, it is my impression that an overwhelming majority of Canadians want nothing but blue sky. Their idea of the perfect day is blue sky, bright sun, a spectacle to outset. If there is no wind at all, so much the better; but a little rolling breeze might come into their picture of the ideal day, depending on the temperature.

It is on such a day that everybody exclaims "What a perfect day!" Since in most parts of Canada we get any number of such days, anywhere from fifty to a hundred and fifty of them a year, it is not as if we were hunting for them, as people do in Britain and other countries where there is a heavy preponderance of cloudy and wet days. In England and Scotland, people in general have a real love for cloudy days, even grey and wet ones. Depending on the country, you will see people walking and moving about their business with every evidence of enjoyment of the weather, regardless of what it is as Canadians resent such weather and show it in every way possible. Impatiently, they await blue sky.

The art of Britain and Europe has taken account of the changing character of their days. Their landscape poetry, even their art as goes into their industries, their weaving, textiles, their architecture, their hats, and shoes and all reflect the beauty of unpredictability and the unpredictability of which they love.

Personally, I have never been bored as by the changeless blue days of the Bahamas or the tropical countries I have been briefly marooned in. The eternal bluness seems to fasten and rot everything. Even Jesus would, like the cattle, even the pet dogs.

It would be a sad thing if Canadians really wanted their sky done in cellophane—like the supermarket groceries—always tidy, neat, stereotyped.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HOUSES AND PEOPLE

Most Americans today probably use the word "church" quite interchangeably to indicate both the religious organization and the building which houses it. Perhaps this does not seem strange to us, but it would have seemed so to our forefathers. As eighteenth-century parish records often show, in those days of the past, there was a definite distinction observed between the terms "church"—the corporate body of Christians in communion with Christ—and "meeting house" as the building which housed the activities of the church.

This is a distinction which we should like well to remember. Too many people, including perhaps some who are proverbial pillars of their congregations, seem to that their religious experience is complete when they have worked for the "church" in the second sense. They have given generously to the building fund and toward current expenses. They have served on the committee for redecoration of the church parlors. Possibly they have even put on old clothes and helped to paint the Sunday-school room.

Such activities are necessary, important, and praiseworthy. But what about the spiritual lives of these people as members of Christ's community? They have done their duty by the meeting house, but how about the changes in the other sense, most important of all? Jesus Jesus once emphatically said. . . .Thou are careful and troubled about many things: but one thing is needful."

Teachers Giving Homework Demonstrate Their Incapacity

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A public school inspector says homework is a hoary tradition and any teacher who assigns it demonstrates his incapacity.

Dr. T. H. W. Martin made the comment Wednesday night in addressing the annual conference of the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association, central zone. He said it may be only incapacity to cover the course set out by the departments of education, but it is incapacity of some sort.

The teacher who shows intelligence is the one who inspires pupils to do homework on their own, Dr. Martin added. Parents who demanded homework proved one of three points:

They are unable to permit or provide cultural or recreational activities in their homes; they think their children are poorly taught and think they can do the school work better without the teacher; or they admit they are unable to control their children after school and are asking the teacher to do it for them.

Dr. Martin's remarks came during a discussion on progressive education. He consists of four steps in acquisition of knowledge — memorization, understanding, acceptance and practice.

EDUCATIONISTS DISAGREE

Earlier, two Peterborough educationists engaged in a verbal battle over the controversy of progressive versus traditional education. No winner was declared.

The battle was in the form of a panel discussion. K. S. Wightman, school superintendent, said the outstanding principle in education today is acceptance of the idea that every child deserves an education suited to his capacities up to the end of Grade 10.

This meant fitting the school to the child and trying to deal with great differences in learning capacities. Results of educators' efforts had brought changes and criticisms.

Dr. E. P. Ray, principal of Kenner collegiate institute, said if instruction is to be geared to the needs of children with different abilities, better-trained teachers are necessary.

$1,640,000,000 Held in Real Estate Mortgages

TORONTO (CP)—Member companies of the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association held $1,640,000,000 in real estate mortgages at the end of 1953, an increase of $211,000,000, or 15 per cent, over 1952, says the association's annual report, prepared for delivery to today's annual meeting.

The 24 life insurance, 15 trust and seven loan companies comprising the membership, approved gross mortgage loans, including the government's share of national housing act loans, totalling $501,200,000, up 17 per cent from 1952.

Of this amount, $7,300,000 was on business and farm properties and $428,100,000 on single and multiple dwellings, up 17.3 per cent.

Financing of some 83,300 housing units was assisted, 17,900 more than in 1952, made up of 57,300 single dwellings and 26,000 units in multiple structures.

AVERAGE LOAN UP

Average loan on new single houses was $7,900, compared with $7,700 in 1952, and $4,600 in 1946.

Appraisals for new construction were some $385,500,000, accounting for 76 per cent of all mortgage loan approvals in 1953, compared with 70 per cent in 1952.

During the war, says the report, the bulk of member-company monies went to help finance the war effort, and by the end of the war Canada bonds formed a large part of the companies' assets.

Since the war, Canada bond holdings had been reduced substantially and other kinds of assets increased, notably mortgage loans, but the pace of mortgage loan investment set in recent years, and particularly in 1953 "cannot be expected to continue indefinitely."

Member Against Heavy Outlay For Residences

OTTAWA (CP)—Howard Green (PC — Vancouver - Quadra) said Wednesday the external affairs department is trying to keep up with the Joneses in construction of Canadian missions abroad.

He asked in the Commons external affairs committee how the department could justify proposed expenditure of almost $500,000 for an ambassador's residence in Rome.

E. M. Macdonnell, assistant deputy minister for external affairs said the department is considering alternatives such as renovation of an existing residence already on the property purchased by Canada for $186,000. Renovation might save $300,000.

"I suggest you give the taxpayer a break and use the alternative," Mr. Green said.

Mr. Macdonnell said the department is not engaged in any competition with other countries to build the finest or biggest embassies.

Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) said the sites for embassies cost a terrific amount.

Mr. Macdonnell said property values in many places are a great deal higher than in Canada, either for renting or purchase.

No Suitable Plan to Dispose Of Surplus Butter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Benson said Wednesday he hasn't found a suitable plan for disposing of 360,000,000 pounds of surplus government-owned butter. He asked Congress for help.

Benson told the House of Representatives agriculture committee that to avoid future government buying a production payment plan is "administratively feasible" but that he does not feel he has authority to use this.

Under the plan, he said it would be possible to halt further government buying. Butter prices would be allowed to drop to whatever level that supply and demand would carry them.

The government would make up the difference between the market price and the support price in the form of payments to processors.

Over the Hump

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor Minister Gregg says Canada is over the hump so far as unemployment is concerned.

"We are certainly past the unemployment peak for this year," Mr. Gregg Wednesday night told the annual meeting of the employers' advisory group of the unemployment insurance commission.

There would be seasonal unemployment again next fall, "but not on the scale we experienced last fall."

New Storm Over Monitored Phone Talks Is Blowing Up

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new storm over monitored telephone conversations seemed to be blowing up today for United States senators already beset by bitter wrangling over duty offered in their probe of the Senator McCarthy-army row.

From sources close to the Wisconsin Republican senator but unwilling to be named came word today that he or his aides intend to question whether the army has been withholding from the Senate investigations sub - committee some telephone conversations on which shorthand notes were taken.

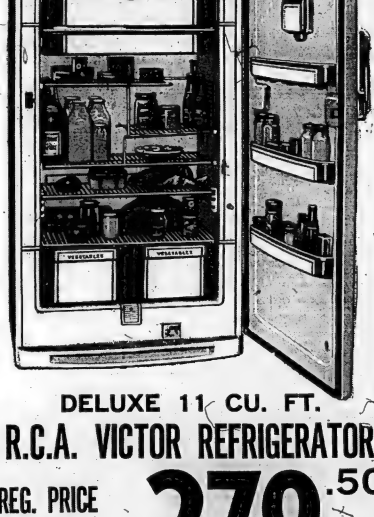
The army, through its special counsel, Joseph N. Welch, already has accused McCarthy and his aides of introducing into the record a "doctored" photograph and a "phoney" letter. McCarthy has denied the charge.

In a surprise development, McCarthy was sworn as a witness Wednesday to testify about the letter, which he described as a 1951 warning to the army from FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover about security suspects.

The senator said an army intelligence officer gave him the letter. He refused to name the officer, saying that under no circumstances would he disclose his informants.

SUMMIT ALL TRANSCRIPTS

With the subcommittee today starting the third week of its televised hearings, acting chairman Karl Mundt (Rep., S.D.) said both sides were to submit during the day all transcripts they had of any relevant telephone conversations.



Mundt, who has replaced McCarthy as the sub-committee chairman for the duration of the probe, told reporters he will demand that each camp certify to the completeness of the records and their accuracy.

McCarthy has accused Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and his aides of trying to halt his own probe for subversion at Fort Monmouth, N.J., using as a "hostage" Pte. G. David Schine, a former unpaid sub-committee consultant.

The senator buried the charge in denying an army report accusing him and two of his chief aides, Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr, of exerting improper pressures to try to win favored treatment for Schine, drafted last November.

St. Edmund's Church, Stoke was the scene of the marriage of Margaret Ellen Kinlin, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Kinlin, to Leon Francis McMahon, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. J. McMahon, Rev. F. A. Agnew officiated at the marriage ceremony and Rev. Peter Kinlin, D.C.L., brother of the bride, said the Nuptial Mass. Lawrence Kinlin, nephew of the bride, and Richard Gourneyn, served as ushers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of tiered white net over satin with French lace jacket having a Peter Pan collar and ivy-pointed sleeves. A headdress of lace and lily-of-the-valley held her finger-tip veil of tulle and lace, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The matron-of-honor, Mrs. Austin Dillon, sister of the bride and bridesmaids, Misses Virginia Thorpe, niece of the bridegroom, and Catherine Kinlin, niece of the bride, were gowned in tulle over satin in shades of blue, pink, and green with matching headdresses. They carried nosegays of mixed spring flowers.

Little Marie Agnew, as flower girl, wore daffodil yellow taffeta with matching flower headdress and carried a spring flower nosegay.

The groomsman was James McMahon, brother of the bridegroom and the ushers were Messrs. Frank Kinlin, brother of the bride, and William Byrnes, nephew of the bridegroom.

During the Nuptial Mass, Mrs. Stanley Allore, soloist, accompanied by Miss Clara Mulroney, rendered, Caesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus," "Ave Maria," "Ave Maria," "Ave Verum Corpus," and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother," during the signing of the register.

She was assisted by Miss Catherine McMahon, sister of the bridegroom, who was attired in pale blue with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For travelling, the bride chose a grey gabardine suit, black accessories, squirrel furs and a corsage of camellias. Upon their return the couple will reside in North Augusta.

DOWNE — GIFFIN

Lovely blooms of hydrangea and daffodils, interspersed with ferns, formed an attractive background on Saturday, May 1, at 2.30 p.m., for the marriage of Evelyn Georgina Giffin, of Foxboro, Ontario, daughter of the late Reverend Harold Wesley Giffin and Mrs. Giffin, to Aylward Hall Downe, of Calgary, Alta., son of Mrs. H. E. Downe and the late Mr. Downe. The bride's father, Reverend H. W. Giffin, father of the bride, officiated.

Mrs. R. Skinner, of Foxboro, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. William Barrie, of Foxboro, who sang "O Perfect Love," and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Lyle Giffin, of Long Island, N.Y., the bride was charmingly attired in a floor-length nylon net over slipper satin, fashioned with fitted bodice and jacket of delicate Chantilly lace, having long sleeves, lily-pointed over the hands. The bell-shaped skirt was accented by a peplum. Her finger-tip veil of embroidered net fell from a tiara of Queen of Scots headdress of Brussels lace and seed pearls. She carried a white Bible crested with cascading, red, Sweetheart roses.

Miss Patricia Giffin, of Foxboro, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, gowned in misty-pink nylon over taffeta featuring a bouffant sleeveless overskirt and bodice, having a "V" neckline accented by pearls and rhinestones.

Miss Barbara Jean Walker, of Kingston, as bridesmaid, wore nylon chiffon over taffeta in seafoam green, made on similar lines to that of the maid of honor. They wore long white gloves, matching floral cap headdress, and carried baskets of pink and pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. John Basham, of Montreal, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Frank Moore, of Calgary and Toronto, and Mr. Clarence Barron Gregson, of Bowser Lodge, Alberta, acted as ushers.

At the reception, which was held in the church hall, the bride's grandmother, received a dove grey crepe with three-quarter sleeve, mauve hat with mauve trim, and accessories and mauve orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother assisted, gowned in a blue-grey two-piece dress with matching hat, navy shoes and accessories, and red rose corsage.

For the wedding trip to Quebec City, the bride chose a suit of robin-egg blue nubby wool cloth cut, lined with striped taffeta matching her blouse; hat of linen finish Sisel straw in navy with yellow with touches of navy blue, and matching accessories.

Among the telegrams received during the reception was one from Fourteen Crew rescued by Pilot dians at Alberta.

Guests were present from Kirkland Lake, Hoboken, New Jersey; Sharbot Lake, Kingston, Brockville, Sydenham, Long Island, N.Y., and Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Downe will reside in Ottawa, Canada.

Economics In Canada 'Wears Skirts'

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The housewife consumer is largely responsible for present-day prices, Madame H. E. Vaudelet of Montreal told the annual meeting of the London branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers here Wednesday night.

Madame Vaudelet, national president of the CAC, a nationwide women's organization for consumer protection, said economics in Canada today "wears skirts, not trousers."

"Today 'buying' is Canada's biggest single business — and we women manage it," she said.

How the housewife spends her dollar was the lever which determined Canada's economic health. Each time a woman enters a store she has the power, through her taste, to decide what it will pay Canada's manpower most to produce, Madame Vaudelet said.

14 LOST IN SINKING

TOKYO (AP) — Two freighters ran aground off Japan today and one sank with a probable loss of 14 lives, the Japanese Coast Guard said. The 980-ton Japanese freighter Abekawa Maru went down off Wagahill in southern Japan. The coast guard said four bodies were recovered and 10 are missing. Fourteen were rescued by three boats. The 7,341-ton Italian freighter Ernest ran aground off northern Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rollins, Plainfield, Wed Fifty Years

Lifelong residents of Hastings county, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rollins of Plainfield, were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary last week when members of their immediate family and friends of the community gathered in their home.

It was actually a two-day celebration for the couple with family members paying tribute on the date of the anniversary. The following night community friends gathered at the Rollins' home.

Since they were married 50 years ago at the home of the bride's parents on Melrose, Mr. and Mrs. Rollins have lived on their 300-acre farm on the 7th concession of Thurlow east of Plainfield. Mrs. Rollins now 71, is the former Lucy McConnell. The groom of half a century ago is 76.

Despite their years, both Mr. and Mrs. Rollins are active with their farm interests. Mr. Rollins still does his own chores and look after 18 head of cattle. The couple live alone on their farm with Mr. Rollins taking his crop off with summer help. He has never owned a tractor and has always owned an auto.

"He has always seemed nervous about things mechanical," his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Orval "Bill" Rollins said.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollins are members of Plainfield United Church. They are former Presbyterians, but found it too far to drive to the nearest church. Mrs. Rollins is a charter member of the Women's Institute and her husband is a member of the L.O.L. at Plainfield.

REAL FAMILY GATHERING

"It was a real family gathering at the Rollins' home on the evening of the anniversary with all of the Rollins' brothers present, including William Rollins, of Peterborough, who acted as groomsman at the Rollins' wedding in 1904. A sister of Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. J. Bunnett, R.R. 1, acted as bridesmaid, was unable to be present because of ill health, but a brother, Isaac McConnell of Port Hope, and a second sister, Mrs. Ed. Provins, of Desoronto, attended.

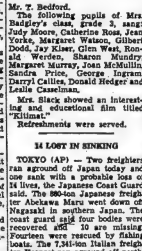
Congratulations from Premier Leslie Frost were received by Mr. and Mrs. Rollins, the congratulatory message being handed to them by Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., for Hastings East.

The couple were recipients of many lovely gifts from the family while the community presented them with a handsome new trilight lamp.

Eight of the two sons, Robert Rollins, who lives on the adjoining farm, and Orval "William" Rollins who lives at Plainfield. There are five grandchildren, Douglas and Glenn, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Rollins and Joan, Fay and Robert, children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rollins.

St. Margaret's Guild Holds Bridge, Euchre

A bridge and euchre was held in the church hall on Monday night, sponsored by St. Margaret's Guild.



Eighteen tables of cards were played. The prizes were as follow: for euchre, ladies' high, Mrs. Fitzgibbon; men's high, Ken Nevery; ladies' low, Mrs. W. Meens; men's low, C. McFarland.

For bridge: ladies' high, Mrs. W. Richardson; low, Mrs. D. Black; men's high, Mr. F. Ross; low, Mr. Arthur Watson.

The president of the Guild Mrs. F. E. Moore, drew the ticket for the door prize which was a lamp. The lucky holder was Mr. Arthur Watson.

Refreshments were served by the Guild, under the convenership of Mrs. A. Wood.

The plans for the evening were carried out by the project committee under the leadership of Mrs. C. Partridge.

Your Hospital

In this day and age of speed and modern living, many of us take a good many things for granted. Our freedom of speech, our freedom of the press, our freedom of religion, are three good examples.

Airplanes, radio, television and other miracles of man's ingenuity govern our hospitals—are simply taken as a matter of course.

A cynic once said "man is a reasoning animal which seldom reasons". This cannot be better exemplified than by the manner in which the man on the street accepts the fact of the existence of a hospital in his community without bothering to inquire who is responsible for its presence and its operation.

A century or so ago our public hospitals existed solely as public charities for the care of the destitute sick in our midst. Today, all classes of people of Ontario are, on the whole, admirably and adequately served by the 217 public, private and special hospitals which are now in operation.

WIDE SERVICE.

Each year approximately 780,000 patients are treated in the public general hospitals of Ontario. It would not be an exaggeration to say that the lives of at least two million persons are nearly relatives and friends, are affected directly and indirectly by the hospitals of Ontario.

Yet, in spite of this, few of us stop to realize the vast store of energy that keep our hospitals in operation from day to day. Nor do we stop to realize the many substantial sums spontaneously contributed to hospitals by charitable and public spirited citizens.

No few Canadians are cognizant of the fact that behind the operation of each and every one of Ontario's hospitals is a small band of workers, comprising the Hospital Board. Due to the tireless sustained efforts of the members of these boards, who are living closely with the executive staffs of the hospitals by whom the doors of these institutions are open seven days a week to receive patient, staff and every member of the community whenever needed.

GIVE FREELY.

The men and women on the Board of Belleville and District Hospital give freely of their time and energy and money. They receive remuneration nor reward except the satisfaction of knowing that by their efforts they are making your community a better and safer place in which to work and live. By their work and efforts they set a splendid example of good citizenship.

The chairman of the Board of Governors of Belleville and District General Hospital, is J. N. Yanover.

Other members of the Board are Mayor J. Roth, Warden F. G. Mitchell, J. E. Buchan, J. F. Bradford, E. P. Jarvis, W. Johnson, K. E. Denyes, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Rev. H. Hale, H. Lattimer, J. Hall Legate, K. G. M. Ross, A. F. Whitehead, Dr. C. H. A. Walters, M.P., Mrs. H. Reid.

Wednesday, May 12th, Hospital Day, is your chance to visit your community hospital, the Belleville General Hospital.

RED UNITES MOVED SOUTH

TAIPEH, Formosa, (AP) — The interior ministry's news service announced last large units of infantry, tank and anti-aircraft units of the Chinese Communist 4th Field Army have been moved to south and southeast China. The 4th, units which fought in Korea, presumably still is under the command of Gen. Lin Piao, chairman of the Communist administration for central-south China. If true, the movement would indicate a reinforcement of positions opposite Formosa.

MISS DONNA MARGARET FLYNN

DR. RAYMOND ALFRED LAFOREST

The engagement is announced of Miss Donna Margaret Flynn, daughter of Mrs. R. A. Flynn, of Renfrew, and the late Dr. R. A. Flynn, formerly of Belleville, and Dr. Raymond Alfred Laforest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Laforest, of Toronto. The wedding will take place at St. Francis Xavier Church in Renfrew on May 24th.

B.C.I.V.S. H-S Association Elects New Executive for 1954-55

The final meeting of the B.C.I.V.S. Home and School Association for the year 1953-54 was held in the Collegiate auditorium on Monday with Mrs. J. Lennox Smith, in the chair.

The new executive for 1954-55 was installed by Mrs. Ralph Morden. It consisted of past president, Mrs. J. Lennox Smith; president, Mrs. W. Gander; vice-president, Mr. James Musgrove and Mr. Slavin; treasurer, Mr. F. Alcorn; corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. Williams; recording secretary, Miss Naismith; executive members Mrs. P. Biddleston, Mrs. F. Pringle, Mrs. R. Post, Mrs. Simmons, Lieut.-Col. Smith.

The incoming president, Mrs. Gander, on assuming office, thanked Mrs. J. Lennox Smith for her leadership during the past season, and presented her, on behalf of the Association with a bouquet of flowers.

Acting on behalf of local H.-S. Association, Mrs. R. H. Varcoe made a presentation to Mr. George Currie, the retiring principal. Mrs. Currie was presented with a nosegay of flowers.

On conclusion of business, the meeting was turned over to Mr. Dick Brettingham, the representative of the Belleville Chapter of C.F.R.S.D.Q.A., which had charge of the balance of the program for their fourth annual local scholarship contest.

CHORAL GROUP

A choral group from the Collegiate under the leadership of Mr. Clifford Templeton, delighted the audience in the presentation of six vocal numbers. Mr. Templeton was ably assisted in the accompaniments by Peter Smith.

Mr. Robert Park, past secretary of the chapter, acted as M.C. for the presentation of the annual award of $100 each is given to the winning boy and girl from the local secondary schools for the most promising voice. Professor A. P. Haig, Professor of Music, Ontario College of Education, was the adjudicator.

The contestants were: Lulu Jean Carter and Don Weir, Albert College, accompanied by Mrs. Boyce; Pauline Laporte, St. Michael's High School, accompanied by Mrs. Hendrikse; June Bowerman, Suzanne Chevrier, Gary Walker and Robert Daniels, B.C.I.V.S., all accompanied by Mr. Templeton.

THE WINNERS

The girl's award was given to Suzanne Chevrier and the boy's scholarship was won by Don Weir. The adjudicator in making the award, paid high tribute to the promise shown by all the contestants.

During an intermission in the contest, the winners of last year's scholarship awards Jarka Blazecky, and Jim Laughlin, entertained. While the adjudicator was making his decision, the Barbershoppers' chorus harmonized in a group of numbers.

Refreshments, served in the cafeteria, concluded the meeting.

FAMOUS CASTLE

The castle at Swansea, Wales, is said to have been originally built about 1120.

Qualities Required To Join St. John Ambulance Explained

The weekly meeting of St. John Ambulance division, No. 150, was held at the division headquarters, 257 Front Street.

Mrs. R. J. McLuskie, superintendent of the Belleville division, presided and opened the meeting welcoming all the new members joining the division.

Mrs. McLuskie explained the qualities necessary for joining the division, and the duties expected of members joining.

The division held a discussion on having a display of artificial respiration to be shown to church groups, boys' and girls' clubs, and any organization interested.

The monthly bulletin from provincial headquarters was read by Mrs. McLuskie.

The bulletin stated the annual meeting of the Ontario Council would be held in St. John House, Toronto, on Friday, June 11th.

Three members are asked to attend this annual meeting from each division.

ROYAL TOUR.

The members of St. John Ambulance no doubt have watched with interest the press clippings of Her Majesty and the Duke of Edinburgh, and a large number from Sydney, Australia, is particularly interesting to St. John members in Ontario. This states that more than 2,000 people collapsed in the dense crowds outside Sydney town hall, and that more than 100 St. John Ambulance personnel on duty, looked after them, most promptly and efficiently.

Congratulations go to fellow members of A. Gosch (down under) for a good job well done.

The bulletin also announced that Dr. J. Russell Scott, of Belleville, is the divisional doctor for Belleville for another three years.

Mrs. McLuskie announced that the two members who accompanied her to the annual meeting in Toronto, were Mrs. Barbara Haynes and Mrs. Zora Richards.

A humorous poem was read by Mrs. Richardson entitled "The Practising of "Home Nursing," bandaging.

Refreshments were served.

Club Activities

TABERNACLE G. C. CLUB

The Good Companions Club of Tabernacle United Church recently held an enjoyable social evening in the church school room.

Mr. Harold McNish started the evening with a rousing sing-song and the varied program under the direction of past executive members Albert Mulvey, Lew Andrews, Thelma Schliever and Earl Staafield kept the 40 members present busy all the evening.

Following the refreshments, Mr. Rowley closed the meeting.

WEDDING RECEPTION (First Instalment)

By Mary Moore

The amount of food to be provided for wedding receptions is a mystery to many of the mothers of brides-to-be—including me.

In one column I cannot cover all this subject, but since wedding time is coming up in all its glory and confusion I have to start somewhere, sometime, and now is the hour.

Since some weddings are small, others very large, I shall make my quantities of food for fifty guests. Those ambitious hostesses who invite one hundred or two hundred and fifty guests will have to multiply these amounts I am giving by two or five, etc.

An ever-recurring question is the position of the principals in a the receiving line. Remember this one rule: a lady always stands on a gentleman's right side.

RECEIVING LINE

Left to right: Bride's mother; groom's father; groom's mother; bride's father; bride; groom; maid of honor; bridesmaids.

Another good rule: As soon as first guests go through receiving line start serving, or reception will drag on interminably. Do not wait for all guests to arrive before starting to serve the food.

The simplest menu would include two varieties of cold dainty sandwiches (chicken and lobster), dainty cookies such as pastel macaroons and petit fours, wedding cake, coffee, reception punch.

THE BUFFET RECEPTION

Cold Chicken or Lobster or Shrimp Salad
or
Hot Chicken a la King or Lobster Thermidor
Jellied Vegetable Salad
Assorted Dainty Sandwiches
or
Small Buttered Hot Rolls
Ice Cream with Fresh Strawberry or Raspberry Sauce
Pecan Cookies Angel Cake
Wedding Cake
Coffee Salted Nuts
Reception Punch

I am hoping that the mothers of brides-to-be will clip this column now because I am going to give you recipe for Reception Punch and Chicken a la King for fifty people—for there will be hundreds of gallons of both of these items served in Canada this June.

WEDDING RECEPTION PUNCH

(For 50)

One and one-quarter cups water, 2 1-3 cups sugar, 1 7-oz. tin lemon juice, 1 20-oz. tin pineapple and orange juice (or 1 can frozen orange juice and 3 cans water to dilute it), 1 48-oz. tin grapefruit juice (unsweetened), 1 16-oz. bottle grape juice (for those who insist on an alcoholic content substitute it for the grape juice), 1 cup sliced maraschino cherries and their juice, 1 cup freshly brewed, very strong tea, 1 26-oz. bottle ginger ale, 1 26-oz. bottle soda water, 3 trays ice cubes. Boil sugar and water together five minutes and cool. Add all other ingredients except ginger ale and soda water and ice. (These ingredients may be mixed 24 hours before wedding.) Thirty minutes before serving add ice. Just before serving add chilled ginger ale and soda water.

CHICKEN A LA KING

(For 50)

Ten cups well-packed diced cooked chicken (4 4 1-3 lb. chickens yields 4 cups diced cooked meat), 1 cup chopped drained canned pimento, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 teaspoons pepper, 1 cup mushrooms, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1-3 cup well-packed chopped parsley, 12 cups white sauce. To make white sauce melt 1 1-3 cups butter in top of double boiler and stir in 1 1-3 cups flour until blended, then stir in 10 cups hot milk until thick. Add 3 teaspoons salt. Scrub and slice mushrooms and sauté them in the 5 tablespoons butter gently for 5 minutes or until limp and butter-soaked. Add diced chicken and mushrooms to white sauce and all other ingredients, but if chicken a la king is made 24 hours ahead of time do not add the parsley, until 1: is reheated for serving. This must be kept very cold if made 24 hours ahead of time. Serve on tiny halved biscuit shells, or in toast cups or patties shells.

Watch for more wedding information next week.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

BE A BATHING BEAUTY

It is the girl who is on good terms with the bath tub or shower who always looks as fresh as a May morning. And she gets something more than cleanliness from the morning ablution—a heightened sense of relaxation, the feeling of self-respect that comes with fastidious grooming. And ten minutes a day is all this beauty ritual demands.

Incentives to daily bathing are the delightful accessories to be found on cosmetic counters. Bath salts not only impart a pleasing fragrance that may remain with you all the day long, but they soften the water, make the bath more thorough. If the skin is inclined to be dry, there are oily applications that will prove soothing. They should be frictioned into the flesh lightly just after dipping. Then the normal skin dusting powders are recommended to keep it in condition.

The bath of greatest comfort is the warm one, neither hot nor cool, a little above body temperature. This is the sedative bath, the one that relieves that tired feeling, that takes the kinks out of the nerves, promises one for sleep. Its length may be limited by nothing but the time at the individual's disposal. It relaxes, calms and soothes.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HER HUSBAND IGNORES THEIR CHILDREN

If you have a husband who won't bother to pay any attention to his children, what can be done about it?

"We have two boys, aged six and three," writes a wife who hopes for some advice that will "awaken my husband to a critical problem which jeopardizes our happiness."

She then goes on to say:

"We were married nearly five years before we were blessed with a child, and previous to this child's birth, we were happy and companionable.

"My husband comes from a very large family and, although he seemingly loves the two children and worries if they are not well, he is unapproachable and overly strict with them so that they are really afraid of him. He has never taken any part in caring for either of them or cuddling or playing with them. He has never even taken the oldest out for a walk with him, or out in the car when he is going on an errand.

"I don't mind his punishing the children if they really need it, as I want them to be well behaved, but the fact that this is the only time he ever pays any attention to them is what provokes me.

"I would like to have more children, but I am afraid to do this, as I don't want to get so fed up with his attitude that I might leave him, or we might grow so far apart over it that he would leave of his own accord.

"I love my husband dearly. He is a good worker and has a fine character. I take much pride in my home, and we could be very happy if only he would show a little affection for the children. As it is, I resent his attitude deeply, although most of the time I say nothing and keep my resentment inside."

LONGS FOR PEACE

As I see it, there are probably two factors that combine to account for this father's unnatural behavior toward his children.

The first is purely a guess, and only his wife can tell if there may be anything in it. It has to do with what she says about her husband coming from "a very large family." What happens, sometimes, when a person grows up in the midst of many brothers and sisters, is that he develops, subconsciously, perhaps, a great longing for peace and quiet in the home. Hence, when children of his own begin to come, he feels them as a threat to this desire of his, and accordingly has as little to do with them as possible in an attempt to hold himself aloof from the confusion he dreads.

The other factor I see in his attitude is that, after nearly five years during which the family consisted only for himself and his wife, he became so accustomed to the happy companionship with her alone, that he resented having this companionship broken into by children. There may be an element of jealousy here, too, in that where he was the exclusive object of his wife's attention, he now must share that attention with the two little boys. Frankly childish of a man, of course, to be jealous of his own children, but it can happen.

RESENTFUL SELFISHNESS

How to get him out of his resentful selfishness is the big problem, and I rather think it is a little too big for this woman to handle alone. So I would suggest that she do one of two things. She might either consult the Children and Family Service Association in her nearest city and get advice on the best way to deal with the situation, or she might have a talk with a marriage counselor. If she chooses to do the first, she can get the address of the association I mention by inquiring of any public official in the city, or any minister of a church, or one of the local newspapers.

The point is that this husband needs to be brought to see the necessity of a change within himself, and it will take an expert adviser who can get to him personally to do this. Obviously, he is not going to do anything about it himself.

But if his wife, guided by such an expert, and working lovingly and patiently, can bring him to realize his need, it may be that he will eventually want to seek help himself.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

BABY SHOWER DILEMMA

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know if there is some type of Baby Shower that could be given when the mother-to-be has everything for the coming baby. We are stumped as to what kind of shower to give, as she has a complete set of nursery furniture, the blankets and linens and clothes, bottles and sterilizing equipment, absolutely everything for a baby. The young mother-to-be is extremely popular, we're devoted to her; and also we think that a shower should be given for the first child. Have you a suggestion about this shower? — D.L.

I suggest that you and your group might like to give a joint present. You might each like to contribute toward a small silver plate for the baby-to-come. This is not a usual gift to a baby, but it is, I think, a lovely one, and with a really lifetime usefulness. It should be of a size larger than an bread-and-butter plate, entirely plain or of a most simple design. And, if you wish, tell the mother-to-be that, after the baby's birth, you will have it engraved with the baby's name and birth-date.

St. John's Guild of St. Margaret's On-The-Hill Sponsors Spring Tea

The spring tea and bazaar, sponsored by St. John's Guild of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, was charmingly conveyed and colorful with its bright yellow tulips, daffodils and sprays of bell-like forsythia which graced the little guest tables, and the tea table.

Mrs. L. A. Pace, wife of the rector, and Mrs. R. Babcock graciously received the guests and extended a heartening welcome to all.

HEIRLOOM SERVICE

The tea table, with its lovely embroidered cloth, was centred by a pleasing arrangement of yellow tulips in a china container, and flanked by tall, exquisitely carved brass candelabra, heirlooms, holding aloft five ivory tapers. At either end were the silver services, one of which was ornate with scroll-like carving, and the following inscription:

"This service presented to Dr. Oronhyatekha, by a few friends in London and Oxford, England, as a token of appreciation of his eminent abilities and distinguished services in the civilization and education of the Indians of North America. Christmas 1873."

The tiny guard's lilies were daintily covered with either a white or mauve green cloth and centred by yellow daffodils, tulips and forsythia sprays rising from a lacey-collared vase.

Those pouring included: Mrs. J. B. Cresswell, wife of the rector of Christ Church, and Mrs. Everett Smith, wife of the assistant rector of Christ Church; Mrs. P. Welch and Mrs. F. Moore.

Those serving were: Mrs. C. Brown, Mrs. Karkeek, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. F. R. LaRue, Mrs. C. Gower and Miss J. Babcock, while those replenishing were: Mrs. Bedford, Mrs. M. Briese, Mrs. M. Settle, Mrs. G. Brower, Mrs. S. Price, Mrs. G. Grinnell, Mrs. J. Exler and Mrs. I. Johnson.

Around one side of the large assembly room were the various tables of merchandise, novelties and candies, aprons and fancy work and homecooking table.

FINE APRON SELECTION

The apron table had a very fine selection of splendidly made aprons, both in the ballapron and all-over styles, and included colorful prints in blue with large white daisy pattern, green and white floral design, chartreuse shade with tiny tracing lattice-work across contrasting floral borders, while others had white grounds sprinkled with roses. These were in the all-over type.

The half aprons were in red and white stripe effect, mauve chambray with green bias bindings, mauve organdy with dainty frills of the same; a pretty apron was fashioned of ivory and wine material, very chic; others were in yellow and mauve, and one had a large pansy for a pocket. There were also mother and daughter type aprons in floral colored prints, play aprons, with pockets for the crayons and pencil, type aprons with pockets for the eyeglass and pencils.

Besides the aprons there were some lovely crocheted baby bonnets and sacques in white, as well as knit ones in blue and yellow, and a knit set in white with narrow pink edging; knit rompers in yellow and blue; little socks in red, fawn, grey, green and yellow, sporting the cable stitch.

Those assisting were: Mrs. W. Moens and Mrs. W. Colyer.

One must not overlook the fantasy towels and hand-painted place mats. Those in charge of goods part, which included green satin cushion covers, one round and centred by a pink rose, and hand painted; the other square with a bird of jade. There were also fancy stocking driers made from coat hangers with crocheted covering; fancy dusting mitts, yellow, and blue and pink with matching pendant, plastic clothes pins.

MISCELLANEOUS TABLE

The miscellaneous table, in charge of Mrs. H. Putnam and Mrs. W. Mrs. Scott, formerly of Toronto and Hamilton, Ont., said her schooling in Canada had given her a standard accent and a greater sense of equality, in Britain, however, there were wide speech differences and employers admitted that all things being equal, preference would be given to a well-spoken man.

Even juvenile delinquency, she told the meeting, might be partly caused by the sense of inferiority resulting from lack of opportunity to learn standard English.

"I would rather my father had beaten my mother than that I should stand here and say: 'Ain't' the 'all 'ot.'"

Mrs. Scott, who now lives in Weybridge, Surrey, introduced her resolution with what one British paper called a "charming apology" for her Canadian accent. The resolution won only a handful of voices.

Opposing speakers said good speech began in the home. Many children learned three speech techniques—for the home, the school and the street.

PLAN NEW PLANT

DETROIT (CP) — General Motors' Corporation Wednesday announced it will build a new Fisher body division plant at Livonia. It will be on the site of the Detroit transmission plant destroyed by fire last summer.

The plant, to be completed by next spring, will employ about 3,000 persons. It is part of a two-year GM expansion program.

Defeat Motion To Copy Canada On Education

BUXTON, England (CP)—An attempt aimed at having "standard" English taught in British schools, except Canadian lines, was resoundingly defeated by a conference of women from Britain's Liberal party meeting in this Derbyshire town.

Mrs. Agnes Scott, 46, a Britisborn, Canadian-educated housewife moved a resolution urging greater emphasis on elocution and speech training.

Queen Alexandria H-S Assoc. Enjoys Folk Dance, Elects Officers

The congenial and co-operative atmosphere which has accompanied each association meeting during the past season was once more evidently present at the final meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, which was held Tuesday evening in the school auditorium. After the preliminary business had been conducted the annual reports were read.

There was keen competition this month for the attendance shield, but the victors were the pupils of Mr. Burgoyne's room. The attendanceer award for the year was won by Mrs. Dier's room for having had the largest number of parents out the most times.

At this point in the program the pupils of grades seven and eight entertained the many guests with choral singing.

Mr. Burgoyne, while introducing the choirs, said that the school isn't all drudgery, but our relaxation develops certain talents which later help the pupils to fit into our society, and enable them to be of service to our community.

The school choir during the past year has carried out several worth while projects, such as presenting concerts at the Hastings County Home for the Aged, and at the Y.M.C.A. for the blind. Choirs gave a delightful and polished performance which included folk songs, religious songs, and the National Anthem sung in three part harmony. The development of the liking of good music was fully illustrated by the results obtained by the choirs, proving that the cultural progress as well as the material growth of Canada is reflected in the schools.

1954-55 OFFICERS

The installation of the executive for 1954 and 55, conducted by Mr. R. Lennox, followed this entertaining interlude. The slate of officers is as follows:

President, Mrs. J. Tooth; vice-president, Mr. A. Touchie; recording secretary, Mrs. L. Andrews; corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. Graham; treasurer, Mr. R. Bailey; executive, Mrs. M. Robb, Mrs. R. Boyce, Mrs. C. Calnan, Mr. K. Hannon, Mrs. N. Pogue, and publicity and press reporter, Mrs. K. Daniel.

During her presidential speech, Mrs. Tooth expressed her sincere thanks to her past executive, to Mr. Hackett and the members of the staff of Queen Alexandra School, and to the Board of Education, for their loyalty and support. Special thanks were given to Mrs. Boyce, Mr. Harris, Mr. Daniel, Mrs. Dier, Mrs. Burrows and Mrs. Forrester, for each one of these executive members wonderful faithfully and enthusiastically to make this season a success.

The conveners of the various committees: Mr. Buchanan, Mr. Bailey, Mrs. Robb and Mrs. Williams were praised for their excellent jobs.

The important part of any organization is the working body. This year the room mothers under the capable direction of Mrs. C. Heath succeeded in drawing together a very interested and enthusiastic group of members and workers.

FOLK DANCING

The final part of the program was in the form of a display of folk dancing performed by the pupils of grades seven and eight under the direction of the physical education teachers, Miss H. Thompson and Mr. F. Dier. The fine tapping rhythm of such dances as "Birdie in the Cage" and "Dip and Dive," put everyone in a happy frame of mind. The entire enterprise in square dancing was livened considerably by Warren Frid, of grade eight, who called for the dances with the enthusiasm, knowledge and ability that could match many a professional.

To all of the young ladies and gentlemen in grades seven and eight goes a 'thank you' for a good job well done.

At the conclusion of the meeting the guests gathered in friendly groups for refreshments.

Want PC Policies Told New Canadians

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Delegates of the Western Ontario Progressive Conservative Women's Association annual meeting Wednesday passed a resolution that the party form "a definite program for thoroughly familiarizing all New Canadians with the party's policies."

The resolution asked that party literature and other "be made continuously available in all languages required."

Delegates said that immigrants require education concerning the political parties in Canada and it is the responsibility of the several parties to provide them with political education.

Mrs. W. H. Hughes of Waterloo was elected president of the association for 1954.

SAYS INCREASE NEEDED

OTTAWA (CP)—A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, Wednesday said Canada's judges should have a pay increase. The head of the 775,000-member labor body said that judges' salaries have not kept up with the cost of living.

Common Sense Standards Of Raising Children Favored

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Mothers have been badgered and bewildered too long by conflicting theories of child psychology, says Elisabeth Logan Davis, a New Jersey minister's wife and author of the new book, "Mothers of America."

In research on the lives of the mothers of famous people described in her book Mrs. Davis discovered that most of them had several things in common: Strict discipline, deep religious beliefs and not much money. She believes it is time for mothers to get back to some of the old common sense standards of child raising, and forget much of the advice that has been ladled out of them in the last 25 years.

"Today's mothers are too prone to depend on the school to teach discipline, the Sunday school to teach religion and the community to supply recreation," she said in an interview. "But I don't believe they don't enjoy their children's companionship or it's simply because many of them lack confidence in their own ability to teach these things."

Mrs. Davis has little use for the so - called "progressive schools whose theory was that children should be allowed to express themselves—to prevent future frustrations. Says Mrs. Davis:

"Don't worry about frustrating your child by making him behave. A few frustrations are good for him. He's going to have to meet them in adult life, anyway."

In addition to helping her mother-in-law and writing various magazine articles and plays, Mrs. Davis has raised two daughters—successfully, she believes. They are Anne Logan Davis, doctor of internal medicine at Bellevue Hospital, and Mrs. Theodore Goodman, wife of an army captain, mother of two children and a short story writer.

JUBILEE E.A.

The May meeting of the Jubilee Evening Auxiliary of Bridge Street United Church was held on Tuesday evening preceded by a splendid supper served by the group, headed by Mrs. Knowlton.

The president, Mrs. L. Jones, welcomed visitors and conducted the business part of the meeting.

Mrs. Tindale was in charge of the worship service, Mrs. Hodgson read from the Scriptures.

The final chapters of the study book "Forever the Sun," were given by Mrs. Jones. In summarizing the final chapters, she stated that "we can do much to help Christianity in our own backyard. In our country there are many beautiful churches. On the other hand, let us not forget that there are many, many miles where no church exists. In this respect, our Christianity has failed, as well as our home missions." She stressed the necessity for churches and missions in China, Africa, and Europe."

Mrs. Jones closed by stating that men need justice and spiritual guidance by which Jesus is the only answer.

"Ma & Pa's" Newest Is A Hilarious "Kettle" of Fun

"Ma and Pa Kettle at Home" brings the whole hilarious Kettle clan back to the old homestead, and the result is everything that most ardent fans could ask for. The newest in the ever-popular series of Universal-International comedies, now showing at the McCarthy Theatre, puts Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride in charge of an even more generous allotment of heart and hilarity than ever before.

The basic theme of this Kettle special sets the story underway at once and keeps it moving at a merry pace. Son Elwin wins an essay contest which puts the Kettle acres in a model farm contest. If this isn't funny enough to start with, the announcement that the contest judge is due to inspect the place sends Ma and Pa, the assorted Kettle brood, and the ever-faithful Indians, Crowbar and Geoduck, hurrying and scurrying to patch up the place.

Arrival of contest judge, hypochondriac Alan Mowbray, carries the funny-business to even greater heights as Mowbray come to grips with pigs, goats, frogs and other livestock—all endowed with the characteristic Kettle unpredictability. When the farm comes apart at the seams on a rainy day, it seems as though the Kettles are doomed. But never fear, Ma and Pa still have a few tricks up their sleeves—involving an Indian rain dance and Santa Claus among other developments.

Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride are as completely "Ma and Pa Kettle" that an estimate of their performance is pointless. They are their own trademarks—and perfect at every move. Alice Kelley, the girl next door, and Brett Halsey, as the winner of the Kettle farm, are refreshing with a note of young love. Alan Mowbray, of course, is an unsurpassable choice as the harassed contest-judge whose basic mistake is trying to carry big-city comforts with him to the Kettle farm.

Charles Lamont, one of Hollywood's top comedy directors, has given the large Kettle audience a merry run for its money. Here is laughter that will shake every rafter!

"Ma & Pa" Return To Old Homestead

The hilarious Kettle family returns to the battered old homestead in "Ma and Pa Kettle At Home," which co-stars Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride.

The latest Kettle escapades begin when son Elwin's essay wins consideration for the Kettle home as a model farm and lands Ma and Pa and their brood to their ill-starred attempts to make the place live up to Elwin's description.

Cast in important feature roles in "Ma and Pa Kettle at Home" are Alice Kelley, Brett Halsey, Alan Mowbray and Irving Bacon. Charles Lamont directed and Richard Wilson produced.

MORE UNEMPLOYED

MONTREAL (CP) — An unemployment insurance commission report disclosed Wednesday some 30,000 men and 13,866 women were idle in the Montreal area at the end of April compared with 22,000 men and 6,000 women in April 1953.

Says Letter Not True Copy of One Written Earlier by FBI Head

WASHINGTON (AP)—A committee counsel yesterday quoted FBI director J. Edgar Hoover as saying the letter produced Tuesday by Senator Joseph McCarthy, was not a true copy of one written by Hoover to the army on Jan. 26, 1951.

Robert A. Collier, a member of counsel for the Senate hearings into the McCarthy-army row, testified Hoover told him neither Hoover nor the FBI ever sent the army a communication identical to the one brought out by McCarthy.

McCarthy said Tuesday the letter was from Hoover to Maj.-Gen. A. R. Bolling, then chief of army intelligence. The senator, questioning Army Secretary Robert Stevens, said the purported letter was one of a series of FBI warnings to the army about possible subversion at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

McCarthy contended that the army had ignored the warnings until the McCarran sub-committee started its investigation of alleged subversion at Monmouth.

ILLEGAL, COUNSEL HINTS

When McCarthy produced the purported letter marked "personal and confidential," army counsel Joseph N. Welch said McCarthy's possession of the paper appeared improper and perhaps illegal.

Ray Jenkins, special counsel for the Senate inquiry into the McCarthy-army controversy, was instructed to see whether Hoover could identify the letter and advise whether it should be made public.

Jenkins gave that assignment to Collier, who today recounted his conference with Hoover.

The letter raised a lot of questions—including one from Senator John McClellan (Dem., Ark.) as to whether "someone has violated the law."

Collier said Hoover told him: "This letter produced yesterday is not a carbon copy or copy of any communication prepared or sent by the FBI to Gen. Bolling Jan. 26, 1951 or any other date."

SIMILAR TO FBI REPORT

However, Collier went on, Hoover said the language in the letter produced by McCarthy was similar in substance and in some parts as identical to the language in a 12-page FBI document on the same subject and dated Jan. 26, 1951.

He said Hoover felt that the FBI memorandum should not be made public without permission of Attorney-General Herbert Brownell.

TO BAR OPERATIONS

COPENHAGEN (AP)—A justice ministry spokesman said Wednesday Denmark intends to bar any more Americans coming to this country for spy operations. His statement was prompted by a dispatch from San Francisco Tuesday reporting a decision of John Brechinridge, a 50-year-old millionaire, to visit Denmark in August "to be transformed into Catherine Calbell."

Fortress Commander Never Doubts Ability of French to Hold Post

By LARRY ALLEN

SAIGON (AP) — A gallant French Army officer sits in a rain soaked bunker on the plain of Dien Bien Phu, seeking the key to victory in the darkest hour of his career.

Brig. - Gen. Count Christian Marie Fernand de la Croix de Castries, commander of the little pot-shaped valley position, is surrounded by tens of thousands of Communist-led Vietminh troops. They are trying to strangle his isolated fortress. The grip has been tightening for days.

Against them stand about 14,000 French, North African, Foreign Legion and Viet Namese troops, crowded into a circle less than a mile in diameter.

In the hands of the six-foot de Castries, a champion horseman who wears a red Africa cavalry cap instead of a steel helmet, is the decision whether they—and he—will leave the position alive.

"He was meant to be a medieval knight, a cavalier in mail and armor," said one of his intimates recently. "Failing that, he did the next best thing—he became a cavalryman."

TRAP BACKFIRED

Jacqueline, his tall blonde second wife, lives in Hanoi—187 miles from the battle—and talks to him by radio-telephone every day at noon.

"You know," his friend says, "the general has never doubted even for a moment the possibility of holding Dien Bien Phu. If it falls it will be because the defenders have died to the last man, destroying with them most of the Vietminh."

Dien Bien Phu was designed as a trap to lure the Vietminh into open battle. Now the French themselves are trapped.

De Castries' only lifeline is through the sky. Everything he uses is parachuted in.

The situation must remind de Castries of his experience in the battle of France. Tanks and dive-bombers supported the 2,000 Germans who surrounded him and his 60 men in 1940. After three days of fighting he tried a break-out, was wounded and taken prisoner. He made three unsuccessful attempts to escape, succeeded on the fourth try, and two years later was fighting on the Garigliano in Italy.

De Castries was born in Paris Aug. 11, 1902 to a family of the French nobility—and to the cavalry. One of his ancestors was the Marquis Charles de Castries, who fought under Louis XV, became minister of the navy and went into exile with Louis XVIII.

CHAMPION HORSEMAN

Young de Castries entered the cavalry school at Saumur. One day he saw a beautiful horse galloping in the pastures of a colonel's estate. The animal suddenly made a prodigious leap, clearing a hedge more than six feet high. De Castries had to have that horse. In 1933 he took the unknown jumper—named Vol au Vent—over the barrier to a world record jump of 2.28 metres (7 feet 10 inches).

De Castries has carried over several habits from his jumping days. Once is to brandish a riding crop wherever he goes. Another is to chew gum. He chews while riding and he chews when the going in battle is toughest.

In his younger days, he valiantly upheld the cavalry tradition of charm. Well-built, handsome in a rugged way, his soft brown eyes peering from under big black eyebrows, he was surrounded by the Paris beauties of his time.

CAPTURED GERMAN PRINCE

He married first outside his exclusive circle and the marriage ended in divorce. His second wife comes from a noble family.

In the Second World War, he took part in the capture of Karlsruhe and Pforzheim, the key to the Black forest. He captured the German crown prince.

He went to Indo-China in 1946 and stayed for 2½ years to command the Spahis, an African light cavalry unit whose cap he still likes to wear. It was with the Spahis that he was wounded for the third time and received his 18th citation for valor. He returned to Indo-China for a second tour of duty after a year in France.

Republican Split Said Cause Of Geneva 'Defeat'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa told a national Democratic conference today that the United States suffered "an astounding and unprecedented reversal" at the Geneva conference on the question of Indo-China. He blamed it on what he called a "split" Republican administration lacking a foreign policy.

He declared in a prepared address that the 1932 election put one group of Republicans in charge of the executive branch of the U.S. government and another group in Congress, and called the "fiasco" at Geneva only the most glaring example of what price the U.S. is paying in the struggle against Communist imperialism.

State Secretary Dulles said after his return from Geneva Wednesday that the talks are going about as anticipated, and that he knows of nothing that has happened to justify an interpretation that the U.S. has suffered a defeat.

UNQUALIFIED FAITH

President Eisenhower told his press conference he has unqualified faith in Dulles, and he said no one loses a battle while the battle is still going on.

Gillette, a Democratic member of the Senate foreign relations committee, said the country will live to regret the administration's decision not to use the United Nations machinery to halt the Indo-China war.

"We could have hauled the Red aggressor before the bar of world opinion," he said, "but we preferred to revert to outworn methods of military intervention. . . .

"While the whole world was watching, the administration marched straight up the hill to Geneva, then turned around and marched right down again."

NO INDO-CHINA POLICY

The explanation was to be found in the fact that there was no policy for Indo-China and no firm basis for a policy if one had been found on which the Republicans could agree."

Dulles was quoted by informed sources Wednesday night as having told a group of 24 members of Congress, both Republican and Democrat, that the U. S. has no present plans to send any forces into the Indo-China war. Neither Dulles nor the legislators commented afterward.

Dulles was said to have reported that Eisenhower regards Indo-China as a far worse place to involve U.S. forces than Korea. He was also reported to have said he plans to go ahead with his plans for "united action" to protect Southeast Asia even if Britain balks, as she has done pending the Geneva talks. He was represented as saying, however, that he thinks Britain eventually will go along.

New Jewelry Store Displays Advanced Trend in Design

Ed Logan, jeweller, opens one of the city's most modern and most smartly styled stores at 21 Bridge St. East, on Friday at 10.00 a.m.

From front to back a complete line of quality merchandise will be housed in a pleasantly comfortable atmosphere that reflects the most advanced trends in store design, color combinations and display features.

A full-length glass door and a full-width window framed in stainless steel picture window framing and dark green vitrolite shows off the store's attractive interior.

Walls and ceiling are shrimp-colored while the rear wall is a pink slatted wooden curtain with a dark green perforated panel across it at eye level. Leaf green panels with spot shelves are ranged along the walls above the wall counters which are finished in warm brown natural veneer. The floor is composed of large squares of salmon and two-toned ivory colored tiles.

The smartly styled show cases are finished in the same shade of warm brown wood with black angled, cast iron legs. Just inside the main door is a tall, glass-enclosed cabinet for hollow ware silver. Curving tables for mid-floor displays are styled in the same fashion.

A separate room for displaying diamonds is located at the rear of the store. At the rear of the store is a special display counter for crystal and glass with fluorescent lighting from beneath and bullet-type spotlighting from above.

A special flatware display has been provided alongside the watch-maintenance and repair department.

The spacious interior as well as the window showcase is lighted by bullet-type, drop-styled spotlights. A large, efficiently laid out stockroom is provided at the rear of the store.

Decoration of the new store was done by Walter F. MacCormack.

The complete watch and jewellery repair department will be under the management of Douglas Jones, while costume jewelry and other departments will be under the management of Miss Spracklett, both of whom were associated with Angus McFee Jewellers for a number of years.

Ed Logan, owner and manager of the new firm, has a lifetime of experience in the jewelry business. He came to Belleville from the Toronto diamond firm of Kent's Ltd., and for the past 24 years was manager of Angus McFee Jewellers.

Mr. Logan is a past president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club and an ex-alderman, serving on the city council for three years—1938, '39 and '40. He is a past president of the Ontario Jewellers' Association and for two years served on the executive of the Canadian Jewellers' Association. He was a vice-president of the former Belleville Retail Merchants' Association. He is married with one son and one daughter.

STIRLING

Over 100 Ministers, Laymen, Attend Presbytery at St. Paul's

By MRS. PERCY MACMULLEN

On Tuesday over 100 ministers, laymen and corresponding members of the Belleville Presbytery convened in St. Paul's historic United Church, Stirling, in their centennial year.

The edifice was a bower of spring blooms with a bouquet of hepatica on the chairman's table.

Rev. L. S. Throop, chairman of Presbytery, presided and Rev. F. P. Towriss conducted the devotional using that old favorite, "Faith of Our Fathers" with Mrs. A. E. Baker officiating at the organ. Rev. L. Throop read Psalm 84, "Blessed is the man that trusteth in Thee."

Rev. K. J. Crawford, secretary, read the constitution of the court and the outline of the day's agenda, and the chairman duly opened the Presbytery.

Rev. A. C. McCallum, of Trenton, conducted a brief memorial service concerning the death of Rev. M. S. Lehigh, of Picton, and referred to his many years of service and faithful ministry and the Rev. A. E. Baker gave an interessory prayer on behalf of the widow and family.

Several names of corresponding members were added to the day's curriculum.

Various items of business ensued followed by the call of the ministerial roll.

Mr. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's, extended greetings to the Presbytery in this historic year of centennial celebrations.

The general council business was discussed and two names submitted for nomination as general secretary, that of Rev. C. M. Nicholson and Rev. James A. Fraser. Rev. L. S. Throop was honored with a nomination to attend general council, on behalf of the ministers, and Mr. E. Tummon, on behalf of the laymen.

A list of alternates was appointed to attend conference in the event some were needed.

Rev. H. C. Wolfrim, M.A., B.D., Lakefield, Ontario, was the nominee for president of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Rev. C. D. McLellan and Rev. G. A. Puttenham were nominated as representatives on the Settlement committee.

These men were given presbytery power to fill the vacancies with lay or student supplies as they think best.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The Rev. George Minielly, B.A., of Trenton, was honored as chairman of the presbytery, with Rev. K. J. Crawford, of Marmora, re-elected as secretary and Mr. Harold C. Martin, Stirling, re-elected as treasurer.

The pastoral relations committee will be composed of Rev. Alfred Poulter as chairman, the Rev. C. D. McLellan, and Mr. E. Tummon. The chairman and secretary of presbytery will arrange the inductions.

Following the reading of communications the various committees held brief meetings.

The morning session closed with a solemn service which opened with "Lord of the Living Harvest", Rev. Mr. Throop spoke impressively and voiced the sorrowfulness of a Christian's calling to full time service in the Christian church. Mr. George Wright and Mr. Myron Hawley were the two candidates recommended for the ministry.

St. Paul's W.A. under the leadership of Mrs. Edwin Warren and her committee, served a sumptuous hot dinner and were extended a word of thanks for their efforts, after which greetings were received from Mrs. A. Dawson, of Lennox and Addington and Mrs. Arthur Tyrrel, of Hastings and Prince Edward Women's Associations. These women gave a brief glimpse of the work of their sections.

Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, of Tweed, pictured the Woman's Missionary Society and all that it accomplished last year.

Mr. Mac Cameron, newly elected president of Young People's Unions, made a strong plea for furthering and strengthening of the program for youth.—All sang "Blest Be the Tie", and committee meetings were resumed.

Mr. E. Tummon conducted the afternoon devotional, based on "Life Demands My Life; My All", reading Acts 4: 1-13.

The Home Missions Committee convener gave a full report and a lively discussion followed.

In the east Belleville area, a recent survey shows 179 families comprising 388 adults; and 330 children without a United church connection. A committee was appointed to interview officials of the Queen Elizabeth public school in Belleville, and request the use of that building for Sunday School and reading services. The second choice was St. Joseph's Catholic school. The presbytery plans to build in that area some time in the future. A supervising committee for this department of work was also appointed. The report of church property enlightened the group on various plans of this department of church work.

A full report of special contributions to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, which included "Food for the World's Hungry", was presented and it was stressed that all appointments remit their money to Toronto, monthly. It was recommended that a full set of M. and M. information be forwarded from the Toronto office to each convener of this work. The convener was authorized to write each appointment, telling them the amount of their allocation. It was decided that a special Sunday be set apart each year for M. and M. work.

The Rev. Ray Rowley was appointed as M. and M. convener as Rev. G. J. Minielly has held this office for the past few years.

COLLEGES-STUDENTS.

Rev. H. Beare reported for colleges and students, and recommended that a supper meeting be held in connection with presbytery for the candidates some time after September 28, in Odessa.

Rev. L. S. Throop offered a prayer of thankfulness for the life of Rev. E. W. Rowland, who is at present ill at his home in Peterborough.

Rev. C. D. McLellan presented a lengthy report on the work of the pastoral relations committee and this included the release of Rev. A. E. Baker to take a charge at Smoking Rock Falls, in Cochrane Presbytery, in Toronto conference.

Rev. J. P. Lane expressed a vote of thankfulness for the work of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Baker, and in eloquent words he paid tribute to their services. He said the members of Belleville presbytery hope and pray that the service of Mr. and Mrs. Baker in their new charge will be filled with happiness and fruitfulness.

The Rev. Duncan McTavish also expressed good wishes and the Bakers were given an ovation, to which Mr. Baker replied, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Baker, and spoke of the happy associations in Belleville Presbytery.

Rev. K. J. Crawford gave a worthwhile statistical report as follows: 1953 has been a year of increased gain for the church with increases in almost all phases, except in number of ministers on the presbytery roll. There are four less ministers in 1953 and one new pastoral charge at Trenton, north.

The official boards have gained by 23 elders, 56 stewards, and 90 other members, over 400 families were accepted into church membership with a total now of 9,423 active and 2,722 inactive families. There are 27,561 persons reported under United Church oversight in the area of Belleville presbytery. There are 145 Sunday Schools with a membership of 11,902.

W.M.S. MEMBERSHIP

The W.M.S. has a total membership of 6,486 and the W.A. 4,906.

There are 45 men's organizations with 373 members. He reported 7,201 people who use weekly offering envelopes with about half that number contributing to M. and M. Fund.

The in-active families are a great challenge to the church, and there is a great need for evangelism in this department of the church.

It was stressed that M. and M. work is lagging behind and that there were too many through the week organizations, which give little or nothing to the mission-ary work of the church. On the whole, 1953 was one of increase in the work of the church, and indicates that we are going forward very slowly but let us hope and pray that we will advance and progress in this year of our Lord 1954.

This report was received and filed and some time spent in discussion.

EVANGELISTIC REPORT

The report of the Evangelistic committee touched on many items in the life of the church. It was felt that the Templeton Mission had presented a great challenge and that every effort should be put forth to enlist new members.

It was also thought that more time should be allowed at presbytery for discussion of this vital subject.

Special tribute was paid to all the lay workers in Sidney township who had given so much free time and effort in the recent liquor vote.

Thanks were also expressed to all those church workers who are continuing the fight to keep the Lord's Day as one of rest and worship.

An excellent report of the Social Service committee was given by the Rev. E. J. Kersey, and this group outlined ways to curb the sale of crime comics and lurid literature.

Committees were appointed to work in this department, and the Rev. R. S. Bonsteel spoke briefly on the need of more boys' work.

Mr. Tummon presented the Lay Association work when several rallies were held during the year at various places. Mr. Baker gave a comprehensive report of the pension set-up, and the Rev. R. W. T. Middleton gave a report of the church property committee, where grants and loans are being requested to provide new church buildings.

The presbytery adjourned to meet at conference in June and Mr. Throop pronounced the benediction.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today in school Miss Kitty started to ask questions in geogrify and didn't get anything but wrong answers, and she said, I'm afraid this class isn't applying itself to homework in a very bole hearted way. In other words you are allowing outside influences to divert your attention. Now for instants do any of you think it is sensible to study your lessons at the same time the radio is turned on? she said.

Which everybody raised their hands, meening we all thought so, and Miss Kitty said, Oh dear, now can anybody really name one single reason why it is sensible to try to study while the radio is blaring in your ears? Well, Charles? she said.

Meening Puds Simkins waving his hand, and Puds said, You can never tell when you are going to hear some unexpected information on the radio that may help you in case it ever tems out to be useful.

Can you recall a single item of sutch a starteling nature Miss Kitty said, and Puds said, No mam.

Very well, that disposes of the Miss Kitty said, and I waved my hand, saying If you try to study when everything around you is too quiet, you're libel to think of ghosts and things, and that's bad for your nerves.

Nothing is verse for the nerves than trying to attend to 2 things at tne same time, Miss Kitty said. Well, Howerd? she said.

Meening Dopey Shorty Judge waving, and Shorty said, If the radio is going while you are studying, it keeps you from" feeling you're waisting your time.

CAMPBELLFORD

Dump Is Under Discussion By Council Members

CAMPBELLFORD — Matters pertaining to the town dump and its care and garbage collection occupied a large portion of the discussion at the meeting of the Campbellford Town Council on Monday night. All members were present and Mayor Locke presided.

Councillor Rutherford stated that the dump had no sooner been cleaned up than someone has started a fire. The corporation pay sheet revealed that about $500 has been spent on the dump in the past two weeks. Councillors expressed satisfaction in the results achieved at the property and complimented Mr. Rutherford as chairman of the committee on the work done. However, there was a lot of discussion concerning the system of collection and abuse of dumping privileges by the public. The type of vehicle used by the garbage collector was condemned as being unfit to carry garbage without spilling it. Papers and cartons are frequently seen around the streets after they have fallen from the truck. It was decided that the chairman of the property committee confer with Mr. McCoy, the collector, to see if these difficulties could be overcome. He said that no fill had been put in the dump to cover the garbage in a year prior to the last clean-up. It was decided to have Mr. Peake continue to watch the property and assist in its care for the time being.

Mr. Paul O'Sullivan addressed council explaining that the corporation liability insurance is not an accident policy and will pay claims only if the corporation through negligence is liable for damages.

Base Commander Apologizes For Guards' Actions

VANCOUVER (CP)—Wing Cmdr. D. C. S. Macdonald, officer commanding Sea Island RCAF station, has sent letters of apology to four Vancouver newspaper men because they were "not immediately allowed on the base during a $2,000,000 hangar fire last Thursday.

"The guards at the gate had been told to admit no civilians to the station," said the letters, "but unfortunately they did not display very good judgment in preventing newspaper men from entering."

The letters were received Wednesday by photographers George Diack and Roy LeBlanc and reporter John Kirkwood of the Vancouver Sun, and by Johnny McGinnis, photographer, Vancouver News-Herald.

McGinnis charged he had been mistreated by a security officer.

Wing Cmdr. Macdonald is conducting an investigation into the charge and Associate Defence Minister Ralph Campney has ordered a report from Ottawa.

Highways Fraud Trials Delayed Until Fall

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—The special Supreme Court assizes, which had been scheduled for May 31, for the trial of men accused in the Ontario highways irregularities cases have been cancelled and set over until the fall, it was learned here Wednesday.

Lawyers here said they have been informed of the cancellation by court registrar Charles W. Smith of Toronto.

The charges, laid against five men including Arthur M. Mills, 60-year-old former divisional engineer with the Ontario department of highways, will be heard at the fall sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario for Thunder Bay district.

Mr. Smith said "it has been agreed by the counsel concerned that this trial cannot be proceeded with on May 31."

Niagara Falls' Voters Say No In Liquor Vote

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The first Ontario city to vote on cocktail lounges since the provincial liquor licence act of 1946 said "no" Wednesday.

More than 50 per cent of the persons who voted were in favor of the liquor sales but it wasn't enough. A "yes" vote of 60 per cent of the voters was needed to pass the referendum.

The vote in this city of 22,000 persons was regarded as a test for Ontario cities which have a population of less than 50,000. The provincial Liquor Licence Act requires all cities with a population of less than 50,000 to hold a vote before applying for liquor lounges. Only 13,911 persons were eligible to vote here and slightly more than half of these cast ballots. On dining lounges, 4,220 voted in favor and 3,459 against. Ballots favoring the sale received 54.9 per cent of the vote.

On the question of selling liquor by the glass, 4,175 voted yes and 3,218 no. The vote was 54.27 per cent in favor.

Supporters of the lounges said in their campaign that millions of tourist dollars cross the Niagara river and are spent in bars and taverns in the United States. They said local residents also spend money there as well as in boiling establishments here.

Opposition came from persons who said a new class of drinkers would write from the new sources of liquor if the referendum were passed.

MYSTERY SOLVED

TORONTO (CP)—The mystery of a four-foot alligator found Sunday night wandering here was solved Wednesday. It seems the 30-pound 'ator is a refugee from a carnival. The T. Green Amusement Company said its star performer had escaped.

Vietminh Troops Regrouped But No Assault Launched Yet On Fort's Gallant Garrison

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI (AP) — Vietminh rebel troops crashing in on Dien Bien Phu regrouped and bolstered their attack positions early today, but gave no indication when they would unleash their next massive assault on the French Union Indo-China fortress.

French army headquarters reported the critical hours of darkness Wednesday night passed "calmly" for the garrison troops stubbornly clinging to the core of the fortress defences. The maze of trenches, dugouts and bunkers now is less than five-eighths of a mile across.

It was the second night in a row without ground action.

Rebel artillery and mortars, however, kept up incessant pounding of French positions. Hitting back, French guns lobbed shells into enemy positions in the encircling hills.

PLANES HELP FRENCH

French fire power was bolstered by planes during a few hours of clear weather Wednesday. The fighters and bombers concentrated their heaviest blows southeast of Dien Bien Phu, attempting to knock out guns bombarding the isolated southernmost stronghold, "Isabelle."

Vietminh soldiers digging trenches in the mud flats around the main French barricades were reported within 50 yards—grenade-hurling distance—of the outer barbed-wire entanglements. Enemy spearheads in one sector were only 600 yards from the headquarters of Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries, the French said.

The Vietminh radio, heard in Hong Kong, claimed the rebels had hacked their way to within 200 feet of the command post. The Communist radio admitted the attackers had to struggle hard for each foot of new ground but claimed the fighting had been a "chain of victories."

French pilots in American-supplied Flying Boxcars and C-47 Dakota transports braved blinding tropical rains and sheets of rebel anti-aircraft fire to drop more paratroops and supplies to the defenders.

U. S. PILOTS KEPT HIGH

From safer air above them, American civilian pilots also plummeted down tons of supplies on the handkerchief-sized dropping zone, now 1,000 feet square. To protect the Americans they have hired, the French have ordered them to stay at 10,000 feet over Dien Bien Phu, out of anti-aircraft fire.

Six huge U. S. Air Force Globemasters are on their way from southern France with 450 critically-needed French army and air force technicians. The long-distance airlift is the second big American ferrying job for the French in three weeks.

Alleged Collaborator Made Canadian Citizen

OTTAWA (CP) — A former French national accused of being an inspector in Hitler's storm troops during the Second World War has been granted Canadian citizenship.

The information was contained in a return tabled Wednesday in the Commons by Citizenship Minister Harris for Alistair Stewart (CCF-Winnipeg North).

The return said Canadian citizenship has been granted to Dr. Michel Seigneur, who was convicted by a French court of collaborating with the Germans and sentenced to death in absentia.

Mr. Stewart charges that Seigneur during the last war was an inspector in "S.S. Waffen S.S., the German storm troopers or Blackshirts.

NOTED EDITOR RETIRES

WASHINGTON (AP)—The man who headed the National Geographic Society since 1920 and edited its magazine since 1899, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, retired Wednesday at 76. It was under Grosvenor that the National Geographic Magazine grew from a struggling publication to one of world note.

More Girls Than Boys Classified As Sex Offenders

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 10-year study of juvenile delinquents in Toronto has shown about four times as many girls as boys classified as sex offenders on a percentage basis.

In a paper presented before the American Psychiatric Association here, Dr. J. D. Atcheson, director of the Toronto juvenile court clinic, and Dr. D. C. Williams, professor of psychology at the University of Toronto, said they had studied 283 sex offence cases, involving 116 boys and 167 girls, in the 10-year period.

They said 5.8 per cent of the boys and 34.5 per cent of the girls were involved in sex behavior offences.

Their report added that a similar study held in the United States in 1930 showed similar results with two per cent of the male and 15 per cent of the female juvenile delinquents involved in sex offences.

Most of the sex offenders, they said, really were emotionally sick, particularly the males.

While the girls sometimes were promiscuous in attempts to gain status or affection, the male offenders generally were driven by sex curiosity.

The paper concluded that the results of the study indicated the need for in-patient diagnostic centres for children.

Canada to Spend 3 Billion In Next 7 Years on Aircraft

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department plans to spend $3,180,000,000 in the next seven years for aircraft.

This amount will represent roughly 40 per cent of the total defence budget for the years 1954 to 1961, officials said Wednesday, and will reflect Canadian concern with continental defence.

Equipping the RCAF with the proper fighter aircraft is a slow and painstaking job. And it never ends because in this supersonic age planes become obsolete almost as soon as they are in service.

That is why the defence department must plan for aircraft seven or eight years ahead.

The air force takes delivery of about 800 planes a year from Canadian manufacturers, including all types.

The RCAF, with a current strength of 45,000, has trained 7,000 aircrew in the last four years, including more than 2,500 from other North Atlantic Treaty countries.

The air force now is near its planned strength both in total numbers and squadrons. Number of operational squadrons in Canada is secret.

GIFT FROM CANADA

LONDON (CP)—Dr. A. H. O'Neil general secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada, Wednesday presented a cheque for £19,000 to the parent organization at the 150th annual meeting here.

Strike Curtails TV Programs From Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Television station WHAM-TV planned a curtailed schedule today as a result of a strike of broadcast engineers and technicians, but radio station WHAM prepared to operate as usual.

About 40 members of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians CIO struck Wednesday night in a contract dispute over wages and other benefits, but the stations remained on the air. Pickets were posted.

William A. Fay, manager of the stations, said the supervisory personnel would operate them from 3 p.m. EDT to midnight instead of from the normal 6 a.m. opening.

WI DELEGATES ARRIVE

GUELPH (CP) — Nearly 400 women representing institutes across the province arrived here Wednesday for the sixth annual officers conference of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario. The conference runs until Friday.

Two Men Killed At Wallaceburg

WALLACEBURG, Ont. (CP) — Two men were killed late Wednesday night on Highway 40 north of here.

Dead are Harold Arnold, 25, and Ellis Young, 27, both of Bridden, Ont.

The car in which they were riding crashed into the front of a Shell Oil Company truck, fully loaded with gasoline and driven by Cecil Wilson of Corunna.

Wilson suffered shock and a cut on his face.

Jobless Group Visits Ottawa Seeking Action

OTTAWA (CP)—About 100 men entered the entrance to the Parliament Building Wednesday and lobbied members of the Commons for federal action on unemployment.

The delegation — described by leaders as representing unemployed in different sections of Ontario — was unsuccessful in attempts to meet Prime Minister St. Laurent but saw some other members of various parties.

One leader had a brief meeting with Labor Minister Gregg, giving him briefs declaring that Canada is in the start of a depression and calling for measures such as expanded trade and more public works to boost available jobs.

One member of the delegation said it included some Communists but that largely it consisted of unemployed who got financing for the trip by levies on employed workers at the gates of their plants.

The delegation represented groups at Sudbury, Toronto, Hamilton, Welland, St. Catharines, Port Colborne and Niagara Falls.

TCA and RCAF To Share Costs In Plane Crash

OTTAWA (CP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines and the RCAF will share responsibility for life and property damage in the two-plane collision over Moose Jaw, Sask., April 8 that cost 37 lives.

The mid-air crash, Canada's worst flying accident, has resulted in a joint inquiry by civilian and military authorities that will attempt to ascertain whether Canadian flying regulations, particularly those bearing on the Moose Jaw disaster, should be tightened.

The announcement came Wednesday from Trade Minister Howe when he gave the Commons an interim report on incomplete investigations into the crash by the transport department, TCA and RCAF. He indicated the TCA North Star had the right-of-way over the air force Harvard trainer, but that did not relieve the air liner's pilot of the responsibility of keeping a lookout to avoid collision.

Mr. Howe, who reports to Parliament for TCA, said the publicly-owned air line has assumed responsibility for claims arising out of the death of the 35 passengers aboard the North Star. The air force would settle damages for life and property on the ground.

CIVILIAN INQUIRY

Informants said the civilian end of the air-regulations inquiry will be handled by the government's air transport board; the service section by the RCAF.

Mr. Howe said Canadian policy has been to avoid unnecessary flying restrictions, particularly in good visibility. Canadian restrictions, however, were constantly reviewed and in some cases were more rigorous than those of other countries.

Detailing investigations into the Moose Jaw collision, he said the two aircraft were on converging courses. The Harvard knifed into the left wing of the North Star and both plunged to earth.

Houses were destroyed by falling wreckage. A cleaning woman was believed to death in one, The Harvard pilot also died.

Not Excited At Becoming Triple Millionaire

TORONTO (CP) — Patrick Ballentine, 28-year-old advertising man who says he doesn't like work, is not excited at becoming a triple millionaire.

Under the estate of his late west coast lumber magnate father, Edward Blake Ballentine, he inherits $3,000,000. But apart from the possibility of moving to Vancouver "nothing's any different than it was" he said in an interview.

He and his wife, formerly Helen Belfry, of Toronto, are selling their bungalow here but the future, as Pat sees it, is rather vague.

"I may open a public relations firm in Vancouver," he said, "but I don't work. Frankly, I don't believe in it."

In that respect, Mr. Ballentine is unlike his father who, he says, was born in Hamilton and left for Vancouver in 1922 where he became one of the original directors of the H. R. MacMillan Export Co.—now MacMillan and Bloedel, Ltd.—largest lumber firm in the Commonwealth.

SKEWED IN NAVY

The new millionaire was born in Toronto, and served 2½ years in a naval office.

Four years ago he came to Toronto as an advertising executive in a company of which his father was president and later admitted he spent less time at his desk than any other ad man in the city.

Until now, he has been prohibited from working in his father's lumber company because of a fault in figure.

He is principal heir to his father's $3,218,148 estate and will receive nearly all the money after government succession duties have been subtracted.

WHAT ON EARTH . . .

DARTMOUTH, Mass. (AP)—John Leinos stopped his car abruptly Tuesday night when he saw what appeared to be a man hanging from a tree. Looking closer, he found it was the remains of a 200-pound seal swinging from a rope. Police had no explanation.

Comedian Terms Statement Made 'Ridiculas'

TORONTO (CP) — Comedian Frank Shuster has termed "ridiculous" a statement by Hiram McCallum, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, that top Canadian entertainers are "afraid of live audiences."

"That's a silly remark," said Mr. Shuster of the team of "Wayne and Shuster," which turned down a CNE offer to headline a show.

"Crowds are our last problem. The real reason we turned down the job . . . is quite different than Mr. McCallum's version."

"They were in a spot and called on us. Frankly we didn't have enough time to prepare a good show and we knew they wouldn't have paid us as headliners."

Mr. McCallum, speaking to a Belleville service club Tuesday, said, "One reason the CNE does not hire Canadians to headline the grandstand show is that established radio and television stars are afraid to work in front of a live audience and possibly destroy what they have built up on radio and TV."

He referred to two of Canada's highest paid radio comedians who "laughed at us when they were approached to headline the grandstand show."

C.N.R. Reports Lower Earnings

MONTREAL. — Continuing reduced traffic on Canadian railways is reflected in lower earnings by the Canadian National Railways for March, and in the aggregate figures for the first three months of the year as compared with last year.

Gross operating revenues in March for the entire system amounted to $35,883,000, a decrease of $4,527,000 compared with the corresponding month of 1953. Operating expenses totalled $32,951,000 this year. Last year they were $36,589,000.

Figures for the first quarter show a drop in revenues of $12,102,000 and a reduction on operating expenses of $11,750,000. Net revenue result is a deficit of $2,469,000 for this year compared with a deficit of $2,116,000 for 1953.

Police Opening Anti-Speed Drive On Highways

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario provincial police have begun an extensive anti - speeder campaign aimed at cutting the Ontario traffic death toll which last year reached an all-time high.

Deputy commissioner William H. Lougheed said Ontario's 50-mile an hour limit will be "strictly enforced," on highways, including super highways where motorists have been travelling at speeds as high as "70 miles an hour."

Provincial police are patrolling the Queen Elizabeth way between Toronto and Burlington, the Barrie highway and highway 2 and 5. Motorists violating the 50-mile limit now are being warned only.

Last year's death toll is the province was 1,062 an increase of 72 over 1952.

Highway patrols are going out earlier and with greater regularity. The campaign will be extended to other areas of the province where there is heavy traffic volume, the deputy commissioner said.

500,000 TICKETS FOR SALE

Sammy Rosen, 35-year-old former circus barker, is ticket director for the British Empire Games in Vancouver July 30-Aug. 7. From his Vancouver office, lined with 500,000 tickets, Rosen is mailing tickets around the world. He handled all ticket mailing in the 1948 London Olympics. (CP Photo).

Ticket Director for BE Games Has 500,000 Seats to Control

By DON MATHESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sammy Rosen has 500,000 tickets lining the walls of his 9-by-12 office, and a system.

Ticket director Rosen, charged with selling tickets to the British Empire Games here July 30-Aug. 7, needs his system. It's a good one.

He can say that he knows where every ticket is at every moment of any day, and why. And he can prove it.

The 35-year-old one-time hockey player, referee, circus barker, television commentator and now spare-time actor handled all ticket mailings in the 1948 London Olympics. More than £2,000,000 worth went out all over the world from his office. It was the first all-advance, all-reserve sale for such an event.

IMPROVED SINCE

Rosen's ticket methods here are identical, except for what he terms "the control book system, which is an improvement." Complicated to explain, but simple to work, it gives Rosen an iron grip on the destiny of every ticket.

He can start at tickets, either sold or unsold, or at any particular seat, day, event, price, name of buyer or even box-office dollar and give all the other information, or combinations, within two minutes.

The control books are locked in a fire-proof safe every night. If every unsold ticket should burn, Rosen could be back in business the next morning. And he wouldn't have to issue a duplicate ticket.

The mail customer is protected. Lost, strayed or stolen tickets can be replaced with tickets cancelling the original.

On the sale itself, it's "first come, first served, no favors."

"But the customer who buys series tickets (every day for the same sport) gets the best seats, and the same seats every day."

PRICES NOT HIGH

A touch of professional pain dulls the usual sparkle in Rosen's eyes when he discusses prices.

"It's my personal opinion that the class of action is going at a very cheap price," he says. "Pricing is very conservative for such an event.

"In the 1952 Olympics, the top for the opening ceremonies was $15. Here the top is $5. Track and field events ranged from $150 to $12 there—here $5 to $1.

"The average price, for average seats for a couple here, for every event they can get to, is only $56."

EASILY LOCATE SEATS

A touch of Rosen is spread throughout the whole games. He designed the tickets, watermarked like a dollar bill, which have a seating plan of the particular stadium they are for on the back. They come in nine colors, one for each sport.

He designed the seating arrangements for the three new sports sites, the 35,000-capacity stadium, 4,000-seat cycle track and the 6,000-seat swimming pool.

Aisles in the stadium are in the middle of the seat section. "It lessens the chances of a person getting lost. If he has to go over more than 15 people to get to the seat, he's in the wrong section. The seat is at least 30 away. So he goes out again and gets in the right section."

Another Rosen design is the combined ticket-and-housing application form. About housing, Rosen says: "We feel we have a responsibility. If the customer purchases tickets by mail and wants accommodation, we will do everything possible to get him a place to stay."

EXPECTS SELL-OUT

In the first week of April, a month's ticket sales totalled about $15,000. The box-office for local sale opened April 22. Ticket sales by mail now total more than $25,000.

With about $400,000 worth to go, Rosen isn't worried.

"At the present rate, once the box-office opens we'll be sold out three or four weeks in advance.

"I've got ticket applications from Alaska to Peru, from Kansas City to California, from Halifax to Victoria. More come in every day."

In another departure, the customer keeps the ticket and the gatekeeper gets the stub. So Rosen designed a folder to hold the tickets, with this legend on the back:

"We hope these tickets will be retained as souvenirs of a very pleasant visit to Vancouver, Canada."

Quebec Aces Hope to Trump Stamps Tonight

CALGARY, (CP) — Quebec Aces, champions of the Quebec Senior Hockey League and the East's hope to take the Edmundh Trophy, will be gunning for a victory tonight when they meet Calgary Stampeders, the Western Hockey League champions, in the second game of a best-of-nine east-west series.

Aces need a victory to tie the series at a game apiece. They dropped the opener Tuesday night by an embarrassing 8-1 score. Third game will be played at Edmonton Saturday night.

Coach Gerry Brown of the Aces shrugged off the initial setback and is looking ahead to better success.

"I'm not making any alibis for the load Red Brown Wednesday night, "but our fellows can play a lot better. All season long we've done our best when our backs have been to the wall and it looks as though it is going to be more of the same in this series."

DIFFERENT TEAM

"Stampeders have a fast, hard-hitting club and fully deserve their win the other night. However, I think they'll find themselves up against a much different team in the next game."

In the Calgary camp, coach Frank Currie was reported having his hands full in an effort to keep his club from becoming too complacent about the eastern representatives.

"Tuesday night's game was no indication of the way this series will go," said Currie. "You can't count this Quebec club out of anything by a long shot."

Batawa Edges Electrics In Soccer Opener

The opening game of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League was played at the Northern Electric sport field last night with Batawa edging Northern 2-1.

The winners led 1-0 at half time with each club scoring one in the last half. Curphey and Hawrulyer were the goal getters for Batawa with Leech marking up the lone Electric counter.

Trenton Merchants were to have been the guest of RCAF Trenton to open the league on Tuesday evening but that game was postponed.

Bisons Loaded With Players

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League today own more players outright than they did during the past season.

The Bisons, who finished the 1953-54 season in first place, but lost their first-round playoff series, ran their list of players owned to 13 Tuesday night.

They traded their rights to Brian Cullen of the St. Catharines TeePees in the Ontario Junior league to the Toronto Maple Leafs.

In return, they received Frank Sullivan and Jackie LeClair of the Leafs' Pittsburg farm in the AHL, and George Blair of Ottawa in the Quebec League.

The Bisons operated most of the past season with three players owned outright. The rest were here on option.

Schmidt Will Replace Patrick

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Lynn Patrick's appointment as manager of the Boston Bruins' National Hockey League team was made official Wednesday by club president Walter A. Brown.

Brown said the confirmation was made at a special meeting of the team's directors.

Patrick will continue as coach until Capt. Milt Schmidt is ready to quit playing and assume the coaching duties. Schmidt said last month he plans to play next season.

Patrick succeeds Arthur H. Ross who will remain until Oct. 1 as vice-president and alternate governor.

Walls Fights Beshore May 17

The bout was originally scheduled two months ago but Walls injured a finger in training.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"SEE HIM"!

You can take Al Weill's word for it, Rocky Marciano will be hearing around the heavyweight throne room, the bauble atop his curly noggin, for the next ten years.

The colorful manager of the heavyweight champion, who tosses around the Queen's English like an amateur juggler starting his first trick, has a piece in the current issue of 'Sport' in which he makes some startling predictions plus some boxfight philosophy, regarding his protege.

"Ain't nobody around that can lick him, not yet," says the wily Weill.

Weill does not believe heavyweight champions should appear more than "twice a year." The heavyweight title, he says, "ain't nuthin' to play around with. You cheapen a thing that looks good which is what the heavyweight title is, when you show it a lot. The champ should fight once a year—maybe twice—no more. If I had him knocking over second-raters—and how many first-raters are there around? —in between the big fights people would complain about it, too. No matter how you cut them, you can't please everyone. I know."

"Nobody can tell me he knows for sure how long a champ's goin' to keep the title. If a champ keeps putting his title up, he's going to get into trouble. That much I know," goes on the fountain of Weill.

He adds: "How I come to think about it is that everybody wants to know how long Rocky Marciano is going to be heavyweight champ. They think I should know because I got the champ. I don't think about it except they ask me. If I've got to say how long, let's put it this way: Rocky's goin' to be champ a long time because he's got pride."

"Now that Rocky is champ I think about how nice it would have been if he had started in boxing when he was 21, instead of 26. If he got started in the 'pro' young as Louis, he would've been a long time on the top. When a champ is young like that, you can figure he's good for ten years on the top. Dempsey had it almost that long. Louis did. I figure Rocky is as good as both of them."

Weill thinks Rocky is like "a mature 25-year-old heavyweight. At that he ought to be at least eight years. He never got hurt in a fight, because he throws them punches where the other guys don't. The other fellas are so busy looking for Rocky's punches they don't have any time to do punching themselves."

• • •

"Long as he's champ of the heavyweight, boxing will have a real top guy," says Weill. "He'll be defending the title and going around showing himself, and they love him wherever he goes. And I want you to know he's goin' to keep on for a long time as champ. Ain't nobody around that can lick him, not yet."

MINOR SOCCER!

Soccer, like other sports in the city, is feeling growing pains in its minor division and the executive of the Bay of Quinte Football Association is going to do something about it.

Increasing popularity of the game among the younger sports minded population has reached the point where action along organized lines must be taken, if the expanding number of young players is to be given the opportunity to play.

With this in mind, President Les Digby has called a general meeting of his association for Friday night at the YMCA, starting at eight o'clock. It is hoped the groundwork of a minor association will be laid.

All those who have given so generously of their time and effort along minor football lines are requested to be present, also those otherwise interested in the sport.

The Federation of International Football Associations is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. The Promotion Committee of Canada proposes to mark the occasion by running a knock-out competition and award all participants a permanent souvenir as a memento of the efforts of the parent body.

GOOD SHOW!

There were approximately twenty-two winners in the Point Anne "Sicaks", which were run off in near-record time in the village club house yesterday noon. Host J. H. Legate, chairman Harry Wasser and team manager Mike Whalen proved hosts par excellence at the testimonial luncheon given the Point Anne softball team of 1953, with the feature being the presentation of handsome blue bench coats to the players, the gift of the Athletic Association.

The sticks were piping hot, the speeches very brief, the atmosphere typically a Point Anne one with plenty of good camaraderie, the tributes short but sincere—and an excellent time was enjoyed by all. Jack Elliott won the prize for the shortest speech "Thank you very much."

Mr. Legate paid fine tribute to his city league triple champions saying they were not only "mighty good athletes but also fine representatives of the company, and good employees." It was an excellent party, one that bids fair to cop the first-place honors in the current "Knife and Fork League."

BATAS OPEN HERE MAY 28

Belleville baseball fandom will get its first taste of 1954 fare at the Fair Grounds here on Saturday, May 29, when the Toronto Hookings will be the official opposition in the inaugural battle of the Viaduct-Ontario Senior Baseball League.

The Batas, however, get their first league experience on May 24 when they will provide the opposition for the Peterborough Petes in the Liftlock City.

Tribe Flinger Shakes Jinx; Porterfield Blanks Chisox As Brooks, Yankees Triumph

By BEN PHLEGAR

Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Lemon looked at his 4-0 record today, doublechecked the date, and began wondering if this is the season he escapes his May jinx.

The 33-year-old Cleveland right-hander, busiest pitcher in the American League in 1952 and 1953, has won at least 20 games in five of the last six years. But May has been his hard-luck month.

Wednesday night, in his first May appearance this season, Lemon coasted to a 7-2 victory over Philadelphia Athletics. It was his fifth start, and his fourth complete game.

Two years ago he won 22 and lost 11. Then the same he dropped five out of six.

Only one game Wednesday, Detroit at Boston in the American League, was postponed because of the elements.

Washington's Bob Porterfield, the American League's biggest winner last season, shaded Bob Keegan of Chicago White Sox 1-0 for his first shutout. Baltimore's Bob Turley lost a two-hitter for the second time this year, 4-2 to New York Yankees.

In the National League Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 6-5, St. Louis 10-3, Milwaukee beat Pittsburgh 7-1, Brooklyn whipped Chicago 7-0 and Sal Maglie of New York Giants was beaten for the first time this morning four, 7-1 by Cincinnati.

The batting duel at Washington was broken up in the eighth inning when Keegan, who had won three in a row, walked Roy Sievers with the bases loaded.

WILDNESS DOWNFALL

Turley's wildness proved his downfall. Baltimore entertained the first visit to Yankee Stadium. The fastballing righthander walked the bases full in the fifth, watched one run come home on a sacrifice squeeze bunt by Eddie Lopat and then, after another walk, served up a fast pitch that Joe Collins blasted for a three-run triple.

Robin Roberts came back 24 hours after being knocked out by the Cardinals and checked them on seven hits. His mates solved five St. Louis pitchers for 13 safeties including four singles by Earl Torgeson.

The Cubs had hit at least one home run in every game this spring until they met up with their old foe-of-many-a-fuss Maryer. The Brooklyn lefthander shut them out on seven, his for his 11th straight over the Chicagoans.

Eddie Mathews hit his first home run for Milwaukee in 21 days and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning in beating the Pirates.

Hank Greenberg hit two home runs for Detroit Tigers against New York Yankees 15 years ago today, in his last game before induction into the United States Army. Hank returned to the Detroit line-up in time to repeat the feat against Chicago White Sox in the second game of the 1945 world series, which Detroit won by four games to three.

Pt. Anne Softball Champs Honored, Presented With Blue Bench Coats

Point Anne through the Canada Cement Company Athletic Association paid fine tribute to its champions of the Belleville District Softball League yesterday noon at a festimonial steak luncheon held in the village club house.

The principal feature of the luncheon was the presentation of handsome blue bench coats, adorned with equally handsome crests, the design of Don Lee of this city, to the members of the championship team, by Mr. J. H. Legate, manager of the company's plant.

Mr. Legate in a brief presentation speech paid tribute to the sportsmanlike qualities of the thrice-champions, in their efforts to bring an Ontario title to their home village.

"You are not only good athletes, but good employees and fine representatives of the Bay of Quinte district," Mr. Legate said. "You are an outstanding example of the fine sportsmen raised in this part of the country. We are justly proud of you."

Mr. Legate said that sport was a great thing to have connected with industry, as it helps things better for communities all over the country.

TRIBUTE TO PRESS, RADIO

He also paid tribute to the press and radio for their efforts in furthering sport in the district. Their influence has been an important factor in the success of recreation here, he said.

Mr. Harry Wasgar acted as chairman, and in a brief congratulatory address said: "We will not have a better team than this one. Their success was mainly due to the fine co-operation that existed among them, a characteristic they learned in the plant. They are good sports all rounded—at work and at play."

Don Lee, executive member of the Quinte Amateur Softball Association brought the greetings and congratulations of that organization.

He outlined in brief, detail some of the features of the recent OASA annual convention held in North Bay. The Belleville and District League, he said, were proud of the sportsmanship of the Point Anne club, both at home and on the road.

Brief addresses were given by Mr. A. O. Drysdale, assistant superintendent of the Canada Cement Company's plant, Jack Devine, CJBQ and Geo. H. Carver of this newspaper.

Mike Whalen, manager of the champions expressed his appreciation and that of the team to the company for their gesture. "We had a great team", he said, "one that co-operated to the fullest extent."

Jack Elliot voiced the appreciation of the players for the gift of the bench coats.

Among the proudest recipients of the coats were Masters Terry Whalen, mascot and Gary Hull, bat boy.

Cocky Russkys Crow Aplenty Over Canada's Puck Defeat; Proves Blessing for Reporter

By BILL BOOS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's wanted hockey championship defeat at Stockholm last March was an unending humiliation to a Canadian reporter in the Soviet Union—and a blessing in disguise.

The blessing was that it gave Russians an opening for conversation with the foreigner after they learned where I was from. It provided the cue for a number of info infrequent chats I had with ordinary folk.

But how they crowed after the Soviet team's Stockholm victory. Even in Leningrad, 1,000 miles from Moscow in central Asia, where hockey is a sport the people never see, that latest Russian championship was taken as confirmation of the "superiority of the Soviet way of life."

Most Russians I met knew that Canada had previously held the world title nine times and the Olympic title six.

MUST BE ON TOP

The Russian hockey victory reveals no new emphasis on sport in the Soviet Union, but it does home one point: Russian athletes are permitted to compete internationally only when they're good enough to win. Then the propaganda possibilities are limitless, the Communist regime.

This is not a criticism on the sportsmanship of the athletes as far as I know, they play cleanly and fairly.

Even when international matches are played in Russia, the Soviet visitors have little opportunity to meet their Russian competitors socially.

The Russians are hospitable in a formal way and arrange visits to famous places like the Kremlin and the Bolshoi Theatre. But when it comes time for a make-or-break deal logs, the limit is to arrange meals which Soviet athletes and sports and other officials attend. A suggestion that the gathering break into pairs or groups would be ignored.

A Swedish hockey team visited Moscow during the New Year's season. While a few diplomats and I sat in the Metropole Hotel restaurant on New Year's Eve, the Swedes were in a private dining room with a balcony overlooking the main floor.

DANCING DIENDO

I motioned to three to join us. They were not allowed in until after I met them at the door and interceded on their behalf. And they weren't able to win a dance from a Russian girl all evening.

Sport is organized in schools and universities, in offices and industry in the armed services, in the "palaces of culture" where young people spend leisure.

"Amateur" sport probably exists only in the educational institutions.

Elsewhere athletes get jobs which enable them to devote almost full time to sport. The Red Army ice hockey team, for instance, plays soccer all summer and fall.

MEDICAL ADVICE

A specialized branch of the state medicine system deals with athletes. On the staff of each district clinic is a physical culture specialist who watches the health of all athletes participating in organized sport in the area.

Medical advice also governs the sports in which those past their athletic prime may engage.

Sports equipment is sold in department stores and specialty shops and anyone may buy it, but it is expensive. Equipment used in the sports clubs is supplied free. These clubs are organized sponsored by a particular state enterprise or "palace of culture" and there are no membership fees.

Native Water For Oil Kings

By WALTER GRAY.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

TORONTO (CP)—Water, water everywhere. Miles and miles of it stretching before the Lake Ontario to metal hideout of Edmonton Oil Kings.

And the "go-go" kids from the West brought their own with them.

"We've got four gallons here now and six more are on their way from Edmonton," said coach Key McAuley Wednesday.

"The players claimed they suffered cramps during the season from drinking other water and they didn't want to take any chances down here," said the 36-year-old coach of western Canada's representatives in the Memorial Cup hockey final. "I don't know if there's anything to it but they said Edmonton water they can have it."

HOW LONG?

The question is, how long can the supply last? The Oil Kings arrived Tuesday ready for action but have been forced to wait until the eastern representative is decided — either Quebec Frontiers, sea or St. Catharines Teepees.

The West minced no words on the delay. Said McAuley:

"It's not fair to us. I feel the delay is harming the team. It's not as though it's a home game."

The club took to the ice at suburban Varsity Arena Wednesday for an hour's workout.

McAuley said he couldn't call the winner of the Quebec-St. Catharines series.

"They're both strong clubs. They both play a lot rougher hockey than we do."

He offered no opinion on Edmonton's chances.

"It's pretty hard to say until they're on the ice."

Sport in Brief

WILLIAMS CATCHES

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams playing catcher and a baseball announcer pitching his high fast one at each other Wednesday afternoon when the game between the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers was rained out.

Williams warmed up by catching his old pal Mel Parnell (4-Dizzy) Trout, former Detroit ace and now a sportscaster, at rain-soaked Fenway Park. Boston's slugging outfielder, looking forward to batting in the near future, wanted to limber up despite the thick rain. Williams broken collarbone is about healed and he won't let it day go by without exercising it.

TO LEASE WATER

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Empire Games Society may have to spend up to $23,674 to ensure good water conditions for rowing events at the games July 30-Aug. 7.

Executive committee members Wednesday approved spending that amount, if necessary, to construct a small partial dam across the Vedder canal to raise the water level.

FASHER ROMERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Senators decided Wednesday to move in the fences at Griffith Stadium, the toughest park in the major leagues for home run hitters. The home run range in left field will be from 374 to 386 feet. It's now 381 to 405.

MIMS WINS

BALTIMORE (AP)—Holly Mims outboxed and outpunched George Johnson Wednesday night, snapping the 11-attorney winning streak of the 23-year-old Trenton, N.J., middleweight with a knockout in the ninth round. Mims weighed 156½, Johnson 152½.

Mims lifted Johnson onto the ropes in the ninth then toyed with him, changing his head back with a series of sharp lefts and rights. The hard-punching Mims then caught Johnson with lashing blows which left him helpless.

BEAT NORRIS

GLASGOW (AP)—Scotland's national soccer team, preparing for the World Football Cup in Switzerland in June and July, defeated the Norwegian national team 1-0 Wednesday night.

Canada Backs Games Athletes With Guarantee

MONTREAL (CP) — The British Empire and Commonwealth Games Association of Canada says $50,000 needed to put Canadian athletes in the field for the forthcoming British Empire Games at Vancouver has been guaranteed.

The money has come from federal and provincial governments, cities, sporting organizations, and private firms and individuals, treasurer Laird Watt Wednesday night told a meeting of the association.

He said $40,053 is already on hand and the remainder "definitely promised."

He said the federal government provided $10,000, Quebec $4,000, Nova Scotia $1,000, Saskatchewan $1,000, Alberta $500, and Ontario and Montreal $7,500.

Toronto put up $3,500, Montreal $2,000 and Hamilton $500.

President Jack Davies announced that Tom Lord of St. Johns, Nfld., has been appointed assistant general team manager in place of Tim Worrall of Toronto, who resigned for business reasons.

Other appointments were: Leigh Miller of Halifax, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., head coach in the track unit and Kenneth Wright, Vancouver, track assistant: A. B. Smith, Hamilton, assistant to the manager in team.

Trabert Enters Second Round

ROME (AP) — U.S. champion Tony Trabert swept into the second round of Italy's international tennis tournament Wednesday but his Davis Cup teammate, Vic Seixas, was having his troubles when rain stopped the proceedings.

Trabert, top-seeded in the men's division, ousted Steven Laslo of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-1, 6-1. Seixas needed third, but the first set to P. F. Guimaraes of Brazil and had a 2-2 lead in the second set when rain interrupted play.

Seventh-seeded Sven Davidson of Sweden, holder of the U.S. indoor championship, fell before a surprising Brazilian, Robert Bedin of Sherbrooke, Que., who won 4-6, 6-3, 11-9, 6-3.

Hans Richard Pahlenberg, former Wimbledon champion who moved from the U.S. to Brazil, lost to Italian Orlando Sirolea, 8-0, 2-6, 8-6, 6-4.

Galt Juniors Shake Off Hawks' Bosses

GALT (CP)—The Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League have severed connections with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, it was announced Wednesday.

A statement released by Jack Moffat, Galt president, said:

"At a meeting of the executives of the Galt Hockey Club held May 3 it was decided that they would not renew negotiations with Chicago for the 1954-55 season."

Moffat also said the executive will decide during the next 10 days if the present operators of the club will continue operating the team next season.

No reason was given for the break-off with Chicago but Moffat said it was unfortunate that the relationship with Chicago had not worked out to the benefit of both parties.

Chicago has sponsored the team for the last five seasons.

Penticton De-Fangs Wolves To Square Allan Cup Series

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—Penticton V's slashed through Sudbury Wolves' crumbling defence Wednesday night to jolt the eastern team 5-3 and square the best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup at one game apiece.

Sudbury won the opener 3-1 Monday on Penticton ice.

The defence which baffled the British Columbia team in the first game leaked badly and only the acrobatic work of Sudbury's goalie Al Millar kept the score from soaring higher.

From here, the series shifts to Kelowna for the third game Friday night, the fourth slated for Penticton Saturday. Venue of the fifth is still to be decided.

V's, who missed the pinnacle of Canadian senior amateur hockey in playoff with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen last year, were in command all the way. Dick Warwick, Jim Fairburn, Jack Mclntyre, Grant Warwick, Kevin Conway and Ron Montgomery dividing the spoils.

Ed Harrison and Gord Heale tallied for Sudbury.

Montgomery was a carbon-copy of Monday night's as a brawl, with 17 penalties handed out in the Wolves, who picked up 11 in the first game, were assessed 10 Wednesday night.

PENALITIES A KEY PART . . . .

This time, penalties played a key part in the scoring. V's connecting four times while Sudbury was shorthanded and Wolves making a manpower advantage pay off once.

Dick Warwick put Penticton ahead 2-0 on a play with Montgomery for the only scoring of the first period in at 3:17 of the second to make it 2-0 and Millar didn't even see Mclntyre's screen shot which made it 3-0.

A lapse by V's was responsible for Sudbury's first goal while Corval Lavelle was off for charging. Penticton swarmed around the Wolves' net and appeared to have scored on a poke shot. The puck bounced off Millar's pads and Harrison picked it up for a rink-long payoff rush. Sudbury came within a goal of tying it up when Heale scored from close in at 9:32.

However, Penticton took over from there with first Conway and then Montgomery scoring.

Montgomery's goal came when he broke up a power play and skated through the Wolves to score unassisted.

Athletes Part In Series To Be Probed

By HERB ALTSCHULL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators called in police officers to a public hearing this afternoon to explain reports that 19 prominent American athletes have spent most of their time in the army playing baseball or boxing.

Eight major league baseball players and two boxers are listed among the 19 under whose cases are under study by a House of Representatives armed services sub-committee headed by Representative William E. Hess (Rep., Ohio).

The House members are trying to find out whether the men were "coddled" while in the army by being permitted to play baseball and box instead of taking part in normal military duties.

Hess has made it clear, however, that the players themselves are not charged with doing anything improper.

Brig.-Gen. Herbert P. Powell, deputy chief of the army's personnel division, went before the sub-committee yesterday, flanked by army officers familiar with the 19 cases.

Powell said the army's sport program of baseball, basketball, football and soccer games are "morale builders, even for the spectators."

He produced a series of documents showing that the army had been issuing directives ever since 1951 to assure that those covered treatment for name athletes and entertainers.

But, he acknowledged, "in a few cases, field commanders may not have carried out Department policy."

To back up his contention that the army has not given preferential treatment to athletes, Powell produced a committee list of 62 men he said were nationally known athletes and entertainers who served overseas between 1952 and 1954.

Among the better known athletes on the list were Curt Simmons, pitcher for Philadelphia Phillies; Don Larsen, pitcher for Baltimore Orioles; Del Crandall, catcher for Milwaukee Braves; Leo Kiely, pitcher for Boston Red Sox; Archie Moore, former football quarterback and Clayton Tonnemaker, Minnesota football star.

Memorial Cup Dates Announced

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announced Wednesday the playoff dates for the Memorial Cup finals.

Edmonton Oil Kings, western Canada junior champions, will meet either St. Catharines Teepees or Quebec Frontenacs in the finals. St. Catharines leads Quebec 3-2 in their best-of-seven eastern finals.

If St. Catharines wins the eastern championship in six games the Memorial Cup finals will be: In Toronto May 9, 11, 13, 15, 16, 18 and 19.

If the TeePees win, but seven games are necessary, the Memorial Cup series will be in Toronto May 11, 13, 15, 16, 18 and 19. The seventh game for this case has not yet been decided.

If Frontenacs eliminate St. Catharines the Memorial Cup finals will be in Quebec May 11, 13, 15, 16 afternoon, 20 in Montreal, and 22 and 23 both in Quebec.

Olympics Limit Sports Scribes

LAUSANNE, Switzerland. (AP) —The International Olympic Committee Wednesday adopted rules to limit the number of newspaper men permitted to cover future Olympic games.

A joint meeting of the International Executive committee and the International federations responsible for the different Olympic sports jointly recommended Wednesday that accredited newspaper men be limited to 1,000 reporters, 150 photographers and 150 radio and television commentators.

The recommendation is to be put before the full session of the International Olympic Committee opening in Athens Monday.

Wings Trounce Royals 4-1 Chiefs Hold Lead

By The Associated Press

Syracuse Chiefs, leaders in the International League, apparently have come up with the catch of the year in rookie Jim Owens, 20-year-old righthander.

Owens is working his way up in the Philadelphia Phillies farm system. He pitched for Terre Haute Three-I League last year where he had a record of 22 victories against eight losses. He helped Syracuse preserve its lead in the International by Blanking Havana Sugar Kings 4-0 Wednesday night for the Chiefs' fourth straight victory. The young pitcher allowed only four hits as he struck out nine and walked seven.

Rochester Red Wings trounced Montreal Royals 12-1 scoring eight runs in a wild third inning. Jack Paepke, 37-year-old righthander, limited the Royals to seven hits in going the route for his second win in the three games he's won loss. He struck out two and walked one.

Bob Lennon, Wings' left fielder, tossed a three-run homer to rookie Joe Cunningham and before the side was retired the Red Wings had scored eight runs off Jackie Brick and reliever Joe Carbonaro.

Buffalo's high-scoring Bisons outslugged Richmond Virginians 16-8 with Jack Wallaesa, Harry Bright and Frank Carswell hammering home runs for the Herd.

Ottawa and Toronto were not scheduled.

Barry Cullen Scores Four As Teeps Clobber Fronts 9-1

QUEBEC (CP) — A gamble by St. Catharines coach Rudy Pilous paid off Wednesday night for the TeePees to the tune of a crushing 9-1 victory over Quebec Frontenacs in the fifth game of the eastern Canada Memorial Cup final.

Pilous, whose team was smarting from a 5-3 loss to Frontenacs Sunday, sent his players out Wednesday night without a practice session on Quebec ice, figuring the trouble was more mental than physical. He was right. The TeePees swarmed all over Frontenacs.

TeePees now lead the series 3-2 in games.

Barry Cullen led the victorious pack with four goals and an assist. Hank Ciesla counted twice while Barry's brother and line-mate, Brian, scored one goal and helped set up four others. Cec Hoekstra and Jack Armstrong completed the scoring for the winners.

St. Catharines led 1-0 after the first period and 5-0 going into the final.

RATCHFORD AVERTS SHUTOUT

Mike Ratchford spoiled goalie Marvin Edwards' brilliant bid for a shutout when he beat the latter with the final goal of the night on 20 minutes.

Five of the 13 penalties distributed by referees Stan Pratt and Irving McDonald, both of Ottawa, figured in the scoring. Frontenacs were charged with seven misbehaviors.

St. Catharines outshot Quebec 33 to 28.

The Frontenacs will have their backs to the wall when they meet St. Catharines in the sixth game, scheduled for Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night. The series winner goes against Edmonton Oil Kings in the Memorial Cup final.

So-Called Fixed Fights Being Probed

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Post, in a story written by Jimmy Cannon, said Wednesday district-attorney Frank Hogan is investigating three recent New York fights supposedly fixed by a syndicate of gamblers.

Commenting on the report, Hogan's office said it is not investigating "so-called 'fixed fights'" and has not done so in the recent past.)

Two of the fights, The Post says, were held in the Eastern Parkway, where show is televised nationally every Monday, and the other in the Madison Square Garden. The Garden fight was a Friday night TV fixture.

The Post adds that a search to trap the leaders has been conducted secretly for some time.

The Post says at least one principal in one of the fixed fights has had his license to box in New York state revoked.

AT THE McCARTHY — Marjorie ("Ma" Kettle) Main and Percy ("Pa" Kettle) Kilbride return to the ramshackle homestead for the newest adventures in the life of their fabulously funny family, Universal-International's production of "Ma & Pa Kettle at Home" now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Alice Kelly, Brett Halsey and Allan Mowbray head the feature cast.

Western Hockey Opens Annual

CALGARY (CP)—The Western Hockey League opened its annual meeting here Wednesday with discussion of internal problems.

Uppermost on the agenda are the problems of Seattle Bombers who lost heavily last season and need $60,000 to keep operating; the general decrease in attendance with the exception of Calgary; and the schedule and play-off setup for next year.

The presidents of the National and Amregent Leagues are expected to attend today's sessions.

numbered 10 times the usual amount.

Miss Gaynor has a solid appeal for those in their 30s and over, who remember her winsome performances in the '20s and '30s. She rose rapidly to fame in Hollywood, winning the Oscar in 1926. She was chosen not for one role, as is the custom today, but for three films: "Seventh Heaven," "Sunrise" and "Street Angel."

She, Will Rogers and Shirley Temple kept the old Fox lot from bankruptcy in the early '30s. After such hits as "Sunny Side Up," "The First Year" and State Fair," she moved in the David Selznick banner. One of her last films was the classic "A Star is Born." In 1938, she disappeared from the screen.

CONTENTED MOTHER

"I never announced that I was retiring or anything like that," she recalled. "I simply moved into another phase of my life. My husband (designer Gilbert Adrian) was tremendously busy, and I felt I should help him. I was perfectly content to be a wife and mother." They have a son, 13.

She still has the freckle-faced beauty and baby voice of her movie days. I asked her how she managed to maintain her youth.

"I don't have any formula," she replied, "unless it's to keep interested."

SUMMER THEATRE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The London theatre company of London, England, will hold an 11-week summer theatre here this year. The theatre will run from June 28 to Sept. 4. The London company, consisting of 15 players who will form a resident cast here, was recommended by civic officials from Halifax, London, Ont., and St. Catharines.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Janet Gaynor, who won the first Academy Award for an actress, is taking another sting at acting. But she says it won't become a habit.

Tonight Miss Gaynor does her second television drama, enacting the role of a mother on Lux Video Theatre. When I saw her before rehearsals at CBS, she seemed excited over the role.

"It's fun to do a part that is intriguing," she remarked. "But I don't plan any full-scale return to acting. After all, I've had my share of acting life. From now on anything I do will be for pleasure alone. I have no ambition to resume my career."

This is actually Miss Gaynor's third return to acting since she did her last film, "Young in Heart," in 1938. (It now is playing on TV.) A few years ago, she joined her long-time co-star, Charles Farrell, in their classic "Seventh Heaven" over Lux Radio. Recently she did her first TV drama over Medallion Theatre in New York.

Western story features out-of-the-ordinary plot with Scott defending himself against an entire town to prove his innocence of a stagecoach robbery. On the same program Leo Gorcey and the East Side Kids in "Flying Wild".

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The attitude of bridge players with the highest master rating is irritating. They actually think they are superior. And yet, it is obvious that few of them agree on the simplest subjects.

Deal number eight in the summer nationals was this:

NORTH
♠ K Q 7
♥ K J 8 6 4
♦ Q 4 3 2

WEST — EAST
♠ J 10 9 3 2 — ♠ 8
♥ J 10 9 4 — ♥ A K 8 5
♦ K J — ♦ 8 7 6 5 3 2
♣ — ♣ 8 7 6 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ A 6 5 4
♥ 9 5 2
♣ Q 10 9 4

In this top title tilt were 36 tables of the highest rated of the national masters. They should have some ideas in common. Still, they reached ten entirely different contracts in this one deal.

Think of it. Only ten percent of the tables agreed on the same contract. Would you call that an imposing record for accuracy? Would you say they are the models on which teachings we should depend?

Eight ended in three clubs. Seven of these were doubled and two of those seven were defeated. Seven stopped at two clubs, all seven made it; although five of them were doubled.

This shows up the masters as poor guessers when it comes to penalty doubles. With a game as scientific as we claim bridge to be, surely top masters should be more accurate than this.

One was in four clubs doubled and went down. One was in four diamonds doubled and went down.

Nine were in three hearts and two were in four hearts, all but one being defeated. One south was in three spades and one went three spades. Both went down plenty. Four others were in games.

Such clever players meet the strongest kind of defence in both bidding and play. So, competition is keen and spirited. As a result, some must stretch and some must pull in their horns.

But notice that the final results are in a wide different range. This means that most of them are not sure of how far to go either way. They need a better grounding in simple subjects. Like beginners.

SEE REDS OPPOSED

MELBOURNE (AP)—Australian Olympic Games officials believe that because of the Petrov case all the Iron Curtain countries would vote against Melbourne as the site for the 1956 Olympic Games if a vote is taken at the International Olympic Committee meeting in Athens next week.

Russia has severed diplomatic relations with Australia over the recent defection of Vladimir Petrov a Russian embassy official in Canberra.

HIT BY STRIKE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Residents from Niagara Falls, N.Y., affected by a strike of 750 members of a baking union, invaded this city Wednesday and soon had bought up the entire day's supply of bread from chain stores. Rationing of two loaves to a visitor was set up later in the day. Canadians could buy all they wanted.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, MAY 7, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Self-restraint in all departments an important "must" today. Artistic and professional interests together with family and home activities are highly sponsored. Be tactful, considerate.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your Venus about the only planet in really friendly aspect. Irritation and impatient are evident so be careful not to let them switch you from right endeavors or change your genial disposition.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Need advice to Taurus and double your guard against impatience, domineering. Delicate handling of difficult situations and irritable people will bring unexpected benefits, pleasure.

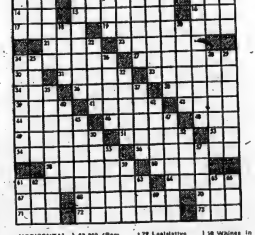
June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — You can garner good leads and help through your generous nature and willingness to co-operate with the right forces this not entirely favorable day. Be patient with details.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — You may have to tone down enthusiasm in some instances and be alert in front matters. Good work, honesty and sincerity pay good dividends.

August 22 to September 23 (Virgo)—Don't amplify needlessly the idiosyncrasies or unintentional errors of others and you will have less worry. It may be an inopportune time for launching new projects, but you be a wise judge.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—It's mostly up to you and how you manage generally whether today will be happy and productive or just mediocre. Stand on your principles, but be fair, too.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—It may be easy to provoke peevishness so be especially gracious, understanding. You are basically broadminded and tolerant and today sorely needs these gifts. You can make good at your interests.



November 22 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Have accurate information, reliable references before multiplying your obligations or setting new projects in operation. Artistry, skilled work will pay well.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Dealing in foods, beverages, catering generally favored today. Artistic professions, millinery, dress-making, decorating and home interests can advance. Take more care in other fields.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—The quality—not the quantity of your efforts is of utmost importance now. Gardening, decorating, attending to domestic and youngsters' needs out front. Efficiency, good craftsmanship honored.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Knit knowledge from past experiences with your foresight and ability to get top results. Watch time, energy or money can harm what could be a fairly productive period.

YOU BORN TODAY have a world of valuable assets to start life with: tenderness, love for humanity and all living creatures, receptiveness to learning, great inner strength and will power, and respect for spiritual bonds. On the debit side could be obstinacy, a tendency to tavish living, lack of steady ambition. With such splendid characteristics, Taurus natives should never permit failings to —flourish or become established. Prayer, study ambition and wholesome, vicorous associates are great allies. Birthdate: Robt. Browning, Eng. poet; Peter Tschaikowsky, Rus. music composer; Johannes Brahms, Ger. composer.

Blossom Week In Peninsula

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Thousands of sightseers are expected in Canada's orchard region, the Niagara peninsula, this week-end for the start of Blossom Week Saturday.

Blossoms in a color range of pale white to deep pink decorate nearly 50,000 acres of trees, now in mid-bloom. Petals have dropped from the early-flowering apricot but the peach is in bloom in every part of the area.

EXTRA PLAYER

GLYNDEBOURNE, Eng. (CP)—First-sighters at the new play "Take Stars Appearing" were startled by a brown bat fluttering around the floor. Officials said the bat first turned up during the witches' scene in a production of "Macbeth last year and now is considered "a regular."

Miss Marjorie Dickie

If you feel tired, wornout and nervous, if you suffer from indigestion, gas, heartburn and sour, sick stomach; if bowels are constipated and you have headaches backache and nerves are on edge —take a short treatment with Syntona. Right from the ground, the medicine which has helped thousands of men and women suffering the same way.

Tells Her Experience

Telling of her experience with Syntona Miss Marjorie Dickie, 10 Redan Street, London, Ont., says in part:

"After being rundown and nervous for a long time and suffering from indigestion, gas, heartburn and sour, sick stomach I used Syntona.

"Many people who suffer as I did still know how badly I felt all the time. I would eat a meal without any suffering indigestion, gas, heartburn and sour stomach. I felt fine and could sleep and relax as I couldn't sleep at night.

"That Syntona has really been wonderful for me. I am now able to eat three meals a day without having to leave my food down. All that distress in my stomach is relieved and my nerves are calmed down so I sleep better at night also."

Syntona is a result-tool refreshed and talked in the mornings.

If you read about Syntona many times in the past, but this is the first time you used it, you may only worry 2 days not try it long enough.

How It Acts

Made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots, Syntona is designed to act on the stomach, kidneys, liver, intestines and blood to help tone up the system, correct excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Govt. Offering Butter Stockpile At 55½cts. Lb.

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is offering its 23,000,000-pound butter stockpile to the trade at 55½ cents a pound—3½ cents below what it paid for it.

This reduction, along with handling charges—may mean a loss to the federal treasury of more than $1,000,000.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner Wednesday announced the sharply-reduced selling price—compared to about 59 cents a pound last year—as a move to dispose of the government's 1953 surplus.

Meanwhile, the government will continue to buy 1954 butter from producers at the support price of 58 cents a pound. And if pastures are good, the government may be buying more butter this year than it did a year ago.

For one thing federal experts anticipate that milk production this year will be higher and for another, the release of 1953 stocks at the cut price will reduce the market for 1954 butter.

FIRST IN YEARS

This is the first time since 1950 that the government has cut prices below cost. At that time it unloaded about 20,000,000 pounds.

Commercial dairy representatives said they felt the trade likely will buy some of the butter at the reduced price, but that the temporary price cut is not the answer to the dairy industry's problems. The industry is faced with sharp competition from lower - priced margarine.

Either the industry had to find a way to reduce long-range dairy prices or have the government impose tolls on margarine to raise its price to the dairy level.

Doctor, Sheriff Say Hanging Not Deterrent

OTTAWA (CP)—An injection of morphine or curare, large enough to cause death, would be a more merciful method of execution than hanging, Dr. W. H. Hills, Toronto jail physician, said Wednesday.

He told the Commons - Senate committee on capital punishment that in his view hanging is an inhuman method of execution, although practically painless.

Dr. Hills' view that hanging is archaic was shared by sheriff J.D. Conover of York county, Toronto. Both said that capital punishment is not a deterrent to murder.

Sheriff Conover said that in his official capacity he would like to see abolition of capital punishment. The county sheriff, he explained, is responsible for the carrying out of executions ordered by the court and hires a professional executioner—to do the job.

Personally he is favored retaining capital punishment because of the fear that a professional criminal might kill a second time.

Dr. Hills had no views in his official capacity, but personally said he feels that capital punishment serves no purpose.

The sheriff and Dr. Hills described for the committee their duties in connection with a death sentence. The committee is studying whether the Criminal Code should be amended concerning capital and corporal punishment and lotteries.

Yonge Street Merchants Want St. Cleaned Up

TORONTO (CP) — Some merchants on Yonge street, the city's main thoroughfare, said Wednesday they are fed up with furrowed, sand-piled stretches of roadway in front of their stores and threatened to move to another street unless things are cleaned up quickly.

The merchants said they are losing money and customers because of slow progress in cleaning up work left by construction of the new subway. Street-car tracks have been torn up and the street will be repaved.

The merchants at a meeting to discuss the problem, heard Ernest G. Tyler, chairman, say at least one big retailer has moved from the area because he was losing money.

BODY IDENTIFIED

WINDSOR (CP) — Ontario provincial police said Wednesday night the body of a man taken from the Detroit river Monday has been identified as Ralph Harrison Culley, Jr., of Detroit. He is believed to have committed suicide.

U.S. To Be Partner In Seaway Project

Senate-Approved Bill Passed By 241 to 158 Vote

President Pleased by Vote In House of Representatives

By C. E. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Complete participation by the United States with Canada in development of the St. Lawrence river-Great Lakes power and seaway project now is virtually assured.

The House of Representatives Thursday voted 241 to 158 for a Senate-approved bill authorizing the U.S. government to become a partner of Canada in the 2-way phase.

Development of the power phase of the multi-million-dollar project — a subject of negotiation for more than 32 years — already has been arranged, with the New York power authority authorized to go ahead in co-operation with the Ontario hydro-electric power commission. However, this has been in dispute in U.S. courts.

Thursday's vote came after a two-day debate limited by arrangement between the parties. It followed a 1-to-79 vote defeat of an amendment which would have required the U.S. government to finance the seaway cost share by issue of bonds to the public.

SECOND VOTE

There was a second vote of 242 to 157 to defeat a last-ditch opposition motion to send the bill back to the public works committee.

Some obstacles remain. The House bill was given some minor amendments which must be approved by the Senate. Senator Homer Ferguson (Rep., Mich.) said at once that he will move to give the amendments necessary approval as soon as the bill may go to President Eisenhower for signature without delay.

Eisenhower, like every president since Woodrow Wilson, has strongly advocated the partnership development when he gets the bill.

The proposal, as the statement issued after the vote, hailed it as the "end of a long and historic effort." He said the seaway would "contribute materially to the economic well-being and security" of both the U.S. and Canada.

Opponents of the power development, notably the Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association, have litigation in the courts aimed at preventing the New York power authority from using the water assigned right to co-operate with Ontario in hydro-electric projects.

DEADLINE NEAR

It has lost in the lower courts, and the deadline for appeal to the Supreme Court expires today. Some observers here think the strong congressional approval will discourage any further delaying tactics.

The move has been advocated by Canada for many years but failed for years to get congressional approval. Until now it had never even reached the House floor, although it twice had been debated and defeated in the Senate.

Nearly three years ago Canada decided to go ahead with the development alone if necessary, seeking only U.S. co-operation in the power development in the International rapids near Cornwall, Ont.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Continuing unsettled weather is forecast for Ontario. Although the temperature is gradually becoming warmer across the province, little change is appearing on the weather map across Canada. Skies will be mostly cloudy today and Saturday with occasional showers expected in southern regions both days. In northern regions, the precipitation takes the form of snowflurries at night, as the temperature drops to freezing.

Prov. Police Head Wants to End Municipal Work

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario provincial police need the 200 policemen, currently tied up in municipal patrolling, on the province's highway for patrol work, commissioner V. McNeil said today.

Testifying before the Ontario legislature's select committee on highway safety, Commissioner McNeil said he would like to see the provincial police out of the 88 municipal detachments.

"I feel if we had the 200 officers who are tied up in municipalities, we could concentrate a lot more on patrol work."

In reply to a question by Peter Martin (C—Stormont), Commissioner McNeil said he would not agree with the suggestion that men of lower qualifications be placed in municipal work.

"I wouldn't want to lower the standards," he said.

MUCH TIME IN COURT

The commissioner agreed with W. M. Nickle (PC—Kingston), committee chairman, that court appearances by provincial police take up "a tremendous lot of time."

Commissioner McNeil agreed with Dr. S. J. Lavine (PC—Waterloo North) that the police force "is stuck with the fact that it can't remove 50 with multiplicities as far as paying salaries is concerned."

Several MLA's Endorse Suggestion Auto Speed Limit Be Raised to 60

TORONTO (CP)—Several members of the Ontario legislature's select committee on highway safety have endorsed a suggestion that the accident rate can be cut down by stepping up the speed limit.

The speed-up suggestion came Thursday from Peter Manley (L—Thorncrest). He proposed that speed limits for automobiles be increased to 60 miles an hour from the current limit of 50 miles an hour, but that the 50-mile-an-hour limit for trucks remain in force.

W. M. Nickle (PC—Kingston), committee chairman, said the group will meet next month with highway safety officials in New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and possibly Connecticut and Indiana.

The committee, scheduled to sit again today, will hold a third session May 17 and 26.

Mr. Nickle suggested the present limit of 50 miles an hour be maintained for 500 feet before railway crossings as a warning. Howtenance engineer for the highways

$375,000 LOSS IN PETERBOROUGH, McKIM TOWNSHIP

Paint, Glass Factory, New School Destroyed

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Fire early today destroyed a warehouse and storage shed of the Hobbs Glass division of Canadian Pittsburgh Industries Limited, causing damage estimated by fire chief Harold Smith-Carter at more than $375,000.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, licked swiftly through the building's stocks of paint and glass. The fire chief said it burned so fiercely that it was over within an hour.

Wayne Kelley, Canadian National Railways employee at work in freight sheds near the building, saw smoke about 3 a. m. and turned in the alarm. Glass company officials said a police patrol passed the building about five minutes earlier and saw nothing amiss.

Meanwhile, a sand and company trucks, and kept the blaze from spreading to a CNR icehouse and other buildings in the general area.

The building, on Sherbrooke street in the central part of the city, was just south of the main business section. There were few other structures close by.

The fire marshal's office has been asked to assign an inspector to assist in the investigation as a routine tep.

HEAVY SCHOOL LOSS

BURGESS HILL (CP) — Fire swept the $300,000 MacLeod road public school in adjoining McKim township Thursday night.

It destroyed all but four rooms. Officials said water damage in the section left standing was so severe that all the interior will have to be rebuilt.

Nearby residents a s s e m b l e d tonight to watch the three-quarters of an hour before they saw flames in the school. During that time, auto pilots checked their own homes to see if they were on fire.

Ralph Marion, 22 turned in the alarm. School children helped fight the fire.

Firemen said the blaze, of undetermined cause, started at the north end. They said when a storeroom addition was three-quarters completed. They said there is a shortage of hydrants in the area and lack of sufficient water hampered firefighters' efforts.

U.S. JAILS CANADIAN

BOSTON (AP)—A three-month jail term was imposed Thursday on Joseph O. Sylvain, 45, of Montreal by Judge Charles E. Wyzanski on a charge that the Canadian illegally entered the United States after being deported. Sylvain, deported in 1948, has a long criminal record, police said.

P.M. Tells House Canada's Position Same on Seaway

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says Canada is prepared to build the St. Lawrence seaway alone but will talk over a joint job with the United States if the U.S. will hurry up.

He told Parliament Thursday night Canada's stand has not changed since it undertook in 1951 to build the $300,000,000 ditch by itself, despite the U.S. House of Representatives' action Thursday in approving a bill calling for joint Canada-U.S. participation.

He went no further than to say that the Canadian government is still willing to discuss any specific proposal the U.S. administration may put up, provided that does not delay the hydro-navigation project.

Altogether, the prime minister's carefully-drafted 500-word statement—rewritten at least once Thursday—was regarded by observers as a lukewarm reception to the Washington move.

The Canadian government for the lady years has been pushing for an all-Canadian seaway that would put the deep waterway's canals on the north side of the International rapids section of the St. Lawrence, where the major part of the $800,000,000 power-shipping works are to be built.

ROOTED FOR DEFEAT

The government here is believed to have been quietly rooting for the joint-participation bill to be defeated in Congress, and Mr. St. Laurent's statement added some support to this belief.

"We are still prepared to undertake alone the construction of the seaway," he said, noting that the government gave an undertaking to this effect three years ago.

He added:

"The government . . . still is willing to discuss any specific proposal the United States government might wish to put forward once an entity is designated and authorized to proceed with construction of the U.S. share of the power works, and provided that such discussions do not delay either the power or the seaway project."

Dulles Has Two-Stage Plan For Anti-Red Pact in Asia

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles has developed a two-stage program for organizing an anti-Communist coalition in Southeast Asia, and hopes it will run into a provisional arrangement is a matter of weeks.

Dulles is due to hold a series of diplomatic discussions here shortly for the first stage of negotiations. Officials today said it seems certain to begin with an international military staff conference.

The military conference, and possibly additional diplomatic talks would be designed to produce a provisional security arrangement to stand until later second-stage talks eventually result in a formal security treaty.

BRITAIN TO CO-OPERATE

A minimum of five and a maximum of 10 or a dozen countries could be expected in the first conferences. Authorities said Britain has agreed to co-operate, but they termed this a forward step. Previously the Churchill government had withheld joining in Dulles' proposed "united action" pending efforts for an Indo - China peace' settlement at Geneva.

Dulles will report to the U.S. people by radio and television tonight on Indo-China and on other subjects, notably the Korean peace deadlock, with which he dealt at the Far East conference at Geneva last week with the Allies and the Communists.

Advance information was that Dulles would emphasize his and President Eisenhower's resolve to form a united front with friendly powers aimed at saving Southeast Asia from Communist conquest.

Canadians Taking Part In Informal Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday the Canadian delegation at Geneva is engaging in informal talks on the situation in Indo-China.

He repeated in the Commons, however, that Canada is not participating in formal discussions. Canada was not invited to take part because it is not involved in the fighting.

He said Canada is not complaining about not being asked to take part in the official meetings. However, informal discussings were taking place continuously at Geneva on Indo-China and External Affairs Minister Pearson and other members of the Canadian delegation were attending these.

WILD ANIMALS IN BANFF PARK DEBATE SUBJECT

Member Wants Govt. To Pay for Damages

OTTAWA (CP)—Will a cabinet minister or a Social Credit member of Parliament from Alberta be the first to gaje-crash a pedestrian? And who is responsible for damages to farm crops by foraging wild animals from national parks?

No man can answer the first question, posed Thursday as the Commons considered estimates of the department of mines, affairs and national resources, until the summer.

As for the other, Fred S. Zaplitny (CCF—Dauphin), who asked that the federal government pay for damages to farm crops by wild animals from Riding Mountain park, said the government has no responsibility in such cases.

In a varied debate, Banff park in the Rockies of Alberta was much discussed. E. D. Shaw (SC—Red Deer) said he figured he'd defy "no trespassing signs" on an 18-acre-pasture fact outside the park just to see what happens. Albertans reserved to the government tract as the "iron curtain area."

Called Ya-Ha-Tinda. It was set aside 20 years ago to graze 150 horses of the park branch.

Mr. Shaw said he does not see why the public is barred from the property. He believed it should make an interesting test case for the courts to be trespassed.

MIGHT BE JAILED

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) suggested he might be jailed if he did so. Mr. Shaw replied: "All I can say is, if I am not back here again, it has been nice knowing all of you."

Northern Affairs Minister Lesage whose department administers national parks, said he plans to visit Banff this summer and will try to crash the tract gates before Mr. Shaw. He said, too, that wardens will have to be hired if the area is opened to the public.

Mr. Zaplitny said farmers near Riding Mountain national park in Manitoba suffer crop damage each age from the nibbling of park animals off their preserve. Neither the federal government nor the province would give compensation.

Mr. Lesage said the government is responsible for the animals only while they are within the parks. If elk, deer or other animals wandered on to farm lands, the responsibility was provincial.

Four-Minute Miler Tuckered Out, Sleeps Till Noon, Dances Till Dawn

LONDON (Reuters) — Roger Bannister slept until noon today, all tuckered out from running the first four-minute mile in history and then celebrating the event in a night club until 5 a. m.

The six-foot, 25-year-old athlete strolled quietly into St. Mary's Hospital, where he is studying, just before lunch.

The telephone rang ceaselessly as his home this morning; lights flashed on the hospital switchboard; telegraph boys found themselves sadly out of training as they trotted up and down the Bannister garden path with bundles of about one a minute; newspaper reporters hunted him in perspiring packs.

When at last he appeared he collected a pile of congratulatory telegrams from the hospital leer rack and was surprised to learn that an even bigger pile was waiting for him home.

At 5 a.m. Roger had all the breath back that he lost during the run and was crooning "Time on My Hands" into a microphone in a West End night club.

It had been a night of celebration with Chris Brasher and Chris Chataway, the two runners who helped set the record time of three minutes, 59.4 seconds.

With three girl friends, they went to a night club where Roger was recognized and greeted with a rousing cheer. He dragged Chataway and Brasher into the spotlight for a dance and smiling shyly, said: "I have got two better boys."

The trio stopped playing at 3:30 a. m. and the night club officially closed. But the band leader and the drummer stayed on to play for the three athletes and their partners.

After the race in Oxford Thursday afternoon, Bannister had slipped away to one of the numerous quaint old world pubs in the university town and called for a shandy—a mixture of lemonade and beer which is a great favorite in England.

But in London it was an occasion for champagne, and the corks popped.

The 25-year-old Bannister waived all rules. "A late night and champagne are good when does not hurt," he said.

De Castries Orders Post to Fire On His Headquarters

30,000 Rebels Smash Fortress Defence Posts

PARIS (CP) — Dien Bien Phu has fallen.

Premier Joseph Laniel announced late today the northwest Indo-China base has been submerged."

A little fortress named Isabelle, site of the French Union garrison's main artillery, was still holding out three miles south of the bastion that had epitomized the Indo-China war for 57 days.

One of the last orders Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries, the lanky commander in chief, sent to Isabelle was to fire on his own command post when the Communist-led rebel riflemen finally cut through.

There was no immediate word as to the fate of Gen. de Castries, commander of the fallen garrison, nor that of Geneviève de Galard Terraube, a French nurse and the only woman in the besieged fort. She had been decorated for gallantry twice within the week.

EFFORTS FAIL

Premier Laniel told the National Assembly counter - attacks had been launched in a vain effort to block the rebels from making a juncture in attacks from the north-east and the southwest, but the defence efforts failed.

Thirty thousand Vietminh rebels smashed through French Union defences today to capture the mountain stronghold.

The final, deciding assault began with a punishing four-hour artillery barrage Thursday. Then the Communist-led troops scrambled out of their trenches, flung themselves on the battle - weary defenders in their fourth allout assault since March 13.

BATTLE IN MUD

The strongpoints — a muddy tangle of trenches and barbed wire —fell one by one, as the insurgents chopped down the French Union troops with grenades and knives. The defenders tried desperately to counter - attack with bayonets, but were forced backward by superior numbers.

The fall of Dien Bien Phu came on the eve of the Indo - China peace talks at Geneva. The fortress had become a symbol for both sides. The rebels were determined to capture it at all costs, while the 12,000 French Union troops, outnumbered 4 to 1 or more, were just as determined to hang on.

They did hang on, for 57 days that captured the imagination of the world.

Laniel said, "The French reaction will be the measure of and virility of a great nation."

SAYS NOTHING CHANGED

He added that France will confirm its instructions to its delegates at Geneva without addition that the Dien Bien Phu fall can change anything.

"France will recall to its allies that during seven years it has never quit defending alone a great region of Asia," Laniel told the assembly.

OTTERVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A trout fisherman was killed by a 200-pound boulder Thursday when a trucker accidentally dumped a load of rocks on him as he stood below a bridge casting into the Otter river.

DUMPING OF LAWN CUTTINGS AT CURB NOT ALLOWED

Dumping of lawn cuttings and leaves at the curbside is being frowned on by the city public works department, it was noted today by City Engineer Charles A. Mott.

He added that it was illegal to dump refuse on the street and residents doing so could be charged under a city by-law.

Court Action Will Follow Awning Fires

Prevalence of awning fires caused by carelessly tossed cigarettes has prompted a warning from Chief Police Walter Probert that court action will follow for person found responsible for such blazes.

"The frequency of awning fires has been too great in recent months," the police chief stated, "and owners as well as the fire department are asking that action be taken."

"Very definitely court action will be taken against offenders and in all probability owners will also seek to recover damages."

The chief noted that awning fires were usually the action of self esteemed smart alecs. Not only do the fires cause unnecessary alarm and worry, but also necessitate a run for firemen.

BCI Cadet Corps, 540 Strong, Highly Praised by Inspector

Five hundred and forty khaki-clad cadets marched proudly past a reviewing stand at the Exhibition Park this morning, and were later said to be the finest "turn-out" of Belleville's military organization in years.

"In fact" said Principal George E. Currie, "this is the biggest parade of cadets in the history of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School."

Lieut.-Col. E. Sisson, OBE, ED., ADQMG, of Eastern Area Command, Kingston, who took the salute as the corps swept past, were very smart on parade. Your steadiness is to be commended. The spirit and enthusiasm displayed here today is a sure indication of your co-operation with your instructors. You are a distinct credit to your school and to your school. I must commend the excellent band. It is one of the best I have seen."

Lieut. H. E. Done, assistant cadet training officer said, "I have seen many corps on parade, but that company ("A") ranks with the best. You should be proud of the BCI corps."

With Lieut.-Colonel Sisson on the inspection party were Lieut. Col. R. J. Wilkinson, commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; Major Everett S. Fairman, second-in-command of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment, (A.A.), Principal Currie, Captain Les Shiels, Lieut. Done, Dr. W. Baldwin and George Wishart, chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

WINNERS OF SPECTATOR

The cadets marched across a gun-swept infield of the Exhibition Park to the applause of hundreds of spectators.

Under Cadet C.O. Lieut.-Col. Jack Lafferty, the corps, arms swinging like veterans paraded in columns of platoons and column of route. The precision-like movements climaxed in the spectacular action as the lines of companies swung by the reviewing stand.

Then they swung into "Review Order". A solid phalanx of khaki moved toward the stand to the "General Salute". The colors provided a fitting background and the smart BCI band under Mr. Alf Cooper played appropriate music. The later gave a clever demonstration that drew highly favorable commendation from each of the spectators but the "brass" as well.

Then followed corps demonstrations which included, signals, map reading, anti-tank gun, machine gun, chemical transport and platoon tactics.

The Strathcona Cup emblematic of company supremacy had not been awarded at the time of writing. The winner will be announced tomorrow.

It was stated that this year's corps will go down in history of the cadet activities of BCI. Next year, it is promised the corps body will be divided between BCI and the new Bay of Quinte District High School.

PROUD OF RIFLE TEAM

The cadets were particularly proud of this year's cadet rifle team and their display in connection with that cadet inspection. The display in charge of Cadet Leo Fox showed improved targets resulting in the team placing second highest in competition with other schools in the district.

Best target by the ten-man rifle team was displayed by a grade IX student, Ron Proctor with a score of 91.

For the first time this year a safe driving competition was staged for the cadets. Twelve students entered the competition and wheeled a platform dual-wheeled truck over a difficult rodeo course.

The course called for special turns about obstacles, wheeling in and out around closely spaced oil drums and other feats of driving calling for keen judgment and distance. As a final test competitors were called on to back their trucks into a short space between two other vehicles. Provincial Constable Ivan Thekess acted as judge for the competition.

An additional grant of $41,700 from the province of Ontario has been received by the Belleville General Hospital, it was stated today by J. N. Yanover, chairman of the hospital board of governors.

Mr. Yanover said the money was in addition to the annual grant received each year from the government, noting that the cheque was received by him yesterday from W. E. Sandercock, M.L.A. for Hastings West.

In discussing the additional grant with Mr. Yanover, Mr. Sandercock noted that the money could not be used for capital expenditure and therefore could not go toward construction of the new hospital wing.

He said the money would be used for rehabilitation of the present hospital. Other uses to which the money could be put would be for purchase of hospital equipment or toward payment of an operational deficit.

Payment of the additional grant to Belleville hospital was from a legislative grant announced by Premier Leslie Frost in bringing down the provincial budget.

Growers Want Prior Claim To Payment

OTTAWA (CP)—Fruit and vegetable growers appealed to Parliament Thursday to enact legislation giving them priority over banks in obtaining payment from bankrupt canners.

M. M. Robinson of Toronto, secretary-treasurer, of the Ontario Plant and Vegetable Growers' Association, said that as the bank act now stands, creditor banks have first claim on all goods delivered to the canning factory, even in cases where the factory has not paid for the goods.

"It has happened that a grower delivered to a canner right up to within a day or two of the processor being thrown into bankruptcy," he told the Commons banking committee.

"The moment the produce passes the canner's receiving platform, it becomes the property of the banks—a fact not generally realized by many growers."

Hughes Cleaver, former Liberal member for Halton, Ont., and now counsel to the association, said the proposal would discourage banks from lending money to those canners who are not credit worthy.

Leon Crestohl—Montreal Carrier) suggested the amendment will do the association more harm than good. It would restrict canners' ability to operate.

Mr. Robinson said the growers have no delusion about the problem. They realized the banks would seek their own protection. But they felt the industry would be stronger if some lending was restricted.

DE CASTRIES

All the deputies in the assembly except the Communists stood while Laniel announced the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

The fortress, situated in a broad flat river plain about six miles long and three miles wide, was pounded by artillery and mortars during the long days of the siege.

Each new attack bit off a bit of the original fortress until when the final attack started a field little bigger than a baseball park remained, in which the defenders were concentrated.

All the surrounding hills were held by the Vietminh and, to the surprise of the French Union forces, they were strongly supplied with artillery, for the first time in the more than seven years that they have been fighting the French.

AIRLIFT HAZARDOUS

They also had anti-aircraft guns which some French officials insisted were manned by Chinese Reds. That fact never formally established.

The result was that planes to supply the fortress with an airlift from Hanoi proved expensive and extremely difficult. Planes had to drop their supplies from a high altitude, so that considerable of the equipment fell immediately into the hands of the Vietminh.

Hundreds of wounded, who under the original plan were to be evacuated by planes landing on the airstrip, had to remain at the fort.

The Dien Bien Phu battle marked the first all-out frontal fighting that the war in Indo-China has developed in its nearly eight years. The Communist - led Vietminh hold areas spotted throughout Indo-China, but French Union forces still possess the main cities, Hanoi, Saigon and Haiphong. There has been speculation that a rebel success at Dien Bien Phu would pave the way for attacks on Hanoi, 180 miles to the east.

Meanwhile, the Geneva conference is ready to take up the problem of making peace in Indo-China. The intensity of the Dien Bien Phu attacks showed the Communists' determination to present its captive as an accomplished fact before the diplomats at Geneva.

Scotty Broughton Pays 1st Official To Can. Legion

CAMPBELLFORD — District Commander, Scotty Broughton, paid his first official visit to Branch 103 of the Canadian Legion in Campbellford, at the regular monthly meeting.

Commander Broughton is a forceful speaker, and during his address, reminded the comrades of the aims and objects of the Legion and the duties of every comrade in carrying out the pledge made in the initiation oath. He also reported on the progress of the membership drive, which appears to be attaining the desired results and should, by the end of the year, increase strength and speaking voice of the Legion considerably.

The district meeting is being held this year on May 22rd at Belleville, and Commander Broughton requested that all comrades able to do so, be present as there are quite a number of important resolutions being brought up and for their own benefit and the comrades should hear them first hand.

S. A. BLITZ

Branch 103 are assisting the Salvation Army in their "blitz" campaign and any comrade is welcome to join a team in this job.

It was announced that Friday evening, May 7th, from 6.30 to 9 p.m., will be spent in the spring clean-up of the grounds around the hall. Hoes, rakes, shovels and wheel barrows will be needed along with willing hands to make the premises as presentable as they should be.

Comrade Fred Merritt maintenance man, was elected to the executive and is now in a position to give his advice on the many jobs that are required to keep the hall in first class condition.

Comrade George Bibby reported for the sports committee covering the activities during the winter months. The bowling team didn't bring home the provincial championship, but they made a creditable showing for Campbellford and Branch 103.

The Trent Valley cribbage trophy donated by Molsons has been engraved and is in possession of the Branch for 1954. Comrade George has spent a lot of time looking after the various events during the winter and a hearty vote of thanks was given in appreciation of his efforts.

TRENTON NEWS

By ELMER BONTER — PHONE TRENTON 2134

Lorne D. Foster, Postmaster, Ends 36 Years' Service June 1

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton's loss will not be some other place's gain because when Lorne D. Foster retires on June 1 after 36 years as Postmaster of Trenton he will withdraw to the quietness of his favorite garden.

Mr. Foster, who resides on Henry Street, was appointed postmaster in 1918 on his return from overseas in World War I. When he took over the position of Trenton's chief postman his staff numbered eight. Today 23 people work at the post office and all of them excepting one will be present at a dinner Saturday night honoring their chief.

Mr. Foster is looking forward to his retirement. Including his service in the armed forces he will have spent 40 years in the government's employ.

ENLISTED IN 21ST.

He enlisted with the 21st Battalion at Kingston as a private. He won his commission overseas and was discharged with the rank of lieutenant. He was among the Trenton veterans who returned to France on a Victory Pilgrimage in 1936.

Mr. Foster was appointed postmaster when it took 2c to send a letter out of town. There was no airmail in those days and mail was collected by a horse-drawn vehicle. The stamp cancelling machine had only been installed in the post office a year previous. Street delivery had not been envisioned for Trenton at that time.

A replacement for Mr. Foster will be announced at a later date. In the meantime a man, who is as familiar to Trentonians as the post office itself carries on with the same energy and interest he has shown down through the years. Mr. Foster treasures the 25-year pin presented to him for long and faithful service in the government's employ.

WILL PRESENT GIFT

At the dinner given in Mr. Foster's honor at the Gilbert Hotel, Saturday night, Earl Maldeau, a veteran post office employee, will present him with a gift, along with a unanimous wish from all of the staff that he will spend many happy hours of relaxation after a strenuous and notable career.

Mr. Foster plans to spend a great deal of his leisure time in his extensive garden. He hopes to travel to the south with Mrs. Foster next winter.

Reject Russia's Bid to Join NATO Alliance

LONDON (AP) — The United States, Britain and France sent notes to Moscow today rejecting Russia's offer to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Diplomatic officials reported the Western notes argued broadly that the security proposals put forward by the Russians March 31 could in no way replace the free partnership of like-minded states at this time.

UNHURRIED LORRIES

The huge transport was crawling over the lower bridge, during the noon-hour rush one day this week, when a member of the youngest generation resurrected a phrase from the past.

"Get a horse!"

Time was when that was a familiar cry, along highways and by-ways on this continent.

What was our surprise, later the same day, to discover an item indicating that it would still be an appropriate chant for our British cousins.

Sir Leonard Browett, writing in the London Record, makes a plea for a change in the present "out-dated and unrealistic speed limit for heavy goods vehicles." The present limit in Britain—20 miles per hour. Sir Leonard wants it raised to a presumably modern and realistic 30 miles an hour. Increased industrial productivity would be the most important of many major benefits to be derived from such a charge, he declares.

Twenty miles per hour. That is clinging to the past with amazing tenacity! Of course, even that speed might prove impossible on some of the winding, hedge-hemmed country lanes—but Britain is not totally devoid of modern highways. Seeing the lorries crawl along them at 20 miles an hour must be a strange sight to visitors from this side of the Atlantic.

But, according to Sir Leonard, it is a spectacle which exists only in theory.

If the speed limit is raised to 30 miles an hour, he says, "the speeds will not be increased because, as is admitted by the Minister (of Transport) himself, nine out of every ten lorries of heavy goods vehicles ignore the 20 m.p.h. speed limit and travel faster. The time thus saved by breaking the law is, however, wasted in roadside cafes and laybys, for the drivers must arrive on a timetable scheduled to the slower speed limit."

BREAKFAST TECHNIQUES

Angels are probably giving a wide berth to a current scrap between the editors of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record and the St. Thomas Times-Journal. But we cannot resist the temptation to rush in where the angels fear to tread.

The Record quoted with approval the results of a survey in the United States which showed that the majority of wives in the country do not arise and prepare breakfasts for their husbands.

We suspect that the Times-Journal editor is a man who likes his bacon and eggs but has no talent for cooking. Instead of coming out and saying so, in a few hundred well-chosen words, he has resorted to the device of quoting the observations of an indignant St. Thomas housewife who said: "It is a wife's job," she says. Not only does she do it herself but "my daughters do as I do."

But this breakfast-getter shows some leniency for the wife who likes to lie abed.

"The wife need not take breakfast with him unless she likes," she concedes, "just a cup of tea or coffee for companionship, then she can go back to bed for another hour or so."

Companionship! At breakfast time! At any hour of the day when it is difficult enough for any normal person to put up with himself, let alone being shouldered with the task of putting up with anybody else!

The Times-Journal editor thinks that this housewife's effusion will give the Record writer something "to mull over while he is getting his own breakfast."

Getting his own breakfast? Who said anything about getting one's own breakfast. There is only one way to prepare breakfast and that is before going to bed, sometime between midnight and dawn, at that period of the day when one's mental faculties are at a peak, when the day's toil is over, memory and the evening's relaxation a recent experience, when——

Take it from there, Mr. Kitchener-Waterloo Record. Slaughter him—'em as the case may be that St. Thomas housewife is not a fictitious femme fatale.

A WOMAN'S WORLD

We are marching down the road to matriarchy.

That seems to be the conclusion to be drawn from a cartoon in the Brockville Recorder and Times.

The little woman is shown waiting for her husband off to the office and her children to school, then settling down before the television set to watch a broadcast from Washington.

Obviously before long the housewives of the nation are going to know a lot more about national and international affairs than are those forced to spend their time working or learning.

But, hold! What is that Washington program? Ah, yes, the McCarthy-Army hearings! Can one really learn anything from that type of show?

JUST FOLKS

IN HOSPITAL

They met in wheel chairs in the hall
Where patients on the doctor's day call,
Both garbed, while riding side by side,
In gowns all hospitals provide.
Though one was poor and one was rich
You couldn't tell just which was which.

They fell to talking, as men will
Who find they share a common ill.
A conversational point to strike—
They found their pains were just alike.
Symptom by symptom, good and bad,

Both prate and humble patient had.
Day after day they met and joked;
Told where the doctor's fingers probed,
How long they'd slept. That daily trip
Became a bond of fellowship
'Til fame and fortune mattered not
And all distinctions were forgot.

The world makes much of pomp and pride,
But hospitals leave sham outside,
And in the wheel chairs, great and low
Each other better come to know.
They find in pain's persistent grip
Both brotherhood and fellowship.

We have received an interesting post card from our esteemed friend, Mr. William Johnson, who is now in Egypt.

The members of the Intelligencer staff wish to thank Mr. James Wallace for a nice lot of bananas this afternoon.

French Show Old Spirit

(Ottawa Journal).

There were those who said that Frenchmen had lost their fighting spirit, that the mentality bred which shook Europe through two centuries would never again be heard. Only in Indo-China, where another pie-die defenders of Dien Bien Phu, outnumbered, continue to hurl back waves of attacking Communists, there is stirring answer. Here again is the spirit of Verdun, the valor of the famous Marshals, the courage of those who troops who on countless battlefields wrote a tale imperishable in the annals of war. Indo-China's war has been described as one of gallantry and despair. Nay, 'bravest of the brave,' must look down from the shades and salute.

Give Workers More Variety

(Milwaukee Journal)

Henry Ford, so the story goes, introduced the production line in major industry after observing the efficiency with which the Chicago stockyards turned squealing pigs into smoked ham and pork chops. The production line increased output and reduced unit costs for industry. It gave the worker high wages, but it also made free of him to tighten the same screw or assemble the same part hour after hour, day after day.

Today industry is questioning whether it is efficient to break down jobs so finely whether it is not more profitable for companies and better for the worker if he performs more than one operation and is able to transfer from one task to another.

"Job enlargement" is the name given the new process, according to the Wall Street Journal, which reports on some promising results of experiments made thus far.

In the International Business Machines Corp. plant at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., for example, the worker who used to feed cards into an electric typewriter frame now signs the paper, operates the machine and also inspects his own work. Girls who used to perform single operations in assembling electric circuits now handle three. Efficiency has increased 40 per cent.

General Motors made a job enlargement study at its Buick factory recently and is trying to eliminate some of the repetitive jobs. The Maytag Co. is experimenting with the system, and Kimberly-Clark is trying it on its clerical help.

Other firms are experimenting, but the trend is not as fast as some Labor unions are suspicious.

They would prefer standardized for labor to balk at a change which, if sincerely operated, promises to make industry more efficient and at his job more satisfying. Forward looking unions will certainly work with management to encourage what appears to be a healthy break from the treadmill past.

Start to Tap Power of Sun

(New York Times).

Every hour the sun pours upon the earth enough energy to subsist it twenty-one billion tons of coal. Even a tiny fraction of this energy can supply from solar radiation over ten trillion horse-power hours a year. The land of the temperate and tropical zones is flooded daily with energy, which the sun than mankind has utilized in the form of fuel. Falling water, uranium and muscle since it came out of the trees a million years ago. Each facts have been responsible for a century and longer, which explains why the Edison Electric Monitor fame spent about $100,000 in building solar power plants in the tropics to harness the energy rays of the sun on a boiler. A few years later, after some minor modifications. All these efforts to make the sun do the work of man's lavish expenditure of energy came to nothing. Ordinary fuel was found to be so much cheaper that even though solar radiation costs nothing a steam power plant is cheaper.

Now come the Bell Telephone Laboratories with a "solar battery" that changes this picture of failure in the commercial field into one of potential success. It is in translating this laboratory fact about the change, a little device which was developed by John Ballantyne and Lee Young, part of the Laboratories and which is already valued in the vacuum tube for many purposes. The essential element of the Transistor upon which the laboratories now rely is chemically pure silicon to which have been added bits of impurities are added to convert it into a semi-conductor of electricity. Control of a few grains of silicon and it is possible to supplement a galena crystal or arsenic a radio transmitter that broadcasts both music and speech. The devices that we are about soon make use of sun-powered batteries at amplifying stations in rural telephone system. In fact it is now being done at Americus, Ga.

This is a far cry from lighting a cigarette by batteries, but when it is considered that even with this device only a couple of transistors can be so linked that power from the sun can be delivered at a rate of 10 watts for a square yard of surface an old dream is deftly translated into reality.

Two decades of painstaking research in the Bell Laboratories—research conducted by a group of able physicists competently directed—have paid off handsomely. It is a plan. And the strange thing is that the scientists who worked on the old crystal detector which boys who are now grown men used in their homemade wireless sets to pick up bedtime stories and listen to the radio calls of their mates in other states. We are still far from driving the kitchen refrigerator with sunbeams, but we are getting there rapidly. It may well be, as Dr. Jerome Gonaty has been telling us, we might to encourage more interest in atomic power to sun power.

In Praise Of Salmon

(Ottawa Journal)

Offhand, the Grocers' Gazette would not be looked on as the vehicle of lyrical prose but we have at hand this Unified Kingdom publication and on Canadian salmon the Gazette sings in a high, clear, lovely voice.

It chortles that, as one of its last bulk-buying jobs, the Ministry of Food bought 41,000 cases of salmon at Vancouver and sent them to Britain. It had made free of government restrictions. It may be expected there will be canned salmon for all who want it. With this glorious prospect before it, the Gazette has put its pen to the literature of antiquity and found a 4th Century scholar praising salmon as "delicious" and "best laid in an armor of scales; your head is smaller and you are a fit dish for feasts where choice is difficult."

With a start of surprise, the Gazette found that Scottish salmon were being fed on vitamins in Medicine the authors cite no less than 300 reports of laboratory and clinical studies of vitamin E and observations of physicians and veterinaries in the United States, Canada, England, Holland and Prussia on the value of vitamin E in the treatment of muscular dystrophy, progressive muscular atrophy, locomotor ataxia, multiple sclerosis, sterility in female animals and prematurity in males as well, but no significant clinical remedial results of vitamin E in human sterility. In vitamin E.

New Brunswick Dependable

(St. John Telegraph-Journal).

One of those telling little items of life is reported:

"Due to erosion Niagara Falls has moved a quarter of a mile upstream since it was first viewed by a white explorer 275 years ago.

This appears to justify our constant claim that New Brunswick, gher provinces, New Brunswick has a solid dependability few can approach.

It is 330 years since Samuel de Champlain explored the St. John River and entered the mouth of the St. John Harbor. He saw what we saw when they rested on the Reversing Falls is just what we may see when we look at it today.

Our falls have not moved a quarter of a mile upstream since down-stream, neither to the east nor to the west. They stay where they are, and we are not doubting about and making it impossible for people to live on it. We are right confident that the natural landscape will not be altered when they walk on it today.

There is no stability about this part of the country, and changing about every two or three centuries.

Of course, New Brunswick can undertake changes if circumstances dictate. We have always had no advantage in allowing Niagara Falls to go on wearing away and thither and have no intention of letting the Reversing Falls do so. We have no plan to turn the Bay of Fundy any channel of the nature occurred in the Niagara. Nor Indians' legendary Gloosgap knocked a great hole in the Reversing Falls establishing the Falls for the first time and that was probably the last change.

Of course, he was working with good material. New Brunswick rock, and he made a permanent job of it such as could hardly be duplicated in less-favored parts, but that is just the point—other provinces have been brought to compare in quality with the very basis of our New Brunswick life.

Sees Cougar In Ontario

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

The report by two Port Arthur railwaymen that they had seen a panther in the vicinity of the tracks while on a run over the C.N.R. between Port Arthur and Dorion provides a measure of support for the belief that this animal, previously considered extinct, has recently moved into the general area.

From the viewpoint of the railwaymen it would appear they are qualified to make identification while travelling by train because the panther, distinct from other species of cat found in this district, namely the lynx and the bobcat, has a long tail.

Likewise it is hard to be making a comeback in other parts of the continent, inclusive of Minnesota, from which state it may have moved into Western Ontario. That it may have been driven from its haunts by many is also consistent with its nature and habits. Naturally shy, it is the most unobtainable faculty for keeping out of sight while also it may follow a man for miles or hours.

It is the same animal that, more commonly in British Columbia, carries several names, including cougar and mountain lion. Its coming to this district is interesting principally to naturalists who like to keep track of its movements in due proportion. It is scarcely, at least not yet, to be regarded as in any way a menace or threat to life.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

WHAT EVER HAPPENED TO VITAMIN E?

Up to about a year ago there were a good many queries concerning the value of vitamin E for this or that kind of heart trouble. Most of the queries were inspired by a professional writer's piece in a popular magazine telling the "amazing" results obtain obscure prac-titioners were getting by giving vitamin E. By "shots", of course.

Dr. Brady

Early in 1933 newspaper readers in the U.S. and Canada, or those who wrote to me, began to lose interest in vitamin E and I could count on my fingers the number of queries about its effect on the heart, so far this year. In an authoritative work, Bicknell and Prescott's The Vitamins in Medicine the authors cite no less than 300 reports of laboratory and clinical studies of vitamin E and observations of physicians and veterinaries in the United States, Canada, England, Holland and Prussia on the value of vitamin E in the treatment of muscular dystrophy, progressive muscular atrophy, locomotor ataxia, multiple sclerosis, sterility in female animals and prematurity in males as well, but no significant clinical remedial results of vitamin E in human sterility. In view of the great demand for vitamin E as a remedy for heart trouble, following the sales promotion in the popular magazines, it seems remarkable that not a word about the value of vitamin E in the treatment of heart trouble is to be found in these 286 authoritative reports.

We know that human beings require a certain amount of vitamin E daily and that all the daily intake is insufficient poor muscular development in infants, muscular dystrophy, and abortion are more likely to occur. Just what the minimum daily requirement of vitamin E may be, the nutrition investigators have not yet established.

But here's a simple fact to think about, if you are interested in vitamin E and good nutrition. Have you perchance come across the term "cheat foods" in this column? No? Well, I'm sorry about that but when next I ... let me mind now, what I want to say is that the amount of vitamin E in modern diets caused by the intensive cultivation of plants is probably that the average diet is on the edge of a deficiency." (Bicknell and Prescott).

In other words, when I suggest that you bite the leaf end off in a peck of plain wheat and use it in the every day diet, I ain't talkin' silly.

Plain wheat is probably the richest natural food source of vitamin E.

SCRAPS

Incentive within our minds and hearts is what continually drives us forward. We can never become idlers by always having in mind something else to do. The reason why so many people become stagnant is that they imagine they have reached their limit of capacity. The great of this earth, however, never consider that they had reached their limit. They died with still something else to do.

Don't let know your capacity. It is well that we do not for then we would limit our efforts and soon lose our incentive to excel and achieve. There must be something ahead at all times to keep us stirred and warm with enthusiasm, desire, interest and continual effort to excel are what create the master, be he writer, musician, or scientist.

In the education of the mind, in the betterment of the city or state there are always other things—and important ones—left to do. We are constantly making new laws to fit new conditions. I have watched with interest the rise and fall of one thing after another, and so on to the end of the day—with something planned out for the morrow—something else left to do.

In a boy, I worked on the farm and it interested me to see how active a mind my farmer employer had. No matter what we might be working on, when it was finished there always appeared something else to do, some new chore to accomplish, or some new use of time. The farmer influenced me greatly in many ways. To this day, I recall his rare common sense.

Time goes rapidly when we have in mind something else to do, for it is the interest in things that animates our enthusiasm and keeps us wanting to do more and better things. It is the continuity of life that keeps us on our toes, with the clear vision ahead.

Carbon Paper Banned by Reds

(Milwaukee Journal)

It is now illegal for anyone in Communist Poland to own a duplicating paper. The National Committee for Free Europe, in reporting this news from behind the iron curtain, attributes, this situation to the fanatical fear Reds, the committee says, fear that the people will start printing underground, anti-Communist newspapers.

THE PACKSAD

By GREGORY CLARK

My Aunt Lib is the last of her numerous generation, and the repository of a host of family recipes. Grandma Greig's oatmeal cookies; rhubarb marmalade. Devil Food Cake which was so wonderful its ingredients could never be written down; mustard; how of such incredible subtlety that you could not tell if they were sweet or sour, mustardy or glorious sugary, vinegary or elusive by sweet; and which made all meat, whether hash, beef, lamb or sausage taste like 100 per cent better, net.

Aunt Lib has all these and countless others in her keeping. She got them from her mother, and my mother, and all her other sisters, cousins and aunts, not to mention food-minded friends and relations from Halifax to Victoria. And what woman was not food-minded fifty or sixty years ago in this country, when it was expanding, and its every needed food as befitted expanders?

But, alas, the recipes are not recorded. For Aunt Lib belongs to the generation that not only did not need to have receipes written down, but if they were written, they were never followed. What was great or noble in a recipe elucided the written word. It was myste. It was a gift.

Now, when Aunt Lib is growing a little old, it is annoying to listen to her grandchildren trying to rescue for posterity some of the secrets of the golden days.

"Well, let's see," says Aunt Lib. "You take flour——"

"How much?" checks the modern.

"Whatever is needed," explains Aunt Lib, patiently, "And butter ..."

"How much butter A tablespoonful, or a tablespoonful?"

"Well, of course, that depends on the amount of flour you're using, doesn't it, dear," Aunt Lib says kindly. "And a little baking powder...."

"But look!" wail the moderns. "You have to tell us the amounts."

"How can I tell the amounts?" scoffs Aunt Lib. "Unless I am eating it!"

So she does it. And the modern gang round ready to document it. But so swift are her hands, so deft of this, a dab of that; a little wisp of the other, that the modernes surrender, as they surrender when they see Margot Fonteyn dancing, and realize that some things are beyond the reach of science, record, documentation.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE SANDWICH MAN

A minister once remarked that he felt very much like a sandwich man who goes about with a sign in front and behind advertising nothing in particular, yet never eating any of it himself.

This of course could be said of any Christian who professes to be, but of us have religious theories that satisfy better than our practices. We defend the unassailable truths of the gospel, and then live our lives according to the ways of the world. We talk about the greatness of God, and then shake in fear over the possibility of something happening to us or to our loved ones. We subscribe to Biblical statement that God is love and then we pour hatred and impreca upon the heads of people who disagree with us.

We long to be the original figure, we are like sandwich men advertising nothing for sale at a reasonable price, but we never go to the restaurant ourselves. We are like the ox on the wagon truck. We satisfy ourselves with standing where we could have the bread of Life.

Human existence is the spectacle of continuous trying to walk in light but choosing to walk in darkness—wrinkling through a world full of gifts which the hand of God continually offers and passing pleasure of appetite, hatefulness, and evil.

SOMETHING ELSE TO DO

Wind-Chester Jacket

Among sports fashions at a recent four show in London was this wind-chester jacket in black moleskin with ribbed wool neckline, cuffs and waistband. It was designed in short-haired skin by a London fur merchant (Swears and Wells). Many other fashions at the show by London's big fur traders indicate a gradual swing to long-haired skins. Canadian fur breeders originated the longer-haired pelts and supplied free furs to some of Britain's "Top 12," who accordingly featured Canadian silver fox in spring and summer couture styles. Now London's big fur traders are showing fashions that indicate a gradual swing towards longer-haired pelts.

In the last decade, with the exception of mink, up-to-date and fashionable fur ensembles have been short-haired styles ranging from ranch mink to clipper beaver lamb. Even this spring sports fur fashions include a windbreaker in black moleskin with ribbed wool neckline, cuffs and waistband.

However, the latest thing in honey-colored lamb sports a tuxedo front of wolf—just right for skiing parties.

A fur firm, (Swears and Wells) soon to open a fur store in Montreal, featured a stole for evening wear combining white fox and ranch mink. One of the outstanding Canadian fur designs shown at the couture displays was a cream linen waist-length cape like two huge circular collars trimmed with fox. Tied at the neck with a bow, it gives an exposed neckline.

In a fur show at a select west end department store, short fur jackets attracted much attention. A white Chinese lamb with fox cuffs gave summer warmth to dark linens.

Long-Haired Pelts Coming Back in Style

LONDON (CP)—A move made recently by Canadian fur breeders seems to be swinging fur fashion in favor of long-haired skins.

WASHINGTON HOSTESS

Mrs. Gwen Cafritz, Budapest-born hostess whose Washington parties are the talk of the town, lives in a modernistic home, overlooking a tree-covered valley. Looked on as a rival for such Capital hostesses as Washington's leading hostess, Mrs. Perle Mesta's title as Washington's leading hostess, Mrs. Cafritz says she doesn't go in for lavish clothes and finds talk about food "moderately boring." She is the wife of a wealthy real estate dealer. (CP Photo).

Washington's Noted Hostess Says Talk About Food Boring

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — A vivacious beauty, reported to be rivalling Perle Mesta as Washington's leading hostess, says she finds talk about food "moderately boring."

Mr. Gwen Cafritz, whose parties are the talk of the town and her home the setting for many a dinner for top diplomats and policy makers, says she plans menus as "routine."

"I work out the list: I decide whether there will be light soups or heavy soups. I decide what wines: and the other courses; and then I hand the list to the chef and he does the rest.

"I am not very interested in food. I am far more interested in art, in community life, in good citizenship and in sports. I was trained in school to fence, swim and ride. I swim and ride almost every day."

STATELY FIGURE

The raven-haired Mrs. Cafritz, whose figure is moulded along hour-glass lines, talks with a slight European inflection, reminder of her Budapest birthplace.

She lives in a strikingly modern home, filled with thick rugs, a treasure of modern and traditional furniture, Mexican murals and the latest in oils, a huge sunken living room and lavish playrooms for overflow guests in a so-called basement.

The rear French doors lead to a patio overlooking an eye-filling tree-covered valley and the Cafritz swimming pool.

We drank Martinis served by a handsome butler, also born in Budapest. Mrs. Cafritz waved aside queries about the Mesta-Cafritz rivalry.

"Then why don't you invite her to some of your parties and why doesn't she invite you?" this reporter asked.

"Well, we just don't. Perhaps we will."

POISE, PERSONALITY

The talk quickly turned to other subjects. Mrs. Cafritz, who just the previous day had some 400 guests at a huge Easter party, appeared perfectly relaxed though she had gone through a "trying" day, riding, receiving huge bouquets of orchids and other flowers from the diplomats, and calling cards.

She was dressed in an ankle-length lime-colored cocktail gown, silver slippers and a mink silk scarf. The wife of a wealthy real estate dealer, she spoke of a large collection of jewels which her husband had purchased, but she wore only a pearl necklace and an egg-shaped light blue sapphire ring.

What turns a woman into a Washington hostess? Well, said Mrs. Cafritz, there is a lot of community work to be done, such as Red Cross and charity works, and money that be collected and parties given for those who work in the various groups.

"It is part of the community life. I believe in good citizenship."

Weddings

FLOOD—ELLIOTT

The Full Gospel Tabernacle, Frankford, was filled for the lovely wedding on Saturday, April 24th, at 2:30 p.m., when Mary Dorothy Elliott, of Frankford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott, became the bride of Robert Douglas Flood, of Owen Sound, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flood. The Rev. C. F. Pierce, of Frankford, assisted by the Rev. J. G. McIlhone, of Perry Sound, Ontario, officiated before a background of tall graceful gladioli, snapdragons and ferns.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Carl Andress, who also sang, accompanied by soloist, Mrs. Wilbert Reid, who sang "The Wedding Prayer," and during the service of the registry, "Together."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of white bridal satin and fine caught up at the yoke with pearl drop-lets. She wore a floor-length veil of nylon tulle held in place with a sweetheart halo trimmed with simulated lily-of-the-valley sprays, and carried a crescent of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. George Sine, of Harold Ontario, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a ballerina-length gown of maize windowpane organza over taffeta, with matching shoulder-length veil. She carried a nosegay of mauve sweetpeas centred with yellow roses.

Miss Anetta Wood, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, gowned in ballerina-length mauve nylon tulle over taffeta, with matching shoulder-length veil. She carried a nosegay similar to that of the matron of honor.

Miss Connie Elliott, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, attired in a matching ensemble similar to that of the matron of honor and carried similar flowers.

Little Misses Marlene Wilson, of Matheson, Ontario, and Carol Sine, of Harold, Ontario, nieces of the bride, were flower girls, attired in frocks of pale green taffeta and carrying basquettes of sweetpeas.

Mr. George Sine, of Harold, Ontario, attended the bride-groom, while Mr. Robert Derry, Marmora, and Mr. Reginald Elliott, of Frankford, brother of the bride, acted as ushers.

At the reception which was held in the Sunday School auditorium of the church, the bride's mother, wearing grey-checked tweed, over accessories and corsage of pink sweetpeas, received the guests.

For the wedding trip to western points, Hamilton, Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the bride donned a beige suit with natural and dark brown accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Flood will reside in Pembroke, Ontario.

Guests were present from Matheson, Parry Sound, Stirling, Belleville, Napanee, West Huntingdon and Marmora.

'WASTAGE' MOUNTS UP,

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — American consumers have built more than 9,000,000 homes with the lumber "wasted" on crates and shipping boxes during the Second World War, the American Ordnance Association was told Thursday. Col. James N. Sammons, chief of materials, packaging and handling for the research and development command, quoted a report that 50 per cent of American lumber production during the war was consumed in packaging, packing and shipping activities.

The best way to wash clothes or fabrics that have cross-resistant finishes, is in warm rather than hot water. Very hot water will remove some of the cross-resistant finish after repeated washings.

Your Hospital

During the past quarter century there have been many new inventions and developments, some good, some bad, but most to our advantage and benefit. Radio has been developed to an incredible degree; radar, television and the atomic bomb are the latest to be born and developed; diesel engines, jet planes and helicopters are among man-made creations of recent years.

In the field of medicine and hospitalization new discoveries and new methods have been unconspicuous, too, in the past few years.

Looking back to 1929 it will be recalled that hospitals, at that time, had no nursing aides or assistants. Not too many hospital rooms had plumbing. Spinal syringes were usually of a buzzer type; signal box, blood banks were unheard of; diathermy, short wave, was in use; penicillin and the sulfa group were not yet discovered.

But today all that is changed. Seldom a month passes but some amazing new drug is discovered, some improved hospital technique is developed which saves time, relieves pain and even extends the life span of human mortals.

The result is that many more people—some experts, others specialists—are employed in hospitals. As many as 70 different occupations can be found in many hospitals. Add to this the responsibility for the well-being and upkeep of the majority of hospitals in Ontario today represent over 60 per cent of the capital cost of operating cost.

But, despite the fact the daily cost of hospital confinement is higher today than ever before, a patient's dollar goes further and continued good health have never been greater. Furthermore, although the per diem cost for hospital confinement is considerably higher now than it was 25 years ago, the length of stay in hospitals is steadily decreasing.

Illnesses that required lengthy treatment not so many years ago now respond quickly to new drugs and new techniques, enabling the patient to be back earning a living after shorter hospitalization and convalescence.

This means that in most instances, hospital bills are no higher now than would have been the cost of treating the same illness a few years ago.

In Belleville your hospital employs 227 persons, and wages over a twelve month period total $481,333.89.

Hospitals are big businesses and fascinating ties too. Plan to visit the Belleville General Hospital on Hospital Day, Wednesday, May 12.

Two New P.T.A. Units Will Be Formed in City

The monthly meeting of the Parent Teacher Association of the Separate Schools of Belleville, was held recently in St. Michael's auditorium. Mr. R. B. Sexton presided.

The minutes were read by Mrs. K. Morrell and Mrs. L. Callaghan read the correspondence.

Mr. J. Colligan, Spring Fair chairman, announced that tickets for the dance, to be held in the Holy Rosary hall, are now available to all members.

The members were pleased to hear the following announcement made by Mrs. B. E. Burley, archdiocesan president for Kingston diocese.

"At the request of Rev. Father J. J. Buckley a second P.T.A. unit will be established for St. Joseph's Parish. At the request of Rev. Father M. Sloan a separate P.T.A. unit will be established for Holy Rosary Parish. Mr. Hugh McGlade, organization chairman of the archdiocesan council, will organize these units early in September."

The association is proud of the two younger parishes and wish them success in their new work.

A new record player is being purchased for the Grade one room at St. Michael's.

Sister M. Rose's, Miss Murphy's and Sister M. Helen Rita's classes won the attendance prizes for this month.

A nominating committee has been appointed for this year's election. The chairman is Mr. C. Casey.

"Our Lady of Guadalupe" a religious film was shown to the members. This film told of the persecution in Mexico several years ago, and of how Our Lady appearing to a Mexican peasant requested the establishment of a shrine in her honor. This shrine was built and the persecution ceased. Pilgrims make frequent journeys to the shrine in Mexico seeking Our Lady's assistance.

The film was much enjoyed by all present.

Belleville, District 6 Reg. N.A. Sponsor Delightful 'Nurses' Tall'

A delightful "Nurses' Tea", was held Wednesday in Bridge Street United Church Sunday School auditorium, under the auspices of three nursing organizations of Belleville and District No. 6, of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

The joint social fellowship prevailed and many friendships renewed over the teacups among classmates, and former graduates. A number of patients remained for the tea "Shut-ins while," who had cared for them during a recent illness.

The guests were greeted by Miss M. L. Peart, director of nursing, Belleville General Hospital, Misses Collier and Goodman, Mesdames Thurston and Howie.

Miss N. Brown was in charge of the tea table at the door with Miss S. Wonnacott and Miss M. S. Bell, who were gracious hostess, inviting the many guests to the tea room.

HEARTWARMING TEA ROOM

The tea room was most restful and charming. On the floodlighted stage enthwined with blue and white streamers and a shower drop of rosewood curtains, stood a three-tiered wedding cake complete with her pin and black band. Large baskets of daffodils, pussy willows, and yellow cowslips adorned the platform.

On the tea table, with its cut-work cloth, stood a nurse doll in white uniform with red lined navy cape. An arrangement of dark red tulips and white chrysanthemums, accented by dark blue candles in silver holders presented a beautiful picture.

The little quartet tables, each covered with a snowy white cloth were attractively placed in the auditorium. A black handled nurse's cap and one white candle on the tables carried all back to that first nurse, who so many years ago, tended the sick by the light of one candle symbolic of the nursing profession.

Mrs. A. C. Miller, pianist, provided delightful music during the afternoon.

Mrs. A. E. Miles was the pleasing tea room hostess, while those presiding at the silver service were Miss Cory, Droppo, superintendent, Trenton Memorial Hospital and Mrs. R. S. Rutherford, and latterly Miss M. L. Peart and Mrs. F. Leavens.

Mrs. Leavens has the honor of being a member of the graduating class 1895, the first class of nurses from Belleville General Hospital. She was the former of St. Frances Hudson, a daughter of the late Dr. Samuel Hudson, who practised at Roslin, Ontario and also well known to many in that district.

Looking efficient in their stiff white caps and aprons, several of the student nurses served.

Replenishing and behind the scenes in the kitchen were, Mesdames Barclay, McKerrow, Arnott, O'Connor, Lasby, Smith, Winters, Knowlton and Evans.

BAZAAR ACTIVITIES

The classrooms were most active with bazaar merchandise.

Homecooking booth, Mesdames M. Bean, Bonter, Bly, Breach; the apron booth, Mesdames McCreary, Lathangue, Reid, Barrager, Wood, Irvine; candy booth, Mesdames Taylor, James, Dodge, Misses Kilpatrick, D. Smith; fancy and knitted goods, Mesdames Dowsett, Williamson, Bell, Greer, Herriman, Bryson and Lenfesty; white elephants, Mesdames Campbell, Hall, Mc-V. Grose; parcel post, Misses J. Finley, S. Irvine, Mrs. Barrett; needlework, Mrs. Wm. Weston, Ducette; looking after the tiny tots in the nursery were, Misses Graham, Gomme, McEwan.

Mrs. William McGee, Jr., was general convener with Mrs. A. Howie in charge of decoration and each booth convened by the first lady named.

The "Nurses' Tea" committee are most grateful to all, who so faithfully gave of their time and efforts to provide such a delightful affair and extend sincere thanks.

Mother's Night Held by Eight Belleville Cubs

Prince Charles School was the scene of a fun and fellowship night for the Eighth Belleville cubs and mothers. This was their first mothers' meeting and it was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Glenn Sullivert welcomed the mothers, and then while the cubs looked on, the mothers were quickly lined up in relay formation. Many a worried frown and doubtful look was replaced with a smile when it was learned that this was not going to be a leapfrog race or, in fact, a balloon race.

The cubs then took a hand at designing, and with newspaper and pins fashioned some weird and wonderful summer gowns for their mothers. The judges selected the creation worn by Mrs. Allen Skinner, and designed by son, Donald, as the most likely to withstand the showers from the May of Quinte.

Now for the big event of the evening! For weeks the cubs had been depositing their spending money in a bank at the pack meeting, and then came the shopping day, then the wrapping day, and now finally the day for the Stephen Wilson barely had time to finish his presentation address before each cub dived under his chair and proudly produced a gift, and with the true cub grin presented it to his mother. Nowhere could be found a more varied collection of gifts, ranging from diamond pins to shelf paper, but by the look of the mothers each one was truly appreciated.

A sing-song and a few skits were followed by refreshments Mr. Phillip Alcorn, A.D.C., Wolf Cubs spoke briefly stating he hoped it might be possible to hold a mother and father and son banquet at some time.

The singing of vespers closed a delightful meeting.

The attractive home of Mrs. C. G. Henley, Victoria Avenue, was prettily adorned yesterday afternoon with daffodils, bleeding hearts, tulips and narcissi for the "Mother's Day" tea, sponsored by the Grand International Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Receiving the many guests were Mrs. Arthur Drury, president of the Auxiliary, and Mrs. C. G. Henley, hostess.

Accenting this symphony in pink were little silver baskets of mint-and after dinner mints in delicate tones of green, yellow, pink and white.

Presiding at the silver service were Mrs. Arthur Drury and Mrs. McIntyre; Mrs. A. Clarke and Mrs. W. Morgan; Mrs. L. Grey and Mrs. W. Hall; Mrs. J. Fisher and Mrs. W. Hammett.

Those serving included: Mesdames J. Cunningham, C. Fisher, R. Jones, M. Petty, K. Bunnell, R. Sargent, and H. Stairs, while those replenishing the table, Mrs. H. C. Batchelor and Mrs. J. Wanstone. Replenishing the plates, Mrs. M. Boyd, Mrs. A. Hall, Mrs. P. Welch and Mrs. A. Hall.

Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. N. Robb, Mrs. W. Spring and Mrs. W. Graham. Mrs. R. F. Dyne was the gracious tea room hostess and Mrs. T. Crosley the treasurer for the afternoon.

RELIGIOUS CONVENTIONS

The homecooking table, with its three pots of purple African violets was daintily bedecked with a bevy of superb date breads; fruit breads showing alluring flecks of fruits and cherries; rhubarb pie, oozing enticing delicious juices; lemon pies topped with golden meringues; white iced layer cakes; apple pies and blueberry pies; muffins; taffy tarts and a jar of wild raspberries. The solid debate declaration drawn. The cake was won by Mrs. Kilbourne.

Presiding over a dainty handkerchief, which would also go to the bidder of the lucky ticket, was Mrs. A. Bigonesse. The handkerchief was won by Miss Lois Moorman.

Mrs. E. N. Pigden and Mrs. C. G. Henley were convener and co-convener.

A dainty tea, nicely convened and pleasingly accessful.

Mrs. J. M. Woodbridge Explains Bride's Counsel to Phiat Sorority

On Wednesday, the Phiat Sorority of the Y.M.C.A., presented Mrs. J. M. Woodbridge, Simpson's Bride's Counsel, as guest speaker. Mrs. Woodbridge gave an enlightening talk on the general "Do's and Don'ts" of wedding, using an illustration throughout.

Miss Betty Ray, president of the Sorority, welcomed the guests and gave a brief outline of the work of the Phiats. Miss Ray then introduced the guest speaker.

Mrs. Woodbridge explained to her audience exactly how the bride's counsel works and what assistance it offers to every bride. Canadian weddings are a mixture of American and British customs, therefore Canadian brides should follow Canadian magazines for suggestions rather than the American magazines. The first duty, and a most important one, of the young couple, is to notify friends and relatives personally of their engagement. Do not let friends and relatives hear the good news via the grapevine.

DRESS, LAST DETAIL

Although the wedding dress is uppermost in the bride's mind, Mrs. Woodbridge stressed the fact that selection of the dress should be one of the last details to be looked after. There are several reasons for this, the wedding may have to be postponed, meaning a different styled dress; the bride may gain or lose weight.

The bride should first book the church, florist, photographer, and her attendants (this applies to the bridegroom also), choose a caterer, decide on the invitations, and thank-you notes for gifts should be written before the wedding, if possible. Announcements should be mailed the night of the wedding. "If the wedding is held at a fraternity, a invitation should be sent, otherwise a personal invitation should be written to his wife.

Choose an attractive color scheme and try to let the attendants wear colors which do them justice. Choose your own color scheme, but don't, Woodbridge stressed, give your attendants a choice of styles. Simple jewellery is most appropriate.

Use flowers in season to save added expense. The speaker explained that it is not necessary for a bride to carry expensive red roses, that is often more becoming to choose a color which fits in the color scheme for the dresses.

In closing, Mrs. Woodbridge mentioned that every wedding should be pretty, happy and an occasion to be remembered.

FASHION SHOW

The grand finale took the form of a fashion show. Amid the strains of the Wedding March three lovely models emerged appropriately attired in wedding gowns for an elaborate, average, or inexpensive wedding.

Miss Betty Shortell wore an original gown of chalk white wool jersey. The low vee neck was enhanced by a turn-back collar heavily encrusted with pearls and sequins. It was also accented by a sash which encircled Betty's waist. The skirt ended in a cathedral train. A matching headdress was also worn.

Miss Lorna Mayor modelled a floor-length gown of pearl-pink nylon tulle and Chantilly type lace over satin. The strapless bodice was of molded tulle over which was worn a long sleeved jacket with batteau neck. The skirt featured panels of lace. A Juliet cap with pearl trim completed the ensemble.

Miss Doreen Gray wore a cocktail-length gown of oyster-white organdy. It had a full skirt and a wide "V" neck. Tiny buttons leading to the pointed waistlined bodice. "V" shaped collet-length sleeves and full skirt added to the charm of this dress. Loreen's headdress consisted of a white cocktail hat of corded lace. The bride carried a white beautiful bouquets. The dresses and flowers were supplied by Simpson's.

Mrs. Woodbridge was thanked on behalf of the Phiats by Mary Weltz. Miss Aldythe Arthur provided the background music.

Door prizes were won by Lois Mitts and Betty Burton. A beautiful bouquet, compliments of Simpson's, was won by Mildred Schultz.

The evening was a great success and the brides-to-be showered Mrs. Woodbridge with many questions. A Simpson's bride's book was given to each of the guests.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

GOOD MANNERS

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A BROKEN MARRIAGE CAN OPEN WAY TO BETTER THINGS

It's hard, all right, when your marriage is on the rocks, and love breaks up, whatever the reasons may be. A certain amount of sympathy is fully understandable, then.

The only thing, of course, is not to let the self-pity run away with you. It's a pretty insidious—and sometimes a dangerously enjoyable—emotion, which, if not checked before it gets too strong a hold, will sure as certain, turn into habitual self-indulgence. Then you've really got a fight on your hands to break the habit before it ruins your life.

Self-pity over a broken marriage is not quite so understandable, though, when love has died and there's nothing but bitterness in your heart toward the one you once loved: when actually, it's an overwhelming relief to be rid of a person who has made you desperately unhappy. In such circumstances, one would expect you to be so glad to have the burden off your back that you'd be congratulating yourself on a long day for your luck instead of feeling sorry for yourself.

One woman who is just ridding herself of a husband with whom she's divorced says she wants nothing more to do in the sorry-for-herself type, but she goes to realize her good fortune. She writes:

"I am a woman who has been married twice—My first husband died, leaving me with three children. Now my second husband and I are separating because we never got along.

"He works away from home and rooms with another man, but after succeeding in separating my oldest son from his wife, he said he and the man he rooms with were going to live with my sons wife and another woman. Fortunately, I managed to get my son to take his wife back for the sake of their baby.

"I did love my husband once, but I don't believe I could ever live with him again. In fact, I don't even want to see him again. Please tell me what to do, and which way to turn, as I am a very unhappy woman."

What should she do? Well, if she has definitely decided, as she appears to have done, that she wants this second husband around no longer, then the only thing for her to do is to turn her back on the past and begin building for the future.

Of course she's unhappy, and of course this will be hard to do. But after all, she evidently got what she wanted when she got rid of the man.

Which way should she turn? Unless she has full assurance that her husband is going to support her and seven children still at home, I should think she'd turn at once to the very practical matter of how she's going to provide the necessary support. And in order to make the best possible plans, I'd suggest that she have a talk with someone at the veterans' service organization there may be in her town. If there's none right in town, then she should find out the name and address of the nearest one, make an appointment to go there and tell whoever she sees the whole story of her problem. Whatever advice and practical help she needs will be forthcoming.

Then I suggest that instead of looking upon herself as "a very unhappy woman," she should regard herself as a woman who is now free to order her life as she wishes to; a woman with an opportunity to make new friends, find new interests and sharp in any activities outside the home that she likes. An opportunity, in fact, to build herself a new and better life, with no one to prevent her from doing so.

The way I see it, from what she says about her husband, she's better off without him. Now let her brace up; put her mind on the welfare of her children and enjoy their society while she can. Economic problem may be with the state welfare organization, and on her own part, with courage and determination to make the most of the opportunity to broaden her horizons in interesting, worthwhile directions.

If she will do this, the first thing she knows she'll wake up one morning to the realization that she's "a very unhappy woman" no longer, but a busy, useful and happy one.

GIFTS FROM FIANCE'S FAMILY TO FIANCEE . . .

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son has just become engaged to a girl whom our family loves dearly. I'd like to give her a very special gift as an engagement gift. Will you be so kind as to suggest some appropriate gifts? And what would be appropriate, too, for the members of our family to give her?

Fiance's Mother

Engagement presents are usually presents for the bride-to-be. One of the most popular presents for the fiance's mother to give is a set of lingerie, embroidered either with the girl's first name (often in the delicately of her signature) or the initials or monogram of her maiden name. Sometimes the fiance's mother gives her an especially beautiful handkerchief, lace or lace-edged, to be carried at her wedding. Or you might like to give her a handsome white Bride's Book," very timely, for her to use in recording her wedding presents. Or a large beautifully-monogrammed white handkerchief, a bed jacket, or sheer things or gloves. Or a piece of real or costume jewelry, perhaps set with her birthstone. Or a white finely—beaded evening bag.

An appropriate gift for either you or a member of your family to give her is a travel-clock, or a clock for her dressing-table or desk: a purse; a compact or vanity-case; an overnight bag (plain or fitted) or other piece of luggage; a wrist-watch; silver cut crystal photograph frame (silver or double); gold or silver key-chain with monogrammed tag; silver or gold purse-pencil; pen and pencil set, stamped with her name; jewel case; jeweled comb; a comb in a case, for her evening bag. Sometime the other members of the fiance's family" combine resources to give the engaged girl a set for her dressing-table or a desk set.

SEATING GUESTS AT DINNER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a dinner party which is to be planned with some formality, although not strict formality (is the word "semi-formal"?) what is the correct way to plan the seating of the guests?

A New Hostess.

There is a basic pattern for the seating-arrangements at practically all dinners, formal, semi-formal, informal. The hostess has the place at the head of the table, and the host sits oppoult her, at the foot of the table. At the right of the host is the woman guest of honor (or if she is not definitely to be designated as "guest of honor," the woman of first importance for some reason, because of distinction perhaps, or of age, or visitor-from-out-of-town). At the left of the host is the woman of next importance. At the right of the hostess is another man guest of honor, and at her left, the man who is to be given the second place of importance. The other guests are seated alternately, women and men, according to what the hostess thinks (and hopes!) is their congeniality. And it is, of course, not correct to seat a man and wife next to each other.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

STRETCH TO BE LITHESOME AS A CAT

"For the woman who wants to exercise at home my best advice is: imitate the cat", says a director of physical education. "If you have ever watched a cat enjoying a long, thorough, delicious stretch, you will know what I mean. The lazy cat is not a strenuously active animal. But she keeps her figure all her life. She knows how to stretch. She will do her exercises many times a day. It would be a good thing if more women would follow her example. There would be fewer heavyweights, fewer victims of ungainly, jerky movements, more grace of action."

The human body is like a piece of string. You can let it sag in coils and curves or you can stretch its full length tautly. Sagging may have as deplorable an effect upon the inner organs as it has on the appearance.

Stretching exercises should start with the head and move downward until they include the entire physical frame. Move the head up and down, throwing it back between the shoulder blades; raising the arms backward and forward in vertical movements, keeping them stretched as far as you can. Swing the legs in wide circles. Stretch them as you feel a tug at the line of the hip and way down to the ankle.

Do the same movements sidewise. Turn the head so the chin points first over one shoulder and over the other—and a double chin will disappear.

Spread the arms out vertically over and over again, with a hard pull on the shoulder muscles. Bend at the hips from side to side. Grand for reducing that little bulge below the waist line!

Touching the floor without bending the knees is more effective when the body is stretched full length before the downward movements of the hands. It tones the tendons in the back of the legs if they are become weakened by wearing high heels.

Exercise will improve the complexion because they increase the circulation of the blood. Also we breathe more deeply, reducing dieting less likely to get tiny lines in their faces if we take ten minutes of stretching every day.

QUESTION:

Please . . . help me to get recipe for "Daffodil Cake". . . It is so nice to serve at Easter.—Anna M. S.

ANSWER:

This letter is dated April 6. I received it April 16. Since my copy for Easter was sent out two weeks ahead of that time, and this letter bore no address or surname, I was helpless to reply in time. Sorry

DAFFODIL CAKE

(About 9 whites and 4 yolks)

One cup sifted cake flour, 1 1-2 cups sifted sugar, 1 cup egg whites, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 4 egg yolks beaten until thick and lemon-colored, 1-2 teaspoon orange extract. Sift then measure the flour and to it add 3-4 cup sugar and sift together four times. Beat egg whites and salt in large bowl. Now divide this mixture into two equal parts. To one part add fold in the vanilla. Into the other fold the thick and unbeaten egg yolks and orange extract. Spoon into ungreased tube pan, alternating the white and yellow mixtures. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes then increase heat to 325 deg. Fahr. for another 30 minutes. Remove from oven, invert pan over cake rack until cool. Then loosen sides by coaxing away from pan with fingertips. Serve this in wedges cut by breaking apart with two forks.

ANSWER:

Thank you for a charming letter.

Usually served with Foamy Sauce.

NOTE:

If desired 1 or 2 teaspoons cinnamon and 1-4 teaspoon each cloves and allspice may be added or omit marmalade and substitute 1-2 cup molasses and 1-2 cup each chopped raisins and citron peel and include the spices.

QUESTION:

I would like a diet dressing without salt or sugar please.—Mrs. H. T.

ANSWER:

DIET DRESSING

(Saltless, sugarless)

Soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in 1-2 cup cold water for five minutes in top of double boiler. To it add 8 sucaryl tablets, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate (accent), 1-4 teaspoon paprika. Mix well then add 2 1-3 cups boiling water and 2 tablespoons tartless butter and stir until gelatin is dissolved over simmering hot water. Remove from heat and beat in 3 beaten eggs. Return to heat and stir over simmering water until it thickens. Remove from heat and stir in 1-3 cup vinegar and pour into jar, or cover and chill. When it is thick, beat with rotary beater until smooth. Keep cold bowl. Cover and store in refrigerator. Everybody likes this.

With all the progress of medical science over the past 30 years, authorities say there is no longer any reason why irregularity should be our most widespread human malady.

Nor is there any reason for developing the habit-use of laxatives—of doing with one preparation after another in the vain hope of finding, in some potion or pill, the "secret" of lasting relief.

Long-continued study of the problem has shown that one of the most common causes of irregularity is lack of bulk in the diet. And when this is the case, the common-sense correction is to be found not in the drug store but in your food store!

IT HAS LONG BEEN A MEDICALLY RECOGNIZED FACT THAT NATURE HAS PROVIDED, IN THE NATURAL FOODS MEN WERE INTENDED TO EAT, ALL THE ELEMENTS NECESSARY FOR THE LIFE-LONG AVOIDANCE OF COMMON CONSTIPATION.

One of these elements is natural fibrous bulk, or vegetable cellulose, which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

In no natural food is this natural bulk so ideally found as in the outer layers, or bran, of the whole wheat kernel which, as you know, is lost in modern milling.

Because of the known value of bran in promoting regularity the Kellogg Company has produced a complete whole bran—with nothing taken away to lessen its effectiveness—sold under the name of Kellogg's All-Bran, the natural laxative cereal. How effective is All-Bran? This has been demonstrated in a series of systematic clinical studies reported in leading medical journals.

In one study, 135 people who knew's delayed bowel function were given one ounce of All-Bran daily for one week. They were under clinically and with X-ray with results before, during and after the ate the All-Bran.

OF THE 135 PEOPLE, 81 SHOWED DEFINITE CLINICAL IMPROVEMENT IN JUST 7 DAYS.

IN A FOLLOW-UP STUDY BETTER THAN 6 OUT EVERY 7 PATIENTS WERE GIVEN ALL-BRAN IMPROVED.

The greatest advantage of All-Bran is that it corrects the cause of irregularity due to insufficient bulk. Chemical or drug-type laxatives, on the other hand, are intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage.

When people use these products habitually—in a way that leads to laxative addiction—they may finish their digestive system in a way that nature never intended. Instead of correcting the cause, they often actually make their condition worse.

If you think you must take a laxative, it's a sign you need more bulk in your diet. But do it wisely. Read the directions completely, AVOID EXCESSIVE USAGE. But, for natural assistance relief just as millions do. Just eat daily a one-ounce serving of Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast and drink plenty of water.

This All-Bran plan has helped millions to re-establish and to maintain healthful regularity. Why not you

HOSTESS WITH THE MOSTEST

Mrs. Perle Mesta, former United States minister to Luxembourg, long has been one of Washington's leading hostesses. Ottawa Woman Loved Life Of Charwoman

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Inez MacDonald of Ottawa—"just-loved" the life of a charwoman, but she's glad to be able to sleep at night again.

She spent six hectic days keeping the hours of a charwoman for the National Film Board.

Mrs. MacDonald, director Leonard Forest of Moncton, 14 charwomen and a cameraman, John Foy of Montreal, worked together in the NFB's new short, "The Charwoman," in the Parliament Buildings.

"The filming end of the picture is finished," said Mr. Forest. "But there is still lots of work to be done." Now the films will be developed and "cut" into proper sequence for the finished product—a 20-minute short.

ALL-NIGHT SHIFT

While making the film, Mr. Forest, his crew of extras and the star worked from dusk to dawn to get an authentic portrayal of the life of the women who clean the offices of parliamentarians and government officials. The average shift was 11 hours.

Mrs. MacDonald has acted from time to time for the Little Theatre and the Canadian Repertory Theatre since she moved here from Edmonton in 1950.

"The Charwoman" is part of the film board's current series "Faces of Canada."

Mrs. MacDonald was chosen after a search for talent among charwomen failed to produce a subject. Two or three women made the grade, but they refused to go before the camera.

Mr. Forest and Anne Hebert of Quebec City and Ottawa, who wrote the script, went out "at all hours of the day" in search for the right woman.

A story of the search was carried by The Canadian Press and the NFB was swamped with letters and telephone calls from people seeking the job. Mrs. MacDonald was among those who telephoned.

"I never realized there would be so many people willing to act the part of a charwoman," said an NFB spokesman.

Mr. Forest said he couldn't interview all the letter writers, but

Former U.S. Minister to Luxembourg Touches on Washington Social Life

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Take it from Mrs. Perle Mesta: "You don't need a cheque book or a bank account to entertain."

"Look at the Europeans," she said, fingering a heavy pearl necklace. A big square diamond ring sparkled on her finger. "They haven't much money, but they entertain beautifully. They have a certain quiet air, a certain culture.

"Of course," she added, "Americans do very well. They are on a sort of equal footing with the Europeans."

FORMER U.S. ENVOY

Mrs. Mesta, former United States minister to Luxembourg, touched on Washington's social life during an interview in her fifth floor Sheraton-Park hotel suite.

The seat of government surrounded by heavy diplomatic representation, Washington is one of the bright spots in the U.S. social world.

And for many years Mrs. Mesta, widow of a wealthy steel industrialist, has been one of Washington's leading hostesses. But now there is a rival on the scene. Mrs. Morris Cafritz, wife of a well-to-do real estate dealer, is reported getting a lot of bigwigs at her social dos.

"No comment," said Mrs. Mesta when asked about the competition. "No comment," she added when questioned about rumors that Mrs. Cafritz may succeed her as Washington's leading hostess.

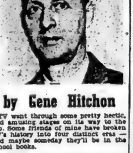
"Those reports are ridiculous. There can be only one leading lady and that is the first lady of the land, Mrs. Eisenhower."

PARTY FOR 18

And Mrs. Mesta is far from out in the social whirl. Just that night she was having a small dinner party for 18 persons, including a titled woman, an ambassador, a senator and a U.S. Supreme Court justice.

And what do they do after dinner? Well, Mrs. Mesta might play. There is a grand piano in one corner of the well-appointed living room and Mrs. Mesta loves Chopin and Bach.

Or she might sing. A mezzo-soprano, she loves semi-classical numbers.



Or they might talk. She has travelled all through Europe and has just completed a three-month, 12,000-mile tour of Russia. She found the steel plants good, the standard of living "secondary" and the theatre scenery "pathetic."

The best thing I found about Russia was the exit visa."

BOARD RECESSES.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 10-day recess was taken Thursday by the special board considering whether scientist J. Robert Oppenheimer should be restored to access to government atomic data. Chairman Gordon Gray said the board's press was "to enable its members to review the record of its proceedings."

TV NEWS

by Gene Hitchon

TV went through some pretty hectic, and amusing times on the way to the top. Some friends of mine have beaten TV's history into four distinct eras — and maybe someday they'll be in the books.

First of all there was the era of the overpraised promotion man. The period of phenominal growth, when one of the biggest TV troubles was TV is we can't lie about it fast enough to keep up with the truth.

Then came the "Pitchman in the Parlor" period when advertisers through TV could sell anything and the commercials went on, and on, and on. The only entertainment was antique movie commercials, and the dreary, dull and fourth-rate wrestling.

Then came a period of disillusionment, known in the trade as "the great water pressure hoax." A water commissioner said he could tell when the local TV programs were on because water pressure shot up. Nobody was using it, he said.

And now I think we're in the period of budget trouble. One advertiser recently signed a TV contract involving $8,000,000.

It's the viewer who is gaining, of course, as programs get better and the commercials that pay for the lavish productions get more tasteful and easier to take. ELECTROHOME Television sets are getting better, too, with more sure tone reception and picture the care that goes into the production of a TV program. The new, long-reach, clear-toned ELECTROHOME are at HITCHON RADIO & APPLIANCES, 6 Bridge Street East.

Thoughts for Mother's Day

MEMORIES OF MOTHER

In these glad days of greening earth and sunshine—
Days when you felt the spirit of the Spring—
When singing birds and May-time blooming lilacs
Woke in your heart a happy
carolling,
When all the joy held in your heart's deep treasure
O'er flowed in love and laughter from your eyes,
We set apart to thee a day most sacred
Who dwellest now beyond the azure skies.

A time most fitting to thy memory,
mother,
When all the earth is throbbing
with new life,
Whose days were sweet, sublime in spite of struggle
When warring worlds were torn by strain and strife;
Deep in our hearts thy memory
fresh and fragrant
Gives us the courage in life's trials to sing,
Trusting and waiting till again we meet you
In heavenly lands where always it is Spring.

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON—To many who have reached the mature years of life, Mother's Day comes furnished with memories—memories of one who no longer lives on earth to cheer, to comfort and to caress but who has passed beyond this vale of tears into the land of many mansions.

How vividly you recall her unfailing confidence in you when others criticized and found fault; how her unfailing sympathy and understanding cheered in time of sorrow and failure; how sure you always were of her friendship and her love; how you leaned on her wisdom and understanding and kindness of heart that she rejoiced in your success and sympathized in your trouble; how ready she was always with sympathetic hands and gentle heart to smooth life's path way, until she became weary with the weight of years and looked to you for comfort and happiness; how you dreaded the time when she must leave; and how you recall the anguish of your bereaved heart when she had slipped away.

Fortunate are those who can thank Providence for a loving, tender mother, a singing mother, a mother of cheer and optimism and one who taught the supreme value of beauty, love and truth.

The following beautiful lines by the late Robert Kirkland Kernighan reveal tender memories of his prized mother, whose hand planted fragrant lilacs about their rural home in the Niagara district.

LADY OF THE LILACS

And thou hast left me, mother, thou art questing
Afar in lands where promised mansions are,
Oh! choose a little cottage sweetly nesting Deep in an orchard from the city far;
Lo! then hast left thy lilacs all behind thee,
The lilacs that you planted long ago.

But when I seek, thee, mother dear,
I'll find thee
Where many, many, many, lilacs blow.

Dear memories in this vacant room are clinging
"Mid faint far echoes of an old-time mirth,
Now I remember how you filled with singing
The little heaven you made for me on earth;

I will not tire thee, mother, with the telling
Of that sweet heaven you made on earth for me,
For Oh! I know tonight that thou art dwelling
In that dear heaven our Saviour made for thee.

A dark despair, a hopeless grief would sear me,
If ne'er again I'd feel your touch and thrill,
But somehow, dear, I feel that thou art with me,
Your bowered home is just beyond a hill.
And every evening when the dew is falling,
O planter of my lilacs, well I know
'Tis thy dear will I hear afar off calling
Seek me where everlasting lilacs grow.

—Robert K. Kernighan.

TAKE TV IN STRIDE

Canadians are reported taking television—started nearly two years ago in this country—in their stride. Movies, which find TV stiff competition, have taken aggressive steps to meet the challenge with color films, wider screens and 3-D techniques. Montreal and Toronto stations, opened by the CBC in September, 1952, variety shows are popular. This photo shows Phyllis Marshall, singing star of "The Big Revue," which originates at the CBC Toronto studios, in a production number with several dancers.. (CP Photo).

Three-Quarters of Canada's Population Will Be Within TV Range by End of Year

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Television, like anything else, should be taken in moderation.

Three-quarters of Canada's population will be within TV range by the end of this year, and the advent of television in any new area arouses discussion on its possible effects.

Since first becoming popular in England, TV began to show its influence in the United States in 1946 and 1947. Some Canadian communities within reach of American stations have known it that long. First Canadian stations opened at Montreal and Toronto in September of 1952.

Now more Canadian stations are opening each month—there will be 23 before Christmas—and at least 325,000 TV sets are in operation. The Radio and Television Manufacturers Association of Canada figures Ontario has more than 400,000 sets, Quebec more than 170,000 and British Columbia more than 26,000. The rest are scattered throughout the country, and the figures increase as new stations go on the air.

DISCOVER PATTERNS

Some patterns have already emerged. As the U.S. discovered earlier, movies' picture distributors say movie audiences decline as soon as television comes in. But one movie chain spokesman at Toronto says movie attendances rebound after a year or so.

The movies took aggressive steps to meet TV competition, including panoramic or wider screens and 3-D techniques, with dazzling color. Color-TV is still in a distant future for Canada.) The most hardened TV fan will go to the movies occasionally.

Gross box-office receipts of one of Canada's largest movie theatre chains were higher in 1953 than 1952.

MORE RADIOS

Radio set sales increased in volume even while television sales were setting records. The radio industry now sells more smaller sets, including automobile and portable models, but last year total radio sales were well behind television on total value.

But most television owners find a radio is still needed. Around 700,000 radio sets were sold in Canada last year, more than any year except 1947 which saw the post-war boom.

Most popular television set for some time has been the 21-inch screen size, either table or console model. Sizes generally range from 17 to 24 inches, with corresponding increase in price. The 24-inch however is pretty big for the average living-room.

EXPERT'S OPINION

One question that crops up in every new TV area, is whether television is harmful to eyesight. Dr. A. Lloyd Morgan, chief ophthalmologist at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, told a medical forum in Toronto:

"I was asked this question so often when TV first came out that I got a set and researched it. That was some years ago and apparently TV hasn't done any harm, since I now see very well with weaker glasses."

Surveys in the United States indicate that in big cities, a little more than half the TV sets will be tuned in to one of the week's top programs. About a quarter will be watching other stations. The rest will be turned off.

LIFE GOES ON

Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, which has televised professional and amateur hockey games for some time, still has capacity attendances.

"Television has made a lot of new fans for us," says Spiff Evans, publicity director for the Gardens. National Hockey League games there, televised every Saturday night since 1952, have had exactly attendance for eight years in a row. Attendances steadily increased at the junior hockey games televised Sunday afternoon. The Thursday night wrestling shows also are drawing bigger houses.

So Canadians are taking television in their stride. A spokesman for a large ad company at Toronto was asked if anybody had discovered whether TV was having any effect on motoring. After all, you can't drive a car and watch television at the same time; at least, not yet.

"The only answer I can suggest," he replied, "is that more cars are on the road than ever before."

SUSPENDED FOR BIGAMY

OTTAWA (CP)—Winston Frederick Hensler, who served a month in jail last year for stealing the Currie report on the Canadian Army, Wednesday was given a suspended sentence on a bigamy charge. He was told that if he is brought back into court again for any criminal offence within the next year, he will be dealt with severely.

PARTICIPATION

And Thursday night in Ottawa Prime Minister St. Laurent said Canada is still ready to undertake construction of the seaway alone, but would discuss any "specific" pushing the project here, said light of the legislation's passage.

N. R. Danielian, long-time manager of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence project here, said Thursday night that there never was any question about the majority of Americans, including congressmen, favoring the project as an obviously worth-while development.

The fact that Canada had decided in 1951 to go ahead alone if necessary was what brought a breakdown of opposition here, he said, and eventually influenced congressmen to turn their convictions.

FEARED SHIPPING

Opposition in the two-day House debate largely was based on alleged fears that the seaway would be used almost entirely by cheaply operated foreign shipping, would bring cheap coal and oil into the middle of the continent and take away business from U.S. mines, oil supplies and rail carriers.

Proponents argued that the seaway would be built even if the U.S. did nothing. It would be built by Canada and financed, fixed by Canadians and the tolls fixed advantage of the U.S.

Proponents also argued that the U.S. was facing its last chance to "buy in" at a cost of about $105,000,000, and therefore have a share in the development and a say in the toll charges and other controls.

Opponents were told that no matter what they did or did not, the seaway would be an accomplished fact; Canada was not bluffing.

NEEDED IN DEFENCE

Another factor providing congressional support was the view of Eisenhower and American military leaders that the seaway is needed for national defence.

A principal point in this argument was that the canal will permit low-cost transportation of rich Labrador iron ores to steel centres in the midwest states.

The Labrador ores are needed as a replacement for the deposits now nearing depletion in Lake Superior's Mesabi range. Experts have estimated that the Mesabi yield of high-grade ore will be virtually exhausted within 15 years. Thus, without easily accessible ores—such as Labrador could provide—the U.S. would be deprived of one fo its greatest needs in time of emergency.

Proponents say construction of the seaway, which will take an estimated six years, will also open up the prospect of great new economic development of the Great Lakes area and the midwest.

FOR BIGGER SHIPS

When completed, the 27-foot-deep channel will enable ships of 10,000 tons of cargo capacity to pass directly from the Atlantic Ocean to inland ports on the Great Lakes.

Navigation on the river now is restricted to ships with a draft of 14 feet or less because of a 46-mile stretch of rapids at Ogdensburg, sixth of rapids near Ogdensburg, N.Y.

The legislation permits elimination of this shipping bottleneck through the digging of a canal—half "seaway"—27 feet deep.

The hydro-electric works, necessitating the damming of the rapids would make the digging of the ship canal a relatively simple engineering operation. The power project also would have the effect of lessening the cost of the canal.

PRIME MINISTER

The entity reference was an indication that Canada doesn't want even to start talks with the U.S. until some blocks south of the border have been cleared up.

ENTITY DESIGNATED

The New York state power authority has been designated by the U.S. federal power commission as the U.S. "entity" to co-operate with the Ontario hydro-electric power commission in its share evenly in the $600,000,000 cost and the 2,200,000 horsepower of electricity to be developed in the Long Sault rapids of the river's international section.

The New York body's authority is expected to be challenged before the Supreme Court of the United States. Informants here say the appeal will be filed May 19 in Washington. They also expect the court will throw out the appeal promptly.

Meanwhile, however, further delay can occur in Washington because bills approved by the two Houses of Congress—Thursday's in the House and an earlier one in the Senate—do not coincide exactly. House leaders will have to get together to whip up a joint bill that must be approved by both chambers. It will have administration backing and should not be held up long.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — The community was deeply grieved and saddened when word was received on Saturday afternoon that Mrs. Jack Hubbs (nee Elizabeth McGee) had passed away in Prince Edward County hospital.

"Lizzie," as her friends called her, had suffered a painful illness with great patience and courage. Left to mourn her early passing are her husband, little daughters, a three months' old son, her mother and father, two sisters and a brother. To these and other relatives is extended deepest sympathy. The funeral services were largely attended from her home on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Ralph Slone spent a day recently with her daughter, Mrs. Don Jandrew, Wellington. Miss Brenda Jandrew came home with her grandmother for a couple of days' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Istead and several helpers have been busy the past two weeks transplanting tomato plants.

Mrs. Blaine Foster and Darlene accompanied her mother, Mrs. McWilliam to Kingston on Friday.

Mrs. McLaren, from near Ottawa, has been spending the past week with Mr. and Mrs. John Hubbs and the Misses Ann and Grace McGee. A number of other relatives of Mr. and Mrs. McGee from Almonte, visited them while here for the funeral of Mrs. Jack Hubbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster entertained Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reed and little daughters of Belleville, (fig. it belng the wedding anniversary of all three couples.

McCarthy Will Feel 'No Duty' To Keep FBI Data Secret Unless Hoover Adds His Veto

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator McCarthy said today he will feel "no duty" to keep secret purported FBI data figuring in the inquiry into his dispute with the Army unless J. Edgar Hoover adds his veto to that of Attorney-General Herbert Brownell.

Hoover, as head of the FBI, is subordinate to the attorney-general. Brownell held Thursday that what the Wisconsin Republican senator has offered as a summary of an FBI warning to the army about suspected persons constitutes "unauthorized use" of secret FBI material.

McCarthy, letting fly an impassioned reply at Thursday's session of the televised hearings, said the disputed material had been viewed by army "loyalty board members with Communist leanings." He said he thinks maybe that I have no duty to keep this material secret, and don't intend to."

Elaborating in advance of today's renewal of the hearings, McCarthy said he will press for public disclosure of documents before his committee, either in public—or closed session, to elaborate on his refusal to allow publication of the data. (Central Press Canadian).

PREDICTS REVERSAL

McCarthy predicted that Brownell will ultimately reverse his ruling, but he also said:

"I feel a duty, even remotely, to keep secret any information that the Communists or government and those who protect and cover them up, regardless of where I got the information."

If Hoover joined Brownell in saying "no," McCarthy would disagree, but that he had "too much respect" for Hoover to go against his wishes in such a matter.

Brownell said in his letter to the Senate investigations sub-committee that he had consulted with the FBI about the data, but he did not think the agency specifically to his declaration that publication "would be contrary to the public interest."

STEVENS RECALLED

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, principal prosecutor in the row with McCarthy, was recalled today to the witness chair which he has occupied for at least a part of each of the 11 previous days of hearings.

Stevens and army counsel John G. Adams had a conference with Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) and two aides, Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr, of using improper means to win favored treatment for Pte. G. David Schine, a sub-committee staff aide who was drafted last November.

McCarthy said in turn said that Stevens and Adams used "blackmail" tactics in order to halt the subcommittee's search for subversives in the army.

Speedy Swedes

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — A Swedish "flying barrel" fighter today broke the world record for a 500-kilometre (310.5 miles closed-circuit course with an average speed of 608 miles an hour, according to Swedish Air Force headquarters here. The present official record is that of the U.S. American Sabre jet fighter with an average speed of 560 kilometres, about 600 miles an hour.

To Launch Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate will launch an inquiry next fall into the illicit narcotics traffic and its effects in Canada.

Solicitor-General Macdonald, government leader in the upper chamber, is understood to be planning the inquiry to get under way after the fall session of Parliament starts.

The proposal first was made in the Senate during the present session by Senator Thomas Reid Liberal-Conservative from British Columbia who lives in the New Westminster-Vancouver area which the RCMP says is where more than one-third of Canada's narcotics addicts are concentrated.

Vote Against Liquor

GUELPH (CP) — Residents of Puslinch township have voted against a move to legalize the sale of beer and liquor, official results showed Thursday.

The five ballots and the votes for each:

For the establishment of a liquor store: Yes, 362; No, 806; for a brewery warehouse: Yes, 222; No, 811. For a beverage room for men only: Yes, 216; No, 813. For a combined beverage room: Yes 251; No, 813. For a dining lounge: Yes, 240, No, 925.

McCarthy Cries 'Perjury' Over Testimony Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy cried "perjury" yesterday after Army Secretary Stevens testified he made an error in earlier testimony to the Senate investigations sub - committee.

Stevens said he had been incorrect in stating that after a Feb. 24 meeting with the McCarthy subcommittee, he had gone back to defence headquarters and conferred only with his staff.

Actually, Stevens said, he had found on checking that he met with 21 uniformed and civilian officials of the defence department. Of the 21 present, Stevens said, 17 were members of his staff.

McCarthy hopped on this change of testimony with a declaration that it appeared to be a "clear-cut case of perjury."

Earlier, senators investigating the McCarthy-army row decided unanimously to send a transcript of the hearings to the justice department — a step ordinarily taken when there are questions of perjury or other law violations.

McCARTHY UNDECIDED

Immediately afterwards, Senator Stuart Symington (Dem., Mo.) read a statement declaring there had been a violation of law by whoever gave Senator Joseph McCarthy material from an FBI report relating to security risks at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., an army radar centre.

Symington spoke of the materials as "secret" and "top secret" into the hearing, as "this fraudulent hearing."

McCarthy retorted that Symington and Senator Henry Jackson (Dem., Wash.) were attempting to obstruct the cooling of Communists in the army committee.

McCarthy said Symington and Jackson are "part of a conspiracy to obstruct" the committee.

WANTS SOURCE DISCLOSED

Symington repeated that the letter brought out by McCarthy was "fraudulent" in that the information had been altered to make it appear as a letter when it was not.

Ray H. Jenkins, special counsel for the investigations subcommittee, brought an end to the outburst with a demand that further discussion be permitted.

Before the senators dropped it, Symington asked that every effort should be made to find out who gave McCarthy the information from the FBI report.

Army Secretary Robert Stevens testified yesterday he met and read a statement from FBI director J. Edgar Hoover outlining army co-operation with the FBI. Stevens said he had talked with Hoover before making the statement. Hoover authorized the statement.

McCarthy has charged that the army ignored repeated FBI warnings about the danger of espionage or espionage at Monmouth.

Settle Estate Of H. R. Bain

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Supreme Court of Ontario gave final approval Thursday to settlement of the $3,000,000 estate of the late H. Rupert Bain, Toronto financier.

A question of interpretation of the will delayed settlement for 18 months. It provides for an annual income for Bain's first wife of $10,000.

Mr. Bain nominated "my wife" as a beneficiary but did not specify whether he meant his first or second wife. They were wed in Idaho in 1931 and married Mrs. Reginald Watkins in Mexico, where she had just been divorced. Mr. Watkins then married the first Mrs. Bain.

Chief Justice McRuer ruled that Mr. Bain, who died shortly after his second marriage, meant his first wife.

The $10,000 income for Mrs. Watkins will be cut to $4,800 a year if she remarries. She has three children—Lawrence Bain, 21, of Toronto, Mrs. Jean Hamilton, 22, of Mexico, and Sandra Bain, 16—will each draw $8,500 a year if Mrs. Watkins dies.

Between the ages of 25 and 35, the children will draw annual sums of $7,000 each. This will be increased to $10,000 when each reaches 35.

The second Mrs. Bain, who has been twice married, is not mentioned in the settlement.

NURSE AGAIN DECORATED

HANOI (Reuters) — Nursé Geneviève Desgland Terraube, only woman in the besieged Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu, has been awarded the French Military Cross with palms, friends said here today. Genevieve, chestnut-haired French Air Force nurse, has already been awarded the Legion of Honor for her work in caring for wounded French Union troops.

Man and Woman Suffocated By Gas from Stove in Cabin

WINDSOR (CP)—A man and woman were found dead Thursday night in a tiny tourist camp about 12 miles east of Windsor, just off No. 2 highway. Police said they were accidently gassed by fumes from a stove.

Police identified the man as Earl (Flat) Chase, 43, a well-known Chatham baseball player. The woman was Mrs. Perzeda Arnold, of Detroit.

Police said the bodies were found by a friend of Chase who saw the car, a late-model, blue sedan, at the cabin Thursday morning and dropped over Thursday evening to say hello. Robert Bayda, 42, said he knocked on the door and received no answer. He looked through a window and saw the bodies in bed.

Walter Carter, 89, caretaker of the three tiny cabins for owner Land McQueen, told police he rented the place to Chase about 8 p. m. Chase said he wanted the cabin and would return. Both the dead are Negroes.

RETURNED WITH WOMAN

Carter said Chase returned with the woman about 9 p. m. but she did not leave the car. He said he lit the fire and took the rest from the car. Police said there was no evidence of foul play. Some whisky and some soft drinks were in the cabin. The gas comes from containers delivered to the camp.

Chase was well-known in Windsor where he lived at one time. His parents still live here. He is survived by his widow and two children. Chase was employed by the City of Chatham.

'Who Knows—And What' Will Be Subject of New Book

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—There is no flip saying in the United States that "it ain't what you know that counts—it's who you know."

This remark isn't as pertinent as it used to be. Civilization has become so complicated that people with specialized knowledge in any field are becoming much more important.

But how can the average man, seeking information about a topic, tell an expert from a bragging bum?

The publishers of "Who's Who in America" have tried to solve this problem. They have come out with a big volume called "Who Knows—and What."

HARDVARK TO INDIANS

The big blue book lists some 18,000 authorities on 33,000 subjects, ranging from ancient Incas to Zuni Indians. It runs to 901 pages. The publishers are hopeful the volume will prove useful to everybody who has a problem. The housewife plagued with cockroaches, for example, will find listed three authorities whose advice she can seek on how to get rid of these kitchen intruders.

Anybody annoyed by a prowling Aardvark, however, will have to turn for help to Dr. Glenn L. Jepson of the Princeton Museum of Natural History. He has a monopoly on this African mammal.

The same way with raindrop erosion. Now there's a field you'd think would be crawling with experts, but Walter David Edison of the U.S. Navy has left it to himself.

RABBITS BETTER KNOWN

On the other hand "Who Knows and What" names two people's lasts on horseflies, two on porpoises, nine on turtles and 11 on rabbits. The names eight authorities on communism — and doesn't include Senator McCarthy.

Only a baker's dozen are identified as authorities on sex, and Dr. Kinsey isn't slighted. But some of their approaches to sex don't exactly fit very racy reading. Dr. Bernard Samuel Greenberg, to cite only one, has written on "some effects of testosterone on the sexual pigmentation and odour of the caudal gland of the crickets frog."

A young girl looking for ways to trap a husband will find slim pickings in "Who Knows—and What." Neither bachelors nor hermits are mentioned. Nor are husbands. Presumably the experts in husband grabbing aren't talking for publication.

SURVIVES CRASH, DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Pilot Joseph Walton and passenger Robert Newman of Cleveland, Ohio, stepped unharmed from this light plane after it crash-landed in a thicket near Orillia, Ont. But a few hours later Newman was dead of a heart attack, brought on by the excitement of the crash. Pilot Walton said a faulty magneto was the cause of engine failure, which forced him to land quickly. (Canadian Press Canadian).

De Valera Will Seek Mandate In May Election

By FRASIER WIGHTON

DUBLIN (Reuters)—Eamon de Valera, 72-year-old prime minister of the Republic of Ireland, will stake his political leadership in a general election May 18.

He seeks a stronger mandate for his Fianna Fail party, descendant of the old revolutionary Sinn Fein movement. Fianna Fail has been the governing party since 1932, with the exception of a break between 1948 and 1951, when there was an inter-party administration under the leadership of John Costello of the Fine Gael party.

De Valera had been handicapped in the last House Fail party, that even with help from independents, he could count on only small majorities in the 147-member Dail. Fianna Fail had also suffered reverses in a number of recent by-elections.

Results of the new Western plan still are subject to final consultation, Reuters news agency said, but it follows the terms laid down for an armistice by the French government in March. They were:

1. Total evacuation of the Communist-led Vietminh from Hanoi, Laos and Cambodia.

2. Evacuation of rebel—forces in the rich Red river delta and the creation of a "no-man's-land" around it.

3. Concentration of Vietminh troops in central Viet Nam in specified areas.

4. Evacuation or disarmament of the Vietminh units in northern Viet Nam.

REBELS HAVE PLAN, TOO

The Vietminh rebel spokesman said his delegation will also put forward a detailed plan for the withdrawal of the Indo-China question. He gave no indications of the plan's contents.

Meanwhile, Western delegates in Geneva today awaited the opening of the Far East conference to the deadlocked debate on Korea.

The conference, which will unification of Korea, resuming after a three-day recess, apparently facing its expected unproductive end. None of 19 participating powers are made formal moves to speak today.

One potentially jarring note in the Indo-China talks, slated to start Monday, was injected today by an official spokesman for China, Huang Hua.

Huang told reporters his delegation would demand admission of the Communist "governments" of Laos and Cambodia, states of the Indo-China French Union, as well as the Vietminh "liberation areas," including Indo, Indonesia and Burma would be invited to the opening session when the question of Korea is ended today's membership comes up.

The west considers the "Communist regimes" of Laos and Cambodia as puppets of Communism.

A French spokesman said his government would refuse to sit at the conference table with representatives of "phantom regimes which are only the creation of the Vietminh," the Red-led Indo-China rebels.

SAID CANADA MOVE

Some Western observers view the prospective Chinese move as a bid for recognition by Canada. They feel the Chinese will not insist on such recognition immediately if it appears such demands might wreck the talks.

They point up the Indo - China discussions, Russia and the West-ern Big Three foreign office delegations would be present at the opener. They are the Big Three, Red China, the three associated states of Indo-China, Viet Nam is the third, and the Vietminh delegation.

Soviet Russia earlier this week said she would propose that India, Burma, Thailand and Indonesia join the talks, but Western nations did not expect the Russians to press this to the point of endangering the negotiations. The United States wants to restrict the Indo-China conference to as few countries as possible.

Likely-Looking Football Stars All Picked Up

SARNIA (CP)—Norm Perry, outgoing president of the Canadian Rugby Union, told the annual meeting here Thursday night the United States Football League has tied up every likely-looking young football player in sight.

He said this was a result of last season's wrangle over U.S. football players coming to Canada.

Although Canada's gridirons may not be any greener than they are in the States "young players here have some prospects of playing on them rather than growing old on the bench," he said.

He said the father of a young Nebraska player contacted by Sarnia Imperials who has been offered a substantial business position with an American team already carrying three experienced men in the position, as well as two college players of outstanding calibre.

Perry said television has helped football "rather than hindered it." In addition to the publicity boost, television, radio and million-picture rights are annually bringing in a large amount of money to the CRU treasury, he said.

Report U.S., Britain, France Agree on Indo-China Plan To Be Put Before Communists

GENEVA (CP) — The United States, Britain and France today have reported to have reached general agreement on an Indo-China peace plan to put to the Communists.

Authoritative sources said the leaders of the Big Three Western delegations hope the talks on Indo-China can start Saturday, by which time the main representatives of the three French-associated states of Indo-China will be on hand.

The plan is expected to be presented when the talks start. However, China threatened to upset the talks at their outset by asking representation of more countries.

FRENCH PLAN

Details of the new Western plan still are subject to final consultation, Reuters news agency said, but it follows the terms laid down for an armistice by the French government in March. They were:

1. Total evacuation of the Communist-led Vietminh from Hanoi, Laos and Cambodia.

2. Evacuation of rebel—forces in the rich Red river delta and the creation of a "no-man's-land" around it.

3. Concentration of Vietminh troops in central Viet Nam in specified areas.

4. Evacuation or disarmament of the Vietminh units in northern Viet Nam.

REBELS HAVE PLAN, TOO

The Vietminh rebel spokesman said his delegation will also put forward a detailed plan for the withdrawal of the Indo-China question. He gave no indications of the plan's contents.

Meanwhile, Western delegates in Geneva today awaited the opening of the Far East conference to the deadlocked debate on Korea.

The conference, which will unification of Korea, resuming after a three-day recess, apparently facing its expected unproductive end. None of 19 participating powers are made formal moves to speak today.

One potentially jarring note in the Indo-China talks, slated to start Monday, was injected today by an official spokesman for China, Huang Hua.

Huang told reporters his delegation would demand admission of the Communist "governments" of Laos and Cambodia, states of the Indo-China French Union, as well as the Vietminh "liberation areas," including Indo, Indonesia and Burma would be invited to the opening session when the question of Korea is ended today's membership comes up.

Advertisers Face Growing Problem Of Disbelief

TORONTO (CP)—An American advertising executive told the Association of Canadian Advertisers Thursday that advertisers are faced with the growing problem of public disbelief and apathy because rival firms strive to outdo one another by piling claim upon claim for their products.

Henry O. Pattison, Jr., of the New York firm of Benton and Bowles, Inc., said: "We are engaged in far too many epic games of follow the leader and the public is really bored with the game."

He said he found a monotonous sameness to advertising messages.

"Each product is better than all its competitors because it does exactly the same thing that all the other products do. We must get back to more creative imagination in our ads, less sameness of appeal and promise."

W. A. Campbell, assistant advertising director of the Toronto Star, said Canada is becoming a comics-reading nation.

"When we answer ardent comics readers than women," he said, "a higher percentage of people in the two top income groups, are readers of the Big Three comic novels. There seems to be a moral in all this if you have something to sell."

U.S. Upper Lakes Regions Foresee Bright Future

CHICAGO (AP) — Proponents of the St. Lawrence seaway today hailed victory in their 20-year fight in the United States Congress for enabling legislation, but tempered their rejoicing in the realisation that fullest benefits are many years away.

Approval by the House of Representatives in Washington Thursday of a bill to authorize construction with Canada of a 27-foot deep channel in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence river "means that one major barrier to making Great Lakes cities inland seaports will be removed," said Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

U.S. seaway proponents from the eight Great Lakes region already have set a new target, a supplementary all - American project deepening channels into lakes Huron, Michigan and Superior where navigation now is restricted to 21 feet for upbound ships and 25 feet for downbound.

The measure authorizing the 27-foot-deep channel into lakes Ontario and Erie would enable oceangoing ships to move inland as far as Toledo, Ohio, at the foot of the river where the seaway canal would be joined. Instead of 10 vessels of a draught of 14 feet or less.

The House's vote for the seaway Thursday, however, evoked no immediate official enthusiasm in Ottawa. Prime Minister St. Laurent said Canada still is prepared, and many believed she prefers, to get it alone.

POSITION UNCHANGED

The prime minister's statement said his government has not changed its position from 1951 when Parliament authorized construction of the whole project, 2,000,000 projects but said he will discuss any "specific proposal" by the U.S.

As a project, the U.S. share is estimated to cost $105,000,000, Canada's $200,000,000.

Congressional approval revived and intensified alarms of the seaway's long-time opponents, the eastern and southern U.S. seaports, railroads, coal producers and private power utilities.

The seaway was seen as a potential threat to Philadelphia, which ranks second only to New York as a seaport, and to the industrial expansion of the Delaware river valley. Pennsylvania coal interests contend the seaway will handle foreign ore and oil, but not those U.S. products. That state's railroads and associated industries also see competition they think seaway will make possible.

But except in New York, satisfaction over approval of the seaway varied only in degree and choice of words. Illinois, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio foresaw great benefits to their economies.

ANCIENT DOLL

Sunday School Lesson:

Lesson In Ancient Economics

By Ray L. Smith.

One does not get very far under the surface of the Old Testament before he discovers he has come upon the field of economics. It has happened many times that the economic issues have been obscured because we have tried to read back into the ancient scriptures our modern theological concepts. Nothing could be more dangerous, from a religious as well as from a moral point of view.

HEBREW LAND PHILOSOPHY.

When the Hebrews came out of the wilderness, into the Promised Land, they brought with them an ancient philosophy of land which rested down upon the principle that all land is a gift from God, power to be sold. When the land was first divided up among the original Hebrew families, each parcel was accepted as a divine inheritance, never to be bartered. For a devout Israelite to have sold his father's farm would have been the equivalent to denying his father's name or trading in his mother's virtue.

The religious system of Baalism, on the other hand, had no such concept of land. To one who worshipped a Baal there was nothing sacred about the land. To sell it or trade it was entirely moral and entirely normal.

SANCTITY OF A CITIZEN.

A second difference in the two systems was the difference between their concepts of the rights of citizens. The Hebrews had been taught by Moses that every man was born with certain rights —not rights that his government conferred upon him, but rights with which he was born which every government must respect. The worshippers of Baal, on the other hand, had been taught that the man had any rights except those which the king and the government granted him.

When, under the leadership of the pagan Queen Jezebel, Baalism began to invade the little kingdom of Israel it began to corrode away these two ancient principles, and in the process the dignity and the sanctity of the individual citizen began to crumble.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 16: "Elijah Rebukes Ahab", I Kings 21.

The theft of Naboth's vineyard was not so serious in itself. The old peasant had been offered a good price for his land, or he had been offered another farm of equal or greater value. But something far more significant was at stake. Paganism was undermining the basic philosophy of democracy upon which the very foundations of the nation rested.

APPEARANCE OF ELIJAH.

In that emergency the prophet Elijah appeared, challenging the king and pronouncing the doom of Heaven upon his treasonable reign. It was a daring thing for a plain citizen to do, and Elijah did it only because he believed himself commissioned of God to call the government to account.

It is an eternal testimony to the profound religious convictions of the Hebrews that the old prophet was able to register his protest. Only among a people who believed that kings, governments, and civilizations are responsible to an authority higher than themselves could it have happened.

This is the identical struggle to which we are a witness today, as the peoples of the earth tremble on the brink of making a choice between communism and democracy. Communism ignores all the basic principles of human rights and moral law which have produced and sustained democracy. Between the two systems of economics, government and society there are all the differences which Elijah could see between Baalism and the worship of Jehovah.

From Gaiety to Resignation Ranges Reaction to Decision Of U.S. to Help Build Seaway

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

From unrestrained gaiety to solemn resignation, United States approval of the controversial St. Lawrence seaway bill ran the gamut of reactions in Canada and the United States.

The bill's passage by the U.S. House of Representatives is practically a go-ahead signal for the U.S. to join Canada in construction of the $300,000,000 waterway to allow ocean vessels access to the Great Lakes.

Despite Montreal's fear of being by-passed as a terminal between Great Lakes and ocean shipping, shipping and business officials gave the bill's passage qualified approval.

WILL BENEFIT CANADA

J. P. Boyle, president of the Shipping Federation of Canada, termed U.S. approval "inevitable."

"The seaway will be for the good of the whole country," he said, "but I believe many people here. . . oppose the idea.

"Although there still is strong sectional opposition to it we can't impede progress. I would say the seaway will benefit all 'of Canada."

The reaction of at least one city in upper New York state, however, was more enthusiastic.

Mayor Stowell Fournie of Massena, N.Y., ordered the fire department to "blast the whistle until the air runs out." The Massena Observer published an extra within minutes of the siren blast.

NEW YORKER BITTER

In New York, Austin J. Tobin, chairman of the New York port authority, saw the project's approval as a grim challenge to New York City and the "greatest boondoggle" ever perpetrated in the U.S.

". . . There is nothing to do but take the blow and gird ourselves to give shippers of the world such a service via New York that we can overcome and help pay for a federal subsidy to lake ports of $4 a ton."

Another United States viewpoint was expressed by John E. Burton, member of the New York state power authority which has been authorized to join the Ontario hydro-electric power commission in the seaway's electric power phase.

"With the power project under way and the seaway assured under any circumstances, it was most important the United States participate in the construction and management of the International waterway," he said.

With U.S. participation, the Montreal Chambre de Commerce felt construction will be carried out in a more practical and economical manner than if Canada had gone it alone.

Independent shipping officials in Montreal said they hope the federal government will restrict coastal shipping before the project is completed.

CORNWALL HAPPY

In Cornwall, Ont., Mayor Aaron Horovitz had this to say:

"It's like a dream. We've been waiting for something like this for 50 years. As soon as the United States supreme court gives a ruling on the power question—and we are confident it will be a favorable one—you can expect the seaway and power projects to get under way at once.

"The twin projects will mean a tremendous boom for Cornwall."

Mayor George E. Beavers, chairman of the seaway committee for the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, commented:

"We are naturally elated because it shows that U. S. public opinion has swung over to support the St. Lawrence project. We have waited for so long that many will hardly believe it to be true."

At Prescott, Ont., Mayor James Doyle welcomed the news as the culmination of 30 years' hope.

WHEAT EXPORTS DOWN

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's exports of wheat at April 21 in the current crop year were down about 61,000,000 bushels from the same period a year ago—152,700,000 bushels against 243,900,000.

CCF in Support Of Govt's. Stand On Quebec Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF Leader Coldwell says his party is thoroughly in support of the government in support of the government's stand on the Quebec income tax issue.

He said in the Commons Thursday that the vote by CCF members on Wednesday against the government's 1954-55 budget have been misconstrued.

"We voted against the budget because of the criticism we made here," he said. "Contrary to reports, we are thoroughly in support of the government's stand on the Quebec tax issue."

Finance Minister Abbott, in his budget speech April 6, rejected Quebec's request that the province's new 15 per cent income tax be fully deductible from federal tax payments.

During the budget debate the CCF party proposed a non-confidence motion saying the government should have raised income tax exemption levels to benefit low-income groups and increased the tax rate on corporations and wealthier individuals.

Russia Now Has Death Sentence For Murder

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia Thursday introduced the death sentence for murder for the first time in the history of the Soviet state.

Previously the death sentence was applied only in the case of serious crimes against the state, such as espionage, treason and sabotage. For a time just after the war it was abolished altogether.

Hitherto murderers in Russia, in cases where there was no political motive, have been given sentences usually of 10 or 12 years imprisonment or in a labor camp.

Imposition of capital punishment for murder was announced by Moscow radio, which quoted a decree issued by the presidium of the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet.

The Kremlin's decision is interpreted herbe as a reflection of the increasing crime wave in the Soviet Union, as evidenced in recent reports from the Soviet newspapers.

Charges Laid Against L.O.L. Men Withdrawn

OTTAWA (CP)—Charges laid more than a year ago against three members of the Carleton county Orange Lodge of selling lottery tickets were withdrawn Thursday by the Crown.

Freed of the charges were Burton Wellman, John Holt and William F. Holt, all of Ottawa.

Withdrawal ended a highly controversial case. It began in 1952, when Donald J. Sutherland, of Ottawa, an official of the lodge, was charged with conducting a lottery.

Mr. Sutherland was directing the sale of tickets for a draw held at the Mountain, Ont., fair last autumn. The lodge was co-sponsor.

He was convicted last summer and fined. He appealed and the prosecutions against the other three lodge members were adjourned.

When Mr. Sutherland died suddenly, the court ruled that his appeal had died with him, and the city court scheduled the case against the three to proceed.

As the charges were withdrawn Thursday, magistrate Glenn Strike said it was not a case at a lottery for personal gain. He said those selling the tickets and those conducting the draw had no intent of making profits for themselves.

Cancer Investigators to Hold First Conference Next Month

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's cancer investigators will hold their first national conference next month to discuss fundamental research into the disease.

Dr. Jean Bouchard of Montreal, president of the National Cancer Institute of Canada, and F. G. Watson of Toronto, president of the Canadian Cancer Society, announce that the conference of more than 100 experts will be held at the Ontario summer resort of Honey Harbor June 15-18.

The conference will be the culmination of 18 months of efforts to coordinate cancer research in Canada. The efforts began in 1952 with appointment of a research advisory group of the National Cancer Institute, Dr. C. P. Leblond of Montreal, Dr. A. W. Ham of Toronto, and Dr. R. L. Noble of London, Ont.

In their joint announcement, Dr. Bouchard and Mr. Butterfield said such a conference is particularly necessary in Canada because universities at which cancer researchers work are so far apart there is ordinarily no opportunity to discuss research problems together.

TEND TO SPECIALIZE

One authority said that in cancer research, investigators tend to specialize and lose touch with fields other than their own. The conference is designed to present to all authorities a better-rounded concept of the over-all problem.

The 31 papers to be delivered will deal with such topics as tumors in experimental animals, the mechanism of cancer's origin, what happens in tumor cells and the effects of radiation. A special session on lung cancer will be held.

Most of the papers will be given by investigators from 19 Canadian universities, from Dalhousie to the University of British Columbia.

The National Cancer Institute of the United States at Bethesda, Md., will be represented by Dr. H. B. Andervont, Dr. G. B. Mider and Dr. W. C. Hooper. Dr. J. Engelbreth-Holm, director of the University Institute of Pathological Anatomy at Copenhagen, will attend.

Valdmanis Held On Fraud Charges Granted Bail

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Dr. Alfred Valdmanis, held on fraud charges totalling $420,000, was granted bail by Magistrate Hugh O'Neill Thursday.

Magistrate O'Neill said he would be released on $50,000 personal bail and two sureties of $25,000 each.

Bail was granted after Dr. William Black, a psychiatrist who examined the former director of economic development for Newfoundland, said he seemed to "be in full control 'of himself—with his normal powers of concentrations upset by the gravity and threat of the present situation."

Valdmanis will appear in court Friday, and if the bail is posted, will be released.

Summer Dress Back in Fashions

IN KOREA (CP) — Summer dress and mosquito netting are back in fashion in the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade in Korea.

Bush jackets have been discarded in favor of light shirts as the 6,000 troops settle down for five months of Korean heat and dust.

All excess clothing and footwear is being back into storage. Any left exposed to the Korean summer soon turns to a moody mass and even leather boots and shoes fall apart.

In June and July, the rains will come and after the rains the dust.

McCarthy Now Pinned Down To One Case

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the first time since the Republicans took office Senator McCarthy is pinned down to one case and can't wander around, getting into the Eisenhower administration's hair from different directions.

McCarthy has thrived on the limelight which he manufactured by making one sensational charge after another over the last four years. He did just that when his own Republicans began running the government a year ago.

Right now he's not free to skip from sensation to sensation. His time is partly taken up with the Senate investigation into his fight with army officials. He has to be at the morning and afternoon sessions and must consult with his staff afterwards.

MUST SHARE HEADLINES

He has repeatedly complained about being nailed down this way, these hearings, he has protested, are not only ridiculous but therefore with his much more important work of hunting Communists.

Before the hearings he was able to get a headline all to himself with a single statement. Now any statement he makes is only one among many made at the hearing.

In this public washing of dirty family linen someone is obviously lying. That was clear from the start. The Senate sub-committee making the investigation may never give a verdict on who it is.

YOUR HYDRO
the lifeblood of industry

Power, supplied by Ontario Hydro is the vital factor in making the Province's industry the Colossus that it is today. The 19,913,340,926 kilowatthours of electricity supplied to the Province in 1953 by Ontario Hydro was equivalent to a labour force of 88,500,000 men. Few indeed are the industrial activities that are not dependent on electricity and many of today's wonder products are possible only because of the magic of Hydro power.

More versatile than any other form of energy, electricity supplies industry with light, power, heat and control in a wide range of applications. Here is another example of . . .

HEARING BECOMES ENDURANCE CONTEST

Public hearings in Washington of the McCarthy-army dispute are lengthening into a marathon contest with signs of weariness on both sides as well as the public.

Here Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (left) confers with his counsel, Roy Cohn, during the Wisconsin senator's cross-examination of Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens. McCarthy charged that the army launched a "smear campaign" against him because Stevens had spotlighted the senator's demands for information on alleged "Communist coddling" within the army. (Central Press Canadian).

Ottawa Whips Toronto Leafs; Chiefs Top Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Syracuse Chiefs are fatten ing themselves up in the Interna tional League because they capitali ze on clusters.

Big innings, it seems, have char acterized the Chiefs' play so far this young season and the boys had another one—a four-run sev enth—Thursday night to whip the Havana Sugar Kings, 4-1.

The victory gave Syracuse a one half game lead over the Rochester Red Wings, beaten by Montreal 4-2 .In other games, the Richmond Virginians grabbed a 7-5 decision from Buffalo and the Ottawa Ath letics pounded five Toronto pitch ers to win 9-3.

At Montreal, lefty Tony Lasorda pitched a six-hitter to give Mont real the verdict over Rochester. Ham Hamric hit a two-run homer to help the Montreal cause.

Richmond also uncorked a big inning—a five-run affair—in the seventh against Buffalo. Joe Lutz brought in three runs with a double to spark the uprising. Angelo Nar della got credit for the win al though he worked only six innings.

Walt Kellner pitched his second victory for Ottawa as the Athletics pounded out 14 hits. Sam Jethroe hit a two-run homer for Toronto.

HUTTON NAMED

LONDON (AP)—Britain's cricket selectors Thursday confirmed vet eran Len Hutton as the country's number one cricketer by naming him to head the British team for the season's first test match series against Pakistan, opening at Lords June 10.

They indicated he would also lead Britain's team out against Australia for the vital test matches later in the year.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP) — Apprentice jockey Bob Cormack, suffered a broken back and broken collarbone in a spill at Dufferin race track Monday, was in fair condition in hospital Thursday night. Doctors said he won't be back in the saddle for at least eight months. Cormack, a native of western Canada, was trampled when his horse, Bitter root, stumbled.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP)—Joe Taylor sneaked in from Charleston, W. Va., Thurs day and horned in on Sam Snead's Greenbrier open golf tournament by beating par by five strokes with a 61 and the first-round lead.

Snead, who is out to win the tournament on his home course for the fourth straight time, ended a stroke behind.

LONDON (CP)—Nine Canadian golfers are listed in pairings for the British amateur tournament at the Royal and Ancient club at St. Andrews, Scotland, May 24 to 29.

Nick Weslock of Windsor, Ont., meets Robert Jenkins of England in the second round of the first quarter, to be played May 24. Other Canadians are Andre Tessier of Quebec, H. R. Pickens of Montreal, Donald Doe of Granby, Que., Walter McElroy of Vancouver, Gordon Taylor of Montreal, Bob Fleming of Victoria, Colin Hankin of Montreal and Doug Silverberg of Red Deer, Alta.

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Les lie Hylton, 40, former member of the West Indies cricket team, Thursday was charged with murder in the death of his wife. Mrs. Hylton was found dead in bed with five bullet wounds in her body.

Hylton represented the West In dies as a fast bowler in England in 1938.

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs ball club Thursday ad ded pitcher No. 18 to its well stocked mound staff.

Newest addition is Al Zillan, a righthander on option from the Chicago White Sox. Zillan has been with Charleston in the American Association. He had a 16-12 rec ord last year.

VICTORIA (CP)— Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the British Colum bia Museum, said Thursday that in his opinion Florence Chadwick, the world's top woman swimmer, "will freeze" when she attempts her Victoria-Port Angeles swim next August.

Dr. Carl, thoroughly familiar with coastal waters, said "I'll be very much surprised if she makes it."

Temperature in the 48½ mile stretch in August will be around 52 degrees, he said.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The only bad feature about Roger Bannis ter's great 3:59.4 mile at Oxford, England, is that it takes the lim elight from sports columnists and track journalists who for years have been taking dead aim at the four-minute barrier. Many will feel that an old friend has gone, never to return.

In his quest for track immortal ity, the fleet Briton deprived the hard-pressed sports savant of a tired and proven friend and has robbed millions of fans of much exciting and vastly informed read ing matter.

Never again will it be possible to pick up a newspaper and learn that Joe Whozit, the famous track coach at Subnormal U., believes it is possible to run a four-minute mile if the authorities will only let him pace his current sensation with a trained cheetah.

How can a sportswriter sit down and trace the evolution of the mile from its 4:30 period up to the present and speculate heatedly about the possibility of slicing through the mystic barrier when he knows good and well that it's already been done?

Something big has gone out of our lives, and just because one athlete wanted to show a few chosen friends how fast he could run. Last time we were there they didn't even have a grandstand, or warm water in the shower room Bannister could at least have done it in public.

So where now? Well, there's no real reason why one couldn't start speculating on a 3:30 mile and re calling nostalgically the good old days when anything inside 4:00 was considered fast. We have a feeling, though, that no figure even will quell the wailing that the good old 4:00 did. There was something sort of rounded and satisfying about it.

EFU CONTINUES.

PARIS (Reuters) — Western Europe's debtor and creditor na tions resolved their differences Thursday and agreed to retain the European Payments Union for an other year. There was some doubt earlier about the future of the EPU—Europe's financial clearing house—when debtor nations, led by Britain, said they could not give way to creditor claims for increased gold payments.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows were standing around the letter box talking and arguing about diffrent subjects sutch as what we would do if a flying sauc er suddinly landed in the middle of the street and 2 funny looking little men got out and started to ask us questions in a strange language, and Lucky Leroy Shooster came back from the market with a doz zen eggs in a egg box in a paper bag, and he threw the bag up in the air and caught it again, say ing. Oh boy, how is that for jug gling a dozzen eggs all at the same time?

It's a good thing you didn't drop them, or you wouldn't feel so grate, I said, and Leroy said, Aw, I couldn't drop them if I tried, I'm too lucky.

And he threw the bag up again and missed it on the way down, and it landed smack on the side walk with a sound like eggs break ing, and us fellows said, Oh boy, you weren't lucky that time, you can have that kind of luck if you want it, oh boy.

Why, what's a matter? I bet not a single one got broke, that's how lucky I am, Lucky Leroy said.

And he picked up the bag and took the egg box out and lifted up the lid, and pritty near all the eggs were cracked and some were leeking already, and Leroy quick closed the lid again and terr ed the box upside down so the leeks pointed up instead of down, saying, Anyway, I'm not worried, I'm too lucky to worry.

And he carried the box home careful, and us fellows followed him for curiosity, and his mother was standing on the frunt steps, and she saw the lecky box, saying, Well it's a good thing I wasted those eggs for a pound cake and intended to break them anyway.

Oh boy, a pound cake, my favor ite kind, am I lucky or aint I? Lucky Leroy said.

Proving you cant beet natures luck.

QUINTE BASEBALL

While there is a possibility of the Bay of Quinte Baseball League developing into a four-team loop, there was little accomplished at the meeting called by President Frank Grandame the other night. In fact it was disappointing to say the least.

Representatives from Deseronto, Trenton RCAF, and Reid's Regents were on hand, and that was it. Prince Edward County was not represented, but contact will be made with baseball people over thataway to see what can be done.

Secretary "Red" Doran was instructed to get in touch with the entries by telephone so that another meeting can be called to ascertain what can be done about the matter.

Alderman Bryson Reid said he was willing to go ahead with a team of over-junior agers and there was a possibility of his company assisting in the project in a financial way, providing a league of more or less solid nature was organized.

It is to be hoped the league will be formed in order to give baseball to the outlying communities and to those city players which will not make the Intar senior club.

The Prince Edward County teams of last year, the Prince Edward Combines and the Wellington-Bloomfield Combines, are still apparently in hibernation. Last year they depended to some extent on Belleville players were were available because of lack of senior baseball here, but the season situation has altered. However, surely a combined team of players from the county can be organized to round out the four-squad set-up.

HIS FROM OSHAWA —

"The Viaduct Major League of Toronto, now to be known as the "V-O League" or Viaduct-Ontario senior baseball league, is the brain-child of Oakville, two hours away from Toronto Viaduct area (Millen Stadium), Oshawa, Peterborough and Belleville, held a lively meeting here Monday night and cleared the decks for diamond action. They'll open the league schedule at Millen Stadium in Toronto on Saturday, May 15, with a doubleheader and another on Sunday, the following day. Oshawa will play host Peterborough and Belleville will get their home end likely both Peterborough and Belleville on Sunday, May 23rd and then they'll swing right into regular schedule action, with games in Toronto each Tuesday night, some on Thursdays. Oshawa Transportes have taken a variety of days for their home games. They'll have some Saturday afternoon fixtures during the cooler days of June while floodlight games will be played on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays with the odd Thursday game here and there.

"They cleared the air considerable on Monday night too. The definite acceptance of the entries from Peterborough and Belleville, opened the meeting for more ideas and comment. Some of the comment was levelled at the criticism that had been levelled at the Toronto Viaduct teams and at Oshawa's "Ab" Walker in particular, in the Peterborough and Belleville press. It was pointed out that the hard-working "Ab" Walker was representing his own team, the Transportes, a member of the Viaduct-League and that criticism of him as an OBA official was unwarranted. For the two COBL centres to state that Walker wasn't doing his best to boost baseball in the senior brand in particular in this instance, wasn't just cricket. After all, he was only representing the interests of his own club—which was just what the Peterborough and Belleville men were doing and what's more, Oakville and Oshawa were already committed to OBA activity this season, while the two COBL centres so far, do not appear too greatly concerned.

"However, it can not be denied that even if the approach was a bit offside, the scathing blasts by our sports-writing pals in the Limestone City and good old Belleville by the bay, have certainly stirred up the interest in these two centres. We hope the boys taper it off now, because it wouldn't do to have too much of the animosity still seething when the teams start visiting each other. Coach Vern Goyer has his Belleville Batas (sponsored by Bata Shoe) out for conditioning exercises and they started in Peterborough too. They launched a rather big fund-raising projects up in the Littlock City too and the alert baseball men there are going to put over a couple of booster nights that will draw dores to four thousand fans. Yep! It looks as if it's going to be a great baseball season. So we can put away the accusations of "racket," "grabbing," "holdup," etc, and get down to the business of baseball. The fans are ready for action, the diamonds ... We suspect there'll be a renewal of the old COBL feuds that raged in years gone by amongst Messrs. Perdue, Carver and Campbell—with "Bunny" Morgan not getting in his "two cents worth" as well, and it should be an interesting summer."

Brother, you ain't heard nothin' yet. "It's a long lane ..."

THE DANCER RETURNS

NEW YORK (AP)—Native Dancer, the people's horse, will return to racing next today in the $12,000 Commando Purse at Belmont Park against a sharp field of sprinters in a six-furlong event.

The great grey four-year-old, fourth leading money-winning horse in the world, hasn't raced since last Aug. 22 when he won the American Derby at Chicago's Washington Park. Shortly after his return to New York it was discovered he had suffered foot bruises that prevented him from meeting the Greentree's Tom Fool in Belmont's Spanky Mile. Alfred Vanderbilt retired the Dancer for the season Sept. 19, a week before the Spanky.

The Dancer has won 18 of his 19 races—his only loss being to Dark Star in the 1953 Kentucky Derby.

Four-Minute Mile Overrated Says Modest British Star; 'Other Runners Will Beat Me'

By MILT MARMOR

OXFORD, England (AP)—Roger Bannister, the master miler who crashed the four-minute barrier, drew back into his shell of shyness today while the athletic world acclaimed his feat of the century.

The quiet, 25-year-old medical student matched the world record with a darning 3:59.4 clocking in the blustery cold here Thursday night and thus wob-ble race to the peak of trackdom's Mount Everest—the four-minute mile.

"I think the four-minute mile has been overrated," he said quietly as if trying to justify his feat. "After all it's only a time. The essence of athletics is racing against an opponent rather than a clock."

Today, with rapturous congratulations and cheers of 1,000 spectators their fans for the memorable moment in track and field history still in his ears and heart, Bannister drove to London and went on television for millions to see and hear him.

He said he was tired at the end of the race and that he didn't know he just about make it to the end.

"I think people have been frightened of this four-minute mile," he said. "Now that it's been broken, I'm sure other runners will break it, too."

HE RELAXED

He added that at the 660-yard point, his Austrian physical training adviser, Franz Stampfl, called: "Relax, relax."

"That call made me feel really good," he said. "It's then I had a great chance. As I neared the end of the third lap for the first time I felt really confident I could do it.

"When I got to that last bend, I wasn't thinking of anything in particular. I just concentrated on the taps faintly ahead, put everything into getting there and that was the last I knew about it."

That's how the slim, six-foot one-inch speedster broke Gunder Haegg's record of 4:01.4 that had stood since 1945. His quarter-mile clockings for the four-lap track were 57.5, 60.7, 62.3 and 58.9.

Although the slight 157-pounder was unimpressed by his great effort, he did acknowledge that the 15-mile-an-hour wind in the lifter road track might have cost him two seconds.

"I think the 3:56 mile is within reach," he said. But he didn't say he'd be the one to do it.

FIRST SINCE FALL

This was his first race since last fall and his mother and father were among the spectators. It was the very sixties where only four years ago he ran his first mile race as an Oxford freshman—in more than five minutes.

When he sprinted those last 300 yards to finish his fast and sparkling immortality, experts wondered only what new worlds are left for him to conquer.

Only a few weeks ago he confessed somewhat diffidently that he felt he was a better half-miler than a miler. That means he could set out after the 880-yard world record of 1:46.6 now held by Mal Whitfield, the Army sergeant-wonder-cous mark of 1:46.6 for 880 meters established by Rudi Harbig of Germany's Rudolph Harbig.

The world 1,500-meter record of 3:43—held jointly by Haegg, Lennart Strand of Sweden and Werner Lorge of Germany—seemed easily within Bannister's reach. He isn't unofficially in his record-shattering mile. It was unofficial only because there was not one clocker at that point and the rules require three for official marks.

Will Hold School Relay

HAMILTON (CP)—The Ontario interscholastic relay carnival to be held here May 8 is the first of its kind to be held in Canada, says J. R. Cornelius, meet director.

Approximately 400 students from Ontario public, private, separate and high schools are entered on the 24-event card.

Cornelius calls the carnival, "a miniature Penn relays."

Proceeds from the competitions will go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Schools from Windsor, Ottawa, Toronto, the Haliburton area, St. Catharines, Port Erie, Belleville, Guelph, Sharbot Lake and London are among those who have sent in entries.

Pents, Wolves Battle In Kelowna Tonight

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Penticton V's and Sudbury Wolves move on in on this fruit-growing centre tonight for the third in the best-of-seven run to the Allan Cup, and it's anybody's hockey game.

Each team, fighting to become the top senior amateur puck squad in Canada, has won one and this is the game where one or the other is going to prove it wasn't just an accident.

Sudbury, greeted with bands and banners when they arrived in Penticton, showed their appreciation of Monday night by taking the first game 3-1. V's and Wolves moved over to Vernon Wednesday and both were greeted with pomp and circumstance.

It's took this one, 6-2.

Sharing honors with both clubs are two men from Montreal, Syl Apps and Neil Wellman. These two referees handed out 17 penalties in that first game, just as both the clubs who was bost.

But nobody listened and Wednesday there was a carbon copy of the first contest, with a total of 17 penalties handed out.

V's are bidding to take the title to Penticton for the second time in three years and will be playing tonight's game again clad in another set of uniforms.

GARB IDENTICAL

The reason? Their own is identical to the garb worn by Wolves.

If the Penticton crew gets past the hard-checking easterners this game, they will be in the driver's seat. The fourth game is scheduled for Penticton's Memorial Arena Saturday night and so Penticton team would dare lose a hockey game on their own ice before a Saturday night crowd—not after having lost one of the current series' first two.

Both clubs are hungry for an Allan Cup and it's a big balance up the one they won in 1937 and Penticton to wipe out the stigma of losing a decision in the 1953 play-off to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Line-ups were expected to be similar to those used in the first two games as neither club has yet picked up any injuries.

Quebec Aces Edge Stamps In Second Game

CALGARY (CP)—Quebec Aces, showing a sharp reversal of form edged Calgary Stampeders 2-1 here Thursday night to move back on even terms in their best-of-nine playoff series for the Edinburgh Trophy.

Stampeders took the first game of the series 8-1. Third contest is scheduled for Edmonton Saturday night.

A crowd of 7,314 watched as Aces, apparently rested from their trip west, played it well throughout to be full value for their victory. They moved into a 1-0 lead in the first period and after Stamps tied the count midway in the second they moved ahead with what proved to be the winning goal.

In the last period they tossed up a stout defensive system to thwart the goal-hungry Calgary club.

Ray Powell and Ludger Tremblay scored for Aces while Steve Wilusz notched Calgary's lone goal.

The game was played at a smooth clip and tempers were unruffled. Six penalties were handed out by referee Scotty Morrison—three to each club.

Chisox Extend League Lead With Win Over Detroit; Redlegs Move Into 2nd Spot

By BEN FELDGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Temple, who aims for first base instead of the fences, is proving the sparkplug of Cincinnati Redlegs' fight for first division in National League.

Temple has been personally responsible for the winning run in 25 per cent of the Reds' victories this spring. He drove in the deciding tally again Thursday as Cincinnati shaded New York Giants 5-4 and moved into second place, half a game behind Philadelphia Phillies.

Cincinnati's rise to second came as Brooklyn Dodgers fell before Chicago Cubs 8-7 in 11 innings and Milwaukee beat Pittsburgh 7-3. The Phillies were rained out at St. Louis.

In the American League, Chicago White Sox stretched their lead to a game and a half over Detroit and Cleveland by edging Washington 5-4. The Indians won their seventh game in eight eastern starts, 3-2 over Philadelphia. New York Yankees trounced Baltimore Orioles 15-5.

LOSE TO WEATHER

Boston and Detroit again lost a decision to the weather. The Red Sox haven't been able to play a home game since last Saturday.

Faulty fielding in left field—a sore point with the Dodgers for two seasons—helped Chicago to its winning run. Randy Jackson made on first in the 11th, Ernie Banks doubled to left, George Shuba couldn't get the handle and Jackson scampered home.

The Braves sent the Pirates behind the five-hit pitching of Lew Burdette, who scattered five hits in turning in the first shutout by a Milwaukee pitcher this season. Their added straight victory over Pittsburgh moved the Braves into fifth place.

At Washington, the White Sox waited until two were out in the ninth before starting their winning rally. Nellie Fox doubled and rode home on Minnie Minoso's two-bagger. Minoso scored after an error and Willard Marshall's single. Minoso drove in four runs.

The Orioles, hitless wonders of the American League, managed only one hit. The Yanks battered Joe Coleman for four runs in the first inning with Yogi Berra's homer the big blow.

Soccer Gossip

Last week-end saw the official opening of the 1954 season in the Eastern Ontario Football League. Six of the seven registered clubs saw action. First results 'show no distinct improvement in the calibre of soccer played by the local Bay of Quinte representative, Belleville Northern Electric and Batawa.

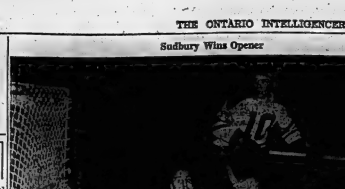
On Saturday, Jack Bennett's Northern Electric boys journeyed to Kingston and managed to edge the strongly fancied Kingston United crew by three goals to two. John Dolan was top marksman with two goals for the Northern Electric while Alec Gemmell was responsible for the third. Gray and Grundy tallied for the homesters.

Up Peterborough way last year's champions Peterborough U.E.W. walloped the Canadian Scottish of that city by a score of five to nothing in a soccer derby game. The Canadian Scottish are a new team in the league this year and are likely to give a better account of themselves as the season progresses.

On Sunday afternoon Batawa entertained Kingston Kopcordia in the shoe town and came out victors by a three to two game when they finished up Batawa 7, Koncordia 4.

This Saturday Northern Electric pay anothers visit to Kingston in search of additional Eastern Ontario League points when they take on Koncordia at the Kingston Community Centre grounds. Batawa visit Peterborough as guests of the U.E.W. in the third game Peterborough Merchants open their schedule against Peterborough Canadian Scottish.

This evening a meeting is to be held in the Y.M.C.A. to make plans for minor soccer activities in the district for this season. The recently formed Quinte Minor Football Association is planning to promote Provincial championships in bantam, juvenile and junior categories and it is probable that this district will be represented. May 21st has been set as the closing date for entries and decision as to whether or not Belleville should enter teams in these competitions will be made at this meeting. This year is the 50th anniversary of the formation of the Federation of International Football Association of which Canada is one of the nearly sixty members. A special effort is being made in every member country to promote some special minor activity to celebrate that event next June.



In the Bay of Quinte League opener on Wednesday Batawa edged Northern Electric by two goals to one at the Northern Electric Sports Ground. Cumpley and Hawrilyow were marksmen for the winners with Leech getting the Northern's tally.

Next week's Bay of Quinte League fixtures see Batawa at home to RCAF on Tuesday and Northern Merchants playing host to Northern Electric on Wednesday. Both games are called for 8:30 p.m.

Olympics Will Be Played At Melbourne

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—Otto Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee, declared Thursday that it is "absolutely out of the question" that the committee will transfer the 1956 Olympic Games from Melbourne.

With the IOC due to open a meeting in Athens next Monday, new talk across this week over the possibility of changing the Olympic site—a point that has been kicked around almost from the time the award was made to Australia.

The newest pressures stemmed from the break in Australian-Russian diplomatic relations over the Petrov case and the speculation that the Iron Curtain countries might join with the let's-skip-Aus. trails forces in voting to move the games.

However, Meyer's strong statement on his departure for the Grecian city added new strength to Melbourne's position.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP).— Note to baseball scouts—nearby Buchanan Ga., has a young pitcher who will bear watching.

He's 16-year-old John Whitlow Wyatt, Jr., son of the former Brooklyn Dodger ace. He already has accomplished a feat his father failed to do in 30 years of mound duty—pitched a seven-inning no-hit game. To top it all, however, he struck out 21 batsmen.

Young John missed a perfect game by yielding three walks, two after he had retired two men in the last inning.

The feat gave Bremen a 9-0 victory over Talapoosa in the opener of the 1954 Babe Ruth League season.

The Senior Citizens' Club of Belleville held its monthly meeting Wednesday with 70 members being present. The membership reached the century mark with eight joining.

A short business meeting was conducted by S. L. Field, the chairman, and the financial report was presented by Mrs. S. Moult, secretary treasurer. American Track Yakkers Explode After Briton Breaks 4-Minute Mark

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The barrier of the legendary four-minute mile is down; and, track authorities throughout the world predict a wholesale assault on Roger Bannister's 3:59.4 record.

Medical and track men once said this feat was beyond human powers. Now the new barrier song, in the wake of the bashful Briton's tremendous race Thursday at Oxford—is: This is only the beginning.

"Bannister's 3:59.4 mile was a great performance, but it will be broken," said Dean Cromwell, dean of American track coaches.

"Wes Santee (of Kansas) can do it any day under favorable circumstances. What's to keep John Landy of Australia and Ingvar Ertkson of Sweden from doing likewise?"

Santee, the supremely confident, almost cocky young collegian who holds the American record of 4:02.4, was not inclined to disagree.

"That time is still not as low as it can be run," Santee, who had been the American hope to win the international four-minute sweepstakes, said forcefully.

Landy, the loose-armed Aussie whose 4:02 previously was the closest approach to Gunder Haegg's world record of 4:01.4 and Arne Andersson's 4:01.6, said in Helsinki, where he is running this week:

"I am sure many more will achieve similar results. Personally I believe it will be done by the next—but not I. I am not in training."

Haegg, the swift Swede, was proud that he had been the one who predicted Bannister would be the first to crack his own great record which stood for nine years.

"Personally," Haegg said, "I have always thought the four-minute mile was more a psychological problem than a test of strength. I never considered it an impossibility."

Horse Owners' Strike Settled

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — George Monaghan, New York harness racing commissioner, announced early today that a strike of horse owners has been settled and racing will be resumed tonight at Yonkers Raceway.

There was no racing Thursday night because negotiations between the Yonkers Trotting Association and the Standard-Bred Owners Association had been broken off.

Monaghan said an agreement had been reached. Terms of the agreement were withheld.

The owners had sought 40 per cent of the track's mutual take, while the management offered 30 to 33 per cent.

ADMITS FIRE

OTTAWA (CP) — A jail farm prisoner, Joseph Egoshin, 36, Thursday pleaded guilty to setting fire to one of the farm's dairy buildings "to get even for the six-months rap they gave me for vagrancy." He was remanded for mental examination. Egoshin admitted starting the $20,000 fire last week at Burritt's Rapids jail farm, he added.

Smythe Still On Overseas Publicity Grind

LONDON (CP) — Con Smythe, boss of Toronto Maple Leafs, says that the Canadian high commissioner is still looking into the proper procedure involved in having down a full-blown challenge to Moscow's best hockey club through diplomatic channels.

Smythe took up the matter personally with Norman Robertson, the high commissioner, last Monday. "But I have no idea how long it will take him to get the necessary information," Smythe said Thursday.

A spokesman at Canada House said that Robertson had notified External Affairs Minister Pearson at Geneva regarding the request. Canadian embassy in Moscow now will be asked to look into the matter.

"The key question is whether Moscow has artificial ice," the spokesman said. "The challenge game would have to be played before or after the National Hockey League schedule. That's why we have to find out whether Moscow has artificial ice."

"It's all very vague and very much up in the air at the moment."

BANCROFT

t. Paul's United o Be Renovated

BANCROFT—St. Paul's United hurch is to be extended and enovated at a cost of $10,000, s alterations proposed include n addition to the front part of he building, modelling of the ement, modernizing and en-arging kitchens, and redecorating the church interior. . .

At a congregational meeting held in the Legion Hall, Jack Hat-ch was appointed chairman of a anvass committee to raise the ,000 necessary before the pro-ect can be commenced. The sum $3,200 was pledged at the meet-ng, and the afternoon Women's uxiliary have, for some time, been raising money for new kitch-n facilities.

Chairman of the board of stew-rds, Gordon Wright, acted as hairman of the gathering and ley Smith, chairman of the uilding planning committee, used ides to explain the proposed ex-ansions.

Guest speaker Mr. K. Kidd, of eterborough, spoke on various hases of church he had been onnected.

A "pot-luck" supper was served nd the children present were ntertained by the showing of the ew, "The Little Cloud", with the ev. Alan Rorland acting as com-entator.

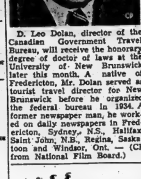
arm Development ank Is Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — The Interpro-incial Farm Union Council pro-osed Thursday that Canada cre-te an easy-credit agricultural de-elopment bank, supported largely y federal funds and designed to ncourage family farming.

The proposal, made before the ommons banking committee, was riticized by W. J. Henderson (L-ingston City) who suggested the ew venture would create a "mon-ey" of credit, tending to work gainst the established chartered anking system.

Olaf Turnbull of Kindersley, ask., council member, disagreed. xperience has shown, he said, hat non-bank credit has been ex-anded in Canada without throw-ng their forms of credit "off the arket."

The Farm Union Council repre-ents the farm unions of the three rairie provinces which believe hat Canada's welfare is best erved by family farming.



HALT OUTBREAK.

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Guards trying to prevent the es-ape of 10 inmates from the Mary-and state reformatory for males Thursday night shot and wounded seven prisoners, none seriously. All 10 were recaptured.

To Get Law Degree

A bridge expert reminds me of a mechanic who estimated the cost to a customer. "I don't understand," he added. "That this is only an estimate. The actual cost will be much greater."

Bridge experts disdain to count their tricks by some definite formula. They make a brilliant estimate that is mostly from instinct. So, they frequently reach the wrong final contract.

For most practical purposes this is good enough. For hit-or-miss results a good player can get by with such a method. But it is not to the credit of a master player to be so far from accurate.

Look over the deals they play in important title matches and it will amaze you how wrong they can be. Take deal number one from the last national masters pairs. Here it is:

	NORTH
	♠J 7 2
	♥J 10 3
	♦K Q 5
	♣K J 8 3
WEST		EAST
♠10 4		♠A K 8 7 6 5
♥8 5 3 2		♥A
♦A 6 4		♦8 7 5 3
♣Q 9 7 2		♣A
	SOUTH
	♠Q 9 3
	♥K Q 9 4
	♦J 10 9
	♣10 6 5 4

Any elementary player knows that east has a rebiddable suit in spades and not a re-rebiddable suit. In other words, it is correct to bid it only twice without support from partner.

The poorest player you will meet knows that west at no time finds adequate support for a suit that is bid more than twice. He most certainly knows he has no raise in spades.

And yet, nine of the 36 tables went to four spades and all those went down one trick. It is true that two thirds of the tables stopped at two or three spades. But nine were certainly wrong.

At one table, north stuck in a club bid and his partner carried it to three clubs that went down two tricks doubled. And one south player was permitted to play it in one no-trump. Down two undoubled.

Excuse these last two as maneuverers who got caught at it. It may not prove what they lacked in knowledge. But what about pairs who went to four spades were ignorant of a good count.

Don't do as experts do.

AT THE BELLE.

"The Command" in Cinemascope, Warner Color, opens here today.

"The Command", in Cinemascope and Warner Color opens today at the Belle Theatre.

From Warner Bros., the first story of Outdoor adventure, filmed in the new single lens process-Cinemascope — comes "The Command", starring Guy Madison, Joan Weldon and James Whitmore. The supporting cast, which reaches into the hundreds in this, the first outdoor epic in the new screen dimension, is headed by Harvey Lembeck who served so notably in "Stalag 17" as "Sugar Lips" Shapiro.

The Cinemascope process, which can project its panoramic scenes on screens up to 70 feet wide, has been acclaimed as the new miracle of the motion picture industry. The advent of Cinemascope has been compared with the development of sound by Warner Bros. studios some 27 years ago.

FILMED ON LOCATION.

"The Command" was filmed on location in the rugged mountains of California. The story concerns the plight of a troop of cavalry when the ranking field officer is killed and the command falls to an able though inexperienced medical officer played by Guy Madison. His task of protecting the settlers of the Wyoming territory from the savage onslaught is made complete by the necessity of proving himself worthy to his men and second to Joan Weldon, the woman he loves. "The Command" is from the power-packed Saturday Evening Post novel by James Warner Bellah.

FUNNY BUGS BUNNY CARTOON.

Special added attractions on the same program include a funny Bugs Bunny Cartoon 'Duck! Rabbit, Duck!' and the exotic Hawaiian Holiday Technicolor Featurette "Aloha Nui", "When Flies Fight", a thrilling sportsfilm in color, and the popular Warner Newsreel.

"The Command", in Cinemascope and Warnercolor, starting today at the Belle Theatre, is showing at regular prices so that everyone may see this giant motion picture.

Movie Column

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Judy Holliday has won her eight-year fight to escape from Billie Dawn.

Miss Holliday is the dumsy-voiced dumgal from the wrong side of the tracks who makes her way up in the world by her looks and her illogical logic. Judy started playing Billie in "Born Yesterday" on the stage. She lasted for three years, stopping in the middle to play an almost identical character in "Adam's Rib."

Then, after much manoeuvring, she came west to play the film version of "Born Yesterday," and won an Oscar in her first starring picture. She did two more pictures, "The Marrying Kind" and "It Should Happen To You," but the roles plainly smacked of Billie Dawn.

NEWEST FILM "THEY FT." When I watched her rehearse a scene, there were no overtones or undertones of Billie. It was all Judy.

Comes now her third picture, "The Solid Gold Cadillac," and now she is now wasp-waisted. Instead of her garish costumes she has a wardrobe of chic gowns. And the squeak has been replaced with her normal, pleasant, slightly inquiring voice.

"Yes, this is about as far from Billie as I can get," she remarked. "After all, you can't go on playing the same girl your life."

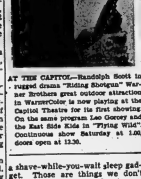
The odd title describes the status of Miss Holliday's marriage in the new picture. It is the story of a woman who tries to adjust to divorce.

AT THE McCARTHY.

Since Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride helped put Universal on the Universal-International "Kettle" comedy series more than seven years ago, Miss Main has received enough samples of various household appliances from various manufacturing concerns to outfit several homes. The latest example is the Gideon McCarthy Theatre.

Marjorie, who divides her time between homes in Los Angeles and Palm Springs, has been giving the gadgets to friends and neighbors, winning for her the sobriquet "Ma Bountiful."

Since the offers came from publicity-minded housekeeping-ware manufacturers began, "Ma" has received gas and electric refrigerators and stoves, automatic window washers, push-button door openers, self-closing fixtures, disappearing folding beds, armchair-control heating and cooling devices and light switch controls, electric table setters and even an automated bed maker.



And all of this despite—or perhaps because of — the fact that "Ma" Kettle has been named "Most Unlike Hoover Type of Any Year" three times in a row by the Far Western Housewives Association.

"I'm keeping a head and backscratcher, however," said Miss Main, "and I gave Percy Kilbride a shave-while-you-wait sleep gadget. These things we don't have to display in order to enjoy."

Cast in chief support of Marjorie and Percy in "Ma and Pa Kettle at Home" are Alice Kelley, Brett Halsey, Alan Mowbray and Irving Bacon. Charles Lamont directed and Richard Wilson produced.

AT THE CAPITOL—Leo Gorcey and the Bar Side Kids appear in the comedy "Flying Wild" now showing at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program Randolph Scott in "Riding Shotgun" now having its first showing. Continuous Saturday starting at 1.00.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, MAY 8, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A day that favors co-operating; bargaining for good deals and generally putting your best efforts on the line. It should be a stimulating on-in which to push sound new interests.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Avoid extremes, places and persons that might keep you involved or distracted from right course, duties. A day to stress principles, promises, to maintain high standards.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Affairs affecting home, work and the needs of loved ones are favored. Have concern for the little things; the honestly sincere ones rather those that are showy or of make-believe importance.

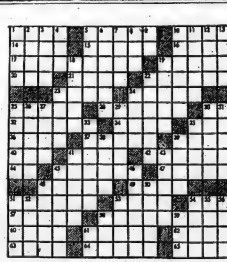
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — The diplomatic co-operator, albeit sincerely interested, will get most of the "breaks" today. Do your best to maintain a standard that promotes the best you. It's necessary for true progress.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — You who earn by living through toil—whether mental or physical—can expect appreciable returns for efforts now. Many ideas will be realized; results will bring happiness, rest.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Sensible reasoning needed this mixed day. Discretion an essential note, especially in personal affairs. Things affecting home, family. Being a good listener will help.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Industrial work, engineers, carpenters, tradesmen, all handling essential materials have fresh impetus for the better, but all must keep busy.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Mixed influences today. Be neither energetic nor lackadaisical. Don't burn up your energies on matters irrelevant to immediate problems, duties, security.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — You could be stymied unnecessarily by being too frank, too outspoken at the wrong time. Pick your way sagaciously but don't let others pass you for want of being on the job.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Another "make-it yourself day. Big suggestion is to count ten before acting—especially in money matters. Read between the lines for leads. You have fine qualities; use them ably.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—There are two roads to follow today and the choice will take extra thinking, but will be worth it. The best road leads to high gains, pleasure; the other to uncertain results.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—A well-aspected day. You are endowed with the tools; use them well. Adverse, if any, are but temporary restraints if one keeps the will to go forward strong. Hold firmly to rights.

YOU BORN TODAY have many fine characteristics, among them perseverance, a dislike of pettiness, faithfulness to loved ones, courage in time of need, understanding and devotion to well-founded principles. You are an indulgent parent. Others often rely successfully upon advice of educated, good-living Taureans. You have talent for the arts, a professional life, make able lawyers, doctors, lawyers, executives. Avoid unyielding bulkiness. Birthdate of: Harry S. Truman, U.S. ex. Pres.

Two Kidnappers In California Sentenced to Die

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The former private detectives who planned to death for a kidnaped in which the victim was ransomed but not ransom was paid from the San Quentin gas chamber with radiogram different decades.

Dapper, 33-year-old Harold Jackson and Joseph Lear, 43, were convicted late Thursday under California's "little Lindbergh law" of kidnapping Leonard Modjeska, 36, a real estate broker, Jan. 7. They demanded $500,000 ransom but later reduced it to $300,000.

The jury of six men and six women found that Modjeska had suffered bodily harm in being chained and threatened with a knife before he was rescued by police after 63 hours in captivity in the furore automatically condemned the two to death under the state law by not recommending leniency.

The verdict didn't seem to bother Jackson, a former sailor who operated a wartime private guard service on the San Francisco waterfront.

Brought into court in handcuffs to hear the verdict late in the third day of the trial, the convicted mastermind of the Modjeska kidnapping cracked to his lawyer:

"Cheer up, pal, the worst is yet to come. I'll bet anyone we get the old rocking chair."

LAUGHS AT LEAR

Then he laughed aloud at Lear, whose face was strained and taut.

When an identical guilty verdict was returned for Lear broke into tears.

His pretty 23-year-old wife, Betty, who sat in the first row with Lear's mother and father, reared for a moment then plunged her face into her hands.

Judge Frank Dunne said he will bear arguments Tuesday for a new trial before pronouncing sentence.

Said Moskovitz of the death verdict:

"It was perfectly just . . . They are getting what they deserve."

Quebec CCF-ers Back Duplessis In His Tax Stand

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec CCF party Thursday night backed Premier Duplessis' stand against the new provincial income tax should be fully deductible from federal income tax payments.

In a radio address only a few hours after the Liberal Leader Coldwell told the House of Commons his party had "no support" of the federal government stand in the income tax issue, Michel Chartier, CCF leader in the provincial party executive, said:

"The provincial CCF council feels that every effort should be made to have the tax in question rate fully deductible from federal income tax payments."

Speaking on the CBC program "La Politique Provinciale," Mr. Chartier criticized both Premier Duplessis and the St. Laurent government for the handling of the issue.

Mr. Duplessis had made "no effort to consult with federal authorities regarding the deductibility of the tax" and was motivated by "much of the misunderstanding" that existed.

The federal government had also "acted in an irresponsible manner in the whole problem of federal-provincial relations."
